Politics is a fickle goddess. A year ago a man would have been considered visionary to predict the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt for the nomination or election to the presidency. Today a large and influential portion of the Republican party is engaged in fostering an anti-Roosevelt sentiment that may defeat him in the convention. And the prospects at the election, should the president be fortunate enough to be renominated, are by no means bright. Practically all well-versed politicians agree that the solid South and New York will go for the Democratic candidate by tremendous majorities. This leaves the Democrats with only about 35 additional electoral votes to gain. Taking the figures of many leading Republican prognosticators for it, the chances of Democratic success this year are even brighter than in 1892.—Red Lake Falls Courier.

The above is a conservative summing up of the political situation as it exists today. It cannot be denied, however, that President Roosevelt to a large extent still retains a strong popular following in the West but that his star has declined in the East no one who is posted will attempt to deny. Any congressman in private conversation will admit that in Washington, especially among authorities, the president is most cordially disliked. In his personal relations with men and officials he is overbearing, opinionated, boorish. Instead of counseling with party leaders upon questions of state he greets them with an ultimatum and dismisses them with a wave of his hand. He will brook no opposition to his will. Like Louis XIV he impersonates the idea, "I am the State."

People who meet him either in social or official life are wont to compare his style with that of his distinguished predecessor, the princely McKinley, who was the soul of courtesy and politeness alike to friend and foe in all conditions of life and at all times. But this is the least of the objections to the president's lease of power. Conservative men among Republicans recognize the fact that he is not a safe man at the helm of state; that his impetuous and emotional temperament endangers the peace and stability of the country. This is talked more in private than in public but that it is the sentiment prevalent among leading Republicans no one familiar with the situation in high political circles will question.—Fairmont Sentinel.

Brain Leaks.

A place to eat and sleep is not all that is required to make a home.

If your life is empty it is probably because you have put nothing into it.

"Just this once" is the sign over the door to the ante-room of destruction.

The fellow who waits for somebody to give him a start in life usually finds when death approaches that he can reach backwards and touch his starting place.

The man called at the eleventh hour received full pay, but the man who is called at the first hour and does not respond until the eleventh hour is going to meet up with trouble.—Commoner.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The way to catch a woman is not to chase her.

Generally we wait until our bread gets stale before we cast it upon the waters.

It is a good thing for a man to have a temper, so his wife will think one in the family is enough.

A woman can always convince herself that a queer story isn't so bad if she turns down the lights.

A woman's idea of a becoming hat is something that looks like a flying machine that has been struck by lightning.

Thinks Hearst a Genius.

Fairmont Sentinel: William Randolph Hearst, America's greatest journalist, is making considerable headway as a Democratic candidate for president. Mr. Hearst is a most remarkable man, gifted with powers of organization rarely excelled. We hardly think his time has come for leadership of the Democratic party, but cannot repress a feeling of satisfaction to see the young man forge to the front.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

COURIER BARGAIN ...SALE...

A CHANCE TO GET THE COURIER, THE ST. PAUL DISPATCH, AND THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST AN ENTIRE YEAR FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR ......

THE COURIER WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER THE COMING YEAR ❧ EVERYBODY MAY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER, OLD SUBSCRIBERS AS WELL AS NEW ❧ TELL YOUR FRIENDS OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

IN order to encourage the payment of the coming year's subscriptions in advance, we have decided to hold a BARGAIN DAY SALE, after the manner of many successful merchants, when we will offer THE COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for $1.00, the regular price of THE COURIER alone. The regular price of these three papers is $2.25. For two days, on you can pay one dollar and get all three of these papers for an entire year. This is a special bargain offer, good only for the days named. After these dates the regular prices will be charged.

The quality of THE COURIER is going to be better than ever during the coming year. This bargain offer is made because we desire as many subscriptions as possible paid in advance, and we are willing to make a sacrifice in order to secure the payment of a large number. No subscriber ought to miss this chance. Those in arrears may secure the same privilege for the coming year by paying up arrearages. If you do not know how much you owe ask us to send you a statement.

Subscribers who are not able to call personally at the office on February 13 or 15, may send in their dollar by mail. Drafts, checks and money orders mailed on February 11, 12, 13, 14 or 15 will be accepted on the bargain offer the same as cash. Cash payments at the office, however, can be made only on the dates named, February 13 and 15.

If you can't come to the office, send your dollar. THE COURIER and the two other papers one year for one dollar is too good an offer for anyone in Red Lake county to miss. No one can afford to be without it or borrow his neighbor's paper.

REMEMBER THE DATES, FEBRUARY 13 AND 15, AND HAVE YOUR DOLLAR READY ....

THE BUSINESS MAN

is rare indeed who at one time or another does not have to call on his banker for assistance. His resources may be ample but in such condition that he cannot turn them into immediate cash unless his bank helps him by a loan. The Merchants State Bank always has money to loan upon approved security at legal rates of interest. The man with small business is as courteously treated here as the man of large affairs. Do you need anything that a bank can help you about?

We pay 5 per cent. on time deposits.

Farm Lands—Those wishing to sell their land would do well to see us at once.—Union Land & Investment Co.

Rev. Father Charles came down from Thief River Falls yesterday for a short visit with Rev. Father Ansgar.

Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere left yesterday for Crookston, where she will visit at the home of her parents for a few days.

Theo. Zaiser will leave Monday for Duluth, where he will enter the enploy of John Wahl, wholesale confectioner, as city salesman.

There is no court house news this week. It has been too cold for marriage licenses, and the other officials report nothing outside of the usual routine.

Mrs. Lewis Adams and child left Monday for Crookston, where they will make their home. Mr. Adams is employed at the Palace hotel barber shop.

Dr. M. F. Guinon, the optician and eye specialist, will be at the Grand View for a few days. He guarantees first-class work in every particular. 1w

Wood wanted—Twenty to thirty cords of green wood, to be delivered within sixty days. Put in your bid at once with the Union Land & Investment Co.

H. L. Veigel got home Monday from a week's visit with his family at Mankato. Mrs. Veigel and the children are not expected home until next month.

Hon. L. C. Simons left Monday on his California trip, and expects to be gone five or six weeks. He expects to return over the northern route, via Tacoma and Seattle.

H. N. Johnson, the popular representative of the Red Lake Falls Milling company, started on the road Monday on a six weeks' trip through northern Wisconsin and Michigan.

A large number of the young friends of Dosthie Robillard met at the home of Theo. Robillard Tuesday night for a surprise party on the young man. Everybody present reports a fine time.

William Compton Smiley lent the radiance of his beaming countenance at the county-seat Friday. He was enroute to Thief River Falls after an extended visit with relatives at St. Paul and Wadena.

At their meeting Monday evening the Knights of Pythias elected P. B. Gaass as representative to the grand lodge, which meets at Minneapolis in September. John E. King was chosen alternate.

Messrs. E. G. Buse and M. T. Whittemore and Misses Melvina Allard and Lillian Buse attended a dancing party at Thief River Falls Saturday evening and remained over Sunday to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lewis are expected home from their bridal trip tomorrow. They will go to housekeeping at once in the residence on Champagne avenue formerly occupied by John L. Watson and family.

Joseph H. Koke left Tuesday for Tacoma, Wash., where he will enter the employ of P. A. Kaufer, formerly publisher of the Gazette at this place. Joe's many friends will wish him all kinds of success in his new home.

Dr. F. A. Lanctot, the Crookston eye specialist has been in the city during the past few dsys, making his headquarters at the Grand View. The Doctor expects to make a visit to Red Lake Falls about every six weeks.

Dan Champoux, who recently bought the feed store from Tibbetts & Davison, reports that he is doing a large business and intends to carry a better assortment of goods than ever. He solicits a share of the trade.

Crookston Times: Mrs. A. W. Krueger, of Red Lake Falls, who has been the guest of Bemidji friends during the past week, arrived in the city Friday evening and will spend several days here with her sister, Mrs. Maurice Brosseau.

Arthur Mercier and Harry Healy attended the leap year dance at Wylie Monday evening, and report that the affair was a big success. Music was furnished by Freund's orchestra of Red Lake Falls, and about fifty couples were present.

Rev. W. H. McHenry, pastor at large, preached at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening. There will be services at the church next Sunday, but at this writing it is not known whether Rev. Knox or Rev. McHenry will conduct them.

At the council meeting Thursday evening a new fire bell was ordered, and is expected here in about ten days. The old one sustained a crack some time ago, and has not been giving satisfaction. The new one is much larger and of course will make more noise.

M. O. Sortedahl returned Tuesday from a business to Kenyon and other points in the sourthern part of the state. Mr. Sortedahl has Red Lake county pretty well advertised down that way, and expects quite a large number of landseekers from that section in the spring.

The report of the Merchants State Bank is published in today's COURIER. The statement shows a flattering condition, and the reserve of ovea $31,000 in cash and deposited in banks is a sufficient guarantee in itself of the bank's solidity and conservative management.

A woman was scanning the marriage columns of a newspaper and remarked to her husband: "Here's a strange coincidence—William Strange married to Martha Strange." "Strange indeed," replied her husband, "but I expect the next news will be a little stranger."

Notice the special bargains in box stationery that the COURIER stationery store is offering for the next ten days. About 75 boxes of these goods, ranging in price from 15c to 50c, will be closed out at 25 per cent. discount. This makes the goods at a very low figure.

Some weeks ago Dr. W. O. Tessier, of Terrebonne, had the misfortune to freeze one of his feet quite severely, and the injured member has been giving him considerable trouble. Dr. Watson was called yesterday, and it is feared that one or two of the toes will have to be amputated.

Dr. W. O. Tessier drove in from Terrebonne this morning and took the afternoon train for Crookston, where he will undergo the amputation of a toe on his right foot at St. Vincent's hospital. The Doctor had his foot frozen some weeks ago, and it his been giving him considerable trouble.

The Merchants State Bank wishes the COURIER to announce that it now has on hand a large amount of money for farm loans, and is prepared to take care of all the business in this line that is likely to come. Money is easier than it was early in the winter, although interest rates have shown no sign of going down.

The appeal in the case of ex-Mayor Kratka vs. H. W. Lee was perfected this week, and the case will be argued before the supreme court about the middle of February. County Attorney Grady is the attorney for Kratka, and says the appeal is made largely for the purpose of determining which side ought to pay the costs of the action.

The report of the First State Bank, in compliance with the call of the public examiner January 22, is published in this issue. The bank shows a healthy condition and a steady growth in the volume of business. One marked indication of the Bank's strength is the large amount of cash on hand and in banks, which is four times as much as the law requires.

The case of Dan Gerlach vs. John Alsteadt was tried before Judge Gigstad at St. Hilaire yesterday. Both parties to the suit agreed that judgment should be rendered in favor of Gerlach, and that the defendant has the right of appeal to the district court without giving an appeal bond. The case will be tried at the next term of court on its merits.

Red Lake county never has taken the race suicide theory very seriously, and the danger to America from that source has been materially lessened by the birth of triplets Monday to Mr. and Mrs. George Herr, of Terrebonne township. Dr. Lemieux informs us that the new arrivals are two boys and one girl, and that all of the youngsters are apparently in a healthy condition.

Thief River Press: It has been definitely settled that Rev. H. W. Knox is to become pastor of the Presbyterian church at Red Lake Falls for the ensuing year, the church board having unamiously decided to issue him a call as pastor. Mr. and Mrs. Knox will leave for the Lower Falls abont February 1. No selection has as yet been made for this place, but it is understood that Rev. Mr. Nicol will receive a call and will accept as soon as he graduates the coming spring.

An advertisement promising a sure receipt for making hens lay, the information to cost but a dollar caught the eye of a poutry fancier down at Felton, and for his dollar he received a printed slip that read this way: "To make hens lay—tie a stout string carefully about the chicken's body, lay the bird on her side on a two-inch plank, and securely fasten the string underneath. If desired, a pillow may be placed under the hen's head, and no further trouble about laying will be experienced.

THE LAND MEN'S UNION.

M. O. Sortedahl Thinks it a Scheme in Favor of Canada.

"I attended the land man's convention at the Merchants hotel in St. Paul yesterday, and I was not favorably impressed with the plans and purposes of the organization," says M. O. Sortedahl to a Crookston Times man. Mr. Sortedahl has spent the past two weeks in the southern portion of the state transacting business and while in St. Paul yesterday upon invitation attended the real estate dealers' convention. The plans and purposes of the organization as learned by Mr. Sortedahl are antagonistic to the Red River Valley land business and in favor of the Canadian immigration movement, in which there is a great deal more money than the conscientious handling of Minnesota farm property. The concessions granted land men of the United States by the Canadian government are very tempting, and in a great many instances result disastrously to the sales of land on this side of the line. The land man endeavor naturally enough to sell the property which brings to him the greatest funds of revenue. Mr. Sortedahl was emphatic in his statements against the policy of the land men's union, and states that he would not under any circumstances join it.

Brighten Up.

A widow, who has seen life from its harder side, dropped into a photographer's to have her picture taken. She wore her usual unhappy expression, and the photographer was forced to stop and say, "Just brighten up a bit, look pleasant." She did so, and the picture was a revelation to her friends, accustomed to the old sad look. The Sunshine society, with branches all over the country, is trying to do the same thing—brighten up men and women. If they knew the real value of golden grain belt beer they would advise its use to cheer up worn, exhausted men and tired women. It gives new strength to mind and body and shows one that life's really worth living. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

Supposing you're busted—haven't a dime,
Getting poor isn't a serious crime;
You're sure to win by taking Rocky Mountain Tea at night.

BOX STATIONERY

AT COST!

THE COURIER Stationery Store has 73 boxes of odds and ends in Box Stationery that we desire to close out at a sacrifice. These goods are all first-class, but we have two or three boxes only of each kind in the assortment, and many of them we do not care to put in stock again, preferring to sort up for Spring on new styles.

This sale will continue until February 10, and the price of every box is reduced 25 per cent., which ought to make the fact apparent that these goods are to be closed out at practically cost.

Head

Hurt So Badly Was Nearly Crazy.

Had no Sleep—Could Hardly Lie Down.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Permanently Cured Me.

"A year ago I suffered from extreme nervous stomach trouble. I was afraid of everything, could not bear to hear singing or music and reading or hearing of a death nearly brought on my own. I could not sleep or hardly lie down, the back of my head hurt me so badly I nearly went crazy. My shoulders hurt and the least thing I did would bring on an attack of extreme nervousness. There were times when I would have a lump in my throat and my mouth would be so dry I could hardly speak. I was in despair until I began to take Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I have taken in all twelve bottles and consider myself permanently cured. My home doctor has since remarked on my healthy appearance and said he wished he could say his medicine helped me. He knows it was Dr. Miles' Nervine. We are never without the Anti-Pain Pills and consider your medicines household remedies. I cannot say enough for the Nervine, because in addition to my own case my daughter, who was out of school for a long time because of St. Vitus' dance, was completely cured by eight bottles. She is now feeling fine and going to school every day. We thank you for your kindness and will never stop singing the praises of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."—Mrs. C. E. Ring, Lima, O.

DEATH AND RUIN CAUSED BY WIND

Thirty-Seven Persons Lose Their Lives—Over 100 Are Injured—Force of Wind Blows People from Their Beds—Much Property Is Destroyed.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Jan. 23.—A disastrous tornado swept over Moundville, Ala., a town of 300 inhabitants, 15 miles south of Tuscaloosa, early Thursday, and as a result 37 persons were killed and more than 100 injured. Every business house with the exception of a small drug store, was completely destroyed. The tornado struck the city from the southwest and mowed a path of a quarter of a mile wide through the town.

By the force of the storm persons were blown hundreds of feet from their beds in the blackness of night. Through terror, a father, mother and three children, fled from their home to seek refuge, and in their excitement left a five-year-old boy in bed. To-day he was pulled from beneath some timber and thus far it is impossible to find any other member of the family. Bedding, carpets and wearing apparel are scattered for a distance of ten miles through what was a forest, but which is now as clear as if cut by the woodman's ax. Freight cars were torn to splinters, the trucks from them being hurled hundreds of feet from the track.

The depot, the hotel, warehouses, gins, 30 homes, the storehouses occupied by R. L. Griffin, A. W. Wiggins & Son, J. W. Domenick, A. D. Griffin and W. P. Phifer, together with their stocks, were completely destroyed. Where they stood it is impossible to find even the pillars upon which these structures rested. Bales of cotton, which were stored in warehouses, were torn to atoms, the fragments of lint lodging in trees, making it appear as though that section had been visited by a snow storm. Heavy iron safes, the doors of which in some instances were torn from their hinges, were carried away by the force of the wind.

LYNCH IS FREED.

King Edward Orders Release of Irish Colonel Imprisoned on Charge of Treason.

London, Jan. 25.—The Daily Telegraph this morning says it understands that Col. Arthur Lynch, who commanded the Irish brigade against the British forces during the war in South Africa, and who was afterwards convicted of treason and sentenced to imprisonment for life, was liberated yesterday morning "on license." Lynch has not received the royal pardon. It is learned that the liberation of Col. Lynch is the outcome of an interesting series of events. When Michael Davitt was last in the United States he saw President Roosevelt, who mentioned Col. Lynch to him, saying he had once entertained him at Albany. The president expressed great interest in the case and regretted he could not suggest clemency without laying himself open to a palpable snub. On his return to England Mr. Davitt mentioned his conversation with President Roosevelt to Sir Thomas Lipton and to Mrs. Lynch, who has suffered bitterly since her husband's arrest. He also made a pathetic appeal to Sir Thomas, who then personally interceded with King Edward on behalf of the condemned fellow Irishman. Without any hesitation his majesty promptly informed the home secretary of his wishes in the matter, and the prisoner was released.

IS INDICTED.

Grand Jury at St. Louis Finds It Necessary to Get Senator Burton, of Kansas Into Trouble.

St. Louis, Jan. 25.—Joseph Ralph Burton, United States senator from Kansas, was indicted by the federal grand jury Saturday. He is charged in nine counts with accepting five checks of $500, each from the Rialto Grain & Securities company while a United States senator, for his alleged services in interceding with the postmaster general, chief post office inspector and other high post office officials, to induce them to render a favorable decision in matters affecting the permission of the Rialto company to use the mails. Maj. Hugh C. Dennis, president of the Rialto company, and W. B. Mehaney, associated with him, are named in the indictment as the men who made the checks to Burton. The checks are said to have been given between November 22, 1902, and March 26, 1903.

Fled for Their Lives.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Roused from sleep by the sweep of flames from the big warehouse across the alley, scores of tenants in the Bucklen apartment building, Peck place and Michigan avenue, fled for their lives shortly before midnight Friday night. The fire, which started in the Pittsburg Plate Glass company's building, Peck place and Wabash avenue swept through that structure and attacked the H. E. Bucklen & Co. laboratory and apartment building, causing within an hour a loss estimated at $350,000.

Educators Will Meet June 28.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 23.—Secretary Irwin Shepard announces that the executive committee of the National Educational association has changed the date for opening the annual convention in St. Louis from July 5 to June 28. The convention will be held one week earlier to avoid conflict with the national democratic convention.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Senator Patterson yesterday completed and Senator Platt (Conn.) began a speech on the Panama canal question. Senator Morgan introduced a bill providing for the annexation of Panama. The house passed the Hepburn pure food bill on a rising vote 201 to 68, its opponents being unable to secure a roll call on the bill.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Senator Platt (Conn.) concluded his speech on Panama yesterday. He defended the course of the president throughout the Panama revolt and eulogized the executive personally as brave and fearless. The army appropriation bill was under consideration by the house in committee of the whole for five hours, most of which time was devoted to a general discussion of the tariff question.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The senate on Friday adopted the resolution of inquiry concerning affairs in Panama introduced on the 5th inst, by Senator Gorman, and listened to a speech on the Panama question by Senator Dolliver and another on the subject of recess appointments. The house passed 209 pension bills, and also resolutions calling on the secretary of war and the attorney general for information as to the number of horses and carriages maintained at government expense for officers of these respective departments.

TRADE REVIEW.

New York, Jan. 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Weather conditions have furnished the chief influences in the general trade situation. To some extent traffic has been hindered especially at the east. Retail distribution of footwear and heavy wearing apparel felt the stimulus, and annual clearance sales removed accumulations of dry goods, millinery, etc. Wholesale business is fairly active, traveling salesmen sending in about average orders, and jobbing trade is normal. Manufacturing plants are more active, with little change in quotations, and the outlook for spring trade is considered favorable. Iron and steel plants that resumed at the turn of the year have obtained sufficient business to continue operating, and thus far the adjustment of wages has not produced the threatened strikes.

"Failures this week numbered 358 in the United States against 265 last year, and 33 in Canada compared with 27 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "Confidence in a prosperous spring trade finds support in an enlarging volume of business at southern and southeastern markets, an awakening of interest at some northwestern centers and growth even at central, western and eastern markets, where, however, weather conditions are a drawback to the fullest activity."

ONE FOUND GUILTY.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 21.—"Guilty as charged, with recommendation to the court for mercy," is the verdict rendered by the superior court jury yesterday in the case against Alderman Jacob P. Ellen, of the First ward, charged with having accepted a bribe of $350 from ex-City Attorney Lant K. Salsbury in the Lake Michigan water deal scandal. This is the first trial completed of the 25 that grew out of the recent confession of Salsbury, although eight of the officials implicated have already pleaded guilty. The penalty under the statute is a prison sentence of not more than ten years or less than one year, or a fine of not more than $5,000 and jail sentence of not less than one year.

Diamond Thief Captured.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 25.—James Walters, alleged to be one of the most successful diamond thieves in the United States, was arrested here by Detectives James Howard and Michael Neary, an hour before he intended to leave for Chicago. More than $12,000 worth of diamonds were found in his possession, while he confessed to having disposed of about $13,000 worth of stones in the past three weeks.

Great Loss by Fire.

Shelby, O., Jan. 21.—The United States Steel corporation sustained a $3,000,000 loss by fire last night at the plant of the Shelby Steel Tube company. The fire started from a defective electric wire. The product of the entire plant for the last six months was destroyed within an hour, consisting of 800,000 tons, making in all 25,000,000 feet of finished product.

Norway Town Burns.

Christiana, Jan. 25.—Fourteen thousand persons are destitute through the utter destruction by fire of the seaport of Aalesund early Saturday morning. Thus far two men are known to have died in the flames, while it is estimated that the money loss will be not less than $4,000,000, and may reach $5,000,000.

Famous Historian Dead.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—A dispatch says that Dr. Herman Edouard von Holst, the renowned historian, scholar and independent political fighter of America and Germany, who was the first professor and head of the department of history at the University of Chicago, died yesterday at Freiburg in Baden.

Eight Drowned.

New York, Jan. 25.—With a life-saving crew scarcely 200 yards away doing its utmost to aid, eight members of the crew of the schooner Augustus Hunt were washed from the wreck of that vessel at Quogue, L. I., Saturday and [illegible] Only two were saved.

BURIED ALIVE BY MINE EXPLOSION

Over One Hundred Men Entombed Near Cheswick, Pa., and Terrible Loss of Life Expected.

BIG FORCE IMMEDIATELY SETS TO WORK TO RESCUE PRISONERS

Men Will All Perish Unless They Can Soon Get Fresh Air—Aid Sent For—Pitiful Scenes at Mouth of Shaft—Cause of Disaster Not Known, But Gas Explosion Suspected.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 26.—Between 125 and 150 men were entombed Monday by an explosion in the shaft of the Harwick Coal company near Cheswick. None of them had been rescued up to two p. m., and it is believed that many of them were either killed outright by the explosion or have been suffocated by the gas. One rumor said that the dead were estimated between 40 and 50. Several hundred men immediately went to work trying to liberate the men imprisoned inside. About 200 men were employed at the mine, 150 working inside and the remainder on the tipple. The men on the tipple were badly burned by the explosion. With a loud report and an upheaval like an earthquake, the woodwork of the tipple was destroyed. The walls of the shaft were filled with debris, rocks and earth, completely shutting off all means of escape for those in the mine.

All May Perish.

Whether the explosion occurred at the far extremity of the mine and killed the men by the concussion, or whether it occurred nearer the shaft and imprisoned the men is not known. There have been no means as yet of finding the exact nature of the disaster and the number of men that were killed. If the mine entrance cannot be cleaned out so that the men can get fresh air all will have perished in the course of a few hours. With the knowledge that scores of lives depended on the prompt action of laborers at the mouth of the mine an excited gang of men was soon working with might and main. Help was summoned from all sources available and as many men assisted in the work of rescue as could conveniently work there.

Half a dozen men working near the mouth of the pit on the tipple were caught in the wreckage and three were seriously injured. They were brought to this city, one, Henry Mahew, dying upon arrival. The two others, George Waltman and F. N. Gillespie, were removed to the Allegheny general hospital. Waltman will die.

Help Hurried to Scene.

Superintendent George Sheets, as soon as he heard of the accident, telephoned to Cheswick and Springdale for assistance. Gangs of workmen were sent in response and physicians hurried to the scene to take care of the injured. The mine is about one mile from Cheswick, and was opened about two years ago. The company is allied with the Allegheny Coal company and it is said was operated by Cleveland capitalists. The mine, it is stated, has always been a gaseous one, but there has never been any serious trouble there before. Superintendent Sheets stated that he feared the worst, but there was a possibility that some of the miners might have sought refuge in one of the mine chambers away from the fire and in this way escaped death.

The scene about the mouth of the pit was indeed pitiful. Hundreds of wives and children surrounded the mouth of the shaft crazed with grief and anxiously awaiting any news from the entombed men. As quickly as possible a rescuing party was organized, but up to two o'clock no one has been able to descend into the mine.

Gas Explosion Suspected.

There was little fire following the explosion. For a few minutes smoke hung around the mouth of the shaft. Then it drifted away and, except for the partially wrecked tipple, there was nothing to show that several score of human beings had probably gone to their death in an instant. While the exact cause of the catastrophe has not been determined, it undoubtedly resulted from an explosion of gas. The explosion coming several hours after the men went into the mine would indicate that a vein of gas had been tapped. If it had been from a firedamp the explosion would have resulted as soon as the men descended into the mine. It is said the mine safety lamps required by law were used by all the men.

What caused the gas to ignite will probably not be known until an official investigation has been made.

Will Waive Senatorial Rights.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Senator Burton, of Kansas, against whom a federal grand jury on Saturday returned an indictment for accepting a bribe from the Rialto Grain company, has indicated to his friends his intention of waiving all his rights as a United States senator and accepting service in the case at once. He left for St. Louis Sunday evening, expressing his determination to force the matter to an immediate issue.

Brokers Fail.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 26.—Receivers have been appointed for the banking and brokerage firm of E. N. Morrison & Co. The failure was not a surprise in financial circles here, as the embarrassment of the firm had been known for several days. The liabilities of the firm are placed between $500,000 and $600,000.

HOTEL BLOWN UP AND THREE KILLED

Ten Others injured, Two Probably Fatally, In an Accident Near Marion, Ind.

Explosion Followed by Flames Which Shot from the Ruins and Added Horror to the Situation—Three Men Lose Their Lives in a Catastrophe at Johnstown, Pa.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 22.—Three were killed, two fatally injured and eight dangerously injured in a gas explosion in the Sitz hotel, located near the entrance to the National Soldiers' Home, three miles south of here, at four o'clock yesterday morning. The dead: Charles Beitel, proprietor; Mrs. Beitel and James Develin.

Flames Add to Horror.

The explosion was followed shortly after by flames, which shot from the ruins and added to the horror of the situation.

There is no fire-plug within a mile of the hotel, and the Marion fire department, though it responded promptly, was unable to do anything to save the building. The known dead could be seen in the burning building and their bodies were rapidly cremated.

Cause of Explosion.

The explosion, which occurred in the kitchen, was due to the increased pressure in the mains at this point, which probably forced the gas through a weak valve and into the hotel.

All of the injured were removed to the Marion hospital or to the Soldiers' Home hospital. The hotel had 20 rooms, but all of them were not occupied. Most of the injured are oil workers employed in fields between here and Gas City. The building was destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

FATAL MINE EXPLOSION.

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 22.—Three men are dead, three will probably die and seven others were seriously injured as the result of an explosion at the Cambria Steel company's works. The breaking of the governor-belt, allowing an immense flywheel to run away and burst, caused the catastrophe.

Shot Through the Heart.

Everton, Mo., Jan. 23.—James Reich was shot and killed Friday night by George W. Hamick, after having fired at Hamick because of an old grudge. Reich went to Hamick's home, forced his way into the house and fired at Hamick with a revolver. Hamick seized a shotgun and shot Reich through the heart. Hamick immediately surrendered to the authorities.

Fatal to the Rooster.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 22.—During a color rush between freshmen and sophomores of Morningside college, a live rooster, decked in class colors, was torn to pieces. The faculty and the Humane society have started an investigation and suspensions may follow.

WEATHER IS SEVERE.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 25.—With one exception Sunday was the coldest day since 1864. The government thermometer registered 37 degrees below zero early in the day and at eight o'clock p. m. at 24 below. Forty-seven degress below zero was reported at Ely, on the Vermillion range, Sunday morning, while towns on the Mesaba range reported from 35 to 45 below.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 25.—The coldest weather of the winter was experienced in the entire northwest Sunday. Superior reported a maximum temperature of 36 degrees below zero, La-Crosse 26 and Milwaukee 15. Reports from the country say a large number of cattle have been frozen to death.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 25.—The flood has in a great measure passed this point, but portions of the two cities are still submerged and will not be freed from the water for some hours. The biting cold weather that has prevailed all day augmented the distress which exists in the flooded sections.

The toll of death from the heavy floods throughout the state was increased Saturday. The bridge at Sharpsville was swept away and Victor Dunham and three foreigners were drowned. Jacob Hoffman, of Salem, O., was drowned in Yankee Run while trying to ford the stream. Four men and a woman who attempted to ford a stream at Sharon were swept away and it is reported that all were drowned.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 25.—Five lives lost, damage to property reaching over $2,000,000, business almost suspended, mills and factories ide, steam and electric railway traffic paralyzed, is the result of one of the worst floods in the section east of Cleveland, including the extreme western part of Pennsylvania.

TRAIN HELD UP.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 22.—The Southern Pacific Sunset limited, westbound, was boarded by masked men near Paso Robles early yesterday. The safe was thrown off and the discovery of its absence was not made until an hour later. The amount in the safe is reported to be $80,000.

Messenger Sullivan, in charge of the express car, had occasion to leave the car west of tunnel No. 6, and returning later found the door burst open and the safe gone.

May Annex Panama.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Senator Morgan yesterday introduced a bill providing for the annexation of Panama to the United States, "the rights and property of Panama resting in the United States without reserve." The bill appropriates $10,000,000 as compensation to Panama for its cession; places $10,000,000 at the disposal of the president for the compensation of Colombia and appropriates $60,000,000 for the purchase of the property of the New Panama Canal company in Colombia, including the Panama canal.

Fire in a Skyscraper.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—A spectacular fire in the Masonic Temple famed as one of the largest office buildings in the world, frightened the 5,000 occupants scattered about the 19 floors of the structure Saturday afternoon and caused a property loss of $20,000. A number of persons were slightly injured by the flames or in the rush for safety.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Squirrels and Nuts.

Henry Randsome of Derrynane township was in Le Suer with nine and one-half bushels of walnuts for sale, which his boys discovered in a large hollow elm tree they had cut down for firewood.

The tree stood apart from others, and near Mr. Randsome's grove of walnut trees. It was a windy day when the tree was felled, and the snow lying on the ground was quite deep. There were no signs of squirrels about when the boys commenced work, but when the tree fell, as it did, under the pressure of the wind soon after the boys commenced sawing, it shattered with a fall, and in a moment the snow was fairly alive with red squirrels that were squirming and struggling on and just beneath the surface.

The three boys, who had two dogs with them, attacked the little animals that they so unceremoniously turned out of their winter home, and killed sixty-three of them.

Binding Twine.

Prison-made binding twine will be sold to the farmers of Minnesota during the coming season at prices one-half cent lower than those charged last year.

The output for this year will be 9,000,000 pounds, 2,000,000 more than last year. It is estimated that the 9,000,000 pounds of twine turned out by the prison factory will save the farmers of Minnesota $315,000 on the regular market price of other twine.

Warden Wolfer, and the members of the state board of control, met and fixed the following prices for the various grades of twine for the ensuing year: Sisal, 500 feet to the pound, 8¼c; standard, same weight, 8¼c; standard manila, 550 feet, 9 cents; next manila, 600 feet, 10 cents; pure manila, 650 feet, 11 cents.

Big Victory.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, received word that Minnesota's claim to thirty-six acres of swamp land on the Mesaba range has been granted by Commissioner W. A. Richards of the United States general land office. Mr. Iverson says that the tract probably contains 2,000,000 tons of iron ore, on which the state will receive a royalty of $500,000.

Title to this tract was contested by Wisconsin claimants, who filed forestry scrip on it. Minnesota claimed it under the swamp laws of 1860. E. S. Warner, United States surveyor general, sustained the claim of the state, holding that the land is swamp according to the filed notes of the United States surveyors and therefore the property of Minnesota. The case was then appealed to the United States commissioner of the general land office.

Copper and Gold.

The discovery of gold on the Olaf Johnson farm in the Pine Lake hills, south of Swanville, has caused everyone having land in the vicinity to turn prospector, and as a consequance some astonishing descoveries are being made.

There cannot be no doubt that gold has been found. However, not much can be accomplished in the way of proving the extent of the discoveries, until spring weather will permit fo more thoro investigations.

State Expenses.

The state auditor issued warrants for the December expenses of the following state institutions: School for the feeble-minded at Faribault, $8,056.32; state prison at Stillwater, $5,519.29; Owatonna public school $2,238.19; school for the blind at Faribault, $1,506.93; Moorhead normal school, $959.10; Winona normal, $734.69; Duluth normal, $550.28; Mankato normal, $512.60; St. Cloud normal, $270.96.

Bold Thief.

Disguised an an electrician repairing wires, a thief giving his name as Welch, got away with checks amounting to $625 and $100 in cash belonging to the Institute of the Sacred Heart at Duluth. The thief entered the secretary's office on the second floor and, working among some books and boxes under a writing desk, found the tin cash box containing a negotiable check for $600, another for $25 and about $100 in money, gold and silver currency.

Appointments.

Gov. S. R. Van Sant re-appointed W. W. P. McConnell as a member of the state live stock and sanitary board for a period of six years, and also made the following appointments:

Dr. A. P. Graves, Brainerd; Dr. A. G. Stoddard, Fairfax, and Wm. Davis, St. Paul, members of the state medical examiners' board for a period of three years. Dr. Holman of Duluth was appointed to the state dental board for a period of three years.

News Notes.

Parties contemplate starting a national bank at Belle Plaine.

Chicago will not play football games with West Point and Minnesota next fall. This statement was made by Coach Stagg.

A box car merchant has been arrested at Rochester on complaint of the dairy and food commission on a charge of selling lemon extract containing wood alcohol. The case will be heard Jan. 25.

The state dairy and food commissioner arranges for a series of farmers' meetings to be held in the southern part of the state.

Winona county had a genuine prize fight. It was pulled off at Lewiston, a small village about fifteen miles from Winona, and there was an attendance of about fifty local "sports."

The seventh wolf shot in the city limits of Minneapolis, was brought into the city clerk's office by its slayer for the bounty of $7.50.

The radiators were equipped with new valves this week.

The seniors began the study of solid geometry Monday.

The next Athenian program will occur two weeks from tomorrow.

The recent Grecian and Roman history class is now partaking of mediaeval history.

The pupils are again settled since their wild flight in the examination haze of last week.

Some of the pupils had the misfortune to freeze an ear or a cheek while on their way to school Monday morning.

Miss Steele has been giving drill exercises during the cold weather which confines the pupils within the school.

"Laugh, and the school laughs with you: study, and you study alone." This is Johnny's idea of school after being in its atmosphere for a week.

The debate last Friday resulted in a victory for the Athenians, the points being 11.47 and 12. We wish to kindly thank the judges, Messrs. Germo, Duffy, and Bjorneby for their time and services.

Deep and heavy moans issued forth from the cloak room. On making an investigation a boy was found holding his arm and under intense physical anguish. He had accidentally come in contact with a hat pin, woman's deadly weapon.

'Way back in about 540 B. C., Pythagoras, a Greek teacher, taught his pupils from behind a curtain, My! how times have changed; what a glorious picnic and circus the modern scholar would have it the teachers were thus out of sight.

On the way home from school Wednesday noon, one of the boys from the graded rooms was accidentally caught under a wagon box. Undoubtedly he would have suffocated or frozen to death if he hadn't been heroically rescued by a few of our brave high-school girls.

BRAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ecklund ere the happy parents of a baby girl that arrived last week. All their friends extend hearty congratulations.

A. O. Letvig, of Wylie, is at present engaged in drilling a well for C. P. Swanson.

After being confined to the house for nearly six months with a broken leg, Charlie Englund was out for the first time last Friday, when he called on Peter Lindblom. Charlie's friends are pleased to see him about again.

The Right Spirit.

Youth's Companion: When the editor of a newspaper published in a New York town exposed corruption in local politics, the politicians intimidated many advertisers into withdrawing patronage, and declared that they would drive him out of town. But the Roman Catholic priest threw a bombshell into the camp of the ringsters by announcing, in church, that he would give half of his year's salary toward the support of the editor, that he would take pains to patronize the merchants who advertised in the paper, and this he hoped his parishioners would also do. "I do this in the name of fair play and decency and of a common manhood," said the clergyman. "He is a Protestant and I am a priest of the Roman Catholic church, but we are brother Americans, and I fight at his side." That is the right spirit, worthy to be commended in Americans of every race and creed, and to be followed by all.

HOW TO TEST MILK.

The Dairy Record contains this bit of sound advice to farmers who are not satisfied with milk tests: "A creamery patron is very often tempted to bring a sample of his milk to a neighboring creamery in order to have it tested and thus check up the testing done at the creamery to which he takes his milk every day. We cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that any test made in this way is very unreliable and of little or no value. If for some reason or other a patron is dissatisfied with the test his milk is given at the creamery, he should take a small bottle along to the creamery for a month and take a sample of the milk in the very same way that the buttermaker is taking his. In this way he would, when the month is up, have a sample similar to the one kept at the creamery and could then have it tested either by another butter maker, or better, by some responsible authority as for instance the Dairy and Food Department of this state. The test of a sample taken from a single can of milk or from a single milking cannot be compared with the test of a composite sample taken from the milk for a whole month and farmers should understand that there is no comparison between the two tests.

We do not believe that a buttermaker is doing the fair and square thing when he tests samples of milk brought him by patrons of competing creameries. How does he know that the sample brought him is taken as it should be taken? He knows very well why the test is wanted; he knows very well what the test he is making is going to be used for and he knows very well that he would not like to have his own testing checked up in that way. Do unto others what you would that others should do unto you, says the good book and it would be well for any buttermaker to remember this next time he is approached by one of his fellow-buttermaker's patrons with the request that he test a sample of the milk. Why not explain to the man that there is no comparison between the two testings and why not, is if he still insists that you do the testing, refuse it giving the simple excuse that it is none of your business anyway and that you have all you can do to keep peace in your own flock without going outside for trouble. The buttermaker, or the secretary who asks his buttermaker to do so, is stooping mighty low in order to win a patron over from a competing creamery.

WYLIE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Powers spent Sunday with their daughter at Crookston.

Miss Mamie McKirney is at Badger this week, being called there by the illnes of her sister, Nellie.

A. O. Letvig has his well machine at C. P. Swanson's in Bray. Andy always has plenty of work ahead.

Miss Lizzie Helm, who has been the guest of Miss Nora Dargan for several days, returned to her home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Wilson visited at St. Hilaire Wednesday and incidentally to do some shopping at Post's special sale.

P. E. Smidesang & Sons have received their new feed mill, and as soon as the weather permits will have it ready for work.

Messrs. Healy and Mercier were conspicuous guests at the leap year social. By the way, boys, remember our dog will be chained to the wood pile the next time there is a dance here.

Yesterday Peter Hansel received a message conveying the sad intelligence that his mother was dying at her home near Foudu Lac, Wis. Mr. Hansel left for that place last evening.

The weather man handed out a pretty rough specimen of wind and snow for the ladies' leap year dance last Friday night, but it takes something worse than a blizzard to defeat the purpose of Wylie young ladies. The dance was postponed until the next Monday, when it was a success in every particular. Freund's orchestra furnished the music. Forty couples were present, St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls being well represented. Well here's hoping the ladies repeat the dose.

Rigid Formality.

Mrs. Van Renselaer Cruger tells a story of a Washington hostess who invited an attache of one of the foreign legations to dine with her. The invitation was formally accepted, but on the morning of the appointed day a note, written by the foreigner's valet, was received, which read: "Mr. Blank regrets very much that he will not be able to be present at Mrs. Swift's dinner tonight, as he is dead."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MALARIA
Germ Infected Air.
Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, Liver and Kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recuperates and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease.

A Raise Predicted.

Stillwater Gazette: Both the Journal Press and Times at St. Cloud have advanced the price of their weekly papers to $1.50 a year, and that is cheap enough. There isn't a weekly paper in the country, no matter how poorly edited, but what is worth $1.50 a year, but there are a whole lot of us who are delivering first-class goods at a dollar a year. We will go up a half after while.

A Few Reasons Why the Eyes are Responsible For So Many Nervous Ailments.

Of all the nerve centers the visual centers are the most delicate and the most constantly in use, and are larger than all the other nerves put together. From morning until night the filling of the visual centers has been a most constant one. While we see apparently without effort, every impression costs a certain amount of nerve force. Think of the thousands of impressions that are received by the eye in a single day. To lift a penny once does not require a great deal of nerve force, but no one can lift a penny a million times in a day.—Henry W. Anderson, State Graduate Optician.

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss.

On reading and filing the petition of Andrew O. Letvig, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon her estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Mary Jane Letvig, deceased, is insufficient to pay her debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon her estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Saturday, the 13th day of February, A. D. 1904, at 1 o'clock p.m., at the Probate office in the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Andrew O. Letvig to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the RED LAKE COURIER, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 20th day of January, A. D. 1904.

By the Court.
(Seal) N. W. TARRANT,
Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Omer Bushea (unmarried), Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 12th day of October, 1901, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 342, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Mortgagee to Wm. M. Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of December, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to to the sum of Ninety-five dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

SOME LEAP YEAR BARGAINS

A List of Eligible Young Men of Assorted Ages on the Matrimonial Market.

The first month of leap year has already gone by, and the matrimonial market has not as yet assumed a bullish tendency. It must be that the girls have been a little slow in exercising their prerogative, for the desirable young men are numerous, and there is reason for the belief that a good many of them are willing. And as a further inducement Judge Tarrant offers to marry any couple where the bride can furnish sufficient proof that the bride "popped the question" without charge. In order that the young ladies might be aided in deciding upon an object of conquest the COURIER this week detailed a special reporter to look up the pedigrees of the eligible bachelors, and can vouch for every number listed below:

DR. N. M. WATSON—He considers that he has been especially unfortunate in running the gauntlet for so many years. He is not very old in years, and has a youthful heart; is endowed with a goodly portion of the world's goods. This is one of the very best bargains on the counter, and ought to be eagerly snapped up.

HELMUTH ZAISER—Is tall and graceful and has good business ability. He will be found inclined to do most of the talking and the girl who seeks his hand must possess rare tact and beauty. He will want his way in most things, but the right one can manage him with little difficulty. He is fond of automobiling and hammocks, and will make it pleasant for the girl who gets him.

RALPH WYER—Here is one who has not been on the market very long, but has been passed around a good deal. He is good-looking, has a kind and gentle disposition. He is a banker and has never lived in Canada or Mexico. At one time it was rumored that he was bargained for, but the young lady indignantly denied it. Ralph maintains that he would make a good husband, and we are inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt.

W. A. MCINTYRE—Is slightly below medium height, but this deficiency is more than compensated by his rotundity. Notwithstanding he was very young he escaped the last leap year only by strategy. He is a lawyer, and, paradoxically, is said to be truthful.

H. W. ANDERSON—Here is a docile and tractable young man, and would make an ideal family man. He has a leaning towards schoolma'ams, but perhaps this predeliction could be overcome. He insists that he is not on the market, but as Andy is such a splendid bargain our assortment would be incomplete without him, and he has finally consented to be listed.

HARRY B. HEALY—He would prefer a girl who lives in some adjoining town, as he likes to have some place to spend Sunday.

SAM HUNT—Would like a good cook. He would want pure food and plenty of it. He can pay the grocery bill and wash the dishes. He eats Mascot flour and smokes J. B. cigars, and believes in protection. It is therefore obvious that none but home products need apply.

SAM NAUMAN—Is very quiet and mild, but stubborn when crossed. He is getting a good start in life, and would be only too glad to share it with some young woman who comes up to the required standard. There are no claims upon him, though he has frequently attempted to make it appear so.

JOSEPH PERRAULT—Is wealthy, quiet and generous. He is old enough to appreciate the responsibitities of married life. He is worth about two dollars more than any of the other numbers, as he can issue the license himself, and we understand is willing to throw off the fee.

ANDREW ONSTAD—Is a decided blonde, has a smooth face and dresses with the best of taste. Is very quiet and would not be inclined to argue. The girl that gets him can expect to run things as she pleases.

DR. J. E. ARGUE—Is a dentist and can witness plenty of suffering without his nerves being affected. He will be found to be very easy to catch, and with the proper assistance can maintain an establishment in good style.

DR. F. F. FLETCHER—Here is another dentist, and equally as good a catch. He has been trifled with in years gone by, and will be inclined to be a little suspicious at first, but with a little tact the right kind of a woman can handle him all right and get him to say yes.

ERNEST G. BUSE—A little young, but promises well, and has winning ways. It is rumored that he is spoken for, but there is no evidence that he has consented, and we are satisfied that he will be inclined to listen to the claims of all aspirants.

J. R. POULIOT—Is a good judge of calico and susceptible to the blandishments of the young ladies.

GEORGE HENNINGS—Loving, affable and stands well in the community. His heart has never sustained a serious fracture.

T. E. METZGAR—Comparatively a new resident, but looks all right. He can at least provide the flour, if the girl will only promise to hustle around and get the other household necessities.

M. T. WHITMORE—Would be easy to catch and manage. All a woman would have to do would be to make him think he is boss. He looks wise, but appearances don't always count.

REV. ANDREW WALKER—Here's a bargain that must be applied for at once, as he is thinking of moving where girls are more enterprising. He would be around the house most of the time and carry in the wood.

ARTHUR MERCIER—Has no entangling alliances, and would be ready to marry at any time. He is trustworthy and reliable, and would make a model husband.

H. N. JOHNSON—Young, handsome and businesslike. The most serious objection is that he is a great lodge man and would be liable to stay out late nights. Still, he says he would reform if the right girl offered inducements.

P. F. POULIOT—Would prefer applications by mail, as he thinks the handwriting would enable him to judge more accurately. Is all right and has a bank account.

NED TAYLOR—Is young, but has an old head. Likes to dance and take moonlight strolls. He might be hard to catch at first, but a little perseverance would bring him in tow.

There are a number of other good catches about town, but the reporter did not have time to interview them and would not therefore publish their pedigrees without permission.

REPORT OF COUNTY OFFICIALS.

Amount Paid Our Public Servants During the Past Year.

The report of the various county officers were accepted by the board of commissioners Monday. The report shows that salaries, fees and emoluments during the year were as follows:

James E. Ford, county auditor, $1,656.37.

O. T. Tandberg, county treasurer, $1,228.92.

Joseph Perrault, clerk of courts, $1,375.90.

Frank A. Grady, county attorney, $1,181.94.

N. W. Tarrant, judge of probate, $880.50.

W. C. Smiley, county surveyor, $314.00.

H. W. Lee, court commissioner, $12,90.

SUES FOR BIG AMOUNT.

Edward C. Shevlin Says He Was Swindled by Brother Tom.

An action has been commenced in the district court of Hennepin county, in which Edwin C. Shevlin charges Thomas H. Shevlin with fraud and deceit and seeks to have the transfer of 300 shares of Crookston Lumber company stock set aside, says the Minneapolis Journal. The stock is alleged to have been purchased by the defendant for $70,000.

The complaint in the case has not been filed, but the plaintiff in support of a motion for the perpetuation of testimony which was made and granted by Judge Pond, states his contentions in writing and makes sensational charges against his brother.

Edwin C. Shevlin owned 100 shares of stock in the Crookston Lumber company and 200 shares in the St. Hilaire Lumber company, or one-tenth of the stock of each corporation. He alleges that he had no knowledge of the quantity and value of the timber and timber lands owned by said companies and that he gave a transfer of said stock to Thomas H. Shevlin, upon the latter's agreement to pay therefor $70,000, of which $50,000 has not yet been paid. He alleges that the agreement was obtained by false representations on the part of the defendant, at a time when the defendant was in a weak and enfeebled physical and mental condition, and asked the transfer be set aside.

CHEAP FARM INSURANCE.

Gentilly Mutual Make Satisfactory Annual Report.

The organization of private mutual insurance companies by farmers, at least the Gentilly insurance company which was organized two years ago, has been a profitable means of investment for the Gentilly farmers, says the Crookston Times. The annual report shows up during the past year a total income from policy fees and other sources of $871, while the disbursements amounted to only $625. 72 policies aggregating a risk of $83,000 have been added to the company's business during the year and the total amount of insurance in force on January 1st was $222,440. The members of the company and patrons cover eighteen townships. The losses incurred by fire during the past year amounted to only $284.42 and the patrons of the company secured the insurance of the property at greatly reduced rates. The officers for the ensuing year, which were recently elected, are: President, Remi Fortier, Gentilly; vice president, A. D. Dufault, Red Lake Falls; secretary, Joseph Dufault, Gentilly; treasurer, Joseph Sauve, Crookston. The directors include all of the above and Messrs. Thomas Moreau and Louis Perrault, of Terrebonne, Omer Sauve, of Gentilly, O. D. Barry, of Huot, and Joseph Bergerson, of Lambert.

THE COUNTY LEGISLATURE

The board of county commissioners held an adjourned meeting Monday and Tuesday and transacted quite a lot of important business.

The auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for the construction of a new steel bridge across the Red Lake river in Red Lake Falls city, also to secure bids for repairing the old wooden bridge. It seems to be the intention of the board to build a new bridge. The old one is in bad shape, and would require at least two thousand dollars to make the necessary repairs. This would be poor economy, as the bridge would be in bad shape again in a couple of years. The new bridge is badly needed.

The bond of the Citizens' State Bank of Thief River Falls as a county depository was approved.

The application of E. K. Gjernes, the Garnes merchant whose stock was destroyed by fire a few months ago, for abatement of taxes was granted.

The contract for doing the official printing during the coming year was awarded to the Red Lake Falls Gazette. The publishers agree to have the official matter printed in all of the legal papers of the county.

The next meeting of the board will be held February 23.

TO STAMP OUT WHITE PLAGUE

Tuberculosis to Be Reported to State Board of Health.

All cases of tuberculosis hereafter must be reported promptly to the state board of health, according to a resolution passed by the state board at the quarterly meeting just held at St. Paul.

This action is taken in order that the board may keep in touch with the progress of the disease and thus make recommendations to physicians local boards of health and families of patients as to the observance of sanitary measures and prompt precautions against infection.

Tuberculosis for several years has been increasing in Minnesota, and the board believes it is time to take definite action to stop the spread of the disease. Physicians are practically unanimous in agreeing that tuberculosis is infectious and preventable, and they think that the foregoing requirement is a step at least in the right direction.

An illustration of the increase of tuberculosis in the state is seen from a comparison of the monthly mortality for January, February, March and April of the years 1887 to 1897, and the years since 1897. The average monthly mortality for these months in the former ten years ranged from 104 to 124, whereas for the years since 1897 the mortality has ranged from 154 to 180.

The board also considered the advisability of requiring all cases of pneumonia and typhoid fever to be reported regularly, but referred to the executive committee, which will report at the next meeting.

Badly Frozen.

Theif River Review: An old gentleman named Heinick Cuno lives in St. Hilaire. He has a son lives on a claim near Germanton. Last Sunday the old man started out, on foot to visit his son. Sunday night he slept in some brush on the reservati on east of here and Monday went to an Indian's shanty for food and warmth, he then worked his way back to this city, Tuesday his condition was discovered and he was taken to Bethany hospital for treatment. His left foot was found to be so badly frozen that the loss of a part if not all of it is necessary. It is a wonder that he was not frozen to death as it was the coldest weather ever known in this section.

BAND'S PATRIOTIC PROGRAM

Next Concert to Be Given Friday Evening, February 12—New Features Introduced.

The next concert of the Red Lake Falls band will be held at the Metropolitan opera house on Friday evening, February 12, and as this is Abraham Lincoln's birthday the program will consist entirely of patriotic numbers. Through the courtesy of Prof. Whiteley and the teachers of the high school a tableau and a flag drill will be presented by the school children, and these will be new and interesting features. For this occasion the general admission price has been reduced to 25 cents, and it is hoped that a large patronage will be given. A dance will follow the musical program. The program is as follows:

1.—Tableau.
2.—"War Songs of the Boys in Blue"—
—Laurendeau
3.—Barytone solo, "Facilita," Hartman
J. B. Armstrong.
4.—Waltz, "Blue Danube" ....Strauss
5.—Strimg quartet, March from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn
Messrs. Onstad, Healy, Berthon, Marshall and Nauman.
7.—Hunting scene ....Bucalossi
8.—March, "Constitution"....Henninger
9.—Flag drill.
10.—Patrol by the Red Lake Falls National Guard.

CHANGE IN THE LAW.

New Method of Electing Township Supervisors.

The township supervisors will be elected under a new law in March, three being elected the same as usual, but one of them to serve for three years, one for two years and the third for one year. In the future however, after this system has been established, only one election each year will be made and that for a term of three years. Here is the law:

"There shall be elected in the year 1904, at the annual town meeting in each town, three supervisors, one of whom shall be elected for three (3) years, one for two (2) years and one for one (1) year, so that one shall go out each year. The number of years for which each is elected shall be indicated on the ballot, and one shall be designated and known as chairman. At each annual town meeting thereafter one supervisor shall be elected for three years to fill the place of the one whose term expires at that time. There shall also be elected at the annual town meeting in each town one town clerk, one treasurer, one assessor, two justices of the peace, two constables, and one overseer of the highways for each road district in said town; but justices of the peace shall be elected only once in two years, except to fill vacancies."

GREAT NORTHERN EXTENSION

Reports Say Pelican Rapids Branch Will Connect With Red Lake Falls Line.

There are more railroad rumors in the air this week. According to well-authenticated reports from St. Paul, the Great Northern will extend the Pelican Rapids branch to Red Lake Falls, and build the road north from Thief River Falls this summer, thus placing this city on a through line from St. Paul to Winnipeg. It is now thought the crew of surveyors here last summer were at work on this proposed line.

The plan looks feasible. There would be little object in extending the line from Thief River unless an outlet from Red Lake Falls was provided for, and the new line would head off the plans of the Soo to a considerable extent.

Regarding the proposed line the Crookston Times gives the following report:

"A crew of Great Northern civil engineers have been working on the old Pelican Rapids line which the Great Northern proposed several years ago and abandoned after doing a considerable amount of structural work. They began at Red Lake Falls and ran their lines almost directly south through Dugdale, thence paralleling the Northern Pacific, crossing it at Lake Park, and connecting with the Fergus Falls Pelican Rapids line of the Great Northern at Pelican Rapids. The line will pass throuth a rich farming country will cross the White Earth reservation and will in a measure, if built, head off a considerable amount of the business which the Soo line expects to derive from their extension. The surveyors were non-communicative when interviewed by Herman Camp, of Dugdale, but stated that in all probability the road will go through. From Dugdale south to Maple Bay seven miles of the road have already been graded and is ready for track laying. The Sand Hill river will be the only stream encountered on the route."

WILL HOLD INSTITUTES.

Red Lake County to Have Three Meetings This Spring.

Superintendent Hoverstad of the State Experiment Farm has completed a list of the towns at which farmer's institutes will be held this month and next. This list, however, has not been submitted to Sup't O. C. Greggs of the Agricultural college, but he will doubtless sanction the plans of Sup't Hoverstad as the matter has been discussed with him and he has consented to giving a large amount of time to this section of the state and will affix his official "O. K." to the list when it is presented to him.

The dates assigned for Red Lake county are Red Lake Falls March 1 and Thief River Falls March 3. St. Hilaire will also have a meeting, the date for which will be announced later on.

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.

CHAPTER VII.

JENKINS' RETREAT.

Amid the sorrows in which Drane was again involved, he had one consolation—the young woman with thirteen millions evidently felt almost as badly as he did. He heard her tell Mrs. Bowers that the judicial blacksmith on the bench was "simply dreadful."

But this was not the best of it; he heard Mrs. Bowers' reply. Only two words, indeed, and as irrelevant as are most feminine utterances in times of emergency: "Why, Bessie!" was all she said, or at least all that Drane heard, but he was more than rejoiced. Her name was Bessie! At last he had something to call her in his thoughts. It was the first hint on the subject. In his joy at this discovery he forgot to regret that he didn't know the other half of her name. He watched her pour her woes into Mrs. Bowers' ear, and was satisfied.

Such a spectacle is always entertaining, for when a woman has embarrassed a man by making a blunder, if she is not too stupid to see it, nor too proud to acknowledge it, nor too nervous to know what she is about, she will sometimes pity him divinely, if he is reasonably good-looking. And if she has begun to feel a little tenderly toward him, she will often accuse herself unjustly, in order that she may have the luxury of telling herself how sorry she is that she has put him into a difficulty.

That was why Bessie now gazed at Drane with such angelic sympathy depicted upon her beautiful countenance. She said in her heart that her testimony had somehow helped to prove that he was insane. It was a question of the heart, and in such cases a woman never allows an appeal to the higher tribunal of the mind. So Bessie acted upon her first impulse and implored Mrs. Bowers to do something, no matter what it was.

With Mrs. Bowers it was a question neither of the heart nor of the mind, but of the conscience. Therefore she decided to be merciless, but just. It was her plain duty to protect Bessie from impostors, fortune hunters and lunatics; so she frowned at Drane in a way that gave him a chill to supplement the fever which Bessie's tender glances had put into his blood.

"Where will they send him now?" asked Bessie, shuddering.

"Probably to Ward's Island, temporarily," replied Mrs. Bowers.

"Will they be good to him there?"

"He will be cared for," said Mrs. Bowers, sternly: "and fed—to a certain extent."

"Oh, my!" cried Bessie, tearfully. "Can't we take him home with us? You have been so kind to me that I look upon your house as home now, you know."

"I couldn't think of such a thing," Mrs. Bowers said, firmly. "I can not have a lunatic in my house. It is all that I can do to look out for you."

At the thought that Drane would be sent, partly on her account, to an island where there might be neither pudding nor tea, Bessie developed symptoms of hysteria which touched Mrs. Bowers' heart.

"Perhaps I could get him committed to Jenkins' Retreat," she said, relenting.

"Where is that?" asked Bessie, catching at a straw.

"It is a private asylum up-town," said Mrs. Bowers, "where they care for mild but hopeless lunatics. I will speak to the judge about it."

"Is it better than that awful island?"

"Then make the judge send him there," cried Bessie. "Tell him that I will give him ten thousand dollars if he will."

"My dear!" exclaimed Mrs. Bowers, shocked at the girl's ignorance, "there are only a certain number of judges in New York, and you don't want them all."

Drane had observed this conversation, though he could not hear any of it. One can not hear any thing in a New York police court. The testimony of tearful innocence given in such places is heard only in Heaven; which is just as well, perhaps, for it may get some attention up there. However, Drane knew that Bessie had been pleading for him; and when Mrs. Bowers approached the judge, the prisoner realized that some amelioration of his condition might be expected.

Mrs. Bowers talked earnestly with the magistrate, and with such good effect that Drane was consigned to Jenkins' Retreat till his friends from Kansas City should arrive. As for the tramp, he went to be fed—to a certain extent.

Mr. Jenkins called his asylum a "retreat," advisedly, because it certainly was not an advance upon any thing hitherto existing in that line of business. Its exterior had all the subdued horror of a fashionable boarding-house where nothing thrives but gaunt respectability. Within it was even worse. An atmosphere of "references given and required," especially the latter, filled the hall; and through a doorway at the right, could be seen a tomb-like parlor, wherein upon the sarcophagus of a sofa sat the rigid images of two ancient females, evidently patients. They looked out at Drane with a cold severity that made his hair curl.

He had come there in charge of a court officer, and had not been allowed to exchange a word with Bessie, whom Mrs. Bowers had dragged away as soon as the question of commitment had been settled. He felt deserted and friendless, and despite the fact that it was a very warm evening, he shivered as he stood in the hall waiting for Jenkins, of whom the officer had gone in search.

A large number of entertaining and cheerful reflections crowded upon Drane as he stood in the dimly-lighted hall. He wondered, for instance, whether a straight-jacket would be regarded as an essential of absolutely correct evening dress in Mr. Jenkins' retreat. He also had a curiosity to know how often, on an average, the violent lunatics in the establishment overpowered their keepers and slaughtered the less demented inmates. But, deepest and most important of all, was the question of supper, for the meal which he had appropriated in the bath had ceased to give him satisfactory support, and it might be a long time before he had a chance to steal another.

Jenkins was slow in coming; and Drane got more and more nervous. He had an unusually strong natural horror of lunatics. Not that their presence is particularly agreeable to any body—except a Jenkins at so much a head—but Drane was actually superstitious about it. He had a feeling that the germs of mania were floating in the air around him, and that he might break out with the disease any minute.

He wondered at being left thus alone. A man who had been judicially decided to be crazy should have a keeper. Then he perceived in the shadow of the door a large, ungainly man who seemed to be on watch. He stood in a kind of niche, and had thus escaped Drane's observation when he entered. This man's eye so glared upon him out of the darkness that Drane's nerves began to dance in a manner that threatened to fit him very quickly for permanent occupancy of the retreat. He felt that he must escape from that man's observation or relieve the oppressive silence by a howl.

He compromised the matter by stepping into the parlor. At this, both the ancient and unfortunate ladies assumed an air of modest reserve which was quite frightful to see. Presently one of them drew out her handkerchief and began to weep softly, but with evident determination to do the subject full justice before she got through.

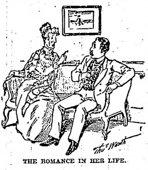
"Madame," said Drane, gently, "if my presence affects you to tears, I will withdraw."

"Do not do so on my account," she said, "it is not your fault that you have revived a sorrow that has long been buried in my breast."

Drane regretted having been the cause of such a joyless resurrection, and he ventured to murmur words to that effect.

"It does not matter," she said. "My conduct must seem strange to you. I can hardly explain it without telling you the story of my life. There is a romance in it," and she brightened appreciably. "You shall hear the melancholy narrative."

"Far be it from me to intrude upon your confidence," said Drane, endeavoring to get away. But she fixed him with her eye and he sank back into his seat. Then she drew a chair near to his and between him and the door.



THE ROMANCE IN HER LIFE.

"You resemble him strongly," said she. "The same noble features, the same soulful eyes, the same pallor, indicative of the same sad fate. Are you a genius? Do you write poems of the soul as he did?"

Drane groaned.

"I knew it," she went on. "Listen. We were destined for each other. There was a small matter of property depending upon our union—but never mind. He seemed to avoid me at first, but at length fate threw us together. Returning to his room one morning very early he endeavored to enter the old-fashioned clock at the head of the first flight of stairs under the impression that it was the door of his apartment. It was the absent-mindedness of genius. Ah, well! he and the clock fell down the stairs locked in each other's arms, and when they picked him up one of his limbs was broken. I came to nurse him. For seven long weeks I was his constant, his only companion. I read to him, I talked to him—and then—and then—"

"He died?"

"No; he became a hopeless lunatic. I have never loved since then; but now your face brings it all back to me. Excuse the outburst of my feelings."

She laid her head on his shoulder, and cried into his collar. Drane could feel his hair begin to turn gray but he shut his teeth together with resolution. The other fellow had stood it seven weeks before he went out of his head, and Drane believed that he could last till Jenkins came.

In fact he did; but it was a close shave. Jenkins was a tall and greedy man, with hollow cheeks and a cheerless smile. At his appearance the woman with a romance in her life vanished in charge of her companion, who proved to be the matron of the house. Jenkins did not care to question the new comer. He was satisfied that all charges would be promptly paid, and he at once escorted Drane to an apartment on the third floor. Here the unfortunate young man secured some toast and tea, which, however, did not wholly sustain him against the horrors of the night.

"You will excuse this formality," said he, "but the man who occupied this room before you brought in a piece of rope with which he hanged himself over the headboard of the bed before morning. We have had many cases of the kind. Good night."

This was a cheerful subject of reflection to take to bed with one, and it was still more consoling to hear the key turned on the outside of the door.

"I believe that I shall actually go crazy before morning," said Drane as he stretched himself upon the bed. It was insufferably hot. The windows were carefully barred and screened in a way which not only prevented the suicidal egress of Jenkins' boarders but denied ingress to an adequate supply of the free air of Heaven. After making this discovery Drane returned to his bed, where he was soon dreaming that the dangling heels of his unhappy predecessor were still knocking against the headboard.

From this nightmare he awoke with a shiver of horror. He sat up and listened. There was certainly a strange noise in the heavy air. Sometimes it was like subdued voices; then it was sighing; and again it was a gurgling groan. For some minutes Drane could not summon up the resolution to investigate, but at length he arose, and quaking with horror he endeavored to trace the disquieting sound to its source.

It led him to a door which apparently separated him from the next apartment. What ghastly mystery lay behind it? He hardly dared to think. He listened, and the gurgling sighs made themselves plainly audible. Doubtless some unfortunate was leaving the Retreat by the method Jenkins had described, and had failed to arrange his noose in an entirely satisfactory manner. For what seemed a long time, Drane quaked and hesitated, not daring to penetrate further into the secret. Then with a sudden resolution he seized the knob and threw his force upon it.

The door opened easily. It revealed an empty closet, with a set bowl at the side, into which a thin stream of water was trickling, and running down the escape pipe with the noise which had so horrified him. Alarm gave place to wrath. He vowed all sorts of vengeance upon every body who had even remotely contributed to his present evil plight. Every body but Bessie. He forgave her, and in thinking of her he fell quietly asleep and was not wakened till the light of morning streamed into the room.

Breakfast was served to such of Jenkins' boarders as could be trusted outside their cages, at eight o'clock. After partaking of that frugal meal Drane was permitted to spend a little while in the parlor. It had no other occupant at first except a short, stout man with an abundance of stiff, curly hair who sat at a table writing. Every time he paused in that labor he stuck his pen behind his ear; and when he was ready to resume his task he picked up a fresh one, forgetting what he had done with the other. The consequence was that in a few minutes the bushy hair over his ear was full of pen-holders, and there remained only the one which he was using. Presently that joined the rest, and then the little man, after hunting about the table a few minutes, gave it up and pushed his paper from him.

"The servants here are very careless," said he to Drane. "They always fail to provide me with pens, although they know the importance of my work. And for myself, I am so absent-minded, do you know, that my forgetfulness has been the ruin of my life. It is true."

He leaned toward Drane impressively, and continued: "I am a genius. I once wrote the greatest poem extant. Then I mislaid it. For months I searched for the manuscript, but without finding a trace of it. My cursed forgetfulness! Then I tried to remember what was in it—my forgetfulness again. I couldn't think of a single line. I could remember only that it surpassed Homer, Dante or Shakespeare. The thought that I had thus cast away undying fame by mere carelessness undermined my health, until they brought me to this sanitarium. Confound it, one might as well be honest about it. There's no sanitarium about it. It's a lunatic asylum, and for the sake of veracity let's admit it. Here I sit scribbling away every day, trying vainly to hit upon the single inspiration which for a moment raised me to an intellectual height no man had ever before attained. Thus far in vain. But who knows—who knows! What's your own special brand of lunacy?"

"I am a sane man," said Drane, half angrily.

The short man shook his head.

"Wait till you've been here a while," said he. "Then you'll dream dreams, and see visions. I was sane enough, too, but the atmosphere of this place—you don't know what it is. In two days you'll have delusions. You'll see things that aren't there—serpents of various hues; zebras with their stripes running from head to tail, and revolving around their bodies like the rings of Saturn. That's why they've put me here. They're jealous of me. They don't want me to remember the great work which I wrote but can not find. It's a plot—"

The short man was getting violent, and presently an attendant came and removed him, to Drane's great relief.

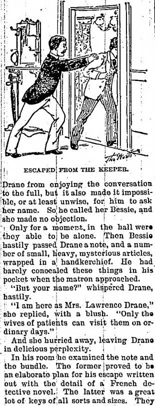
In the course of that day Drane encountered several interesting maniacs of a mild order, but no serious incident occurred until the evening. Then, as he was standing in the hall just after supper, he heard Jenkins talking to the matron, and pointing to him.

"Paresis," said Jenkins. "You want to watch him carefully."

And Drane took that delightful suggestion to his apartment, and meditated upon it. Was it possible that he was really insane? Were the strange events of the past few days which he seemed to remember, in reality only hallucinations?

Who could determine, if left wholly to himself, without a single visible link between him and the past, whether that past had any real existence? In short, Drane didn't know whether he was crazy or not. He watched himself for symptoms. Did his hand tremble? Or his heart beat too fast or too slow? He enjoyed a nice case of hypochondriacism till long past midnight, and when he fell asleep, the zebras described by the forgetful genius were ordinary and reasonable animals compared to those which pranced through his dreams.

But the morrow brought a great event, no less than a call from Bessie. She came unattended, but alas! the matron was present during the entire interview. This not only prevented Drane from enjoying the conversation to the full, but it also made it impossible, or at least unwise, for him to ask her name. So he called her Bessie, and she made no objection.



ESCAPED FROM THE KEEPER.

Only for a moment, in the hall were they able to be alone. Then Bessie hastily passed Drane a note, and a number of small, heavy, mysterious articles, wrapped in a handkerchief. He had barely concealed these things in his pocket when the matron approached.

"But your name?" whispered Drane, hastily.

"I am here as Mrs. Lawrence Drane," she replied, with a blush. "Only the wives of patients can visit them on ordinary days."

In his room he examined the note and the bundle. The former proved to be an elaborate plan for his escape written out with the detail of a French detective novel. The latter was a great lot of keys of all sorts and sizes. They had been taken from the doors in Mrs. Bowers' house, as the note explained, and were of course designed to open doors in the Retreat.

Drane studied the plan of escape religiously. He noted every place where he should go, and the number of the particular stair where he must breathe in order to avoid detection. In some way Bessie had discovered that the guard at the door was changed at midnight. Drane was to steal softly from his room at 11:56½. As near that hour as he could guess he stole, according to directions, having punched the key from his lock and opened his door with one of the bunch Bessie had brought.

He crept down the stair keeping in mind the various shrewd details of the plot; where he must hide to let the guard pass him; how he must do this, that and the other thing which the ingenuity of the girl had devised.

And now he stood at the bottom of the lower stair. The guard was asleep with his head against the wall. This, too, was according to programme. Drane could easily have passed him to his place of concealment, but suddenly a new and simpler phase of the problem struck him. He coughed. The guard did not move. Then he went up to the fellow and shook him. The guard awoke.

Drane seized him by the neck; dragged him to the parlor door; pitched him head first into the room; and before the man could recover his balance or his howls could bring assistance, Drane had opened the outside door, and was cavorting down the street.

CHAPTER VIII.

A PRICE ON HIS HEAD.

No sprinter ever made better time than did Mr. Drane in his first run from the Retreat. A medal at the end of a track is not half the inducement to speed that a pursuer at the beginning is. If Lawrence had been timed by a stop-watch it would probably have appeared that he had broken all records at the end of the first hundred yards; and yet it seemed to him that he was not running half fast enough. The street was absolutely deserted, but he came presently to the corner of an avenue that was brilliantly lighted and lively with many passers.

Then he stopped abruptly and walked slowly up the avenue for a short distance. His heart was beating violently with excitement and the exertion of his run, and he knew that he must get somewhere out of sight at once. Just ahead of him he saw that the street-car tracks entered a tunnel, the sidewalks and carriage-way rising over a hill above it. Believing that here lay his opportunity he entered the tunnel and walked through its half mile of length without molestation save from cars that passed him occasionally. The drivers and conductors looked at him sharply, and that made him wish that he had staid above ground. It also impressed him with the necessity of disguising himself.

At the end of the tunnel he found himself in front of the Grand Central Depot. If he could only take a train and go somewhere! Instinctively his hand went to his pocket and then, he remembered. The thought of passing again through an experience of hunger with its possibilities of police courts and ferry-boat concerts so distressed him that he had half a mind to return to Jenkins and confess himself a lunatic. Then probably he would be put in a straight jacket and be confined in a loathsome cell for the rest of his days. Horrible!

Suddenly he remembered that he had been in the habit of carrying a fifty-dollar bill in a little pocket unobtrusively made at the waistband of his trousers. Most of us would have thought of that before, but Mr. Drane had passed his boyhood in the lap of luxury, and in his manhood had not escaped from her leading-strings until the beginning of these unhappy episodes, so that the wherewithal was naturally the last element to enter into his consideration of practical problems. In this case he felt certain that his enemy, the tramp, must have overlooked that pocket. He thrust a trembling finger into it. Glorious! He felt the soft but firm texture of a bank note, and he knew that he was saved. He marched proudly into the depot and inquired about trains for Boston. That was still further away from home, but he had friends there who would identify him and see him out of his trouble. A train would leave in the course of an hour. Good. How much? Five dollars. Very reasonable. One ticket, please.

While the strip of paste-board was being stamped Mr. Drane drew forth the hidden bill and unfolded it. Then his heart went down to hold sad communion with his heels.

"I beg your pardon," he faltered, addressing the ticket-seller, "but I don't think I'll go to Boston this evening."

The bill was a two.

The tramp had been commendably thorough in his search through Mr. Drane's clothes, and, having found use for the fifty dollars, had recognized the utility of an emergency fund and had limited his reserve to two dollars.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

GRANGE WANTS GOOD ROADS

Demands the Aid of Uncle Sam and Indorses the Brownlow Bill.

The New York Tribune Farmer says: The farmers are, as a class, conservative in their views and slow to move. They do their thinking first and their talking afterward. For some reason the farmers of this country have been reading and thinking about road improvement and the best way to secure that much desired result. They have considered local taxation and labor as the means of building good roads and have found this long tried plan to be a failure, except in limited localities. They have studied the state aid plan and observed the great advance made under it. Finally they have been studying the question of national aid, and they appear to have concluded that "it is the way they long have sought and mourned because they found it not." At any rate, that conservative farmers' organization, the Patrons of Husbandry, in its national meeting came out with the following strong and unequivocal declaration:

Whereas, The United States government has expended vast amounts of money in the improvement of transportation facilities by river and harbor appropriations and has donated vast tracts of valuable land in aid of the construction of railroads; therefore be it

Resolved, That the national grange favors the inauguration of a national policy for the improvement of highways and the appropriation by congress of a liberal amount to establish a comprehensive system of road improvement through the cooperation of the federal and state governments, suggesting that the general features of what is termed the Brownlow bill embody, with some modifications, the essential features of such a policy; and be it further

Resolved, That we call upon all state, Pomona and subordinate granges to take prompt and vigorous action upon this important matter, and we hereby authorize the legislative committee of the national grange to inaugurate and conduct an aggressive campaign in securing federal aid for improvement of highways. Also that our legislative committee be authorized to gather all the information possible regarding the road laws and systems of road building in the several states and that such information be published in such form as the committee deems best.

These resolutions will set in motion a vast force that moves slowly, but irresistibly, for it must be remembered that the national grange usually gets what it goes after, whether it is a state freight rate law, the creation of a national department of agriculture or the passage of an oleomargarine bill. This is by far the most important indorsement the Brownlow bill has yet received.

THE LITERARY PROGRAMME

The Success of the Grange Depends Largely on a Good Lecturer.

The average lecturer of a subordinate grange is often at a loss for a good programme, something instructive and interesting. For the help of such a one we commend the following "corn programme," and it need not be said that a hundred other topics can be treated in a similar manner and prove most instructive:

CORN PROGRAMME.

Music.
Quotations appropriate to the subject.
Paper, "History of Corn From Earliest Days, With Best Varieties."
Paper, "Structure and Composition of a Kernel of Corn, With Process of Growth."
Talk, "Best Soil and How to Prepare It and Best Fertilizer For Corn."
Discussion.
Music.
Paper, "Insects That Prey Upon Corn and Best Methods of Preventing Them."
Talk, "Best Methods and Implements For Cultivating and Harvesting Corn."
Discussion.
Talks, "Different Ways of Canning and Preserving Corn For Food." (By ladies with samples.)
Question Box.—Is it more profitable to sell or feed our corn? Which is better, to feed it whole or grind it? In feeding cattle does it pay to husk our corn? Should we cut, shred or feed our fodder whole? Is corn and fodder a balanced ration? If we put it in a silo will it go enough further to pay for the additional expense? Does the United States export or import corn? If corn is a heating food, why should it be more popular in the south than in the north? What is Kaffir corn? How many bushels will the planting of one bushel of corn produce on an average? How is hominy made? Of what is corn sirup made? What articles of commerce are made from husks? Why are corncob ashes more valuable than any other? What is stover? What state in the Union raises the most corn? Can you find No. 1 corn quoted in the market reports? Why?
Recitation, "The Old Fashioned Husking Bee."
Awarding premium on the best ear of corn exhibited.
Music.

Illinois State Grange.

The thirty-second annual session of the Illinois State grange met in Springfield early in December, with an unusually large attendance. Worthy Master Oliver Wilson was re-elected. Strong resolutions were adopted favoring good roads, increased pay for rural mail carriers, a parcels post law and the initiative and referendum.

A thousand tons of seeds are to be distributed soon by the department of agriculture at Washington at a cost of $270,000. Ask your congressman for your share if you need any chicken feed.—S. E. Strode.

At the recent meeting of the Delaware state grange held in the halls of Delaware college at Newark the faculty and trustees gave every assistance in their power to make the meeting successful.

"What Should Be the Relation of the Grange and the Church?" was the suggestive topic for December of National Lecturer Bachelder. It's a good topic for discussion at any time.

NEW SHORT STORIES

When Mr. Bissell "Talked."

The late Wilson S. Bissell was a close friend of President Cleveland, and when he was a member of the cabinet the president talked very frankly with him and often at him when he was really criticising some other member of the cabinet. Among other things which the president did not like were cabinet interviews, and one day he expressed his mind freely upon the subject, saying that the constant interviews with cabinet officers in the public press on all sorts of trivial subjects were undignified. The day this lecture took place a newspaper man had interviewed Bissell about affairs in the postoffice department and had prepared a very good story, using quotation marks freely. There was not much in the interview, no subject of importance, and it appeared in different papers under headlines such as "Interview With the P. M. G.," "Discussed by Bissell," "Mr. Bissell Talks," etc.

The next day a dozen messengers informed the interviewer that the postmaster general wanted to see him. When he entered the office he found that official in a state of frenzy. His large face was red with excitement and passion.

"What do you mean," he shouted, "by interviewing me? What did you put me in quotation marks for? Don't you know that cabinet officers must not be quoted?" And much more to the same effect.

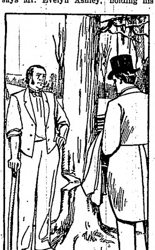
When the newspaper man got a chance he asked if there had been a misquotation and received a negative reply. "Why, I was fixing up a little story for your benefit," the journalist said. "I thought you would want people to know that you were a member of the cabinet and attending to business. Now, really, general, you ought to feel flattered."

"Oh, I know there's no harm in it, and you meant well, but I must not be quoted or interviewed. Cabinet officers must not talk. And look at the headlines," he continued, flourishing a paper. "'Mr. Bissell Talks,' blankety blank it!"

The newspaper man could stand it no longer and laughed outright, and finally the good natured Bissell joined him, although he was still far from pleased. The interview and the headlines, coming on the heels of the Cleveland lecture about cabinet officers talking too much, had greatly disturbed him. He was apparently the first man to violate the new instructions.

He Took It Quietly.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells how the latter received his first invitation from Queen Victoria to form a ministry. It was in 1868. He writes: "On the afternoon of Dec. 1 he received at Hawarden the communication from Windsor. 'I was standing by him,' says Mr. Evelyn Ashley, 'holding his coat on my arm while he in his shirt sleeves was wielding an ax to cut down a tree. Up came a telegraph messenger. He took the telegram, opened it and read it, then handed it to me, speaking only two words, "Very significant," and at once resumed his work. The message merely stated that General Grey would arrive that evening from Windsor. This of course implied that a mandate was coming from the queen charging Mr. Gladstone with the formation of his first government. After a few minutes the blows ceased, and Mr. Gladstone, resting on the handle of his ax, looked up and, with deep earnestness in his voice and with great intensity in his face, exclaimed, "My mission is to pacify Ireland." He then resumed his task and never said another word till the tree was down.'"



"MY MISSION IS TO PACIFY IRELAND."

Ready For the Test.

A teacher in one of the schools near Philadelphia had one day been so disturbed by the buzzing of lips and shuffling of feet of the children that she was on the verge of distraction. Finally she said: "Children, I cannot stand so much noise. Please be quiet, for a little while at least. Let me see if you can't be so still that you could hear a pin drop."

Instantly every child became as still as a mouse. Then a little boy in a back seat piped out with marked impatience:

"Well, let her drop!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Great Offer

An Offer of the Northwestern Agriculturist, Minneapolis.

Will Send Two or Three Young Men From This County for a Week's Entertainment at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, at the Expense of this Great Farm Paper—Write to the N. W. Agriculturist, Minneapolis, Minn., for Particulars.

The Northwestern Agriculturist of Minneapolis, Minn., has pushed to the front amongst the agricultural papers of America. The policy of its management is to engage men of the highest standing as staff editors, so that its columns are filled with authoritative articles in every department. For example, its Dairy Department is edited by the State Dairy and Food Commissioner of Minnesota, Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, one of the best posted practical dairymen of America. Its general Agricultural Department is under the charge of Hon. O. C. Gregg, Minnesota State Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes. Its poultry editor is T. E. Orr, who has recently been appointed superintendent of the poultry exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and its bee editor is Hon. Eugene Secor, the expert judge of the apiary department Columbian Exposition, and president of the Iowa State Agricultural Society.

These are but illustrations of the extraordinary high editorial standard of this popular farm paper. Its editor and publisher, P. V. Collins, is presicent of the National Editorial Association of the United States, which is to hold a great editorial convention in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in May or June—probably the largest and most important editorial meeting ever held in America. President Collins tells us that he has already arranged with such distinguishsd speakers as Colonel Henry Watterson, Ex-Postmaster General Smith and Edward Bok, editor of the Ladies Home Journal, to address the convention.

The circulation department of The Northwestern Agriculturist is now offering great inducements for local subscription agents. The publisher, Mr. Collins, writes us that they can employ three or four more agents in this part of the state to solicit subscaiptions. In addition to a very liberal cash commission allowed on every new subscription obtained, they have decided to give special prizes in the way of a week or more of entertainment for their successful agents at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition which is to open at St. Louis May 1 and continue open all summer.

When it is realized that this exposition is to be several times as large and interesting as was the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, it will interest our bright young men—or older ones—to put in a few weeks' work for the Northwestern Agriculturist and get a chance to see the Exposition at the expense of the paper.

Only a limited number of agents can be thus employed—probably not over twenty out of each state covered by The Northwestern Agriculturist, hence applications should be sent in promptly.

The Agriculturist's circulation covers from Michigan to Montana and from Canada to Kansas—all the states of the Northwest.

This is not merely a competitive offer for some one lucky agent, but the reward can be gained by all at once. There is room for all. The Agriculturist has closed its arrangements with the "Inside Inn" the immense hotel inside of the Exposition grounds and also with the Epworth Hotel, a very large new brick hotel only three blocks from the main entrance. All may go who will do a little work for The Northwestern Agriculturist this spring and summer, either near their own homes or on the road.

Aside from the trip to the Exposition, the agents now working for the paper are making excellent profits—ranging from $14 to $22 a week above all traveling expenses and board—equivalent to $100 a month at home. It requires only a little cash capital to start out with, about $10 to $15 to meet current expenses while starting. Full instructions for the work of agents together with sample copies, receipts and credentials are sent by the superintendent of the subscription department of The Agriculturist Company, B. W. Rhoads. Mr. Rhoads himself was a farm boy only four years ago and took the job of soliciting subscriptions for this paper, and succeeded so well that two years later he was promoted to the responsible position he now holds as head of the subscription department. Any bright, active young man who has character and ambition, hustle and persistence, and can talk to farmers, can make a fine livelihood at this work, see the country, learn the world and incidentally get a week or more at the Exposition this summer. If there is any young man of that description amongst the readers of this paper, who is not clearing over $100 a month, we advise him to apply at once to The Northwestern Agriculturist, Minneapolis, Minn.

A Raise Predicted.

Stillwater Gazette: Both the Journal Press and Times at St. Cloud have advanced the price of their weekly papers to $1.50 a year, and that is cheap enough. There isn't a weekly paper in the country, no matter how poorly edited, but what is worth $1.50 a year, but there are a whole lot of us who are delivering first-class goods at a dollar a year. We will go up a half after while.

Legal Blanks.

The Courier job department is printing a complete line of the standard forms in legal blanks, and has now in stock the following:

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY
REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE
IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

Now that J. Adam has delivered his maiden speech mundane affairs seek the usual level again.

According to a decision rendered by the supreme court last Friday Dr. Ames is practically a free man. It will be almost impossible to secure a conviction along the lines laid down by the supreme court, and it is likely that the indictments against him will be nolled.

E. W. Randall, secretary of the state agricultural society, will deliver an address at the editorial meeting on "Agriculture and the Press." We presume he will tell how to get six columns of state fair advertising for a non-transferrable ticket of admission which the country editor seldom uses.

Forty or fifty million a year or perhaps twice that sum, would seem to be a big enough item of government expense to interest the public. And yet we have observed very little concern in the project to spend this amount of money on service pensions for survivors of the civil war. No one knows what it would cost to pay everyone of these survivors a pension of $12 a month, because there are only vague estimates of the number who do not draw pensions and of the number whose present pensions would be increased to $12 under the law now before congress. This unconcern cannot be due to the belief that the house will refuse to pass the G. A. R. bill, for the house is supposed to be willing to approve it. The senate, however, is expected to relieve the house of the disagreeable duty of "turning down the old soldier" without hurting his feelings.

England could muster but one great man by the name of Nelson. Minnesota has two. One is Senator Knute, and the other is the Hon. E. A. Nelson, editor of the Hallock News, state librarian, assistant manager of the Collins campaign and collector for the officeholders' protective league. This Mr. Nelson is constructed of superior clay. He hobnobs exclusively with statesmen and the liveried savants of the Van Sant court. His sense of smell is particularly acute. For instance, from the little sanctum in Hallock he scented a $3,000 job at St. Paul, and soon convinced the Jameson regency that the Ninth district cowed in fear and trembling when he said "thumbs up." The Ninth district is solid for Collins, because of the universal fear that the Kittson god might crush his hapless people with one fell swoop of his angered hand should they deign the slightest disobedience to his imperious will. Long live Lord Nelson! May he be preserved from the rude awakening to the fact that he is a vain-glorious, conceited, presumptive chump, and that his assumption of superior wisdom deceives no one save himself.

The Van Sant Machine.

Slayton Gazette: The concensus of opinion among the politicians that gather in St. Paul from all over the state appears to be that Dunn will get the nomination for governor with but little opposition. The action of Van Sant in assisting in starting a Collins machine is considered an unwise move even by the friends of the governor and is developing a sentiment against Judge Collins even among those who would otherwise be supporters.

KILLED IN THE WOODS.

Former Terrebonne Farmer Meets Tragic Death.

A telegram was received here by Victor Wadekamper last Monday morning bearing the sad news of the accidental death of his brother Theodore Wadekamper in the logging woods near Grand Rapids on Friday last, says the Mentor Herald. He was engaged in loosening some logs when one fell onto him, breaking his leg and causing internal injuries from which he died shortly afterwards.

Deceased was a single man about forty-two years of age and was the owner of considerable property in different parts of the state.

Victor Wadekamper and his daughter Edna, joined at Bagley by his brother Louis, left Monday night for Grand Rapids to take charge of the body which was taken to Faribault to be laid to rest in the family lot next Monday.

Miss Wadekamper returned home this morning while the two brothers accompanied the remains of their beloved brother to its last resting place.

WANT LONGER TERMS.

Auditors and Registers Think Four Years About Right.

At a meeting of the state association of auditors and registers held in St. Paul on January 19, the members of the association discussed the proposed lengthening of the term of county officers from two to four years and reported in favor of the project. The association is composed of all of the auditors and registers in the state and a large number was present. Their course in favoring the four year term was only natural as the expense incurred in re-election is quite a tidy sum and with the four year term candidates would probably get their fill of the office and not stand for re-election.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Georgiana Cyr. Wm. Ittner, W. Johnson, Reporters.

The fourth year English class is studying narration.

The ticker has resumed its place in the assembly room after a few days' absence at the jeweler's.

The high water mark in literary work was reached last Friday when the Spartans received 42.91 on their program.

There will be no school in the high school room Friday, as the teachers' examinations will be held in the assembly room.

The temperature of the rooms was very cold Monday, and the highly complicated art of learning was hindered to a great extent.

The juniors of the high school will give a chicken-pie supper at the K. of P. hall Wednesday evening, February 17. The graduating expenses will be larger than ever this year, and the juniors should be encouraged in the work.

The program of the Athenians for Friday, February 12, is as follows: Song by school; oration, Maude Findeisen; essay, Stella Hennemuth; second edition of Athenian society newspaper, Will Hunt; vocal solo, Drew Marshall; humorous reading, Carrie Patnode; character sketch, Joseph Bourdon; recitation, Viola Longtin; piano duet, Lillian Nauman and Guynoir McConnell; recitation, Ina Linnihan; song by school.

The next debate will take place in the form of a trial, in which George Washington will be tried for malicious destruction of property in cutting down his father's cherry tree. The proceedings of the trial will be the same as in a law court, and the judge and jury will consist of citizens of the city. Each society will have three or four witnesses and three attorneys. The Spartan attorneys are Margaret Kaus, Dan Johnson and William Ittner, while the Athenian interests will be looked after by Clare Allison, Drew Marshall and Ralph Healy. Prof. Whitely hit upon this novel form of debate, and it will no doubt prove instructive as well as interesting. The date and place of trial will be announced later.

French vs. English Over The 'Phone.

The "Electrical World and Engineer" states that the telephone employees in Paris have discovered that French is more easily understood over the telephone than English. In telephoning between Paris and London during a storm, conversation in English is impossible, but French is easily understood because it has not so many sibilant sounds and unequally accented syllables. So talk French when you cannot make yourself understood in English but don't forget to order a case of golden grain belt beer. Keep a supply on hand. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson Crookston

Millions of people who have used Cole's Carbolisalve for years say it is as much a household necessity as flour. Do you think an inferior remedy would have stood the test of half a century? A Few Reasons Why the Eyes are Responsible For So Many Nervous Ailments.

Of all the nerve centers the visual centers are the most delicate and the most constantly in use, and are larger than all the other nerves put together. From morning until night the filling of the visual centers has been a most constant one. While we see apparently without effort, every impression costs a certain amount of nerve force. Think of the thousands of impressions that are received by the eye in a single day. To lift a penny once does not require a great deal of nerve force, but no one can lift a penny a million times in a day.—Henry W. Anderson, State Graduate Optician.

People are suffering with the grippe this month, yet it can be easily prevented. Cole's Bludbilder is a nerve tonic and blood purifier. When you begin to feel run down take Bludbilder and you will be free from rheumatism and grippe. Don't forget that its guaranteed by all druggists.

WEEDS
Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.
Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.
The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.
The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.
Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.
Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.
Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

COURIER BARGAIN ...SALE...

A CHANCE TO GET THE COURIER, THE ST. PAUL DISPATCH, AND THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST AN ENTIRE YEAR FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR......

THE COURIER WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER THE COMING YEAR ❧ EVERYBODY MAY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER, OLD SUBSCRIBERS AS WELL AS NEW ❧ TELL YOUR FRIENDS OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

In order to encourage the payment of the coming year's subscriptions in advance, we have decided to hold a Bargain Day Sale, after the manner of many successful merchants, when we will offer The Courier, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for $1.00, the regular price of The Courier alone. The regular price of these three papers is $2.25. For two days, on you can pay one dollar and get all three of these papers for an entire year. This is a special bargain offer, good only for the days named. After these dates the regular prices will be charged.

Saturday, February 13, and Monday, February 15,

The quality of The Courier is going to be better than ever during the coming year. This bargain offer is made because we desire as many subscriptions as possible paid in advance, and we are willing to make a sacrifice in order to secure the payment of a large number. No subscriber ought to miss this chance. Those in arrears may secure the same privilege for the coming year by paying up arrearages. If you do not know how much you owe ask us to send you a statement.

Subscribers who are not able to call personally at the office on February 13 or 15, may send in their dollar by mail. Drafts, checks and money orders mailed on February 11, 12, 13, 14 or 15 will be accepted on the bargain offer the same as cash. Cash payments at the office, however, can be made only on the dates named, February 13 and 15.

If you can't come to the office, send your dollar. The Courier and the two other papers one year for one dollar is too good an offer for anyone in Red Lake county to miss. No one can afford to be without it or borrow his neighbor's paper.

REMEMBER THE DATES, FEBRUARY 13 AND 15, AND HAVE YOUR DOLLAR READY........

Rev. W. H. McHenry, pastor at large, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

Geo. McConnell was at Crookston several days of last week looking after the interests of the Crookston Milling Company.

St. Mary's society will hold a card party at Forester hall next Tuesday evening, February 9. Everybody cordially invited to attend.

Court Commissioner Henry W. Lee and Attorney Perl W. Mabey were down from Thief River Saturday on professional business.

The ground hog got a good look at his shadow Tuesday, and according to the old proverb we can expect another six weeks of cold weather.

Lengby, a little town east of Fosston, is to have a newspaper, the Lengby Star. F. C. Johnson, of the McIntosh Times force, is to be the sponsor.

Rev. I. T. Aastad, of Thief River Falls, will hold Scandinavian Lutheran services at the city hall Sunday morning at 10:30. All are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lewis returned Friday noon from their visit with relatives at Minneapolis and Forest City, Iowa, and have commenced housekeeping.

Will Hunt entertained the members of the senior class and the teachers, Misses Winnifred Steele and Grace Iddings, at a pit party Friday evening.

A reception will be tendered Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lewis by the Knights of Pythias at their castle hall Saturday evening. Dancing will be the chief amusement.

A fine line of valentines are on display at Reichert's drug store. The prices range from a penny up, and the assortment is the best ever brought to town.

S. M. Sivertson has been confined to the house for the past week with an attack of neuralgia. He is reported better, and will doubtless report for duty again soon.

The ladies of St. Mary's church will meet with Mrs. Theo. Garceau on Thursday afternoon, February 11, from 3 to 5 o'clock. It is desired that every member be in attendance.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice: Alillie Linstad, Grace Newbery, Mrs. R. Gordon, Christian Arnesen, D. H. Nelson, P. J. Sweet and Mr. Fishback.

Mrs. W. O. Tessier came in from Terrebonne Saturday and took the afternoon train for Crookston to visit the Doctor, who underwent an operation at the hospital in that city last week.

A. M. Anderson left Monday evening for St. Paul, where he will buy the spring stock of goods for the firm of Anderson & Healy and visit relatives and friends. He expects to be gone about two weeks.

Miss Amelia Longtin returned Tuesday from Duluth, where she went last fall to enter a convent. Miss Longtin's health has been quite poorly for some months, and she was obliged to return home to recuperate.

Mrs. and Mrs. Chas. N. Bourdon entertained Leland Healy and Misses Lydia Fletcher, Bertha Norby and Widing at a six o'clock dinner Saturday. The guests are the teachers of the Bourdon children in the public schools.

W. A. McIntyre has been threatened with an attack of typhoid fever for ten days past, and on Tuesday the symptoms became so alarming that he decided to go to the hospital at Crookston. Mac's friends will hope that his condition does not become serious.

William Michelet, a rising young attorney who located at Thief River Falls a few months ago, was down to the county-seat Friday doing business and getting acquainted. Mr. Michelet reports that he is finding enough work to keep busy and has great faith in the future of his town.

Cookston Journal: J. P. Utlay, of Red Lake Falls, Alex Rodgers and J. B. Bulmann, of Thief River, come down last evening and were sent by Surveyor General Maybury to the pineries to officiate as state scalers of pine in the various logging camp.

Editor Harry Ives was down from St. Hilaire yesterday. The COURIER would suggest that if any of our young ladies fail to find a desirable number in our list of local leap year bargains to go after Harry. He is fat, fair and not quite forty, and never been kissed.

S. L. Lewis took charge of his justice books and records this week, and is now prepared to officiate at lawsuits, draw wills, perform marriage ceremonies, christen babies and perform such other odd jobs that may come his way.

Mrs. Mary Vaudrin, an old resident of the north side, died Monday morning after a long illness from a complication of diseases. She was 71 years of age and leaves a husband and two sons. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning from St. Joseph's church.

The Red Lake Falls band will give a concert at St. Hilaire tomorrow (Friday) evening. A dance will follow. The people of our neighboring town will be assured of a rare treat, for there are few better musical organizations in Minnesota than our local band.

Hans Langseth, M. C. Harlow and D. B. Bakke, all members of the Thief River city council and prominent business men, were here Monday to confer with the county board relative to the improvements to be made on the bridge across the Red Lake river at that city.

State teachers' examinations are in progress at Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls today, and will continue tomorrow and Saturday. The examinations at this place are being conducted by County Superintendent Jeffers, and Prof. J. B. Maginnis is in charge at Thief River Falls.

The next band concert will be held next Friday evening, February 12. As Lincoln's birthday falls on this date the program will consist entirely of patriotic selections. After the concert a dance will be given, and it is the expectation that this will be the best hop of the season. The band deserves a liberal patronage.

A surprise party was arranged for Miss Grace Green at the home of Frank Jeffers last Friday evening. About twenty couples were in attendance and spent the time in dancing and games. Miss Grace is the daughter of R. H. Green, the well-known Equality farmer, and is attending school in Red Lake Falls this year.

About twenty couples of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gibeau surprised them Saturday evening by dropping in unannounced. Of course they were made welcome and passed the evening with cards, dancing, etc. Lunch was served, and the folks went home in the general belief that they had had a first-class time.

Rev. H. W. Knox and family moved down from Thief River the fore part of the week and are occupying the Bourdon cottage. Rev. Knox will preach his introductory sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. He is a graduate of Cornell college and the Auburn Theological seminary, and was pastor of a St. Paul church for over a year.

Thief River Press: Mr. D. B. Barber, of Superior, Wis., arrived in the city Wednesday forenoon to begin the discharge of his duties as manager of the sales department of the Thief River Lumber company. This is the position made vacant some weeks ago by the tragic death of the late Mr. Winslow in the Iroquois theater fire.

The people in school district 112, just east of town, have decided to have a winter term of school, to begin next Monday. The patrons have been divided on the proposition, and winter school was defeated at four or five meetings. However, last week the no-school faction decided to withdraw their opposition, and at a recent meeting they were unanimously in favor of school.

F. W. Steinke, of Comfrey, Minn., has been engaged as manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery and will commence work March 1. Mr. Steinke is spoken of very highly, and at the last state contest his butter was awarded third prize. While the patrons of the creamery are sorry to lose Mr. Lauritzon they are glad to know that his successor promises to be an able and successful creamery man.

The editor of our contemporary, the Gazette, has a fresh argument in favor of the proposition that advertising pays. Some weeks ago the Gazette advertised for a lady compositor, and last Saturday evening a total stranger applied for the job. She insisited upon boarding with the family and having a permanent position. We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Haislet and the baby are doing nicely.

Remember that on Saturday and Monday, February 13 and 15, you can get THE COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for only one dollar. This is the greatest newspaper conbination ever offered to the people of Red Lake county, and ought tobe taken advantage of by every family.

Rev. H. W. Knox will enter upon his work as pastor of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. Rev. Knox has made a preliminary engagement of two months and it is expected that at the end of that period arrangements will be made to keep him here for a longer term. Rev. and Mrs. Knox are highly spoken of by the people of Thief River Falls and we trust they will like their new surroundings.

Thief River News: Louis Hanson, who was appointed mayor of Thief River Falls last Thursday evening by the city council, has assumed office. He states saloons will be required to observe the laws in every respect, as will others in the city. Mr. Hanson has received many applicants for positions on the police force, but as yet has made no appointment nor will any be made. Wm. Benzie and Ed. Jarnason will remain on the force until the decision of the supreme court in the contest case.

Dr. F. F. Fletcher has applied for a patent on a device to switch street cars from one track to another without stopping the car or slacking the speed. It is a very simple contrivance, and there is ground for the belief that Mr. Fletcher will realize a handsome profit from the invention. There has long been a demand for an appliance of this nature, and as the demand would be practically unlimited should it prove successful there is good prospect of fame and fortune for the inventor.

Attorney Lee was here from Thief River Falls Tuesday to present a petition to the board to determine the residence of a pauper, Mrs. Ragnal Running. There is a dispute between the townships of Norden and Numedal as to which should provide for the woman, and in an action brought before the municipal court at Thief River some months ago Judge Bishop decided that the board of county commissioners had jurisdiction to determine the matter. The petition was laid over until the meeting on February 23.

State auditor Iverson has sent out a circular letter to county auditors, notifying them that for the present no change in tax assessment books or assessment districts will be ordered. For over a year there has been agitation in favor of adopting the Renville county plan of assessments by school districts instead of by townships. Mr. Iverson and Public Examiner S. T. Johnson have been inclined to favor it, but a general discussion has developed so many differences of opinion that it is thought wise to make no change at present.

It isn't how much cold cream a woman puts on her face but how much Rocky Mountain Tea she takes inside that brings out real beauty. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea complexions stay. 35 cents. Tea or tablets. A. L. Reichert.

BOX STATIONERY
AT COST!

THE COURIER Stationery Store has 73 boxes of odds and ends in Box Stationery that we desire to close out at a sacrifice. These goods are all first-class, but we have two or three boxes only of each kind in the assortment, and many of them we do not care to put in stock again, preferring to sort up for Spring on new styles.

This sale will continue until February 10, and the price of every box is reduced 25 per cent., which ought to make the fact apparent that these goods are to be closed out at practically cost.

Suffered Terribly—Doctors Failed.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Him.

Weak, nervous, fretful, puny children require a treatment such as only Dr. Miles' Nervine affords. When neglected these symptoms lead to epileptic fits or spasms. Every mother should strengthen her own and babies' nerves with Dr. Miles' Nervine, a true specific in all nervous disorders. Read the following:

"When my little boy was 18 months old he had cramps in his feet and hands. They would be drawn out of shape for two or three days. At first liniment seemed to help but in about two weeks nothing did any good the doctor gave him. We called another doctor but his medicine did no good so we changed to another who called it spinal disease. By this time the child's body was drawn out of shape; his backbone was curved to one side and his hands and feet out of shape. His sufferings were terrible, and he was having from two to six fits a day. I was taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for nervous trouble and saw it was recommended for fits, so I thought I would see if it would help him. All three doctors had given him up. One-half bottle stopped the fits and his limbs straightened, and another bottle cured him. He is now a strong, healthy boy going to school. I have waited to see if the old trouble returned, before writing you, but it never has. I cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nervine enough, as I know it saved my boy's life."—MRS. The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

TAFT SUCCEEDS SECRETARY ROOT

IMMEDIATELY ENTERS UPON DUTIES OF HIS NEW POSITION

Gen. Chaffee in Charge of Ceremonies—Event the Most Impressive of Its Kind in Years—Gov. Wright and Vice Governor Ide of Philippines Inaugurated at Manila.

Washington, Feb. 2. — Gov. William H. Taft took the oath of office as secretary of war Monday and at once entered upon his new duties. The ceremony took place in the large reception room attached to the secretary's office in the war department and the transfer of authority from Elihu Root, the retiring secretary, to Gov. Taft, while simply made, was more impressive than any similar event in many years.

Before noon, the appointed hour, Gov. Taft came over to the department from his hotel with a little party of personal friends and some of his immediate family. These included Mr. Charles P. Taft and Miss Wilby, of Cincinnati, and Mr. H. W. Taft of New York; L. R. Wilfley, attorney general for the Philippines, and J. D. Schmidlapp, of Cincinnati, a personal friend of the governor. They were ushered into Secretary Root's office, where the retiring secretary, in a few well chosen words and with a good deal of feeling, surrendered his portfolio to Gov. Taft.

Chaffee Conducts Ceremonies.

The party then proceeded to the reception room, where Gen. Chaffee, chief of staff, in uniform, took charge of the ceremonies. The room was cleared of all except the participants in the induction save the party of friends and members of the general staff. Gov. Taft and Secretary Root took their places at the long table where stood John Randolph, a notary, who administered the oath of office to the incoming secretary. Then there were congratulations showered upon Secretary Taft and good-byes were said to Secretary Root. Every army officer on duty in Washington was aligned at the doorway and the brilliantly uniformed column passing before the retiring and incoming secretaries formed a pretty spectacle. Secretary Taft was in the best of spirits, and he had a smile and a good word for every one, while Secretary Root showed in his countenance the relief he felt in laying down the cares of the great office.

After the military men had passed through the room the heads of bureaus and finally most of the employes of the war department were admitted and each of these received a pleasant greeting. At the conclusion of the reception Secretary Taft with his personal friends and family went to luncheon.

Wright Inaugurated.

Manila, Feb. 2.—Gov. Luke E. Wright and Vice-Gov. Henry C. Ide were inaugurated Monday. There was an imposing demonstration, including a brilliant military pageant, about 3,000 troops being in line.

After taking the oath of office, Gov. Wright delivered his inaugural address. It was a straightforward speech, dealing with the most important interests of the islands.

Gov. Wright invited attention to the improvements that had been accomplished in the Philippines under American rule and declared his intention of adhering to the principles of the Taft administration. He urged Americans to establish cordial personal and business relations with the Filipinos, who must constitute their chief customers. In conclusion Gov. Wright asked for the sympathetic cooperation of all classes to whom, he said, were assured equal opportunities for advancement.

TRIAL BEGUN.

Fulton, Mo., Feb. 2.—The trial of Col. Edward Butler, the millionaire politician of St. Louis, on a charge of having bribed 19 members of the house of delegates in connection with a city lighting measure, came to trial Monday before Judge W. W. Graves, on a change of venue from the St. Louis circuit court. Col. Butler's entire family, including Congressman James Butler, of St. Louis, were present in court, as were also many of his political friends. The courtroom was crowded.

Circuit Attorney Folk, of St. Louis, with Assistant Circuit Attorneys Bishop and Maroney, are here to conduct the trial with the assistance of Prosecuting Attorney J. H. Murray, of Boone county. Before selecting a jury the demurrer filed by Butler to the indictment for bribery by wholesale was taken under consideration by the court.

Meets Horrible Death.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 2.—Penn Cooper, engineer of a passenger train on the Delaware division of the Pennsylvania railroad, was roasted to death Monday in a wreck which occurred near Farnhurst. His train collided with the rear end of a freight train. R. C. McCoy, the fireman, and six passengers were slightly injured. The wife of the engineer was a passenger on the train.

Printers on Strike.

Boston, Feb. 2.—The strike of the 900 book and job printers of Boston and vicinity was begun Saturday. The trouble is over a new scale of wages demanded by the help and refused by the employers.

NO OPPOSITION.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 27.—The report of the tellers on the election of national officers of the United Mine Workers was received by the convention yesterday. President Mitchell, Vice President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Wilson are re-elected. The full vote of the organization was not cast. Mitchell, as the head of the ticket, received 92,633 votes. Lewis received 91,810 votes and Wilson 91,875. They had no opposition.

The mine workers have authorised the levying of 15 cents a month in addition to the present ten cents per capita tax for the support of strikes. This increase will go into effect at once, and on a basis of a membership of 290,000 in good standing should bring into the national treasury approximately $70,000 a month.

IS A MYSTERY.

London, Feb. 1.—It can be definitely stated that Mrs. Florence Maybrick, the American woman under life sentence for poisoning her husband, has been removed from Aylesbury prison. Where she is remains a mystery which no one in authority shows any inclination to clear.

Reports from various sources conflict and help to confuse those eager to learn the truth. The Daily Mail says that Mrs. Maybrick is now in Liverpool and that the following conditions attach to her release from prison: That she will not appear on the public stage or write a book of her experiences and shall in no way endeavor to attract public attention to herself.

Other newspapers announce Mrs. Maybrick's removal from Aylesbury prison, and express the belief that she will be released within two or three months. One report has it that she sailed on the Oceanic last Wednesday with her mother, Baroness De Roques, both under assumed names.

TAFT'S POLICY.

New War Secretary Favors the Doctrine of the Philippines for the Filipinos.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The Philippines for the Filipinos will be the keynote of the policy of Secretary Taft toward the far eastern archipelago. In almost the last speech he made before leaving the Philippines for home he reiterated this keynote, which he first sounded when he was inaugurated governor of the Philippine islands. This speech has been published by the insular government in an official form and has just reached the war department. In it Gov. Taft declared that this doctrine does not exclude the encouragement of American enterprise or the American investment of capital in the Philippines, for the reason that nothing, not even education or a free form of government "can make for the elevation and civilization of the Filipino people than the investment of an American capital in the material development of these islands."

The Mayor Released.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Protesting that the jury which held him partly responsible for the Iroquois fire horror had been misdirected by those in charge of it, Mayor Harrison succeeded yesterday afternoon in gaining his release from custody through habeas corpus proceedings before Judge Richard S. Tuthill. While the mayor is no longer under the restraint of the law and the court has declared him absolved of all responsibility for the theater horror, he is still within reach of the special grand jury.

Fatally Scalded.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 30.—Three men were so badly scalded by the breaking of an iron elbow connecting the boiler and engine in the basement of the Hotel Metropole that they died in a short time at the hospitals to which they were removed. The dead: William Gupp, fireman; George Vincent, engineer; Frank Casper, fireman at Hotel Brunswick.

McKinley's Birthday.

Canton, O., Jan. 30.—Canton people yesterday informally but generally observed McKinley's birthday. Special patriotic programmes were held in most of the schools and the pink carnation was everywhere in evidence. Mrs. McKinley was driven to the cemetery in the afternoon with a large bunch of carnations for the tomb of the late president.

Coldest Night on Record.

Bessemer, Mich., Jan. 29.—Wednesday night was the coldest in the history of the copper country, the thermometer registering 46 degrees below zero. Cattle were found frozen stiff in the barns by farmers Thursday morning. Teaming and all outdoor work is stopped.

Children Perish by Fire.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 29.—A Free Press special from Au Sable, Mich., says: Two children of John Roberts, a farmer near Mikado, aged respectively two and one-half years and six months, were burned to death. The parents were away and the house caught fire.

Amply Provided For.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Official information has been given out that the needs of the 13,000 inhabitants of the town of Aalesund, Norway, which was destroyed by fire on January 24, have been provided for adequately.

COLOMBIA PLANS WAR ON PANAMA

Dispatches Indicate Belief United States Will Protect Only the Canal Zone.

Government of Colombia Compelled to Take This Step to Prevent Its Downfall—Gen. Reyes Defers Departure, Hoping for Further Negotiations in Washington.

Panama, Feb. 1.—News has reached here from Bogota that inasmuch as Gens. Reyes and Cavallero have assured Colombia that the United States will only object to her landing forces in the canal zone, the Colombian government intends to organize and send an expedition against Panama.

To Prevent Downfall.

The only explanation of this news from Bogota is that the government of Colombia is compelled to take some steps to prevent its downfall. This is said to be imminent, as President Marroquin has lost all the prestige he ever had. There is much speculation in Bogota as to the outcome of this move should it be put through.

Can't Prevent War.

New York, Feb. 1.—This cable dispatch was received here Saturday night from an official source in Bogota, according to the Sun: "Government is helpless in effort to prevent war. In less than a month from now 100,000 men will be on the isthmus." This information, confirming rumors cabled from Panama that Colombia intends organizing and sending an expedition against Panama, comes as a surprise, in view of the changed attitude of the Colombians, who had apparently accepted the inevitable and depended on Gen. Rafael Reyes, their special envoy to Washington, to save what he could from the wreck, says the Sun. Gen. Reyes was to have sailed Saturday for Barranquilla on the steamer Valencia, but for the second time he deferred his departure. Gen. Pedro Nelisphina and De Lucas Caballero, colleagues of Gen. Reyes on the Colombian commission, sailed on the Valencia.

Seeks Further Negotiations.

The story continues: On seemingly good authority, it is stated, that Gen. Reyes remains here because his negotiations with the state department at Washington have not been completely broken off and that he has a tentative promise from this government that Colombia will be taken care of with a pecuniary balm for her injured feelings. No comments could be solicited from Gen. Reyes at the Hoffman house on the threatening dispatch from Bogota.

Attacked by Indians.

Colon, Feb. 1.—The United States bunboat Bancroft arrived from the San Blas coast, and reports an attack on the part of 200 Indians. The Indians were poorly armed, and their approach at night was revealed by the searchlight. The ship was cleared for action, and a rapid-fire gun rained showers of bullets around the canoes until the Indians beat a quick retreat to the beach. Care was taken that not one of the Indians was hurt.

EX-MAYOR AMES FREE.

Minnesota Supreme Court Quashes an Indictment Against Him on a Technicality.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—The supreme court yesterday quashed the indictment against former Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis, and the entire court held that the indictment was good, but that the evidence was faulty. Judges Start, Collins and Lewis concurred in the majority opinion that the offense was not proven, while Judges Lovely and Brown disagree with that part of the opinion of the majority. Dr. Ames was charged and convicted in the district court of Hennepin county of receiving money illegally as mayor of Minneapolis from women.

He was indicted for that offense February 4, 1903, and after a trial of several weeks was found guilty May 7 and sentenced to a term in prison of six years.

Good Advice.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 30.—Harry D. Egbert, who murdered John G. Saxton and John West last October, was hanged here yesterday. Egbert made a brief speech on the scaffold. "My friends," he said, "take me as a mark, keep your children off the street and, above all, out of the saloons. Bad raising and bad company is the direct cause of my downfall. I have repented of my sins."

To Fix Wage Scale.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 29.—The bituminous coal operators of Indiana, Ohio, western Pennsylvania and Illinois, the central competitive district, in which 117,000 miners are employed in mining one-third of all the coal produced in the country, met yesterday to take up the consideration of the wages and working conditions for the year beginning April 1.

Passed Away.

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 28.—Gen. Stephen W. Kellogg, a former congressman and a delegate to the republican national convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency, died here Wednesday evening, aged 82 years, after a brief illness.

Aged Engineer Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 29.—A Clinton (Ia.) special says: Philip Howes, a well-known railroad engineer, is dead here, aged 74. He brought the first Northwestern train across the Mississippi river on track laid on ice in 1859.

RUSSIA WILL NOT DECLARE FOR WAR

This Is the Will of the Czar Unless She Is Attacked by the Japanese.

It Is Believed That Japan Appreciates the Madness of Engaging in a Fight—Another Delay in Framing and Forwarding Russia's Answer to Note.

Paris, Feb. 1.—The Gaulois quotes a high authority as follows: "Russia will not declare war unless she is attacked by Japan. This is the will of the czar and the fundamental base upon which negotiations will be continued. At St. Petersburg it is believed that Japan, despite her belligerent attitude, appreciates the madness of engaging in war."

Situation Is Critical.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 1.—"It will be astonishing if Japan remains inflexible," were the significant words of an official of the foreign office in speaking of the Russian response to the Japanese proposals, which will be dispatched to Tokio this week. The remark was not intended to convey the idea that Japan necessarily will accept the full details of the Russian proposition, but rather, if she is actuated by a single desire to preserve peace, Russia will offer a reasonable basis in a modus vivendi. At the Japanese legation the present moment is regarded as critical.

Further Delay.

Paris, Feb. 1.—Another delay has occurred in framing and forwarding the Russian answer to the latest Japanese note, and this will result in further averting the culmination of the crisis until the middle or the latter part of this week. The official advices received here from St. Petersburg, although somewhat negative, gave definite details of the status of the note and the programme it was intended to follow. Efforts are still being made to so shape this answer as to prevent a rupture.

Desires Neutrality.

Washington, Feb. 1.—United States Minister Allen, at Seoul, cables the state department that a Corean official recently returned from Russia states that the Russian government appears to desire the neutralization of Corea. The emperor of Corea is very confident that if the foreign powers will be satisfied with his determination to maintain a strict neutrality.

Warrants for Prominent Persons.

Milwaukee, Feb. 1. — As the result of Friday night's indictments by the grand jury, warrants were issued Saturday for the arrest of Supervisor Julius Fiege, on four counts; ex-Alderman Charles H. Havenor, one count, and State Senator Barney A. Eaton on two counts. Fiege is charged with issuing false orders on the county; Havenor with bribery in connection with a city ordinance, and Eaton with bribery in the legislature.

Four Men Killed.

Brownsville, Pa., Jan. 29.—Four men, all foreigners, were crushed to death in a new air shaft of the Briar Hill Coal company here. The shaft was 365 feet deep and the men were being lowered in a bucket when a 400-pound pilot weight broke, throwing the men to the bottom. The heavy weight falling on them crushed the men beyond recognition.

Distilleries Shut Down.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 1.—The Monarch and Atlas distilleries, two of the largest houses owned by the whisky trust, will shut down Saturday for an indefinite period. The closing, they say, is due to a lack of demand at present, and the large amount of spirits on hand. It is probable both houses will remain closed until the busy season next year.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The senate heard further discussion on the question of appointments to office made during congressional recess, listened to a speech on the isthmian canal question by Senator Morgan and passed a number of bills of a semi-public character. In the house the army appropriation bill, carrying approximately $75,000,000, was passed, after adopting a number of amendments. A resolution calling on the secretary of state for information as to the number of carriages maintained by the government for the state department was adopted.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The time of the senate yesterday was again divided between consideration of the Panama question and other subjects. In the house Mr. Boutell (rep., Ill.) spoke for nearly two hours in reply to statements made by Mr. Williams (Miss.), the minority leader, in his "stand pat" speech of a few days ago.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The senate proceedings yesterday included a speech by Senator Simmons (N. C.) in support of the Panama canal treaty and the passage of a resolution giving authority to the committee on privileges and elections to proceed with the investigation of the charges against Senator Smoot. The committee on foreign relations decided to make two amendments to the Panama canal treaty. In the house general debate on the urgent deficiency bill digressed to a discussion of political topics, the race question and aerial navigation.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The time of the senate yesterday was devoted to debate rather than to set speeches on the attitude of the United States towards the Panama revolution. A favorable report was made on the bill to prevent desecration of the American flag. In the house the race question, finance and the Panama canal were discussed and a bill was introduced appropriating $100,000 for a statue of Abraham Lincoln in the city of Washington. A resolution was introduced extending the thanks of congress to the people of Wisconsin for the statue of Marquette, which occupies a place in Statuary hall in the capitol at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate yesterday adopted a resolution which calls on the president to state whether the senate has been supplied with all the facts bearing on the controversy of Panama. In the house a bill was introduced to distribute $25,000,000 annually of the surplus in the treasury among the states and territories for the construction and maintenance of post roads.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Without a dissenting vote the house Saturday afternoon decided, by a vote of 167 to 0, that members of congress are not entitled to double mileage for the extra and regular sessions. Not one member had the courage to record himself in favor of the appropriation of $145,000 for mileage carried by the urgent deficiency bill.

Must Serve Sentence.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Ald. John J. Brennan, convicted of election fraud, lost his habeas-corpus fight yesterday. Judge George W. Brown quashed the temporary writ secured for Brennan and remanded him to the bridewell. This means that unless Brennan can secure his freedom by some other means he will be forced to remain till the end of his one-year sentence, imposed by Judge Gary.

Trains Collide.

Broken Bow, Neb., Jan. 29.—A tail-end collision of extra freights in the Burlington yards here caused the death of three trainmen and a passenger riding in the caboose. The dead are: Thomas Kelly, engineer, Ravenna; C. F. Eaton, fireman, Alliance; John Akers, brakeman, Alliance; J. C. Whittenberger, passenger, of Larwell, Ind.

A Great Fire.

Mexico City, Jan. 29.—A great fire at Progreso, the chief port of Yucatan, destroyed an entire square of business houses and public buildings, including the market. The loss is conservatively put at $2,000,000.

Burned to Death.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 1.—Mrs. A. J. Keys, aged 50 years, was burned to death at her home on North Fourth street Sunday night.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Fire at State School.

Fire which broke forth in the roof of the main building at the state public school at Owatonna destroyed the interior of the north wing and part of the central portion of the structure.

The flames are believed to have originated from a defective furnace flue and probably had burned sometime before they had been discovered.

Facilities being poor for fighting the fire help from the city was called by telephone. The message was misunderstood, and a run was made to the eastern part of the city, a mile and a half away. When finally reached the fire was beyond control.

The south wing, children's dining-room and the kitchen were damaged by smoke. All the school furniture was saved, tho Engineer Balch and his wife lost all their property.

Butter Contest.

A large number of buttermakers of Minnesota have agreed to enter a national butter scoring contest which will be held in Chicago under the direction of the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture and the National Dairy association. Commissioner McConnell of the state dairy and food commission received word from Secretary E. Sudendorf of the national association that 500 buttermakers in the United States have agreed to enter the contest and that Minnesota contributes the largest number of entries of all states.

There will be six scoring tests, the first two of which will be held at Chicago and the last four at Lousiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis. The first two scorings will be held in Febuary and March. Minnesota has won three national butter scoring contests in succession.

Rewarded.

"You'll die if you close that safe door" said A. Thompson, janitor of the College Inn, Minneapolis, as he pointed a revolver at Miss Edith Brown, cashier and bookkeeper of the Inn.

"Than I'll die," replied the plucky maiden and she slammed the door and threw the combination.

The janitor who resumed the role of safe cracker, fled, and now the plucky maiden is wearing a beautiful $100 diamond ring which was presented to her by Slattery, Lubby and company, proprietors of the Inn, as a mark of appreciation of her bravery.

Will Not Hang.

The Nelson boys will not hang.

Their sentence of death was commuted by the state board of pardons to one of life imprisonment, and they are now at Stillwater.

The crime for which Henry and Charles Nelson must spend the remainder of their lives in prison was the brutal murder of Henry Krier at Owatonna. The boys have little to say regarding the commutation of their sentence, but are glad to be allowed to live.

Butter Scores.

The state dairy and food department announced the following prize winners in the third monthly butter contest:

First prize, $5—H. J. Rosenau, Meriden, Steele county; score, 97.

Second prize, $3—M. G. Koepsell, Ridgeway, Winona county; score, 96½.

Third prize, $2—F. W. Steinke, Comfrey, Brown county; score, 96¼.

There were 110 contestants, and the average score was about 92. C. J. Bang of Elmore got a score of 96, thus being a close contestant for the third place.

Arrested.

The man who robbed the Baroness Helena Radziwill of $25,000 worth of diamonds and valuables about three weeks ago in San Francisco (Cal.) was captured by Detective James Howard and Capt. Mike Neary of the Minneapolis police department and lodged in Central police station to await the action of the California officers.

The Robbery was particularly successful from the view point of the robber and he made a clean escape from the California metropolis with all his plunder.

Rule Suspended.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, announced a temporary suspension of a ruling made the latter part of last year prohibiting the use of coal tar dyes in butter colorings. The ruling is suspended until the department determines a special investigation which of the so-called vegetable colorings may be used without injury to butter.

News Notes.

Chicago, Great Western earnings for the second week in January show an increase of $11,873.

Carl Miller, cashier of the Bank of Dierz, is missing, and his friends are unable to find him. His books were checked over prior to his leaving and found to be right.

The Clay county bank, at Felton, has closed its doors under peculiar circumstances. It is estimated that the assets are about $26,000, with liabilities of only $3,000.

The Lydia Co-operative Creamery association held its annual meeting and elected the following officers: President, W. J. Casey; treasurer, Edward Dubbe; directors, O. R. Borchardt, O. W. Mueller and Aug. Timmerman.

Owing to the decrease in the bicycle craze, the receipts of the city clerk of Minneapolis have fallen off during the last year to the extent of $3,000.

Spicer is to have a new bank. The safe and fixtures have been purchased and a location secured. J. L. Brown will be president, William Olson, vice-president, and R. F. Kuchman, cashier.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

VALUE OF THE NEGRO TO AMERICA

By BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

THE fact that the people in my own country are great producers and that the undeveloped people in South Africa are not PROVES the value of training and of contact with civilization. This difference shows conclusively that the negro, when given a chance, proves that he has in him the making of a USEFUL man. The negro in South Africa works little because, as he is ignorant and undeveloped, his wants are few. The American negro has received some training and has come in contact with a civilized people, with the result of INCREASING HIS WANTS. The American negro wants hogs and lands; he desires to educate his children. Besides, he wishes books and pictures and ornaments for his dwelling. The more thoroughly the negro is trained by education the more numerous become his wants, and he thereby becomes not only a greater consumer, but also a greater PRODUCER.

I am sure that the people of the south should appreciate at the present time in a very vital way the presence of the negro in that section. A very large proportion of the cotton crop, which is now bringing high prices, could not have been produced without the labor of the black people, and without that labor the millions of dollars now in the hands of southern people COULD NOT HAVE BEEN EARNED.

If the government in South Africa had been farsighted enough to educate the 5,000,000 Kaffirs in that country the industries there would not be languishing for want of labor. The Kaffir does not work because he is ignorant, but the negro of this country works, and is not ashamed to work, because he wants to keep pace with the best civilization of America.

If the progress that the negro has made and is making in the country were not compared so much with the progress of the WHITE man, but rather with that of the AFRICAN races, from which he sprang a couple of centuries ago, the judgment pronounced would not be quite so severe.

NO ONE CAN MAKE THE LATTER COMPARISON WITHOUT BEING CONVINCED THAT THE NEGRO HAS IN HIM HIGH POSSIBILITIES OF USEFULNESS AND CIVILIZATION.

The Society Girl and the Bachelor Girl

By Mrs. ELIZABETH B. WALLING, Essayist and Lecturer

THE New York society girl is the progeny of convention, typical and familiar, following the beaten track. HER ONE IDEA IS TO GET MARRIED. Mother and relatives pound this idea into her until she has no peace. Younger sisters are clamoring for their turn. In a way the girl is dependent, and she hastens to relieve her family of her support.

The bachelor girl is earnest, independent, daring, individual and refreshing, pursuing a purpose. She has a more refined matrimonial conscience than the society girl. Self supporting and independent, she does not marry for convenience, BUT FOR LOVE. The minimum of divorces is found among the marriages of bachelor girls.

The bachelor maid combines the virtues of her own type with all the sympathy, delicacy, grace and charm of the conservative society girl.

IT IS AMONG THE MARRIAGES OF THE SOCIETY GIRLS THAT WE FIND THE GREATEST NUMBER OF DIVORCES. EVER AND ANON COMES A DESPAIRING HOWL OF PROTEST FROM PULPIT AND PRESS AGAINST DIVORCE. BUT IT PUZZLES ME SORELY THAT THERE IS NOT MORE PREACHING AGAINST THE LOVELESS MARRIAGE OF CONVENIENCE.

WHAT THE UNITED STATES OWES TO THE POLITICIANS

By Governor ODELL of New York

PARTIES exist, or should exist, for the betterment of government, but never for the sole advancement of individuals. MEN ARE BUT THE INSTRUMENTS, and, while ambition should be an incentive, no government can long endure whose policies are for the political success of CERTAIN MEN rather than the protection and advancement of all its citizens. Therefore a government which teaches any doctrine which does not recognize the full rights of individuals fails to be a government OF THE PEOPLE.

These rights can be secured only through and by an active participation in the affairs of government. We too often feel that in our business affairs we are doing our part in the upbuilding of the state. Essential as is the work, the greater duty which comes to us should not be neglected if we are to secure protection to life and property and liberty to individuals.

THE BUSINESS MEN OF OUR COUNTRY SHOULD BE INTERESTED NOT ALONE IN THE MERE DETAILS OF TRADE, BUT THEY SHOULD ALSO BE POLITICIANS, AND I USE THAT WORD ADVISEDLY AND WITH A FULL KNOWLEDGE OF ITS MEANING.

Too often we refer to the man who is engaged in politics in a sneering manner. Study the past and the present of our country, and you will find a galaxy of names of those who have been politicians whose work has reflected glory upon our common country. Men active in every walk of life, they have wrought results which permit the enjoyment of liberty by us to the truest and fullest extent. EVERY ADVANCE our country has made has been the result of their labors, results which they produced undeterred by partisan or other criticism.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabelle Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earl F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows:

The south east quarter (s. e. 1/4) of section 31; township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Order to Show Cause on Filing Petition to Mortgage Land.

State of Minnesota, }

On reading and filing the petition of Andrew O. Letvig, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; with the charges of administration, and the taxes, assessments and other charges, which are an existing lien upon her estate, and the improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said Mary Jane Letvig, deceased, is insufficient to pay her debts, with the charges of administration and to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon her estate, or to pay for any improvements which are necessary for the preservation of her real estate or any part thereof.

It is Therefore Ordered, That all persons interested in said estate appear before this Court on Saturday, the 13th day of February, A. D. 1904, at 1 o'clock p.m., at the Probate office in the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Andrew O. Letvig to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased, for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such debts, charges, taxes, assessments and liens and for the making of such necessary improvements.

And it is Further Ordered, That this Order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the RED LAKE COURIER, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 20th day of January, A. D. 1904.

By the Court.

(Seal) N. W. TARRANT,
j21-48 Judge of Probate.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Omer Bushea (unmarried), Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 12th day of October, 1901, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 342, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Mortgagee to Wm. M. Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of December, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to to the sum of Ninety-five dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

LOTS OF RAILROAD RUMORS

It is evident that something is doing in the railroad line, and Red Lake county seems in a fair way to get several new railroads this year.

The Soo line is certain, and recent developments indicate the Pelican Rapids extension will surely be constructed. Regarding the proposed new roads the Crookston Journal says:

"The air is full of rumors concerning the intention of the Soo and Great Northern roads in the matter of building extensions, and some of them are decidedly interesting, particularly to the people in the country between Crookston and Fosston.

"It is assured the Great Northern will build two lines to parallel the Soo's proposed line to Emerson, placing them on the map so as to cut off the trade that would be tributary to the line that has never before projected a road into Jim Hill's Minnesota territory in this part of the state.

"One of these lines, it is said will be an extension of the Great Northern southerly from Red Lake Falls to Pelican Rapids, utilizing the old grade that was thrown up sixteen years ago, when an attempt was made to circumvent the Northern Pacific Red Lake Falls line, and which has been built from Dugdale to a point near Pelican Rapids. This with the proposed extension of the line from Thief River into Roseau county would while paralleling the Northern Pacific branch for 60 miles be a formidable competitor of the Soo and would traverse a rich country.

"It is said to be on the cards that another Great Northern line will be run from some point of the trunk system north through the White Earth reservation through Fosston leaving Red Lake Falls to the west, and on into Roseau county to a connection with the Canadian Northern on Lake of the Woods. This, too, would develop the country through which it would pass and become a paying branch at once. This is in line with the policy of the Great Northern in North Dakota where lines have been constructed every 20 or 30 miles leading from the coast route to the international boundary.

"Meantime the Soo has another corps of surveyors in the field, and it has given orders for a re-survey of the entire line from Wild Rice River to Pelan. This is hoped by the Red Lake Falls people to mean that the road will be built into their town, but they have not been able to secure any information concerning the matter from any member of the surveying party.

"Color is given to the theory that the Pelican Rapids branch will be built by the fact that a corps of Great Northern surveyors have recently been in Dugdale, and from there they proceeded to traverse the route of the abandoned grade southerly. It is also recalled that the Great Northern has never been willing to deed back to the farmers along the grade the right of way which some of them have greatly desired.

"McIntosh and Erskine people have been turning alternately hot and cold as surveying parties in the employ of the Soo road have gone from one place to the other running lines, and both places claim that the road will find a passage through their part of the country.

"It is on the cards that important moves are to be made, but up to date no one can fathom the mystery that surrounds the movements of the two roads."

Stole a Watch.

Olaf Opperud, a seventeen-year-old lad of St. Hilaire, was arrested Monday charged with stealing a watch and chain from Anton Gulseth. The young man plead guilty to petty larceny and was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail, the fine being remitted during good behavior. County Attorney Grady represented the state and James McIntyre the defendant.

London, Feb. 11—The Japanese have captured three Russian transports convoying 2,000 troops to Korea.

Japanese war vessels have sunk two Russian cruisers, the Variag and the Korletz, at the entrance to Chemulpo harbor.

LONG ON HOLIDAYS.

Is Month of February, though Short in Number of Days.

Although in number of days the shortest month in the year, is February, it is by no means the least interesting of the twelve divisions of the calendar. On the contrary it has an exceptionally large quota of holidays and other occasions more or less generally observed.

The first event of the month around which general interest centers is Ground Hog day which falls on the second, and is supposed to determine how much longer the winter is to continue.

The next notable day in February is Lincoln's birthday, which falls on the 12th. This is one of the great patriotic holidays, and is celebrated everywhere by school and other organizations.

Two days later comes St. Valentine's day with its "heart interest" observed by the exchange of missives of love. Valentine's day comes on Sunday this year.

Wednesday, Feb. 16th, is a day of deep religious significance, known as Ash Wednesday and marking the beginning of that forty days' fast called Lent

Washington's birthday, the 22nd, has been a national holiday for many years. Wherever there are patrotic hearts, the Father of his Country is honored on this occasion.

Add to these events the odd day (29th) which comes this year for the first time since 1896, and February appears as an interesting month indeed. Never oftener than once in four years has February its 29th day, and in the present instance, it is the first occurence of the day in eight years.

The person born Feb. 29th, in 1896 or any past leap year, will doubtless vote the last day of the present month the greatest of them all, for to such a person it will mean the first birthday in eight years.

CHANGE IN METHODS.

Crookston Office Advised of New Plan in Taking Proofs.

Circulars have been received by the United States land office at Crookston which materially change the manner of taking final proofs in cases where the papers are drawn outside of the district office. According to the instuctions, when it is desired to make final proof without visiting the land office in person, the settler must, as heretofore, make application to the district land office for such final proof.

As soon as the application is received the special agent of the department of the interior is notified. He will at once investigate and be present at the examination of the applicant and his witnesses before the United States court commissioner or any other officer qualified to make out such papers. If the special agent cannot be present at this time, the applicant will go ahead, make out his papers and forward them to the district land office and wait the convenience of the special agent. But, under no circumstance, will the officials issue the final certificate until the papers have been passed upon and approved by the special agent.

TO BE PAID IN TAXES.

Minnesota Property Owners Will Pay Increased Taxes This Year.

The people of Minnesota will have to pay $1,405,250.95 more taxes for all purposes this year than last year, and the valuation of the taxable property in the state has increased $25,108,535.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, finished compiling the 1903 tax list yesterday, and it shows that the total taxes to be paid this year are $19,926,197.55, as compared with $18,520,946.00 a year ago. The valuation increased from $761,760,274 to $786,869,909, but the average rate of taxation in the various parts of the state increased in greater proportion, from 24.3 mills to 25.32 mills. Of this increase in rate of 1.02 mills .2 mill is the state levy for the state school of agriculture authorized by the last legislature and the balance of .82 mill comes from municipal taxes.

The personal property assessment was raised from $114,105,514 to $132,443,798, and, although there was no new assessment of real estate, considerable property was added to the list including new government, state and railroad land. The value on the real estate increased from $387,908,085 to $390,104,543 and the average value per acre fell from $10.27 to $10.08.

POWERS IS GRAND MASTER.

Editor of Odd Fellows Paper Heads Order in Minnesota.

Winn Powers, editor and publisher of the Odd Fellows Review of St. Paul, has been elected grand master of the I. O. O. F. in Minnesota. The contest was spirited, Mr. Powers being elected by the largest vote ever given for the office. The contestants were B. G. Covel, W. S. Elliott and Charles S. Lammers. Other officers were chosen as follows: E. M. Clay, Renville, deputy grand master; A. L. Bolton, St. Paul, grand secretary; C. M. Sprague, Sauk Center, grand treasurer; S. A. Farnsworth, St. Paul, grand representative. The election for grand warden will be thrown into the grand lodge as none of the five candidates received one-third of the total vote cast.

FROM THE SUNNY SOUTH.

Wiley Tindolph Gives His Impressions of the Negro Problem.

Tate Springs, Tenn., Feb. 5, 1904.—Editor COURIER: I have not forgotten the joke you played on me at the time you heard of the lights going out in the Methodist church at Thief River Falls, but the kindly way you have treated me through your paper since that time has completely won me back again, so I will now try to write you something about my trip through the sunny South this winter. While it is well named the "sunny South" things down here are not in all respects as smooth and prosperous as before the civil war. The race problem is getting to be serious. I lived in a slave state for some years previous to the rebellion, and I know from my recent trip through the Southern states that the colored man of today—I mean the laboring negro and the uneducated classes—are not nearly so well off today as they were during slavery. I well remember when a slave owner would take the best of care of the negro, and it was perfectly natural that he should when a good stout buck or wench would sell for from $800 to $1,000. When they were sick they got the best possible attention, and always had plenty to eat and enough to wear, and so far as I could see during the time I lived in the South the Harriet Beecher Stowe description was magnified and highly colored. There were mean negros then as well as today, but never in the history of slavery in this country did I ever hear of a white woman being assaulted by a negro. This is a decided contrast with present conditions. It is a common thing nowadays to hear of a negro assaulting a white man's wife or daughter, and so far as I have been able to observe all classes of colored people seem to uphold and protect the scoundrel. Who would not help to lynch such brutes, be they white or black? Of course this does not mean that I am a Democrat, or ever would be, for everybody takes the same stand that I do with regard to the race problem down here. I leave for New Orleans today to attend the carnival, and expect to go back to Minneapolis in about three weeks.

Respectfully,
WILEY TINDOLPH.

Felling Trees By Electricty.

In some of the greatest forests of France experiments have been made in cutting trees by electricity. A plantinum wire is heated to a white heat and used like a saw. In this way a tree is felled with ease and very much more quickly than in the old way. Modern methods have improved almost every line of work that man engages in but there is no better illustration than the improvement made in recent years in brewing golden grain belt beer. This beer has become more than a delicious table beverage, it is a tonic and nerve food that no working man or woman can afford to be without. It rests both mind and body. MAIL ON NORTHERN PACIFIC

New Service to Be Commenced Monday, February 22—A Great Improvement.

After February 22 the mail for Red Lake Falls will be carried over the Northern Pacific, notice to this effect having been received Tuesday at the postoffice. The incoming mail will arrive from the south at 7:45 a. m. and mail will be dispatched at 6:05 p. m. As it requires some little time to get the mail to the depot the pouch for outgoing mail will be closed at 5:25 p. m. This is an improvement in the mail service that has long been desired, and gives Red Lake Falls as good mail facilities as any town in the Valley.

Much of the credit for the improved service is due Congressman Steenerson, who has personally interested himself in the matter and finally induced the postoffice department to take action. A letter from Mr. Steenerson received this week shows that the department was loth to grant the petition, as it involves an annual expenditure of nearly $1,000 in addition to the amount now paid the Great Northern for carrying the mail.

The new departure does not interfere in any way with the mail service on the Great Northern, and mail from Crookston, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls will still be received over that line. The star route service on Sundays from Crookston will also be continued as heretofore. Thus it will be seen that it costs a lot of money to bring the mail to Red Lake Falls, and the local postoffice officials and Representative Steenerson deserve the thanks of the community for their work in getting this latest improvement.

POOR LO NOT IN IT.

Indians Will Have Nothing to Say About Opening Reservations.

Congress is taking an entirely new departure this winter on the question of opening up Indian reservations in the Northwest. Heretofore legislation provided for the approval of the Indians, and they have refused.

The Indians will not have that opportunity now. The Rosebud, South Dakota, bill passed the house and has been favorably reported in the senate, and the Devils Lake reservation bill, also passed by the house, eliminates the Indian ratification clause.

The Red Lake reservation bill as passed by the senate provides for ratification, but the Steenerson bill, reported favorably by the house, strikes out that provision.

The Indian committee of the senate and house follow the position taken by the supreme court in the Lone Wolf case, that congress, acting in its capacity as guardian for the Indian tribes, can enact such legislation as it sees fit.

It is understood that the injunction proceedings against carrying out the provisions of the Morris act relative to the Chippewa reservation will be dismissed, the Lone Wolf case being cited as a precedent.

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES

BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.

Mr. Drane went out again into the unfeeling air of New York and wondered why it was that he had never been able before to see any thing in the philosophy of pessimism. Still it is not often that some consolation can not be found in a situation when a man has as much as two dollars in his possession. Lawrence found it. He didn't want to go to Boston, anyway, for there was Bessie, the good, the beautiful, the soul-satisfying Bessie. She was in New York, and at the thought the atmosphere took on a sudden freshness as if it might have blown across a garden of roses. Perhaps her little feet had pressed the very stone on which he stood! Lawrence patted the stone gently with his foot and felt comforted. He would run the risk of courts and retreats for the privilege of finding her.

Meantime how far would two dollars carry him? He must have a bed and a breakfast and a shave. The bed cost him half his pile at a neighboring hotel. For prudential reasons he registered under an assumed name, and for once in this history no calamity is to be recorded as the outcome of the deception. In the morning a barber took off Mr. Drane's moustache for fifteen cents, and a modest meal reduced his capital to half a dollar. Then he bought a newspaper and sat down in a hotel corridor to read and reflect. The newspaper was uncommonly interesting. Conspicuously displayed on the first page was an account of the escape of a dangerous lunatic from Jenkins' Retreat.

The lunatic was supposed to be the wealthy Mr. Lawrence Drane, of Kansas City. That unfortunate gentleman's friends had come on to take care of him and had arrived at the Retreat but an hour after the escape. They immediately resolved to offer a reward of five hundred dollars for his capture, and the proprietor of the Retreat supplemented that inducement by an offer of fifty dollars from his own purse. Then followed a minute description of the missing man.

Lawrence felt flattered, but still not happy.

"Every man but the millionaires in the city is looking for me," he thought, and he glanced cautiously over his paper at the other occupants of the room. His blood chilled at once, for directly opposite sat a shrewd-looking fellow staring hard at him. The fellow had a copy of the same paper that Mr. Drane was reading, too, in his hand. He was evidently a detective. After a moment of agony the detective rose and came towards Mr. Drane, still looking sharply at him.

"Now for a grand bluff," thought Lawrence. He nerved himself for a mighty effort, but the stranger paused awkwardly and said:

"Excuse me, sir; I see that I was mistaken. I thought you were an old friend of mine."

And he walked away. Lawrence liked to have choked with the excitement and relief, and he felt that he would rather be captured than undergo such another trial. He must get away. Even his friends would discredit his story and consign him to an asylum. But how was he to move? He read the story again. It ended by saying that the gentlemen from Kansas City had gone to Boston on the midnight train believing that Mr. Drane had fled to that city.

Again his thoughts reverted to Bessie. She would help him, but he dared not go to Mrs. Bowers' house. So he wrote a note to Mrs. Bowers inquiring if he might not call on the young lady whom he knew only by the name of Bessie, and trust to her kindness to screen him from capture during the call. It cost him thirty-five cents to send this note by messenger. After what seemed interminable delay the messenger returned with this answer:

"The young lady you refer to has returned to her friends. For her sake I refrain from sending this to you by a policeman. You may not be insane, but I am convinced that you are a bad, bold adventurer. So do not, on any account, expect any further assistance from me.
EMILY BOWERS."

And what did poor Drane do then? He went down to the East river and wondered if some condemned fool of a hero wouldn't rescue him if he should plunge in and try to be decently drowned. The men at work thereabouts didn't look much like heroes, but, appearances might be deceptive, and Mr. Drane gave up the idea. It was but a passing frenzy. His native vigor returned soon and it was reinforced by the image of Bessie's face that haunted him constantly. He would seek her if it took the rest of his life and cost him his fortune—when he got possession of it again.

During the rest of the day he wandered aimlessly about the docks and in the quiet streets. His hunger he appeased with a sandwich, reserving his balance, eight cents, for another meal. The more he wandered and the more he thought, the more desperate his situation seemed; but relief came from the most unexpected quarter. Just as it was growing dark whom should he meet but the original tramp. Each made as if to run at first sight, then they thought better of it and stood facing each other.

"Well," said Mr. Drane.

"Well," returned the tramp, "you've done me up nice, haven't you?"

"Done you up?" exclaimed Lawrence; "how about me, you rascal? Have you read the morning papers?"

"Read the papers! Do I look as if I had read the papers? If the papers were two cents a thousand I couldn't afford to read a bulletin board. No, I've just come from the island. Your Kansas City friends said I was the wrong man, and of course they had to let me go."

Lawrence was on the point of showing the tramp the story of the escape printed in the paper, when a perfectly tremendous idea occurred to him. It was so great that his voice trembled as he said:

"That's good. Now, I am willing to let bygones be bygones. I am not out of my scrape yet, and between us we can help each other a good deal. Are you agreed?"

"You don't mean to get me arrested for taking your clothes, do you?"

"Not a bit! You won't come to harm. I'll see you through and give you money afterwards."

"I'll have to go you. What am I to do?"

"Change clothes with me!"

The tramp was staggered at this suggestion, but he consented, though he vainly tried to get Lawrence to unfold the scheme.

"The only trouble is," said Lawrence, "I don't know where we can do this."

"Well, I do," replied his companion, and he forthwith led the way to a deserted rookery where they speedily exchanged garments. Mr. Drane put on the rags again with some revolt, but he was confident in the success of his scheme, and that nerved him.

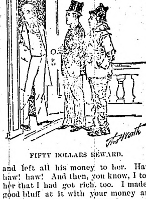
When they stepped out again into the street he asked the tramp where he had gone when he first took the clothes from the Adams Hotel.

"Oh," he said, "I played in great luck, and I'll be all right if you get me out of this affair with a little money in hand. You see, I pranced around town for the day, and the next day I fell in with an old sweetheart of mine. She used to live in Buffalo, and she was poor enough then, but it seems that some time ago she went through a mock marriage that afterwards turned out to be binding."

The tramp paused and laughed gleefully.

"Yes, yes," exclaimed Mr. Drane, eagerly. "What then?"

"Why, you see, the fellow she married was thundering rich, and he went off and got killed just after the ceremony and left all his money to her. Haw! haw! haw! And then, you know, I told her that I had got rich, too. I made a good bluff at it with your money and your clothes and she believed me. So we got married that very day."



FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD.

"You married her?" gasped Lawrence.

"Yep. Married her as fast and hard as a parson could tie the knot. We went up to New Haven and the ceremony was performed there. As soon as it was over I left her there to come down to New York, pretending I had business. So I had. I intended to work a fine racket on your money, you know, telegraph to Kansas City for some more, but you spoiled that. My rich wife is waiting for me, I suppose, in the Beaver Hotel where I left her. You just put me in the way of getting to New Haven and I'll be hunk and don't you forget it."

Lawrence was overwhelmed with amazement. He felt rather than saw the inconsistencies of the story, but it was circumstantial enough to alarm him terribly. What! his Bessie, so good and pure, marry this fellow so suddenly, and yet remain in New York, go to court with Mrs. Bowers—it was impossible on the face of it. And yet— He would have pursued the inquiry further, but that he feared to arouse the tramp's suspicions. So they walked on talking of other things until they came to Jenkins' Retreat.

"Now I'm going to work a big scheme here," said Mr Drane. "You just keep your head and don't get frightened a bit and remember that whatever happens I'll take care of you. I'm rich enough, as you know."

Mr. Drane rang the bell. The door was opened at once by an attendant whom Lawrence had not seen before.

"Tell Mr. Jenkins a friend would like to see him," said Lawrence, winking mysteriously at the attendant. The wink was understood, and both men were admitted. The door once closed, Mr. Drane whispered excitedly to the attendant:

The attendant struck a bell and instantly two other men came into the hall, seized the tramp, bound his arms to his sides with a rope and hurried him to a back room. He protested vigorously, declared that he had been entrapped, and all that, but his cries made matters worse for him. Presently the attendant returned and asked Mr. Drane about the capture. Lawrence told an imaginative yarn with as low a dialect as he could muster, and wound up by demanding the reward.

"We can't give you the whole reward to-night," was the reply. "The five hundred dollars offered by Mr. Drane's friends is not in our control, but you may have the fifty dollars offered by the Retreat, and if you will call to-morrow afternoon I have no doubt that you can collect the rest."

Lawrence reflected that fifty dollars was a pretty good price to pay a man for capturing himself, and that he was lucky to even get that. The money was promptly turned over to him and he left the Retreat after inquiring particularly as to the hour when he should call again.

"It's a pretty hard trick on that fellow," he thought, "but he deserves it, and I will keep my word and see him safely out. And of course I'll return the reward."

With all the speed he had he hurried to a Bowery clothing store, bought a cheap but decent suit, and then took the first available train for New Haven.

CHAPTER IX.

"MRS. L. DRANE."

As the train began its rumbling journey into the night Mr. Drane felt a wild exultation. He was escaping from the scenes of the utmost misery he had ever experienced, and he was going to see the most adorable girl in the world. The more he thought of it the more the tramp's story about his marriage appeared to be absolute fiction—and yet, the fellow had been so confident, so unmistakably pleased with his prospects! And Bessie had said that she lived in Buffalo. Was she deceiving him, and Mrs. Bowers, too? It was all very strange. Why had he not taken the precaution to learn the tramp's real name? Had he gone and married Bessie under the name of Drane?

Lawrence shivered until he recalled that the tramp had known Bessie in childhood and therefore could not pass himself to her under a false name. This was some comfort, but as he puzzled on over the situation he began to doubt whether he had done wisely in running away from his Kansas City friends who had come to New York to find him. Undoubtedly, however, they would have declared that the story of his adventures was the figment of a disordered brain.

So, with perplexities and doubts his exultation gave way to anxiety, and even the prospect of seeing Bessie again failed to relieve his mind of trouble.

It was long past midnight when he reached New Haven. A cab took him to the Beaver House, where he was denied admission because all rooms were taken. Leaving an application for the first vacancy, he found accommodations elsewhere, a sleepy watchman, grumbling immoderately, showing him to a tiny chamber on the top floor. When he came down-stairs in the morning to pay his bill the clerk politely requested him to register, a formality that had been neglected. Certainly he would comply, and with a determination, formed in a flash, to sail under true colors, he wrote his name and address with a bold, legible hand. Then he stood before the window, apparently gazing idly into the street, really absorbed in formulating a plan of action. Just as Mr. Drane was registering a shrewd-looking young man with a note-book in one hand and a pencil in the other entered the office. He waited until Lawrence had withdrawn from the counter and then began industriously to copy the names and addresses from the big book. The clerk greeted him jocularly:

"Well, Jimmy, what's the news today?"

"Read the Evening Dispatch and find out," was the smart reply.

This brilliant repartee had done service for opening the conversation between the clerk and the shrewd young man daily for many months, and it is probably so serving still. There is nothing like having a witty retort that is warranted not to wear out.

The young man copied rapidly down the page until he came to the last page. Then he paused and scowled an instant, after which he wrote "Lawrence Drane, Kansas City, Mo., No. 346, pd.," very slowly, and turned about slyly to scrutinize the broad back of the gentleman at the window.

"Any thing up, Jimmy?" asked the clerk, observing this action.

Jimmy winked and nodded mysteriously, and began to search among the newspapers lying on the writing table. Presently he found a New York paper of the day before and turned to the account of Mr. Drane's escape and the reward offered for his capture.

"I thought so!" he said, with a triumphant grin, while the clerk looked on in undisguised curiosity. Jimmy gave him no comfort. Instead, he heightened the clerk's emotion by sitting down where he could see Mr. Drane's face and scanning the paper again with frequent glances upward for comparison.

"Mustache gone and clothes different," he muttered; "but it must be the man. I wonder whether he'll become violent and murder me if I speak to him. Perhaps I can inveigle him to a police station."

While Jimmy was still debating what to do to "scoop" the boys on a big piece of news and gain a thumping reward, Lawrence decided upon his own course and started to leave the hotel. Jimmy was on his feet instantly and intercepted him.

"Mr. Drane, I believe?" he said, interrogatively.

"Yes," replied Lawrence, with a start of surprise.

"Lawrence Drane, of Kansas City?" continued Jimmy.

"Yes; what can I do for you?"

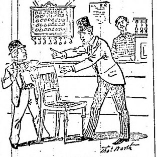
"I want to ask you some questions about the condition of affairs in the West," said Jimmy, glibly, "the crops, you know, farm mortgages and their effect on industry, and all that sort of thing. If you're going out I will walk along with you so as not to waste your time."

Jimmy opened the door invitingly, intensely relieved that the escaped maniac should show no signs of violence, but Lawrence held back.

"Why do you ask those things?" he inquired.

"I represent the Evening Dispatch, and we like to get interviews from prominent men who favor New Haven with a visit."

"Young man," said Lawrence, laying his hand impressively on Jimmy's shoulder; whereat Jimmy jumped about a rod backwards and got behind a chair. "Young man," continued Lawrence, stepping forward, somewhat excited at this encounter and the strangeness of it, "I know nothing whatever about crops, and what few mortgages I hold are my concern and of no interest to the public."



I DECLINE TO BE INTERVIEWED.

Jimmy looked discouraged, and Drane foolishly supposed that he had settled the business and rid himself of the annoyance. He even felt some wholly unnecessary compunctions of conscience at having been so rude to the young man. However, he said nothing more, but walked rapidly away.

The reporter, of course, followed him and did not lose sight of him until he turned into the Beaver House. Then Jimmy ran to the nearest telegraph office and sent this dispatch to a New York newspaper: "1,000 words interview with Lawrence Drane, escaped maniac. Very violent. Shall have him locked up in half hour."

This done he returned to the Beaver House, learned that the gentleman had gone up-stairs to see a friend, sent a message to police headquarters and sat down to write a glowing account of the capture, which he regarded as good as consummated, for his local paper and his New York patron. He had directed the answer to his telegram to be sent to the Beaver House, and it came just as two stalwart policemen from headquarters hurried in. Jimmy began to explain the situation to them as he opened the envelope, but when he read the dispatch his jaw dropped in a way that threatened to rend his countenance in twain. This was the editor's answer:

The policemen growled and poked fun at the reporter, but Jimmy was so sure that he was right, and argued so earnestly that they consented to stay awhile and take a look at the alleged Lawrence Drane.

Meantime the victim of this pursuit had scanned the register of the Beaver House on the dates just subsequent to the theft of his clothes and belongings. At a time that corresponded exactly with the tramp's story he was horrified to find this entry:

"Mr. and Mrs. L. Drane, Kansas City."

He learned that "Mrs. Drane" was in and sent up to her a card with his own name scrawled upon it. In due time he was ushered to the door of the best room in the house. He knocked and entered at once.

"Where have you been? and why—"

She stopped, gave a faint scream and sank into a chair, staring at Lawrence in bewilderment. On his part he felt an immense relief to find that the young woman was not Bessie and bore no resemblance to her except in general figure.

"Madam," he said, "you will pardon this intrusion when I tell you that I am Lawrence Drane, of Kansas City. I think we have both been imposed upon and between us we may be able to set matters right."

"I don't understand you," replied "Mrs. Drane," "but you can sit down."

Mr. Drane complied and after a pause began:

"You seem to bear my name, madam, but I am quite certain that you have no right to it. You see, a fellow stole my clothes and money some days ago and proceeded to masquerade around the country under my name, bringing me into all kinds of trouble. I know he came to New Haven, for he collected money here in my name."

Mr. Drane hesitated. "Mrs. Drane" was dreadfully pale and he disliked beyond measure to explain to her that her marriage was invalid and that even were it genuine she had been tricked by a penniless adventurer and criminal.

This language struck Lawrence as strange, coming from a wealthy woman, but her ignorance only made her situation the more pitiable.

"I have no question," he hastened to say, "that you have acted with the utmost innocence in the matter, and it is exceedingly painful for me to tell you that your husband's name is not Drane, and that he is not the wealthy man he represented himself to be."

"Mrs. Drane" was greatly agitated, and in order not further to embarrass her Lawrence rose and walked across the room to a window. A big steamer trunk had been placed there. It was plastered all over with customs slips of various countries, and conspicuous among them was a tag such as is used by passengers who wish to have their baggage available during a voyage. It read:

WANTED.
MRS. BESSIE HARLAND,
BUFFALO, N. Y., AMERICA.
FIRST CABIN, No. 137.

There were more words than these, but the name and address of the owner were enough to startle him and throw a great light on the situation. This "Mrs. Drane" must be the servant who had run away with his Bessie's property! What a complication! She believed the rascally tramp to be rich; he believed her to be the possessor of thirteen millions; they had married. What an awakening for each!

This discovery, however, had to be verified, and the dishonest young woman who had brought Bessie Harland so much trouble must be punished for it. Lawrence felt that he must move with exceeding caution. He turned, hardly certain as to what course he should take, when the young woman, blushing fitfully and with quivering voice, said:

"My husband's name ain't Drane at all, at least he said it wasn't. I was truly married to him right in this town, and I can prove it. If you know where he is—"

"He's locked up in New York," explained Lawrence as she paused. The young woman's eyes flashed, almost joyously, Mr. Drane thought, and he wondered at it. She became suddenly very grave and continued:

"I hope you won't be mean with me. If you will go with me to the minister that married us, I can prove what I say, and p'r'aps he'll help us."

"I fail to see what good that will do," said Lawrence.

"But I want you to know that I was really married," persisted the young woman. "Then I'll tell you all how it happened, if you won't get me into trouble."

"I will agree not to get you into trouble," replied Lawrence, "if you will give me the correct address of Mrs. Bessie Harland, and if you will also return her property to her."

This blunt request came pretty near leaving a fainting woman on Mr. Drane's hands. Her blushes left her face and she collapsed into the chair like a limp rag. Lawrence hastened to thrust various bottles of liquids that he saw on a mantel into her hands, and he fanned her vigorously with his hat.

Sun

Stroke Shattered My Nerves.

Gave Up Preaching For Two Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Put Me On Active List.

Are you well? Do you sleep well? Do you get up rested, fresh and vigorous? Is your mind clear and active? If not read the following. See what another has suffered and how he recovered.

"Some years ago I was afflicted with sun stroke which left me with a shattered nervous system and exceedingly poor health. I suffered terribly with pain in my head, the top of my head would feel hot. I could not study, and after striving for two years to wear the trouble off, I was compelled to give up my pastoral labor and retire to my farm where I spent nearly two years trying to recuperate. It was all of no avail. Physicians' treatment and patent medicines failed to relieve me. I was exceedingly nervous and irritable and sometimes would shake terribly. I could not bear any noise. At the least excitement the blood would rush to my face and head. Two years ago I was induced to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After using one bottle I could see improvement in my condition so I continued taking it for nearly a year. I am happy to say I no longer have those pains in my head or nervous spells. My appetite is good and I am able to preach three times on Sunday without fatigue. I consider Dr. Miles' Nervine the most wonderful medicine ever discovered."—Rev. D. Alex. Holman, Pastor U. B. COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

February 1, 1904.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Board of County Commissioners met in regular session at 1 o'clock P. M.

Minutes of meeting of January 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1904, read and approved.

In the matter of the petition of Mike Grassman and others for a new school district, hearing on same was adjourned to Feb. 24, 1904 at 10 o'clock A. M.

In the matter of the petition of Israel Laframboise to be set off from school District No. 49 to school Dist. No. 112, on motion carried unanimously the same was granted and the following order was made:

Whereas, the petition of Israel Laframboise a legal voter, freeholder and resident of school District No. 49, in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said School District and adjoin School District No 112, and asking that he with his said lands may be set off from said District No. 49 to said adjoining School District No. 112 for the following reasons:

That the distance from his place to the school house in School District No. 49 is about 5 miles by the nearest traveled route, that the distance from his said place of residence to the school house in school district No. 112 is 1¼ miles that it is impossible for his children to attend school in district 49, was presented to the Board of County Commissioners of this County, at a session of said Board held on 5th day of January A. D. 1904, for the action of said Board thereon; and whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said Board that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said Board commencing on the 1st day of February, A. D. 1904 at the County Auditor's office in Red Lake Falls in said County; and whereas, it was further ordered in and by said order that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the school districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the Clerk of each of said School Districts personally, a copy of said notice, at least 10 days before the time appointed for such hearing, and, whereas, at the said session of the said Board of County Commissioners, commencing on the said 1st day of February, A. D. 1904, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than 10 days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed, said petition was publicly read and considered by the Board, with everything which was said by interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner, and said Board being of the opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined, that the said petitioner, and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit:

The North-east quarter of section 24 in Twp 151 Rge. 44 be and the same are hereby set off from said School District No. 49 to said adjoining School District No. 112, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named School District for all purposes whatever.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners

Dated the 1st day of February, A. D. 1904.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chairman Board of County Commissioners.

Attest:
James E. Ford,
Counuy Auditor and ex-officio Clerk of Board.

In the matter of the petition of J. B. Marcotte and others for a new school district, Wednesday, February 24, 1904, at 11 o'clock A. M. was set as a time of hearing, and notices were issued accordingly.

Reports of County Officers for the year 1903 were examined and approved.

Bids for constructing piers under bridge across the Clearwater River at Terrebonne were opened and read.

The bid of James Brady, offering to build the said piers for $980, being the lowest bid submitted was accepted and the amount of his bond fixed at $2000, and the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and County Auditor instructed to execute a contract with James Brady on the filing of said bond, in the office of the County Auditor.

On motion carried unanimously a recess was taken to February 2, 1904.

February 2, 1904. Board reconvened with all members present.

The applications of Octave Lefaive, E. K. Gjernes and M. Hammer for correction of assessment and abatement of taxes were on motion carried unanimously, recommended for approval.

On motion carried unanimously the bond of the Citizens State Bank of Thief River Falls in the sum of $20,000 as a depository for County funds was approved.

On motion carried unanimously the County Auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for repairing the bridge across Red Lake River in the City of Thief River Falls and for repairing the bridge across Red Lake River in the City of Red Lake Falls and also for the construction of a new steel bridge across the Red Lake River in the City of Red Lake Falls where the wooden bridge is now located.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Sutor and seconded by Commissioner Johnson;

Whereas, In pursuance of and in full compliance with the provisions of Chapter 258 of the General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1901, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, this Board of County Commissioners has heretofore located, fully established and ordered the construction of certain public ditches situate wholly within the limits of Red Lake County, known and designated as follows, to wit: Lambert Ditch No. 1, Garnes Ditch No. 1.

And, Whereas, It has been definitely ascertained and determined that the aggregate expense of locating, constructing and establishing such public ditches will be at least the sum of $6,988.60 and that it is necessary to issue and sell the negotiable coupon bonds of Red Lake County to provide $6,500 in amount of such expense,

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, By the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota, that the negotiable coupon bonds of said County be, and the same are hereby authorized and directed to be issued to the aggregate amount of $6,500 for the purpose of providing a portion of the funds necessary to defray the expenses incurred and to be incurred, in locating, constructing and establishing the public ditches situate wholly within the limits of said county mentioned in the preamble hereof.

Said bonds shall be 13 in number, numbered from 1 to 13 inclusive, and of the denomination of Five Hundred Dollars ($500) each; shall bear date the 1st day of January, A. D. 1904; shall become due and payable on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1914; shall bear interest at the rate of five and one half per centum per annum payable semi-annually on the 1st day of January and of July in each year, which interest payments shall be evidenced by proper interest coupons to be attached to each bond, and both principal and interest shall be payable at the banking house of Farson, Leach & Company in the city of New York and State of New York.

Be It Further Resolved, That each of said bonds and each of the interest coupons attached thereto, shall be in substantially the following forms, respectively, to-wit:

United States Of America
No.... State Of Minnesota $500
County Of Red Lake
Public Ditch Bond.

Know All Men By These Presents:

That the County of Red Lake in the State of Minnesota, acknowledges itself to owe, and, for value received, hereby promises to pay to bearer, the sum of Five Hundred Dollars on January 1st, 1914, together with interest thereon from the date hereof until paid, at the rate of five and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on January 1st and July 1st in each year, upon presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto attached, as they respectively mature; both principal and interest payable in lawful money of the United States of America, at the banking house of Farson, Leach & Company in the City of New York, State of New York. And for the prompt payment of this bond, both principal and interest at maturity, the full faith, credit, and resources of said County are hereby irrevocably pledged.

This bond is issued by said County for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to defray the expense incurred, and to be incurred, in locating, constructing, and establishing public ditches situate wholly within the limits of said County, and is issued by authority of and in strict accordance with the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of Minnesota, entitled: "An act providing for the drainage of lands in certain cases, prescribing the powers and duties of County Commissioners and other officers in the premises, and appropriating funds for the payment of assessments against state lands affected thereby, and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof, and repealing certain acts therein mentioned and referred to," approved April 11th, 1901, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

And it is hereby certified and recited, that all acts, conditions and things, required by the laws and constitution of the State of Minnesota to be done, precedent to and in the issue of this bond, have been properly done, happened and been performed in regular and due form and time as required by law; that the ditches on account of which this bond is issued are public ditches, duly established for the promotion of the health, convenience and general welfare of the public; and that the total indebtedness of said County, including this bond, does not exceed any statutory or constitutional limitation.

In testimony whereof the said County of Red Lake, Minnesota, by its Board of Counny Commissioners has caused this bond to be signed by the Chairman of said Board and countersigned, sealed and recorded by its County Auditor, all as of date of the first day of January, A. D. 1904.

The County Of Red Lake, Minnesota, will pay to bearer the sum of Thirteen And 75-100 Dollars, lawful money of the United States of America, at the banking house of Farson, Leach & Co. New York City, for semi-annual interest on its Public Ditch Bond, dated January 1, 1904, numbered....

....
Chairman Board of Couny Commissioners.

Countersigned and recorded:

County Auditor.

Be It Further Resolved, That each of said bonds and each of the interest coupons thereto attached shall be signed by the Chairman of this Board and countersigned by the County Auditor, and each of said bonds shall be sealed by the County Auditor, who shall keep a record of the same, and when so executed and recorded, said bonds shall be delivered to the purchasers thereof, and the proceeds derived therefrom shall be placed in the General Ditch Fund of the County for the purpose of paying a portion of the costs of locating, constructing and establishing the public ditches mentioned in the preamble hereof.

Be It Further Resolved. That the full faith, credit and resources of Red Lake County and of its Board of County Commissioners be and the same are hereby pledged to provide moneys to the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds, when and as the same become due.

Which resolution was carried by the following vote:

Aye, Commissioners Sutor, Johnson, Hanson, Demann and Falardeau.

No, None.

Commissioner Johnson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved, That there be, and hereby is, levied on all the taxable property of this, Red Lake County, Minnesota, annually, until all of the bonds hereinafter referred to are paid, the sum of Five Hundred ($500) Dollars, in addition to all other sums annually levied in this County, which amount as collected in each year shall be placed in the General Ditch Fund of this county and shall be used to pay the interest on the public ditch bonds of this County in the sum of Six Thousand Five Hundred ($6,500) Dollars, bearing date January 1, 1904 and maturing January 1, 1914, as the same accrues semi-annually, and the principal of said bonds upon their maturity.

Which resolution was carried by the following vote:

Ayes, Commissioners Sutor, Johnson, Hanson, Demann and Falardeau.

Noes, None.

On motion duly carried the matter of determining the legal residence of Ragnall Running, a pauper, was laid over till the next meeting of the Board.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

THE prohibition party seems to live notwithstanding a lot of cold water has been thrown on it.

RACE suicide is not noticeable in Norman county. Last year there were 382 births to 132 deaths.

THE Republicans will meet at Minneapolis March 17 for the purpose of selecting delegates to the national convention.

RED LAKE FALLS owes Congressman Steenerson a vote of thanks upon his success in securing better postal facilities for the town.

THEY say the good die young, and yet Mark Hanna has reached almost the Biblical three score and ten. We will all hope for Mark's recovery, even though some of us don't love his political methods. He is a cheerful old chap, anyway.

THE Catholic population of the United States is stated by the official directory of the church as 11,387,317. The statistics collected by Dr. H. K. Carroll and published in Public Opinion, January 21, gave the number of communicants of this church as 9,762,264.

THE old world is getting busy this week. Baltimore, the monumental city, has had a conflagration that equals the great Chicago fire of 1871 and the Japs and Russians are to engage in a bloody war in the East. The newspapers will have plenty of copy during the next few months.

THE Hillsboro Banner puts it this way: Farm land in the most fertile regions of Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin are now valued at $100 to $125 per acre. These lands are not as rich and productive as Red River Valley soil. Who shall say that our farms will not reach the above high figures within the next twent-five years?

AL KAISER, the Bagley banker, grows indignant because a Red Lake county newspaper had the temerity to evolve the theory that he was a receptive candidate for legislative honors. We would not for a moment dispute Mr. Kaiser's denial of any aspirations in that direction, but he has the reputation of being a rather foxy politician and will bear watching.

A NEAT little book issued by the Princeton Dunn club gives a record of Hon. Robert C. Dunn as state auditor. It is a faithful history of the results accomplished while Mr. Dunn was the state's accounting officer, and if the voters of the state will only familiarize themselves with Mr. Dunn's services in behalf of the people there will be no doubt in their minds which of the Republican candidates for governor is most worthy of their support.

SEVENTEEN-CENT cotton, the highest price reached in 30 years, may be a good thing for the southern grower, but its blessings are not appreciated by the eastern, northern, western and foreign consumer. Overalls, for example, which sold a year ago at $7.50 a dozen, when cotton was worth nine cents a pound, are now worth $10 to $12, and doubtless a proportionate rise in price has taken place in all classes of cotton goods. But the cotton manufacturers can not get these prices—hence their present unhappiness. Eventually, if the usual course of trade and prices is followed, the consumer will have to pay the increased millions that the southern grower is demanding for his crop. Encouraged thereby, he will increase the cotton acreage, and then there will be a slump, but it will be a long time before the consumer gets tangible evidence of it.

WAR HAS COME.

The trouble has long been, as the papers said, "imminent," but it was hoped by all and thought by many that it would somehow be averted. Already a naval engagement has taken place and Japan has decidedly the best of the fight.

Now that hostilities are an actuality there is little doubt that it will be one of the great wars of history. Each of the nations has great resources. The strength of Japan on the sea and that of Russia on land is admitted. While Russia is the greater nation and can without doubt stand out longer, still the ability of Japan to give a good account of herself is conceded.

What other nations will eventually be drawn into the dispute is impossible to tell. It is not difficult to imagine an outcome to involve enough of the great powers to make it the greatest war of modern times. It is to be hoped that this will not come, and especially that our own country will escape any entanglement.

In a material way it will probably act beneficially on this country. It can hardly escape raising the prices of what we have to sell and largely increase the demand. Already it is said in some quaeters that there are indications of increased activity in the iron market.

Matters may in the next few days move very rapidly and it would be a bold prophet who would attempt to forecast the future.

A World of Liars.

We are all liars, unless newspaper men are excepted. A woman meets a neighbor at the door, whom she despises, and overwhelms her coming. She is lying. She paints her face and goes upon the street as much as to say, "My face is rosy and healthy." She is lying. She pads her form to deceive the public eye. Her heart is sad and yet she puts on a counterfeit smile as much as to say, "I am happy as a clam." She is lying.

The merchant tells his customers his wares are the best in town. He is a liar—there are dozens of other makes just as good. The farmer stacks his wool crisscross in the bottom of his wagon bed and lays it close on top. He is lying. The preacher buries an old sinner, who was a servant of the devil, and says, "The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away." He is a liar. The editor writes a flowery notice of a wedding, telling of the beauties of the hooknosed bride. He is—honestly mistaken. Reader, quit lying. It is neither Biblical nor Jeffersonian. It is unconstitutional and unladylike. It stamps its brand upon your brow and the world will sooner or later find you out. The noblest work of God is an honest man or woman—absolutely honest with himself or herself, as well as with the public.—Yellow Jacket.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

The juniors and seniors held several meetings this week.

The hustling juniors were absent Wednesday afternoon.

Lincoln's birthday will be observed in the public school by a holiday.

The High school will be the scene of a spelling match in the near future.

The history class will look into the Russian-Japanese war as it progresses.

The seniors are getting into the babit of the privileged rights of former years.

Delia Toupin, of the class of '03, visited the High school Wednesday morning.

Rose Sutter returned to school Monday after a few days' absence last week.

There was an unusually large attendance in the Virgil class last Wednesday.

The juniors' chicken pie supper on Wednesday evening was a huge success.

The physics class will take hold of the study of electricity next week and get shocked.

Several of the High school girls will take part in the tableau of the coming band concert.

The program of the Athenians will be given Thursday of this week instead of the regular Friday.

Miss Sorsoliel of St. Hilaire visited the High school last Thursday afternoon and Monday morning of this week.

Janitor Philion resumed his work at the High school this week. We are pleased to see him about again.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school will contest the fifth and sixth grades of the LaFayette school.

Some of the High school pupils, like Indians, believe in supplying the spirits with the necessaries of life, and accordingly laid a bulky plug of Climax by the bust of Beethoven.

The pupils in the lower grades of the Washington and La Fayette schools, under the directions of their teachers and Professor Whiteley, are practicing marching for the next band concert.

The high school assembly room was given up to the county school marms Friday and Saturday when they demonstrated their fitness to fill the mind of the young boy with hate and knowledge.

A large pack of State High School certificates were given out Wednesday. Some of the pupils think the hue of the sky on a bright day a very horrid color since they received those beautiful blue certificates.

The weather has been very cold during the last few weeks and Prof. Whiteley tells us that if we imagine ourselves warm we will feel warm. Better take that back, Professor, before our imagination runs riot, for some will soon imagine they have their lessons when they haven't.

On February 22 George Washington will be tried for malicious destruction of property in cutting down his father's cherry tree. The Athenians have made a change in their lawyers and their counsel now consists of Will Hunt, Drew Marshall and Clare Allison; they will bring in the complaint.

It isn't how much cold cream a woman puts on her face but how much Rocky Mountain Tea she takes inside that brings out real beauty. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea complexions stay. 35 cents. Tea or tablets. A. L. Reichert.

Easter Comes Early.

The lenten season begins unusually early this year. February 17 will be Ash Wednesday, and Easter Sunday comes on April 3. The date of Good Friday this year is April 1. The remainder of the movable feasts rests with Easter, which is always the first Sunday after the fourteenth day of the calendar moon, which day falls on or next after the twenty-first day of March. The following are church days and movable feasts: Septuagesima Sunday, January 31; Sexagesima Sunday, February 14; Shove Tuesday, February 16; Ash Wednesday, February 17; Quadragesima Sunday—Lent—February 21; Mid-Lent Sunday, March 13; Passion Sunday, March 30; Good Friday, April 1; Palm Sunday, March 27; Easter Sunday, April 3; Low Sunday, April 10; Rogation Sunday, May 8; Ascension Thursday, May 12; Pentecost—Whit-Sunday—May 22; Trinity Sunday, May 29, Corpus Christi, June 2; Advent Sunday, November 27.

People are suffering with the grippe this month, yet it can be easily prevented. Cole's Bludbilder is a nerve tonic and blood purifier. When you begin to feel run down take Bludbilder and you will be free from rheumatism and grippe. Don't forget that its guaranteed by all druggists.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Drugs Do No Good.

"Drug treatment is useless in cases of pneumonia. The medical profession, so far as medicines are concerned, can be of no assistance in the fight against the disease. The sooner the profession will acknowledge this to the public and set to work to discover some specific to save pneumonia patients, the better for all concerned." This startling statement by Dr. Arthur D. Bevan, who stands high in the profession, has stirred up the members of the Chicago Medical Society. Several physicians of that city protest against this arrraignment. All admit, however, that there is no definite remedy known, and they base their protests solely on the contention that they might influence the patient favorably by easing him somewhat and by the moral effect of their presence.

Pay Taxes in Hennepin.

The state auditor has decided a dispute over the taxes of the Nelson-Tuthill Lumber company in favor of Hennepin county, and adversely to Beltrami. The company complained that they were assessed in both counties for the same logs. In Beltrami they were assessed for $92,335, while in Hennepin they made a voluntary return of $109,000. Beltrami county was not represented. B. L. Nelson appeared for the lumber company and Auditor Scott for Hennepin county. On their showing the state auditor ordered the assessment in Hennepin to stand, and the one in Beltrami stricken off.

Pretty Miss Nellie Hascomb, Omaha: "I owe my good looks and health to Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Have fully regained my health." Tea or tablets 35 cents. A. L. Reichert.

WEEDS

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

COURIER BARGAIN ...SALE...

A CHANCE TO GET THE COURIER, THE ST. PAUL DISPATCH, AND THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST AN ENTIRE YEAR FOR ONLY ONE DOLLAR ......

THE COURIER WILL BE BETTER THAN EVER THE COMING YEAR ❧ EVERYBODY MAY TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER, OLD SUBSCRIBERS AS WELL AS NEW ❧ TELL YOUR FRIENDS OF THIS OPPORTUNITY

IN order to encourage the payment of the coming year's subscriptions in advance, we have decided to hold a BARGAIN DAY SALE, after the manner of many successful merchants, when we will offer THE COURIER, the St. Paul Dispatch and the Northwestern Agriculturist all one year for $1.00, the regular price of THE COURIER alone. The regular price of these three papers is $2.25. For two days, on

Saturday, February 13, and Monday, February 15,

you can pay one dollar and get all three of these papers for an entire year. This is a special bargain offer, good only for the days named. After these dates the regular prices will be charged.

The quality of THE COURIER is going to be better than ever during the coming year. This bargain offer is made because we desire as many subscriptions as possible paid in advance, and we are willing to make a sacrifice in order to secure the payment of a large number. No subscriber ought to miss this chance. Those in arrears may secure the same privilege for the coming year by paying up arrearages. If you do not know how much you owe ask us to send you a statement.

Subscribers who are not able to call personally at the office on February 13 or 15, may send in their dollar by mail. Drafts, checks and money orders mailed on February 11, 12, 13, 14 or 15 will be accepted on the bargain offer the same as cash. Cash payments at the office, however, can be made only on the dates named, February 13 and 15.

If you can't come to the office send your dollar. THE COURIER and the two other papers one year for one dollar is too good an offer for anyone in Red Lake county to miss. No one can afford to be without it or borrow his neighbor's paper.

REMEMBER THE DATES, FEBRUARY 13 AND 15, AND HAVE YOUR DOLLAR READY ....

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

—OF—

RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

For the Fiscal Year Ending December 31, 1903

OFFICE OF COUNTY AUDITOR, RED LAKE COUNTY,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, January 5, 1904.

To the Honorable the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

GENTLEMEN: I submit to you herewith a statement of the financial condition of Red Lake County at the close of the fiscal year on December 31, 1903, showing the receipts and expenditures for the year, the cash balances in the different funds and the total amount in the County Treasury, together with a statement of the finances of the County at the end of the year, including all debts and liabilities, and the assets and other means to discharge the same.

Respectfully submitted,
JAMES E. FORD, County Auditor.

Mrs. William Findeisen entertained Messrs. and Mesdames W. P. O'Brien, W. A. Schreiter and B. Puschinsky at a dinner party Thursday evening.

Rev. Knox's subject for Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church will be "Love's Extravagance." A cordial invitation to attend is extended to all.

Mrs. H. W. Knox goes to Thief River Falls tomorrow to visit over Sunday with Mrs. J. M. Bishop and assist in entertaining at a Valentine party Saturday.

Miss Clara Orvick, the popular assistant at Duntley's confectionery, left last Friday for Halstad, where she will visit friends and relatives for a week or two.

At the meeting of the city council Thursday evening THE COURIER was designated as the official paper of the city of Red Lake Falls for the ensuing two years.

The COURIER bargain days are Saturday and Monday. This is your only opportunity to get three newspapers for one dollar. Be sure to take advantage of it.

The ladies of St. Mary's chuach held a card party at Forester hall Tuesday evening, and a large crowd was in attendance. Of course everybody had a good time.

Hon. Marcus Johnson has been at West Baden, Ind., during the past two weeks, returning to St. Paul Tuesday. He is expected at Red Lake Falls next week.

Rev. H. W. Knox is planning for a week of special services at the Presbyterian church in the near future. He will be assisted by Rev. C. Nauman and Rev. McKenzie, of Crookston.

The city council will have a well put down on the north side for fire protection, and a notice for bids is printed in this issue. The work is to be done as soon as the weather permits.

The Red Lake Falls band gave a concert at St. Hilaire last Friday night and was greeted by a large and appreciative audience. A dance followed the concert, and everybody had a good time.

Mrs. Thomas Germo entertained at a dinner party Tuesday evening. The guests were Mrs. W. A. Murphy, Misses Bessie Hunt and Rose Dautremont and Messrs. R. E. Wyer and J. E. Argue.

John Holzmer is having bills printed for an auction sale on his farm on Tuesday, March 1st. Mr. Holzmer has a large list of stock and farm machinery, and offers a lot of splendid bargains.

The newspaper situation at Crookston is getting strenuous. Both the Times and the Journal boast of an Associated press franchise. It costs money to maintain the pace the Crookston papers are setting.

Biddy has been exceedingly lazy during the cold weather, and eggs are very scarce. The price has been 25 cents per dozen for several months past and in Crookston and Grand Forks the figure has reached 30 cents.

Mrs. E. F. Marshall entertained a party of friends at dinner Tuesday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Sivertson, Misses Steele, Iddings and Wetzel, Dr. N. M. Watson and Messrs. Andrew Onstad and H. W. Anderson.

The ladies are arranging a leap year party to be held at the Metropolitan opera house next Monday evening. It is expected that about thirty-five couples will be in attendance, and the affair is promised to be quite elaborate.

Ed. L. Healy returned Tuesday from a business trip to St. Paul and other points in the southern part of the state. Mr. Healy expresses the opinion that there is going to be a heavy demand for Red Lake county real estate in the spring.

The married ladies arranged a very pleasant and successful leap year dance at the Metropolitan last evening. It was an "old time" affair, with plenty of square dances and lots of jollity and fun. About fifty couples were in attendance.

The Knights of Pythias held a reception Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lewis. The evening was spent in dancing. Lunch was served at 11:30, and several of the guests extended their good wishes to the newly-married couple.

A chicken pie supper under the auspices of the high school juniors, was held at the K. of P. hall last evening. A large crowd was in attendance and the juniors realized a handsome profit. This money will be devoted to paying the expenses of the graduating class next June.

The Y. P. S. C. E. meets every Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church. The topic for next Sunday is "What Will Real Friendship Do?" The Bible references are I Samuel, xx: 1-23. A short business meeting will be held to plan for special work on which the society will engage.

The wives, sisters and sweethearts of the Odd Fellows gave them an agreeable surprise Saturday evening by coming into the hall unannounced and taking possession. They brought basket lunches, and everybody proceeded to have a good time. Cards and dancing was the order of the evening.

Arrangements are being made by the committee which has in charge the accommodation of the State grocers, who will convene at Crookston on February 15, 16 and 17, for the taking care of at least 300 delegates. An interesting program has been prepared, including a banquet and ball.

Napoleon Beauchene, of Louisville township, was married Monday at St. Joseph's to Miss Tillie Lizotte, a popular young lady of Red Lake Falls. The newly-married couple will reside on the groom's farm in Louisville. The many friends of the young people will extend congratulations.

Marriage licenses were issued this week to the following persons: Napoleon Beauchene of Louisville to Miss Tillie Lizotte of Red Lake Falls; Gunder Cornelius of Clarkfield, Minn., to Miss Helen Peterson, of St. Hilaire; Otto A. Raaseh to Miss Gertrude C. Holzknecht, both of Thief River Falls.

Adrian Democrat: Mrs. George Roberts, who purchased land in Red Lake county three years ago and took up her residence there, is visiting friends in Adrian and vicinity. Mrs. Roberts sold her farm in northern Minnesota at an advanced price and bought land farther west, near Fargo, North Dakota.

Right Rev. J. D. Morrison, bishop of the Episcopalian church, will hold services at the Presbyterian church in Red Lake Falls next Tuesday evening, February 16. Bishop Morrison is an exceptionally able speaker, and one of the most distinguished Episcopalian ministers in the country, and it is hoped that he will be greeted with a crowed house.

A district meeting of Odd Fellows will be held at Crookston Friday evening, and an invitation is extended to all the members of the order in this section to attend. The grand lodge degree will be conferred on all the past grands who desire it. Grand Master Farnsworth, Secretary Bolton and Grand Master-elect Powers will be in attendance.

Lewis & Higinbotham are in receipt of a letter today from the German American Insurance company, for which they are agents, that the company's losses in the great Baltimore fire will not exceed $500,000. This is less than 9 per cent. of the company's surplus, and the company could pay ten more losses of equal magnitude and leave its capital untouched.

A. P. Toupin was called to Calumet, Mich., last Thursday evening by a message announcing the critical illness of his mother, Mrs. Peter Toupin. The good lady died before Mr. Toupin reached her bedside. Mrs. Toupin was 82 years of age, and formerly resided in Red Lake Falls, removing to Michigan about sixteen years ago. Mr. Toupin is expected home next week.

It is expected that a creamery and dairy meeting will be held in Red Lake Falls on Saturday, March 5. William Lauritzon, manager of the local creamery, has been in correspondence with Dairy Commissioner McConnell, and that gentleman has signified his willingness to come up on the date mentioned and conduct a meeting. He will be accompanied by several experts of the department. The business men will be expected to provide the opera house and pay the necessary expenses of the meeting, which they will undoubtedly be glad to do.

It is given out that the Evangelical Methodist society will merge with the Presbyterians, and Rev. Nauman's services at the K. of P. hall will be discontinued. Rev. Nauman has had large congregations, and apparently his labors have been successful in reaching a portion of the Protestant people who theretofore had not affiliated with any church. Rev. Nauman made no charge for his services as pastor, and his generous and unselfish spirit is to be commended. Looking at the matter from an unbiased viewpoint it would seem that the union of the churches ought to be of mutual benefit. The Protestant element here is not strong enough numerically or financially to support two good churches, and one strong church can do better work for the community than several weak organizations.

The great campaign of 1904 will be in progress in a few months. As to county candidates there has been but little talk as yet, though it is taken for granted that nearly all of the present officials will seek re-election, with good prospects of winning. Auditor Ford, Judge Tarrant and Sheriff Linnihan are serving there first terms, and have made such excellent records that it is not likely that anything more than a perfunctory campaign will be made against them, if indeed the Republicans can find aspiring politicians who care to butt their heads against a stone wall. Treasurer Tandberg, too, has a record for large majorities, and if he concludes to go after the office again it is safe to predict a majority of at least a thousand for him. County Attorney Grady and Register Gibeau have not signified their intention as to another race. The only Republican candidate in sight at present is Thomas Germo for county attorney, who came within five votes of an election in 1902. Mr. Germo is a competent attorney and enjoys the confidence and esteem of the public in a marked degree.

SWEPT BY FLAMES

Entire Business District Wiped Out—Loss to Property Estimated at $200,000,000.

Firemen Are Utterly Helpless and Fire, After Raging 27 Hours, Burns Itself Out.

Dynamite, Used to Shatter the Large Buildings to Stop the Progress, Proves of No Avail.

Horror Started by an Explosion and Flames Soon Beyond Control—City Under Martial Law.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 9.—There was little sleep for the 700,000 residents of Baltimore Sunday night because of a terrific conflagration which started in the forenoon.

The monetary loss will probably reach $200,000,000. Square miles of the most valuable property in the wholesale dry goods, produce, lumber, shipping, railroad and financial districts have been destroyed.

Fire Burns Itself Out.

At 2:40 p. m. it was announced that the progress of the fire had been checked and that it was burning itself out. The last places to go were the ice house and coal yard of the American Ice company. The coal yard, which spread out about 200 yards south of the ice house, was the means of staying the march of the flames on the south and Jones' Falls on the east.

The Norfolk wharf of the Baltimore Steam Packet company, which was stocked with barrels of rosin and other miscellaneous merchandise, was destroyed before the fire had attacked the merchandise company's property. It took 27 hours to stop the progress of the great fire.

Many Big Firms Are Losers.

Included in the burned territory were a number of financial establishments of national repute, including the buildings of Alexander Brown & Sons, the Continental Trust company, the Union Trust company, the Atlantic Trust company, the offices of the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania Railway company, the Maryland, Southern & Chesapeake Railroad company, several steamship companies and a number of leading hatters, haberdashers, etc. The main offices of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies were deserted long before midnight and the buildings which they occupied are practically destroyed.

All the Baltimore newspapers are burned out and they were issued Monday morning from Washington.

Several Persons Injured.

Up to 1:30 p. m. approximately 35 persons had been injured, including one fireman seriously hurt while working in the burning section. The city government has been entirely suspended and the city is under complete military control.

At noon the burning area stretched for blocks along the harbor in the southeast section of the old part of the city. The firemen were working bravely, but against fearful odds. The area is enveloped in smoke that rises in great volumes and rolls away over the rest of the city. Stretching back along Jones' Falls is a host of buildings gutted by the flames. From the Lombard Street bridge looking westward is a scene of utter destruction.

What once were large substantial structures are now a mass of smoldering debris, a few walls here and there standing like sentinels over the ruins. Huge piles of smoldering bricks, tangled networks of electric wires, a few remnants of walls and here and there telegraph poles burned and smoldering are all that remain to mark the progress of the conflagration in that section.

Much Suffering Expected.

It is anticipated that there may be much suffering and destitution following upon the heels of the destructive visitation, and Mayor McLane and other city officials are already discussing the most ready means of relief. It is estimated that as many as 20,000 persons will be thrown out of employment, and many of those and their families will be without resources.

Brig. Gen. Raggs, commanding the state national guard, who has charge of the street patrol, has issued strict instructions to guard against any possible looting of partially destroyed or abandoned houses. So far there have been no instances of looting reported.

Calls Extra Session of Legislature.

Gov. Warfield has called an extra session of the legislature to meet Monday evening at eight o'clock to empower him to declare the city under martial law and suspend all business for ten days. The action was taken after a conference with Attorney General Bryan, who advised the governor that he did not have authority to relieve the city authorities of responsibility without the authorization of the legislature.

Monday was declared a legal holiday in order to give the clearing houses a chance to get straightened out. Gov. Warfield stated that every safe deposit box and vault in the various institutions was absolutely safe; that the records were preserved and that it was next to impossible for serious danger to happen to documents contained therein.

Fireman Killed.

The blackened remains of a fireman were found in the gutted Equitable building Monday, where he had rushed in an effort to get a line of hose to the roof. District Chief Emerich is temporarily in command of the department.

The lumber yards all along West Falls avenue from Pratt street to the water edge are in ruins. Crackling flames are leaping high in the air, sparks falling all over the neighborhood. There is absolutely no hope for any of this section.

The dynamiting of buildings was continued Monday, but the necessity for such a heroic preventive was not so urgent as Sunday.

Marshal Farnan received a telephone message from the commandant at Fort McHenry asking if any military assistance was needed. The marshal promptly answered that the government buildings were threatened and the regulars could be used to advantage. A detachment of 34 men from the different companies were sent to the city under Lieut. Bowman, Lieut. Sparker and Lieut. Tuntle. The detachment reported to Marshal Farnan, who directed that they be thrown out around the post office building and subtreasury and customhouse, adjoining the federal court building. The regulars were fully equipped with several rounds of loaded ammunition and bayonetted guns. They first formed a line across Fayette street at Calvert, and pickets were stationed in the subtreasury, the post office and on all four sides of the government property. Army regulations were enforced, and only members of the press were allowed through the lines who could give the password. The strictest discipline was observed, which had a wholesome effect

The militia was called out at 6:30 o'clock, at the request of President Upsher, of the police board. President Upsher found by that time that it was impossible for the police to perform the task before them, holding the crowds in check and guarding the ruins.

Every effort is being made to avoid vandalism. The entire force of 864 policemen in the city is on duty, and the strictest instructions have been issued to reenforce the orders given out by the military cordon drawn around the stricken area. The whole of the burned area is under the strictest martial law. The troops are ordered by the governor, and a host of middies are on duty and, reenforced by all the protective resources the city can muster, are doing valiant duty. Large numbers of police and detectives are here from other cities. Two detachments of police are here from Philadelphia. One detail of them, mustering 50 men, reached here at night and another contingent arrived in the forenoon. From Washington, on the prompt action of Mayor Sylvester, the chief of police, a number of detectives and police came during the day.

How Fire Started.

The start of the fire was in the basement of Hurst & Co.'s wholesale dry goods house. After burning for ten minutes or so there was a loud explosion from the interior of the building as the gasoline tank used for the engine in the building let go. Instantly the immense structure collapsed, sending destruction to adjacent buildings in all directions and causing the fire to be beyond the control of the firemen.

The first attempt at dynamiting was in the large building of Armstrong Cator & Co., but it failed to collapse, and attention was turned to the building at the southwest corner of Charles and German streets, where six charges of dynamite, each charge containing 100 pounds, were exploded. The tremendous force of the explosions tore out the massive granite columns that supported the building and left it with apparently almost no support, but the walls failed to collapse, and stood until the flames had crossed Charles street and were eating into the block between Charles and Light streets.

Spread of the Flames.

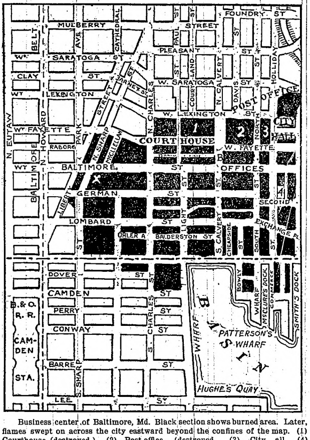
The fire had meantime been communicated to the row of buildings on South Charles street between German and Lombard streets, and all those places, occupied principally by wholesale produce and grain dealers, were in flames. Shortly before midnight the Carrollton hotel was burned, and the fire was sweeping toward Calvert street with irresistible fury. The firemen working on the south side had succeeded in checking the flames at Lombard street, and as the wind was blowing from the northwest there was no danger of it spreading farther in that direction. The western limit had also been reached at Howard street, and the danger was now to the east and north.

The progress of the flames toward the north had in the meantime been so rapid as to be simply appalling. From structure to structure they flew, licking up the massive buildings as if they were composed of paper. In the block between German and Baltimore streets they flew along, and almost before it could be realized the buildings along Baltimore street were blazing from roof to basement. For a time it was hoped the fire could be kept from crossing the north side of Baltimore street, and the firemen made a desperate effort to prevent it. The effort was useless, however, and soon the tall, narrow buildings of Mullins hotel began to dart out tongues of flame, and the remainder of the buildings between Sharp and Liberty streets were ablaze, and the fire began its march to the north. The flames darted rapidly from place to place, and soon the entire south side of Fayette street was in the grasp of the flames.

Down Fayette to Charles they swept, and the building occupied by Putts & Co. caught. Seeing that nothing could save it, it was decided to destroy the building with dynamite in the hope of preventing the fire from crossing Charles street. The explosion was successful in accomplishing the object, and the entire corner collapsed instantly, but this had, apparently no effect upon the progress of the fire, for almost before the sound of the falling walls had died away the building on the east side of Charles street began to blaze, and it was evident the blocks between Charles and St. Paul streets were doomed. In a desperate, but futile, effort to prevent the fire going further to the east building after building was dynamited in this block, but it was all of no avail, and the fire proceeded steadily onward.

Courthouse Ablaze.

The Daily Record building was soon in flames, and not many minutes later the fire had leaped over St. Paul street and lofty, massive Calvert building began to emit smoke and flame. The Equitable building, just over a narrow alley, quickly followed, and these two immense buildings gave forth a glare that lighted the city for miles around. Soon the large building of Hall, Headlington & Co. on the northwest corner of Charles and Fayette streets was blazing brightly. With scarcely a pause the fire darted across to the east side of Charles street and began to lap up the handsome building of the Union Trust company, while at the same time the large buildings to the west of Hall, Headlington & Co., occupied by Wise Brothers & Oppenheim, Obernderf & Co. were aflame throughout. Down Fayette street to the east swept the flames, and later the new courthouse was ablaze.



Business center of Baltimore, Md. Black section shows burned area. Later, flames swept on across the city eastward beyond the confines of the map. (1) Courthouse (destroyed.). (2) Post office (destroyed. (3) City all. (4) Board of trade. (X) shows where fire started.

Among prominent buildings destroyed are the City hospital, Institute of Fine Arts, Hopkins' bank, Holliday Street theater, Guardian Trust building, Custom house, Western Union building, National Exchange bank, United States express office, Mercantile Trust building, Postal Telegraph building, Equitable building (12 stories), Union Trust building (11 stories) and the Continental Trust building (16 stories).

Roosevelt Offers Aid.

"White House, Feb. 8, 1904.—Hon. Robert McLane, Mayor Baltimore, Md.

"I share the horror of our people at the appalling catastrophe which has befallen Baltimore. If there is anything the federal government can do, pray call on me.

JAPANESE SEIZE RUSSIAN SHIPS

Fleet on Way to Chemulpo Is Said to Have Captured Several Trading Steamers.

DISPATCH FROM SEOUL REPORTS MIKADO'S SHIPS OFF MASAMPHO

Official Announcement Made That Diplomatic Relations Have Been Broken Off—The Ministers of Both Countries Are Recalled—All Hope of Peace Abandoned.

London, Feb. 9.—A special dispatch from Berlin says that a strong fleet of Japanese warships, reported to be on its way to Chemulpo, Corea, has seized several Russian trading steamers.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, said that military steps contemplated by Japan for the preservation of its interests in the far east already have commenced.

Affirms News of Capture.

Berlin, Feb. 9.—The conservative Deutsche Tage Zeitung affirms upon diplomatic authority that three Russian ships have been captured by the Japanese. The corresepondent of the press finds no official confirmation of the statement.

The Russian embassy, in a statement given to the National Zeintung, says war probably cannot be avoided and that mediation by other powers is wholly out of the question.

Japanese Cut Cables.

Paris, Feb. 9.—The French foreign office was advised Monday afternoon that the Japanese have cut the cable connecting Japan and Corea. The object of this action is believed to be to prevent news of the operations of the Japanese reaching the Russians, which was possible no matter how closely censored the dispatches sent might be. Following the breaking off of relations between Russia and Japan, the cutting of the cable is regarded here as significant of the purpose of the Japanese to begin hostilities.

It is learned that among the troops sent by Russia to the vicinity of the Yalu river are 15,000 Cossacks, whose province it is to destroy the communication of any Japanese army landing along the coast or trying to strike the Port Arthur railroad. The military experts consider this a good tactical move, for the reason that the Japanese have only a small cavalry force, insufficient to cope with that of the Russians.

Japanese Ships Off for Corea.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The state department has received a cablegram from the American legation at Seoul to the effect that it is reported Japanese warships have arrived off Masampho, but that telegraphic communications has been cut off and it is impossible to confirm the report.

All Relations Broken Off

St. Petersburg, Feb. 9.—It is officially announced that Count Lamsdorff, the Russian foreign minister, has informed Russian representatives abroad that Japan has decided to break all negotiations with Russia and to withdraw her minister and the entire legation from St. Petersburg, and that upon the receipt of a note to this effect from the Japanese minister Russia had ordered her minister, Baron de Rosen, and the legation staff to leave Tokio.

At an important council held at the palace Monday, under the presidency of the czar, it was decided to telegraph to Viceroy Alexieff to scrupulously avoid any step which might provoke hostilities.

FIRST BLOOD FOR THE JAPS.

First Encounter of War is Won by Mikado's Little Torpedo Boats. Admiral Alexieff in Official Message to the Czar Admits Defeat at Port Arthur. Three Fine Boats Disabled.

Minneapolis, Feb. 9.—It seems probable that the Japanese have scored a great naval victory off Port Arthur in the first encounter of the war. The news of the battle thus far is all from Russian sources, and the dispatches that have filtered through St. Petersburg admit enough to show that a staggering blow has been dealt to the Russian navy. An impartial version of the affair will probably make the disaster to Russian arms worse. The St. Petersburg report that eleven Japanese warships were sunk lacks probability, under the circumstances.

Port Arthur, Feb. 9.—Japanese torpedo boats attacked the Russian fleet here last night and three of the Russian ships were badly damaged. The Japanese, who thus scored the first success of the war, escaped undamaged.

Martial law has been proclaimed here.

Three of Russia's Finest Disabled.

The Russian battleship Retvisan was built by the Cramps at Philadelphia. She is of 12,700 tons displacement, has 16,000 indicated horsepower, and a speed of 18 knots per hour. Her armour is of Krupp steel, from four to ten inches in thickness, and her armament consists of four 12-inch guns, 12 6-inch guns, 20 3-inch guns and 26 smaller rapid-fire guns.

The Czarevitch is a battleship of 13,110 tons, built in France. In armor, armament and speed she about equals the Retvisan.

The Pallada is a cruiser of 6,630 tons. She was built in Germany and was completed in 1902. Her armament consists of six 6-inch guns, twenty 3-inch guns and eight 1.4-inch guns. Her speed is estimated at 20 knots.

Alexieff Admits the Disaster.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 9.—Admiral Alexieff's official report of the early attack by the Japanese is as follows:

"I most respectfully inform your majesty that at or about midnight of Feb. 8, nine Japanese torpedo boats made a sudden attack by means of mines upon the Russian squadron in the outer roads of the fortress of Port Arthur, in which the battleships Retvisan and Czarevitch and the cruiser Pallada were damaged. An inspection is being made to ascertain the character of the damage. Details are following for your majesty."

The News Reaches Berlin.

Berlin, Feb. 9.—A special telegram from St. Petersburg says three Russian ships at Port Arthur were severely damaged last night by torpedoes discharged from Japanese torpedo boats while the latter were passing the harbor.

News of Japanese Victory in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 9.—News of the first Japanese attack with torpedo boats on the Russian fleet off Port Arthur created consternation here. The officials of the foreign office were among the first to receive the information, and their advices were similar to those of the St. Petersburg Official Gazette, showing that two Russian battleships and one cruiser were damaged, and also showing that four torpedo boats made the attack.

An official of the foreign office said:

"It is profoundly to be regretted that such a decisive step has been taken, as it terminates the efforts the powers might have made to avert actual warfare."

Information has been received here showing that the British government will issue a declaration of neutrality within a few days, perhaps immediately, and that France will take the same course within a day or two.

Russian Rumor of Jap Losses.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 9.—An official dispatch received here says that Japanese torpedo boats have attacked the Russian squadron in the outer roads at Port Arthur and that three Russian ships were damaged.

Later the Russian admiralty received information that eleven Japanese and one Russian warship were sunk in attacks upon Port Arthur. Several Russians were killed and many were wounded.

Port Arthur is in flames.

The imperial ball, which was to have been held this evening, has been cancelled. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the imperial court and all functionaries attended a solemn Te Deum to pray for victory for the Russian arms.

Call It a Staggering Blow.

London, Feb. 9.—Naval men in London regard the result of Japan's first attack with torpedo boats on the Russian fleet off Port Arthur as being a staggering one.

They pointed out that Viceroy Alexieff's reference to "mines" obviously meant "torpedoes," and said that if the Russian vessels had been struck by "Whitehead torpedoes" they probably have been sunk or were resting on the mud in Port Arthur, in any case hopelessly out of action for a considerable time.

It is a pity that we do not give more heed to the still small voice, but it must be admitted that Conscience is far from being a delightful conversationalist.—Puck.

Give advice to others if you will, but take an occasional dose of it yourself.—Chicago Daily News.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Moonshiners.

Moonshiners are scarce in Minnesota, but John. W. Vars, chief deputy internal revenue collector, has just run down a man who is alleged to be the genuine article. Mr. Vars returned to St. Paul from arresting A. T. Lannegraff of Greenbush, Roseau county, charged with operating a "still" without a license.

About two weeks ago two men, farmers residing in the vicinity of Greenbush, died suddenly. Examinations showed that death was the result of imbibing too freely of an intensely strong whisky which contained more than the average amount of alcohol. This discovery aroused suspicion there was illicit distillery going on and the officials of St. Paul were notified.

Suspicion led to an investigation, and a few rods from the home of Lannegraff there was found buried in the snow a home-made still which looked as if it had been in service for several years.

Rabbits Mowed Down.

Abram Wister, a farmer who lives near Cannon Falls, learned that a large number of jack rabbits were in the habit of visiting an open spring on his place to get a drink. To get to the spring they had to cross a strip of ice thirty feet wide, and while drinking, to stand on the ice immediately about the spring. In a circle around the open water and extending out about ten feet from it Mr. Wister scattered salt which thawed the ice on the surface and kept it thawed, tho the temperature was thirty degrees below zero. When the rabbits came to drink their feet were wet by the water on the surface of the ice, where the salt was, so that when they stepped on the clear ice beyond the salt they froze fast in a moment and stayed in that position until Mr. Wister rapped them on the heads and mowed them loose with a scythe.

Features at St. Louis.

The star features of Minnesota's dairy exhibit at the St. Louis exposition will be a statue in butter representing Father Hennepin discovering the Falls of St. Anthony. It will be done by John Daniels, who made the butter model of the new state capitol exhibited at Buffalo. Mr. Daniels is already at work modeling the statue, using a room in one of the state fair buildings as his studio. The statue will be shown in a glass case in the dairy building.

North Dakota will have a similar feature for its exhibit, an equestrian statue of President Roosevelt in butter, representing him as a North Dakota rancher.

An Old Reminder.

Isaac La Bissonniere, a pioneer resident of Minnesota, has about completed a model in miniature of the old log chapel of St. Paul from which that city took its name. The chapel was the first house of worship constructed on the site of St. Paul and was erected in 1841. It was small and crude, but answered the needs of the time. La Bissonniere formerly resided at Osseo, and later moved to St. Paul. He was familiar with the old chapel and his model is said to be true in all details. When completed it will be presented to the State Historical society.

Better Lard.

Less lard is adulterated with tallow and cotton seed oil than ever before in the history of the dairy and food commission. The department has just finished analyzing 76 samples of lard collected in various parts of the state, and only one sample was found adulterated.

A year ago, a large per cent of the samples analyzed by the commission was illegal. Tallow and cottonseed oil were the most common adulterating substances. In 1901 250 samples were found adulterated out of a total of a 1,000.

After the Lockups.

D. A. Lindsey, agent of the state board of control, sent circulars to authorities in charge of the lockups of the state calling their attention to the law requiring them to keep the lockups in a sanitary condition, fireproof and provided with a register containing the names of the prisoners. There are 450 lockups in the state, and all those that are unfit for use or unsafe from lack of fire escape facilities will be condemned.

Oil Fees.

Fenton G. Warner, state oil inspector, has reported for 1903, fees collected amounting to $29,732.25. The expenses of inspection were $27,667.45, leaving $2,064.80 in the fund. Under the law, this fund cannot be used for any other purpose than inspection. The oil inspection is a police regulation, and the state has no right to derive revenue from it.

News Notes.

The January receipts at the state prison twine plant amounted to $22,735.98.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Scherer of Lake Crystal celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

RURAL CARRIERS' PAY.

An Increase From $600 to $750 Per Annum Recommended.

The rural free mail delivery system being, as it is, the child of the grange, members of the Order are interested in its progress. At the last meeting of the national grange a resolution was adopted to the effect that rural carriers should receive as much compensation as city carriers. The late report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow recommends an increase from $600 to $750 per year for routes twenty-five miles or more in length. The justice of this increase is apparent, and, in fact, we think it should have been increased to $850 rather. This was the sum asked for by the National Association of Rural Mail Carriers, which recently presented a memorial to congress on the subject. It was shown therein that on account of the low salary over 1,500 carriers resigned during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1902, not being able to support their families therefrom. The memorial asked an increase from $600 to $720 for the second year and $850 the third year and thereafter. It also asked for a leave of absence for fifteen days with full pay.

We believe the action of the national grange in instituting a comparison between rural and city carriers adopted the right basis. There is no reason why the city carriers should receive more pay than the country carriers, all things considered. The rural carrier has to supply his outfit of horses, wagons and entire equipment, to which must be added the cost of keeping the horse or horses for a year, as many carriers are required to keep from two to four horses on long routes. It has been figured that the first year's expense will average $525, leaving thus a small margin for the service. While it may cost more for the carrier to live in the city, he has no expense after his eight hour day's work is done, and he is paid for overtime. Rural carriers get no overtime, and yet much work in connection with the care of horses, wagon and outfit must be done after returning from the day's trip. More than that, the government furnishes horses and wagons in cities where delivery is not made on foot.

Particularly in the winter season, when travel is hard at the best, do the carriers earn more than their present daily wage, and it would seem to be a good plan for the subordinate granges throughout the country to memorialize congress on the question of its approval of the increase in pay above referred to.

The rural delivery system is expanding wonderfully, as the following report shows:

There are now in operation 19,398 rural free delivery routes. It is estimated that 3,260 additional routes can be established out of the appropriation now available, making 22,678, which will be in operation or ordered established by March 1, 1904. To maintain the service on these routes during the fiscal year from July 1, 1904, to June 30, 1905, will require $13,560,000. If congress provides for an increased number of agents, as recommended, it will require about $19,000,000 to maintain and install the service during the next fiscal year. If the maximum salary of the carriers is increased from $600 to $750 per annum, as recommended, it will necessitate an increase in the above estimates of about 25 per cent.

Birthday of the Grange.

On Dec. 4, 1867, the Order of Patrons of Husbandry was established by its "seven founders," William Saunders, O. H. Kelley, A. B. Grosh, John Trimble, J. R. Thompson and F. M. McDowell. The name of Miss Caroline A. Hall, a niece of Mr. Kelley, has recently been added to the honorable list, since it was she who first suggested the admission of women into full membership in the grange. The first subordinate grange was organized at Washington on Jan. 8, 1868. Many granges throughout the land celebrated the thirty-sixth anniversary of the organization of the grange on Dec. 4 last.

Grange Exhibits at St. Louis.

It is proposed by Mr. J. H. Durkee of Florida, N. Y., who is to be superintendent of New York's agricultural display at the St. Louis exposition, that the cereal exhibits from the Empire State shall be made by the granges thereof. Each grange will be invited to send an exhibit of cereals, and industrial exhibits by members of the Order will have the exhibitor's name attached so that he as well as the grange with which he is connected may have full credit for his effort. There will be a first premium in cash and other valuable premiums.

Every subordinate grange should send its lecturer to the state grange and pay all expenses. It would be money well invested. On the lecturer much of the success of the subordinate grange depends, and that officer should go to the state grange on account of the information to be gained and then imparted on returning home.

One evening recently 109 candidates were initiated by the Springfield (Mass.) grange. There were nearly 400 Patrons in attendance.

The grange is having no boom, but, what is better, is making a steady and therefore substantial growth.

Colrain (Mass.) grange has a women's degree team that does excellent work.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED R IVE VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLER WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

Ladies, we have a few choice "leap year" bargains left, if taken at once, down here in this "neck o' the woods," with the understanding that "baldness" must be "barred" in most cases.

Charlie Hanson, from McIntosh, was around posting up notices for the judicial ditch last Thursday. Hope the ditch will pass this time, so we will be able to get a good road at least out of it. We are practically "swamped" here the biggest part of the year.

Ed Havik went to McIntosh last Wednesday and returned on Thursday with a load of dress goods and notions. Mr. Havik has now the most complete line of dress goods that has ever been put into any country store. Ladies, don't fail to sample the goods, for they are sure to please.

WYLIE.

A. Beautin lost his valuable stallion last week.

Ab, you will be sworn: where were you last night?

Miss Lizzie Powers is spending the week at St. Hilaire.

N. E. Eckstein was at Red Lake Falls on business last Monday.

C. G. Bergen and M. E. Todd made a business trip to the county seat last Wednesday night.

County Attorney Grady drove over from Red Lake last Monday a. m. to catch the train for Thief River Falls.

A. O. Letvig received a valuable cow from St. Hilaire last Tuesday. By the way, Andy, how much did you pay for that cow?

Many of the young people here are intending to take in the leap year ball at St. Hilaire next Monday night. They anticipate a big time.

At the annual meeting of the Wylie Dairy association last Monday night the following officers were elected: President, James Sutor; vice-president, Sam Leppert; treasurer, Ole T. Romsos; secretary, Thor Smidesang.

It has been 30 degrees below zero every morning at 9 o'clock for over a week; frozen noses, ears, and cheeks are very common, but we do not hear of any sickness of a contagious nature that usually prevail in open winters; so let us hug the stove and be thankful for good health.

We are requested to serve notice upon certain persons who are in the habit of leaving their teams hitched upon our streets from six to eight hours without food or drink and in most cases without blankets in this weather, that this will not be tolerated in the future. The next offender can depend upon being arrested and given the strongest dose our statutes provide.

THIEF RIVER FALLS.

Mrs. Gust who has been the guest of her father, Jos. Hodek, returned to her home at Grand Forks last Monday.

Jas. A. Wilson left here Tuesday afternoon to attend the meeting of the Farmer's Grange held this week at Crookston.

C. L. Dobner returned Tuesday after a weeks' absence spent at Chicago, where he was called by business interests.

H. I. Simonson, of the Simonson Clothing store, came up from Minneapolis Monday to look after business interests at this place.

Jas. A. Wilson, formerly professor of our city schools, has again taken up his headquarters here. Mr. Wilson is now state dairy and food inspector.

W. A. Murphy was an over Sunday visitor with his family at Red Lake Falls. Mr. Murphy's little son has been ill with the mumps but his condition is now greatly improved.

A very pleasant time was spent at the bowling alley Monday evening by a number of young people. The party was given by Messrs. McIntyre and McGinnis in honor of Miss Nellie Pardy who has been a guest at the C. L. Dobner home during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Prichard departed on Tuesday for an extended trip of six weeks duration, taking in on their journey New Orleans and the southern states, southern California, San Francisco, Oregon and Washington points. The trip is expected to be an especially enjoyable one at this time of the year.

Levi Quande came in from Bemidji Saturday and was immediately taken to the hospital where he is at present confined. The young man has been in a Bemidji hospital for nearly two months but was brought here owing to his expressed desires. It is feared that he has consumption and that the end is not far distant.

W. A. McIntyre, the well known Red Lake Falls attorney, was in town over Tuesday night as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Perl W. Mabey. Mr. McIntyre has been undergoing a siege of inflammatory rheumatism for the past few weeks but his health is now much improved and his friends hope to soon see him as hearty as before the attack.

The Northwestern Agriculturist's Great Offer

An Opportunity to See the St. Louis Exposition at the Expense of this Enterprising Farm Paper—Only a Limited Number Can be Accepted—Apply PROMPTLY.

A sample copy will be sent free on request, sent to the publishers of The Northwestern Agriculturist, Minneapolis.

Even without the trip to the Exposition the work of an agent on The Agriculturist is profitable, the net profits ranging from $60 to $100 a month besides board and all traveling expenses.

Local agents who can not leave home are offered the same terms for soliciting at odd times in their immediate neighborhoods, though the agents who make a regular business of the work are the ones who make the greatest success. Write promptly to the N. W. Agriculturist 525 Seventh St. S., Minneapolis, Minn.

In our last week's issue we published an announcement by The Northwestern Agriculturist of Minneapolis of a great plan to reward its enterprising subscription agents with trips to the St. Louis Exposition, all expenses to be paid by the paper. It was announced especially that there were two or three vacancies open in this part of the state and persons desirous of taking advantage of the opportunity should write to The Northwestern Agriculturist promptly and get particulars. In order to avoid delay we will state to all that the publisher of the Courier knows nothing more about the plan of work than what we have published and it is necessary therefore to correspond directly with the Northwestern Agriculturist. All that the local publisher can say is that The Northwestern Agriculturist is a perfectly responsible and reliable institution; the paper has the largest proved circulation of any farm paper in the West and its management will do exactly as they agree. The paper is nearly twenty years old and has over 75,000 circulation; its manager declares his determination to increase this to 100,000 circulation this year and therefore offers this extraordinary inducement of a trip to the Exposition, besides a very liberal commission in cash for every new subscription secured by the agents.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Omer Bushea (unmarried), Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 12th day of October, 1901, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 342, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Mortgagee to Wm. M. Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of December, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to to the sum of Ninety-five dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows:

The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.
I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

RESERVATION BILL PASSED

Congressman Steenerson Gets Through Bill for Opening Red Lake Lands.

Measure is Not the Same That Was Introduced by Senator Clapp Last Session, but Dispenses With the Consent of the Indians to the Sale, Following Up the Lone Wolf Decision of the Supreme Court.

The Red Lake bill as it finally passed both houses of congress Saturday is not the same bill which Senator Clapp introduced in the early days of the present session. That bill was an exact copy of a bill which passed both houses last session, and which the Indians refused to ratify, on the suggestion of Major Scott. It provided for the sale of land in twelve townships in Red Lake county, subject to the homestead laws, without commutation rights, for not less than $4 per acre, the Indians to ratify the legislation.

As soon as the bill passed the senate this session, Representative Steenerson began to bestir himself. He drafted a substitute measure, predicated on the Lone Wolf decision of the supreme court which says that the consent of Indians to the sale of their land need not be secured, in certain cases. His substitute provided for the amendment of the agreement of 1902, whereby the Indians disposed of their lands to the government for $1,000,000 cash. The amendment was to the effect that the government should be, not the purchaser of the land, but the trustee of the Indians, and should sell their lands, subject to the homestead laws, for not less than $4 per acre, the Indians to have the proceeds. Any land not taken within five years is to be sold without conditions, but at not less than $4 per acre. This proviso is to cover those parts of the twelve townships which are marshy and therefore will not be bought by homesteaders. These marshes after the end of five years, can be bought by large companies, drained and reclaimed, and then disposed of to settlers. Another section of the Steenerson substitute provides that although certain citizens may already have exhausted their homestead rights they may purchase this new land if they desire. The section will open the land to thousands of well-to-do farmers of northwestern Minnesota, who exhausted their homestead rights years ago.

The land to be opened embraces 256,152 acres in the northeast of Red Lake county and overlaps into Marshall county for a width of a mile and a half.

In his original bill Steenerson provided for all the details of the sale, etc., but these provisions were cut out by the committee, which has left these matters to be worked out by the secretary of the interior in his usual manner. Steenerson is anxious to have the land put on the market by early spring. He says northern Minnesota expects 50,000 new settlers this year, and he wants as many of them as care to bid for this land to have that privilege.

This is one of the most important bits of legislation Minnesota has received from congress for years, and much credit is due Mr. Steenerson for his skill in putting it through the committee and afterwards through the house. Senator Nelson gave him invaluable aid in the senate.

THE RED LAKE BILL.

Steenerson Talks Over Its Provisions With the President.

President Roosevelt sent for Representative Steenerson yesterday to discuss the provisions of the Red Lake bill, to certain provisions of which Assistant Secretary Ryan of the interior department has registered an objection. Judge Ryan claims that the clause providing that lands remaining after auction shall bs sold at private sale at no less than $4 an acre will permit prospective purchasers to conspire to prevent any sale until after the lands are "offered" and that thus all lands will be sold at $4 and the total sum realized for the Indians will be materially lessened.

The bill will be referred to the attorney general for an opinion on its legal points and Steenerson will have a conference with him in a few days.

CREAMERY MEETING MCH. 5

Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, to Be Here.

The farmers tributary to Red Lake Falls will be interested in knowing that a dairy and creamery meeting will be held at the Metropolitan opera house on Saturday, March 5, to be conducted by Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, assisted by several creamery experts from his department.

There will be no charge for admission, and all the expenses of the meeting will be paid by voluntary contributions from the business men. The meeting will begin promptly at 1:30 p. m., and it is hoped that every farmer within a radius of fifteen miles will find it convenient to attend, as they will be sure to acquire expert knowledge regarding the dairy industry that will be of inestimable value to them. Farmers' wives and daughters, too, will be interested in the proceedings.

William Lauritzon, manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery, has prevailed upon Mr. McConnell to hold this meeting, and is making ali arrangements for it. Mr. Lauritzon is one of the most enterprising and progressive creamery men in Minnesota, and if he stays in the county many years we predict that the dairy industry will be materially advanced.

THE NINTH DISTRICT.

District Committee Meet and Issue Formal Call.

Crookston Daily Journal.

Members of the Ninth Congressional District Committee met in Crookston yesterday and organized for the coming campaign. The meeting was called to order by John Petterson, of McIntosh, who was chairman of Halvor Steenerson's committee, and D. W. Meeker, of Moorhead was elected permanent secretary. Crookston was selected as the place for holding the district convention, and the basis of representation was fixed at one delegate for every 250 votes or major fraction thereof, cast for Halvor Steenerson for congress, with five at large for each county. This gives a total of 33 delegates.

The date for holding the county convention was set for March 15th, and delegates chosen at that time will meet in Crookston on the 16th and select delegates to the state convention which will be held in St. Paul On March 17th. The formal call will be found in another column of this issue.

Following are the names of the committeemen present on yesterday:

Becker, O. Wangensteen, Lake Park.
Beltrami, L. H. Bailey, Bemidji.
Clay, D. Meeker, Moorhead.
Kittson, J. D. Henry, Hallock.
Marshall, G. E, Erickson, Aagyle.

The Continental Insurance Co. of New York: Our losses from the Baltimore fire will be a million dollars. We have a force of four adjusters in that city. Our obligations will be promptly paid.

The Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Co.: Our losses in Baltimore are estimated at one million dollars, which will be promptly paid. We have subscribed $10,000 for the relief of sufferers.

American Fire Insurance Co. of Philadelphia: Our loss in Baltimore will be approximately about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which will be promptly met.

The Possibilities Of Swift Travel.

The question of running a car at high speed has recently been considered by the principal engineers of the world, and the success with which a car was run 125¾ miles an hour in Germany has demonstrated that there are no mechanical difficulties in reaching 125 miles, or even a greater speed per hour. The cost however, is prohibitive at the present time. Cost need not enter into your calculations when you are deciding to get a case of golden grain belt beer to tone up you health—the cost is almost nothing, compared with the good it will do you. BARGAIN DAYS A SUCCESS

Twenty-six New Subscribers Added to the Courier's List Saturday and Monday.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather Saturday and Monday the Courier's bargain days were fairly successful. During the two days over $150 was taken in on subscription, and twenty-six new subscribers were enrolled. Considering that all of the people who paid for their paper came from Red Lake Falls city or the immediate vicinity, except perhaps a dozen mail remittances, we feel well satisfied with the results, as the weather was altogether too frigid to expect many people from a distance.

The success of the bargain days proves to our own satisfaction at least that advertising pays liberally on the investment. The COURIER made no special effort to secure payments or new subscribers except by a liberal use of the advertising columns of the paper. If a newspaper can use advertising in this way to advantage, certainly the local merchants will find it a desirable medium to reach the people with announcements of their special sale and bargain offerings.

Another proof of the value of the local newspaper as an advertising medium is shown by the Courier's recent cut-price stationery sale. About three weeks ago we inserted a small advertisement announcing a 25 per cent. reduction on about 75 boxes of stationery. The advertisement was also placed in the other newspaper, the Gazette, and within a week after the first appearance of the ad. more than fifty boxes of the goods were disposed of, and since then practically all of them have been sold. The COURIER did not expect to make much money on this sale, but it hoped to demonstrate to its own satisfaction that advertising pays. There could be no stronger evidence that it does.

ANOTHER RAILROAD RUMOR.

Northern Pacific May Build East From Red Lake Falls.

It is rumored that the Minnesota & International, a branch of the Northern Pacific, has representatives looking over the line of the recently bankrupted Red Lake Railroad and Transportation company, with a view to buying the same and extending the Minnesota & International due west to Red Lake Falls to connect with the Northern Pacific. The extension would be about fifty miles through a prosperous district.

WOODS FULL OF DUNN MEN

A Tribute Paid the Ex-Auditor by Late People's Party Candidate for Governor.

Robert C. Dunn seems to come in for a lot of praise from prominent men of all political parties. Mr. Dunn made the best auditor the state ever had, and every person familiar with the work of that office cannot help but admire the position he has taken with reference to matters affecting the people of the state.

This week the COURIER editor is in receipt of a personal letter from Hon. Thomas J. Meighen, of Forestville, Minn., who was last year the Peoples' party candidate for governor, and for a quarter of century has been a leader of reform sentiment in the state. Mr. Meighen was a member of the state board of equalization under John Lind, when the street railway company and other corporate interests received their first boost in taxes. In this letter Mr. Meighen says:

"I notice you are favorably inclined to Bob Dunn. I can understand that no man who was a member of the state board of equalization while Bob was auditor could fail to have faith in him and hope for his success in the gubernatorial contest. I feel that way myself. Robert C. Dunn would make a splendid governor. He feels for the under dog, and has plenty of spinal column and to spare."

This tribute from one of the strongest opponents of the Republican party in the state goes to show that Bob Dunn is bigger than his party, and has hosts of well wishers among prominent members of all the parties. And the reason is not far to seek. He has been loyal to the people, and consistent in his advocacy of measures for the public welfare.

Church Notice.

Red Lake Falls, Feb. 16—Editor Courier: Having received a very cordial invitation from Rev. H. W. Knox, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and from Mr. J. W. Rodgers, superintendent of the Suuday school, to unite our christian efforts in the upbuilding of God's kingdom in our city, and since I do not expect to remain here but a short time, as calls have come to me from different states to accept work in the ministry, we have accepted the kind invitation of our brethren of the above-named church. Therefore we expect to hold our last preaching service and Sunday school in the hall on next Sabbath, February 21, at 11 a. m. All are invived to attend once more. I hope that all of our Sunday school scholars and all who attended our meetings will attend the services at the Presbyterian church.

Those who have taken song books away from the hall will kindly return them by next Sunday, as the books are my individual property.

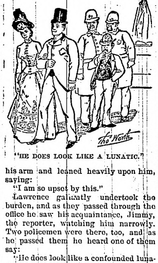
THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON.
COPYRIGHT, 1890

It was some time before she recovered sufficiently to accuse him of desiring to play some trick upon her. He protested that such was not his intention and urged her to be calm, promising to go at once to the clergyman's if she would write the desired address. This she finally did and then retired to dress for the street. While he was waiting Lawrence wondered that she had not made particular inquiries about her husband, and his conclusion was that she cared nothing for him, her only desire being to possess his supposed wealth.

When at last they started down-stairs, the young woman thrust her hand into his arm and leaned heavily upon him, saying:



"HE DOES LOOK LIKE A LUNATIC."

"I am so upset by this."

Lawrence gallantly undertook the burden, and as they passed through the office he saw his acquaintance, Jimmy, the reporter, watching him narrowly. Two policemen were there, too, and as he passed them he heard one of them say:

"He does look like a confounded lunatic, for a fact."

CHAPTER X.

At all seasonable hours the streets of New Haven are full of pretty girls. They are merry girls, too, who like to laugh when there's any thing funny in sight. Drane, with the bogus Mrs. Drane upon his arm, passed some thousands of them, or at least he could have sworn that he did, and they all looked out of the corners of their eyes, and grinned with the corners of their mouths.

It is harrowing to be the object of this kind of attention. It suggests the possibility of a practical joker's placard on one's back, or a black mark alongside one's nose. Drane investigated the subject as well as he could by feeling stealthily up and down his back, and using his handkerchief with great vigor. But for the life of him he couldn't find any thing calculated to create so much innocent amusement.

"I suppose I look funny without my mustache," he thought, "but hang me if I should expect people to notice it who never saw me before."

Then he glanced down upon his companion, and beheld upon her countenance an expression which at once explained the situation. She looked as no woman ever does except when she's either sea sick or in love. A honeymoon smile of the most aggravated type transformed her rather comely face into the familiar mask of imbecility; and not even the blank stare with which he met her upturned eyes, moved her to modify a single detail of her ridiculous grimace.

"She must be crazy, too," he thought, with a shudder; unconsciously molding the phrase of his idea to fit the popular judgment regarding his own mental condition. "Poor girl; her disappointment has turned her brain."

She steered him into a side street; and just as he was trying to think of a delicate way in which he could urge her to discontinue looking at him in that disquieting fashion, she paused before a gate and said:

"This is the minister's house, the Rov Mr. Knowles, the man who married us, you know."

There was a painful ambiguity about her words which perplexed Drane to such an extent that a servant had ushered them handily into the good pastor's study before he recovered his self-possession.

A venerable gentleman rose from a large chair, and greeted them with courtesy.

"You remember me, don't you?" said the girl, before Drane could open his mouth. "I'm Nellie Blake, or I was before you married me to Mr. Drane, last Tuesday."

She simpered in a most distressing way and looked up at Drane. He felt his hair stirring at the roots, for he saw now that lunacy was the only explanation of the girl's conduct.

"I ought to explain—" he began.

"No explanation is required, Mr. Drane," said he. "I remember you perfectly, and I do trust that nothing has happened in this short space to mar the happiness which I sincerely wished you when I made you one."

"But my dear sir—" cried Drane, in horror. Nellie interrupted him with a giggle.

"You see, sir, it isn't really much of any thing," she said, "and perhaps we ought not to have bothered you about it; but the truth is I've lost the certificate you gave me. I'm just as stupid as I can be, but I can't help it."

"Oh! if that is all—"

"But it isn't all. It isn't half of it," Drane exclaimed. "The truth is—"

"Now, you naughty boy," cried Nellie, putting her hand playfully over his mouth, "I shan't let you go on this way."

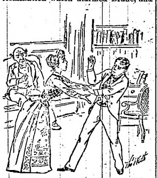
"Some trifling disagreement," said the Rev. Mr. Knowles, smiling good-naturedly. "I have no doubt that it can be repaired as easily as the loss of the certificate."

"Sir," said Drane, breaking loose from the restraining hand, "I assure you that it is your duty to—"

"And I assure you, sir," said the old clergyman, with dignity, "that it is your duty, as it is your privilege, and should be your delight, to be ever kind, forbearing and gentle with the woman who has given you the honest affection of her heart, and whose hand I joined with yours in this very room. Look at her now."

Nellie had fallen upon a sofa and was sobbing with industrious vigor. "You have brought tears to her eyes." Nellie pretended to wring out her handkerchief. "She might faint with the disappointment at your very feet!"

Nellie began to faint with a rigid determination which alarmed Drane, and called forth more remonstrances from the kind-hearted old man. Together they made her comfortable upon the sofa and fanned her till there was a small cyclone in the study. When she was quiet Drane saw his opportunity, and, in a voice as calm as he could make it, he said:



CLAIMED.

"My dear sir, you are wholly mistaken in this matter. I am not the man who married this young woman, and I have never had the pleasure of seeing either her or yourself before to-day."

"Do you mean to say that she doesn't know her own husband?" asked the reverend gentleman, with great surprise. "This is preposterous."

"She knows perfectly well that I am not her husband," said Drane. "For some purpose of her own she has lured me here, and has claimed me before you, and you have pretended to recognize me. But for the honesty that I read in your face, sir, I should be tempted to say that this was all a great conspiracy to entrap me."

"Young man," said Rev. Mr. Knowles, with deep severity, "I never forget a face. I knew you by your necktie!"

It was the one article of conspicuous apparel which he had retained since the first exchange with the tramp in the Turkish bath. He cursed it in his soul.

"But look at me more closely; look into my face!" he exclaimed.

Rev. Mr. Knowles pulled a pair of spectacles down from his forehead and approached Drane with a grim determination to make sure of him written all over his usually benign countenance. Drane lifted up his head and looked straight at the glittering gold rims of the glasses. He felt certain that he should not fail of an acquittal if once he was properly inspected.

But Rev. Mr. Knowles made an error which is alarmingly common in cases where personal identity is at issue. He fixed his gaze rigidly on the one thing which had previously misled him—the necktie—and to all intents and purposes his scrutiny went no further. And oh, how he did identify that necktie. How he reached in and pulled its secret out! How dead certain, how immovably, unutterably positive he was, when he raised his eyes from it and pushed up his glasses again, that that was the veritable necktie with which he had forever united the fate of Miss Nellie Blake. Then he glanced at Drane's face with his unassisted eyes; saw simply a physiognomy with the customary number of features on it, and was convinced.

"I was not mistaken," said he, "and I am at a loss to understand your conduct."

"I didn't bring her here," said Drane, despondingly, "she brought me."

"So I supposed; so I supposed, young man," and the Rev. Mr. Knowles frowned in great disapprobation, "but now that you are here let me exhort you to do your whole duty. What reason you have for denying your wife I do not know. Have you any thing to say against her character?"

"Heaven forbid," said Drane, hastily. "That is a subject on which I never say any thing."

"You have the instincts of a gentleman," the old clergyman said, slowly. "I noticed that when you were here before; especially then, I may add, for your behavior to-day has left much to be desired."

"I am greatly indebted to the abominable tramp who personated me on that occasion," exclaimed Drane, with bitter emphasis, "and I regret that his reputation should suffer during my temporary use of my own name."

"Come, come," said the genial pastor, cheerfully; "let's have no more hard words. Come, Nellie, give your hand to your husband once more in my presence, and start anew on what I trust will be a happy life together."

Nellie rose with great alacrity and advanced to Drane, who stood in sullen dismay, wondering what the woman's object was and how far she would allow the ridiculous game to proceed.

Meanwhile Rev. Mr. Knowles had shifted his spectacles from his forehead to the end of his nose, and he beamed more benignly over them than under them if possible.

"I am an old man," said he, "and you must pardon my interference in the affairs of the young. I am not yet clear as to what has brought you to me for a second time; but let us say it is Providence—" and he glanced reverently upward, the one direction in which the good man's sight had never failed him. "I entreat you, my son, be a man," he continued, "and leave this strange and evil course for the better way."

Drane was torn by many conflicting emotions. The old clergyman's manner was so kind that Drane could have kissed his venerable hand, and his error was so annoying that Drane longed to break his venerable neck.

"My dear—" he was going to say "my dear sir," but Mr. Knowles let him get no further than the adjective. He spread his hands over the pair, in the familiar attitude, and Nellie, taking the hint, fell upon Drane's neck. His utter inability to struggle against circumstances led him absolutely to tears; and the Rev. Mr. Knowles, taking out a large handkerchief, cried softly in unison.

They were all so much occupied that they did not hear the door-bell, nor had their attitudes changed by a hair's-breadth when the door opened and Mrs. Bessie Harland, of Buffalo, N. Y., walked in. Drane saw her out of the corners of his eyes, and he tried hastily to shake Nellie's arms from around his neck, but they were clasped hard and fast, and nothing could loosen them. Bessie gave a little sigh which was almost a sob, and sank upon the sofa. There were first-rate prospects of a genuine faint now, and Drane's agony was proportionately increased.

At the sound of her late mistress' sob, Nellie turned her head, and when she saw who had entered her dismay was so plainly written on her face that even the faint-sighted old pastor saw it. He misinterpreted it, of course, and cast a look of disapproval upon Bessie.

"Young woman," said he, "are you the unhappy cause of difference between these two?"

But Bessie paid little attention to his words. She rose unsteadily from the sofa, threw up her head with a pitiful little attempt at dignity and said:

"Mr. Drane, I came to this city because I believed that you were ill and in trouble, and I hoped to help you as you once helped me. A young man, whom I believe to be a representative of the press, directed me to this house. That explains my presence; but, of course, I can stay no longer. I must say good-bye."

"There, sir; didn't I tell you your name was Drane!" exclaimed Rev. Mr. Knowles, who had been fairly bursting with a desire to say it since Bessie's first word had been uttered.

"Bessie—Mrs. Harland!" cried Drane, choking with love, rage and other emotions which afflict the young, "I swear to you that this is all a hideous mistake. I have never seen this woman before to-day, and I don't care to see her again till the day of judgment, on which occasion may she escape her deserts! She was hanging round my neck for some insane purpose of her own; and this gentleman"—and Drane softened his voice and bowed to Mr. Knowles—"persists that he married us."

"Married!" cried Bessie, and she sank back again upon the sofa.

"But he didn't, you know," cried Drane, hastening toward her. "He's near-sighted or something, and she really married my necktie—oh, give my word, I don't know what I'm saying, but I—I— Bessie, I love you, God knows, and every beat of my heart has been faithful to you since my eyes first rested on your face. May—"

"Sir!" cried Rev. Mr. Knowles, in a voice of thunder. "This is more than I can permit. Will you make love to another woman before your wife's eyes, you young villain?"

But this rebuke fell unheeded, for Drane's unexpected declaration had proven too much for Bessie's nerves already deeply shaken, and she had fallen into a faintness, as deep, to all appearances, as death itself. Drane sprang forward to her side, and Rev. Mr. Knowles puttered along after him. Nellie, too, was moved by the sight of her former mistress' pallid face, and she bid fair to be of more real use than either of the men. But they were all in earnest, and so intent upon their task that they did not see the door open, nor did they know that any one had entered till a harsh voice said: "Lawrence Drane, ye bloomin' lunatic, I've got to take yer in!"

Drane turned to confront Jimmy and the two policemen.

CHAPTER XI.

VIRTUES OF NECESSITY.

At this point in Mr. Drane's adventures he ought to have met the emergency with calmness and a ready wit. He had certainly experienced quite enough of encounters with the police; but, law-abiding citizen that he was, having an innate and cultivated respect for the guardians of the peace and faro banks, the more he encountered their power the weaker he was to resist them. Therefore, when he was hustled out of the good old parson's study he went with a blind acquiescence to cruel fate, mens conscia recti, but very much cast down nevertheless.

In the hallway of the parson's house, however, he pulled himself together and demanded the cause of his arrest. The policemen were by no means willing to explain; they really believed that they had a dangerous maniac on hand, and Jimmy, the reporter, was on the qui vive to get a good news item and a reward at the same time. However, as Mr. Drane resisted, Jimmy finally produced this telegram from a New York newspaper:

Just one ray of joy shone against the dark background of Mr. Drane's prospects in this dispatch—the tramp, improperly confined as insane at his instance, had been released. Thinking of that as of one sin which had been forgiven, Lawrence bowed his head and accompanied the policemen out of doors. An officer was at either elbow and Jimmy pranced along behind. As Mr. Drane was very quiet no especial attention was attracted until they came to the door of the Beaver House. There a man was slowly descending the steps, looking vastly worried and out of sorts. It was the tramp. He had Mr. Drane's clothes on and he appeared to be in hard luck. When he saw the officers and their convoy sailing down the street he stopped suddenly and looked hard at the prisoner with a wildly angered expression on his face. It was but a moment that the tramp stood thus, but in that moment his reasoning faculties went through a tremendous operation. This was about the substance of it:

"Hello! there's Lawrence Drane! I stole his clothes and his name and married in both of them an awfully rich widow. He got back at me by stealing his clothes again and getting me in hock. He even inveigled me into an insane asylum. He is even now suspected of being a lunatic. Now I know that he is not only sane, but that I have been the cause of his misadventures. I further know that the Kansas City men who declared this morning that I was not Drane, will be here by the next train from New York and will free this man from all his troubles. He is tremendously rich and good-natured. D— me if I don't do him a good turn."

This chain of reasoning was so speedily accomplished that by the time Lawrence and the policemen were opposite the Beaver House door, the tramp had resolved upon his course of action. He ran down the steps pell-mell, seized Lawrence by the hand and exclaimed:

"Well, well! to see you again and in this shape! I'm delighted and everlastingly relieved!"

"Oh! you are, are you?" responded Lawrence, as the policemen paused. "I see that you are at the upper end of the teeter-board at present."

He would have said more in expression of his bitterness, but the tramp interrupted:

"Officers, I don't think you have any right to hold this man. I know him. He is my only brother. His name is Lawrence Drane, of Kansas City, and I am his brother John, come on to take care of him. I demand that you show me your authority for arresting him before you take him any further."

This, of course, was a stumper for the policemen. They had no authority whatever.

"But," said one of them, "how about that reward?"

At this moment a button in Mr. Drane's Bowery suit gave way.

Jimmy, of course, had explained the prospective reward to the policemen and had held out its terms as inducements for their action. Neither Mr. Drane nor the tramp knew exactly what to do.

"Well, the fact is," began Mr. Drane.

"You understand," said the tramp at the same moment, "Mr. Drane is not a crazy man; he is my friend and relative."

"But," interrupted again one of the policemen, "that reward? We don't propose to stay out all night looking for this gent and the reward without some return."

"Does it look very bad?" he whispered to the tramp, as he felt a seam in the back burst.

"It looks like bloody murder," said the tramp, in an undertone; "and speaking of that, how do you think those Kansas City made pantaloons of yours fit me?"

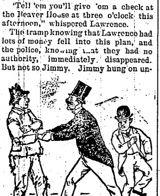
The tramp knowing that Lawrence had lots of money fell into this plan, and the police, knowing that they had no authority, immediately disappeared. But not so Jimmy. Jimmy hung on until the tramp assured him that he and Drane were going to the parson's house to elucidate together one or two problems that were not yet clear to either of them. During all the conversation that this involved, Lawrence discreetly kept his mouth shut, and presently Jimmy dashed off presumably to give a column of copy to his newspaper for the last edition. After this the two men paused on the sidewalk and Mr. Drane began:



THE ALLEGED JOHN DRANE.

"My dear man, there is something about you, in addition to my clothes, which makes me think that you are or ought to be a gentleman."

"Sir," responded the tramp, "there is something about you besides that ill-fitting Bowery suit that makes me regard you as destined to better things than you have endured during the past week."

Then both men laughed and after that they shook hands heartily.

"I say," said Lawrence, "what is your name, and how the unmentionable fiend did you get into a tramp's life?"

"My name," responded the other, "is plain Johnson, baptised Richard J. one time a country schoolmaster, which may account for my lapses into fairly correct English when I talk. Schoolmastering, I found, did not pay for a man who had acquired champagne tastes on a beer income, and so I determined to travel. Experience of an unusually severe nature undermined my convictions respecting meum et tuum, and I therefore descended to theft. But it is only fair to explain that this descent in morality came from the fact that soon after I gave up school-teaching I went into politics."

"I was an alderman," continued the tramp, "and I voted various franchises to railroad corporations and escaped indictment I never knew how. Then, having my hands in the public treasury, otherwise the people's pockets, for two or three years, I lost all sense of decorum and honesty."

"You are to be pitied, not condemned," said Mr. Drane.

"So," continued the tramp, "I am not altogether bad. That, with your kindness, you seem to see; but the fact is that if I had always worn as good clothes as these of yours, I would not have been tempted to commit the crimes that have brought trouble upon you."

"That is doubtless true," answered Mr. Drane, dubiously recalling his peculiar adventures; "but it was very wrong of you to take away not only my garments but my name and credit as well."

"Ah, sir," replied Mr. Johnson, smiling, "it is an old saw that 'necessity knows no law.' But let us not waste time in argument. I came here to seek my wife, and when I have found her you shall be fully repaid in money for the misery which I have caused you."

JAPS FEAR LOSS OF 1,800 MEN BY SINKING OF A TRANSPORT

Chefoo, Feb. 16.—A reliable authority says that three Russian torpedo boats have been sunk by guns from the forts. They were mistaken for Japanese vessels.

A Startling Rumor.

Nagasaki, Feb. 16.—It is rumored that 1,800 Japanese soldiers have been killed, presumably by the sinking of a transport. Disturbances are reported in Seoul.

Fighting on Yalu River.

London, Feb. 16.—Heavy fighting is in progress between Russian and Japanese troops along the Yalu river. This fact is confirmed by official telegrams received in St. Petersburg from Viceroy Alexieff, who, however, does not give details.

Japanese troops apparently have made an attempt to land troops at Dalny under cover of the guns of a powerful squadron. The Russian embassy at Paris claims to have information that the Japanese attack on Dalny was repulsed with heavy loss to the mikado's forces.

News of the fighting along the Yalu comes in roundabout way. The Chinese legation at Paris has received an official message stating that fighting is progressing on the Yalu river between Russian and Japanese troops. The Russians are said to have captured 80 Japanese officers and men.

Japanese Repulse.

London, Feb. 16.—Japan's campaign to invest Port Arthur by land and sea began last Wednesday, and the first attempt has resulted in apparent defeat with heavy loss. Japanese troops attempted to land at Talienwan and Pigeon bay, on the east and west side of the Liaotung peninsula. These points are opposite each other on the narrow neck of land above Port Arthur. If they are held the Japanese will have cut off Port Arthur from all the rest of Manchuria and Russia.

Over 400 Killed.

The Daily Mail's Port Arthur correspondent, under date of February 12, says:

"Official advices state that the Japanese landed 600 soldiers near Talienwan with disastrous results, 410 being sabered by Cossacks. The remainder escaped to their ships.

"It is further stated that the Japanese landed at Dove bay, where 30 of them were killed and the remainder retreated.

Attempted Landing Tuesday.

A dispatch from Chefoo, dated February 12, 12:35 p. m., eastern time, says:

"During the second bombardment of Port Arthur last Tuesday, February 9, while the Japanese fleet engaged the Russian ships, the Japanese party landed four transports of soldiers, 3,500 in all, at Bidusudo. The Russians allowed them to land, then made a grand charge with artillery, infantry and cavalry, principally Cossacks, and almost annihilated the Japanese, who were unprepared for the attack, seeing no Russian defenses at the place of landing. The battleships which escorted the transports were too far away from shore to render assistance."

Alexieff Isolated.

London, Feb. 16.—The correspondent of the Daily Express, at Peking, in a cablegram dated February 12, reports that Viceroy Alexieff is practically isolated, direct communication between Port Arthur and Vladivostock being suspended. He adds that the railroad behind Port Arthur has been blown up and that 6,000 Japanese troops have landed near Dalny.

Troops Landed at Chemulpo.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—A communication from Viceroy Alexieff just received confirms the report of the landing of 19,000 Japanese troops at Chemulpo.

Maj. Gen. Pflug wires that according to private advices the Japanese, after the battle of Chemulpo, landed 19,000 troops, Japanese Land Troops.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Information has reached here that nearly 20,000 Japanese troops were landed at Chemulpo Sunday, the first division of a large number which will be thrown into Corea as rapidly as possible, in the effort thoroughly to occupy the strategic points in the hermit kingdom while the Russian fleet is bottled up in Port Arthur. By one conversant with the Japanese plans it is stated that the repeated attacks on Port Arthur are not for the purpose of seizing that place at present unless an unexpected weakness in the fortifications there should develop. They are part of a well defined plan for the harassing of the Russian fleet until Corea can be occupied. The bottling up of the fleet there enables the landing of troops on Corea without the convoy of a large number of warships. The reports of disorder in various parts of Corea hastened the operations of the Japanese that they might obtain possession before anarchy became prevalent and foreign interests menaced in consequence.

The taking of Port Arthur will form the second number of the war programme. First, however, it is learned that the Japanese propose to cut the line of communication well up on the railroad running from Niuchwang to Port Arthur. It is expected a large Japanese force will land at Niuchwang shortly for this purpose.

Squadron in Sight.

Tokio, Feb. 16.—The Russian Vladivostok squadron is still in sight, cruising in the Sea of Japan. A report to the effect that Matsuima, on the inland sea, had been bombarded by the Russian squadron is untrue.

There is no fear of the Russians intercepting the Kagara and the Niasin or effecting a junction with the Port Arthur squadron. The Russians possess no naval bases except those at Port Arthur and Vladivostok, and the latter may freeze up and bar the retreat of the squadron. Despite Russian assurances minimizing the damage sustained by Admiral Togo's attack last Tuesday at Port Arthur, the Japanese are certain that the Port Arthur fleet was severely crippled. Admiral Togo's fleet was not severely damaged and was capable of fighting another battle immediately afterward. The battleship Fiji was the most seriously damaged. Withdrawals for repairs from the Japanese fleet will not materially reduce its fighting strength.

Lieutenant Commander Yamanaya, a gallant and promising officer, was the most prominent of those killed on the Japanese side at Port Arthur.

To Defer Forward Movement.

Tokio, Feb. 16.—The date of the forward movement of the main body of the Japanese army has not been disclosed, but it probably will be deferred until after the completion of naval operations. The publication of the numbers of soldiers at the points of mobilization is still forbidden. The mobilization is progressing with surprising celerity and without confusion. The staff shows a remarkable mastery of details. The main railways are canceling or curtailing schedules and devoting every energy to facilitate the movement of troops. The reserves are assembling and occupying the garrisons vacated by the regulars, and this movement is progressing with the precision of a drilled army. All are immensely eager to take the field. Subscriptions have been opened for the first 100,000,000 yen war bonds. The subscriptions will close March 10. It is anticipated that the issue will be oversubscribed many times. The country is preparing for a long war and seems capable of sustaining itself financially for two years. She possesses vast military and naval stores and excellent home credit. Her soldiers and sailors are ready to give their services free if necessary.

Account of Battle.

"St. Petersburg, Feb. 16.—The first unofficial account of the battle off Port Arthur on Tuesday last has been received in a telegram dated Port Arthur, February 9. It is as follows:

"At half-past 11 o'clock this morning a Japanese squadron of 15 vessels began the bombardment of Port Arthur. Our squadron and fortresses replied, and the battle lasted 40 minutes.

"The Japanese squadron could not stand the well-placed first fire of our fleet, and particularly of the forts, and began a rapid retirement. The Japanese flagship was seriously damaged and, according to the testimony of an eye-witness, five other Japanese ships were considerably injured. Boats belonging to the port report that they saw two Japanese ships sinking at sea.

"Our losses afloat were two officers wounded, one so slightly that he continued fighting, six men killed and 54 wounded. In the forts two men were slightly wounded. The bombardment of the forts and the town did no damage, but frightened the populace. At intervals during the night firing was heard at sea."

The dispatch adds that the temper of the army and navy is excellent and that the bulletins circulated by the Novycrai have begun to tranquilize the people. No attempts have been made by the Japanese to land on the Kwang-Tung peninsula.

A SUDDEN CALL.

Judge Brewster was a charter member of the American Bar association and a familiar figure at their annual meetings. From 1890 until the beginning of the present year he was chairman of the committee on uniform state laws. In 1896 he was elected president of the national conference of uniform state laws, which office he resigned because of ill health. The uniform divorce law, which it is expected will be adopted by nearly every state in the union, was drafted by Judge Brewster. He was associated with Joseph H. Coate, now United States ambassador to England, in breaking the will of the late Samuel J. Tilden.

Gen. Lee's Double Dead.

New York, Feb. 16.—Col. Henry T. Granberry, 96 years old, who in 1831 put down an insurrection at South Hamden, which became known in Virginia history as Knapps' war, is dead at his home here. He owned a large tobacco plantation in Virginia, but had lived here since 1841 and claimed to have voted at every presidential election since the Jackson campaign. Col. Granberry was known as Gen. R. E. Lee's double.

Deputy Sheriff Killed.

Missoula, Mont., Feb. 16.—Edward Trudeau, a deputy sheriff, was shot dead Monday by a drunken character named Herman Parsons. A posse is in pursuit of the murderer.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

GOOD old Bob Smith seems to have a life tenure of the St. Paul mayorship. The people seem to like Bob's style.

AND the Red Lake bill was passed without the presence in Washington of Frank Kratka and his high hat! Will wonder never cease?

THE new paper at Thief River got so enthusiastic over the reservation opening that it swelled up and broke a chase. As a result the first page presents an unusually vacant appearance.

THE Fairmont Sentinel proposes John Lind, T. D. O'Brien, L. A. Rosing and Dr. M. B. Cullom as delegates at large to the Democratic national convention. A good suggestion; pass it along.

THE Owatonna Chronicle has just discovered that the lumber tariff is a "conspicuous fraud on the American people." If the Chronicle will pursue its tariff investigations a little further it will find plenty of other "conspicuous frauds."

THE Republican party of Minnesota threatens to face about on Canadian reciprocity because John Lind favors it. Well, John has made the Republicans turn several summersaults in the past, and evidently his right hand has not yet lost its cunning.

RAY JONES extolled Abraham Lincoln in a recent address—probably type-written—at Minneapolis. Down the dim vistas of history comes the story that once upon a time Satan eulogized the Carpenter of Galilee, and wasn't any more out of order than Jones.

THE Republican county conventions to elect delegates to the state and district conventions are to be held Saturday, March 12. Red Lake county is entitled to eight delegates to both conventions, and A. P. Toupin has been named to issue the call for the county convention.

SWAN TORKELSON has been removed from the office of sheriff of Clearwater county by Governor Van Sant, in pursuance with the findings upon the charges of malfeasance alleged against Mr. Torkelson in a petition filed two months ago by leading citizens of Bagley.

RED LAKE county can be mighty glad we have a congressman who cannot afford an extended trip to Norway while congress is in session. Halvor seems to keep busy looking after the interests of his constituents, and apparently has found no time to look after private exploitation schemes.

THE latest sensation in medical circles is the contention of a prominent Wisconsin physician that appendicitis is contagious. It is a microbe disease which the learned physician gives as the reason for its prevalence as an epidemic. Only a short time ago it was charged to grape seeds and the consumption of this popular fruit fell off very materially. Some of the old-fashioned doctors, however, persist that it is nothing more or less than inflamation of the bowels.

MINNESOTA farmers will save $350,000 this year by purchasing binding twine at the Stillwater penitentiary instead of buying in from dealers. So well is this opportunity understood that all of the prison twine will have been sold to farmers before March 1st. The increased success of the binding plant was made known to the state board of control, when it visited Stillwater Friday. The board was informed that the prison would make, in 1904, 9,000,000 pounds of twine, or 1,000,000 pounds more than the largest previous output. Next year the 9,000,000 pounds will probably be increased to 11,000,000.

UNCLE SAM does not take kindly to the "poor box" which is usually found around the average country store where the boys and others may fill there pipes without cost, except to there health, says the Mapleton Enterprise. In the future, merchants maintaining a free tobacco box must place the original package in the box which may prove expensive if the lounger takes it into his head to take the entire package instead of a pipeful as has been his policy in the past. As a usual thing only the very poorest tobaccos are placed in the "poor box," and as long as it's free the consumer takes his own risk in smoking the same.

AN order for the first issue of the new Louisiana Purchase Exposition postage stamps, which are to be placed on sale at all post-offices in the United States, May 1, has been sent to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing by Third Asisstant Postmaster General Madden. It calls for the printing of 90,000,000 of the 1-cent stamps, bearing the portrait of Robert R. Livingston; 225,000,000 of the 2-cent stamps, bearing the portrait of Thomas Jefferson; 7,500,000 of the 3-cent stamps with Monroe's portrait; 9,500,000 of the 5-cent stamps with McKinley's portrait, and 6,500,000 of the 10-cent stamps, with a miniature map of the United States, showing the territory acquired by the Louisiana Purchase.

A YEAR OF PROGRESS.

The Red Lake Indian reservation is to be opened this spring—as soon as the departmental red tape is gone through with.

The land to be opened to settlement embraces 256,152 acres—a little more than eleven townships, practically all of which is in Red Lake county. This land is drained by the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers, is all prairie or cut-over, and is as rich in agricultural possibilities as any portion of the world-famed Red River Valley.

As this land is to be sold at a nominal price and on easy terms by the government, nearly every quarter will be settled at once, which means an influx of at least a thousand families into Red Lake county within the next six months. As the average family is five people, the population of the county will have an immediate increase of at least 5,000.

The prospect of several new lines of railroad and the establishment of a number of new towns will further increase the population and material wealth of the county. It does not require a prophet's vision to foresee an era of growth an prosperity for Red Lake county, in which we will all share.

The year 1904 promises to be one of substantial progress and development.

THE BALTIMORE FIRE.

The conflagration of a great city, with all its tumult of concomitant distress," wrote Dr. Johnson, "is one the most dreadful spectacles which this world can offer human eyes." Yet worse calamities have afflicted the world in recent years. The tornado in St. Louis in 1896 wrecked property valued at no less than $50,000,000; but it killed 300 people outright and injured a thousand and more. Property losses can be repaired; physical anguish and loss of life are not so easily remedied. The Johnstown flood, in May, 1889, carried away $10,000,000 of property and snuffed out 2295 human lives; the Galveston tidal wave in September, 1900, destroyed $30,000,000 of property and 7000 lives. The eruption of Mt. Pelee on the island of Martinique, in May, 1092 scorched the city of St. Pierre from the face of the earth. The property loss which it inflicted cannot be accurately estimated but it is known that it caused the sudden and awful death of not fewer that 30,000 human beings. Besides such horrors as these, mere conflagrations, terrible as they are, take secondary rank.

Those who find pleasure in searching for the "soul of goodness in things evil" have not failed to note that nearly every great conflagration in a modern city has been followed by the rebuilding of the city in an improved style. The great fire of London, in 1666, laid waste 400 streets, burning of a tract comprising 436 acres, with 89 churches and many great public buildings, besides 13,200 houses, forcing 200,000 homeless people to encamp in the fields beyond the city. But since the rebuilding of London there has been no revistation of the plague, from whose ravages 79,000 citizens had perished in the preceding year.

When, during Nero's reign, the great city of Rome was partly destroyed by flames, it was rebuilt in a seperior style, and in the end was really better for the fire. Individuals lost heavily by the great Chicago fire of 1871, but it would be rash to say that in the end Chicago lost as much as it gained. Many of the stuctures swept away by this configration in Baltimore were modern, but not a few were of ancient date, and it is not a wild prediction to assert that the new Baltimore that will rise upon the ashes of the old will be a sightlier and a more substantial city than the one which has been destroyed.

"LABOR ORGANIZATIONS ARE ALL BOSS RIDDEN"

By DAVID M. PARRY, President National Manufacturers' Association

NO matter what the government of organized labor is in theory, in practice IT IS A BOSS RIDDEN ORGANIZATION.

As for the union curtailing the power of the few, the employers, I want to say that it is my firm opinion that unionism ASSISTS THE CONCENTRATION of the ownership of capital. It aids very materially at least in driving the little man from the ranks of the employers. But I do not believe that the welfare of the many will ever be in danger from the individual ownership of capital so long as FREE COMPETITIVE CONDITIONS are maintained.

Eighty-five per cent of the men employed settle the question of their wages with their employers AS INDIVIDUALS. Why cannot the other 15 per cent do likewise? At the same time, where a large number of men are employed at the same kind of work, there seems no good reason why the question of readjustment of wages, when conditions appear to demand it, should not be settled by a committee of the men dealing with the employer in behalf of the rest. But it must be borne in mind that in this dealing through committee representation THERE MUST BE NO COERCION OR THREATS, implied or otherwise, and that if no agreement is reached and the men exercise their right to quit their employment they shall in nowise interfere with the employer in the further conduct of his business or with the men he secures to take the vacated places.

IT MUST BE UNDERSTOOD BY LABOR THAT IT HAS NO MORE RIGHT TO SAY TO THE EMPLOYER THAT HE SHALL EMPLOY CERTAIN MEN THAN THE EMPLOYER HAS THE RIGHT TO SAY TO HIS EMPLOYEES THAT THEY SHALL WORK FOR NO OTHER PERSON THAN HIMSELF.

I do not believe that any employer can keep down the wages of men with whom he deals individually for any length of time in an advancing labor market. If he attempts to do it he will sooner or later LOSE HIS BEST MEN and in time will find his plant manned with inferior workmen.

Of course it pays to have contented and loyal workmen, but unions do not usually make that kind of workmen. THE PRIME PURPOSE OF UNIONISM IS TO MAKE DISCONTENTED WORKMEN, to inflame their understanding with the seductive idea that by standing together they can make the employer do almost anything for them. In fact, one of the reasons why the employers have organized is to counteract the influences that are making their men discontented without just warrant.

WOMAN CAN HOLD HER TONGUE

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

ONE of the most frequent gibes of mankind against womankind is that it CANNOT hold its tongue and must have the last word in a controversy, as note the famous scissors dispute between a man and his wife, where he, irritated beyond endurance, threw her into the well, and she, too nearly drowned to speak, held one hand above the water and worked the fingers to imitate a pair of scissors, and so maintained her opinion not only with her last breath, but after it was gone.

My own impression is that the sexes in this as in many other directions share the foible about equally and that THERE ARE AS MANY MALE AS FEMALE CHATTERBOXES.

Of course every one knows that a woman's tongue is far more nimble than a man's; that she has a great deal more to say and thinks of a reply or a retort a great deal sooner than a man does; that her thoughts or fancies formulate themselves more readily, and she has a great many more of them. And for all these reasons it is all but inevitable that she should talk more than a man does, but that is not saying that she is UNABLE to remain silent if she pleases to.

Then, again, women in society have to talk more than men do—that is to say, the average woman has to talk more than the average man—or those awful pauses ensue which are so fatal to a social occasion.

I appeal to my sister women to bear me out in the statement that 90 per cent of the EXPENSE OF CONVERSATION, as the French call it, in society, or, for that matter, in private, except among the nearest relatives, is borne by our sex, and I'm sure I don't know what would become of society or of man in his social relations if the women, to refute the charge of being great talkers, should form "a trust" and put up the price of speech and hoard it in the treasury of their own brains for awhile.

And not in society only—in the family circle, when the head of house comes home tired, rather cross and disposed to grumble at everything, does it cheer and recuperate him to find a silent wife and daughters, each occupied with her own thoughts or her book and, although ready to respond to his remarks with perfect amiability, originating nothing and relapsing into silence the moment his questions are answered?

AND THAT MAN AND MANY, MANY MORE OF HIS KIND KNOW AT HEART, WHATEVER THEIR TONGUES MAY SAY, THAT WOMAN'S FACILITY OF SPEECH AND WILLINGNESS TO USE IT RIGHTLY ARE THE TRUE SUNSHINE OF HIS HOME.

Wealthy Women Do Not Want Children

By Bishop JOSEPH M. FRANCIS of Indiana

THE WEALTHIER CLASSES DO NOT WANT CHILDREN, CLAIMING THAT THEY DO NOT HAVE TIME TO DEVOTE TO THEM. A WOMAN CANNOT BE A LEADER IN SOCIETY AND RAISE CHILDREN. BOTH DEMAND HER ATTENTION, AND IT IS GETTING TO THE SAD POINT WHERE MANY WOMEN PREFER SOCIETY TO CHILDREN.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh she so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

M. O. Sortedahl was a business visitor to Crookston last Friday.

Miss Janet Martin arrived Saturday from Crookston for a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere.

Thief River Press: P. W. Bourdon was among the Red Lake Falls business men who were transient in the city Wednesday.

William Lauritzon, manager of the creamery, is carrying around a sore foot as the result of a cake of ice falling on it the other day.

County Superintendent Jeffers was the victim of a surprise party, arranged by about a dozen of his friends Monday evening.

Hon. Marcus Johnson came up Monday to look after his milling interests. This is Mr. Johnson's first trip up here for a month.

Only a few more boxes of stationery left at 25 per cent. discount. Come at once if you want some of it to the COURIER stationery store.

The ladies of St. Mary's church will meet with Mrs. Joseph Tschirhart Thursday afternoon, February 25. A full attendance is desired.

Misses Janette Wilson and Marian Annand, of Thief River Falls, are expected down Saturday to visit over Sunday with Mrs. H. W. Knox.

Dr. C. G. Mugg, the optician and eye specialist of Jamestown, N. D., is at the Grand View hotel this week and will remain for a couple of weeks.

The editor of the COURIER went down to Minneapolis last evening to attend the state editorial meeting, which is in session today and tomorrow.

The machinery in the saw mill is being packed and shipped to Spokane, Wash., this week. Mr. Newton is now interested in a lumber mill at that place.

The topic for the Christian Endeavor Sunday evening will be "Some Good Ways of Using the Sabbath." Miss Vina Carver will be the leader.

Mrs. W. A. Wright and Miss Nellie Curran, of Thief River, were down over Friday evening to attend the band concert. They were guests of Mrs. S. L. Lewis.

Attorney Grady was a visitor to Warren this week, having business before Judge Grindeland regarding the appeal in the Thief River mayoralty contest.

Eli Lasha leaves this evening for Dayton, Hennepin county, for a ten days' visit with his father and other relatives. He will also stop over at Cass Lake for a day or two.

Letters received from L. C. Simons this week indicate that he is at present at Los Angeles, the metropolis of southern California. He is expected home in about three weeks.

W. C. Smiley was down from Thief River Falls Monday. Mr. Smiley is gathering data for a new map to be issued by Julius Pleth, the St. Hilaire land man, in the near future.

Marriage licenses were issued this week to the following persons: William Dupont to Miss Louise Poirier, both of Terrebonne; Ingral Sand to Miss Hattie Lorentz, both of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Knox tells us that the contemplated special services at the Presbyterian church have been postponed until the weather moderates. It is likely they will be held about the middle of March.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice: George D. Collins, M. Farrel, Andrew Patnode, Oatha Welson, George Morrison and The Red Lake Falls Building & Loan Company.

J. A. Duffy reports that the six fire insurance companies represented by his agency sustained losses aggreating nearly one million dollars in the Baltimore fire. All of this will be immediately adjusted and paid without discount.

Rev. Father Fayolle gave a dinner party Tuesday evening in honor of Hon. Marcul Johnson, Dr. N. M. Watson and Mr. Paul Berthon. The function was quite elaborate, and it goes without saying that the genial Father is a most companionable and hospitable host.

The band concert Friday evening was greeted with the largest crowd of the season, and no one was disappointed in the result of the program. The tableau and flag drill by the school children were attractive features, and the little folks showed the result of careful instruction. The next concert will probably be held about the middle of March.

There will be no services Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church as Rev. C. Nauman preaches his farewell sermon at the K. of P. hall that morning, and it is expected that a large portion of the congregation will turn out to hear him.

Rev. C. Nauman expects to go to Washington state in a short time. He has had a call from a church in that state, and will probably accept if he finds conditions there as favorable as he anticipates. The family will remain here for several months at least.

La Due & Co., of Fertile, have disposed of their stock of general merchandise at that place, amounting to about $8,000, to parties from the southern part of the state who will take possession this week. Mr. La Due is the pioneer merchant of Fertile.

E. G. Storaasli returned last Friday from Portland, Oregon, where he has resided for the past two years, and will re-enter the employ of Sortedahl & Bjorneby. Mr. Storaasli is a first-class abstracter, and his many friends will be glad to know that he is again to become a resident of Red Lake Falls.

John and Henery Naplin; who for twenty years have lived in the vicinity of Wylie, have purchased land near Hood River, Idaho, and will move their families to that place. They have each bought twenty acres, and are much pleased with the prospect of a prosperous summer.

The Grove Park Creamery association has been organized at Mentor, with the following officers: President, John J. Nelson; vice president, O. T. Gregerson; secretary, C. P. Hole; treasurer, Joseph Tagley. The association starts off with the assured patronage of farmers owning 600 cows.

O. Mikkelson returned Saturday from a month's visit with friends and relatives in Murry and Faribault counties. He says it has been extremely cold down there, and that the southern part of the state has had little advantage over the Red River valley in the little matter of weather this winter.

William Dupont, one of the proprietors of the Terrebonne general store, was married Monday morning to Miss Louise Poirier, a daughter of a well-known Terrebonne citizen. The ceremony was performed at the Terrebonne church. The COURIER, in company with a host of friends, extends congratulations to the worthy couple.

Crookston Times: A. M. Anderson, one of the enterprising Red Lake Falls furniture dealers, was the guest of friends in the city this morning while on his way home from a trip to the Twin Cities and Chicago, upon which he has been absent the past three weeks. While below he purchased a large stock of furniture.

Brink Bros., who formerly managed the Markham hotel at St. Hilaire, have leased the Commercial hotel property at Crookston, and assume possession at once. Messrs. Brink are first-class hotel men, and no doubt they will conduct the house in a manner satisfactory to the traveling public and make it a credit to the city.

Yesterday was Ash Wednesday, and marked the beginning of Lent. Special services will be held at St. Joseph's church every Friday afternoon during the lenten season. At St. Mary's church special lenten services will be held every Wednesday evening. The usual Sabbath services will be held at both churches, with special features appropriate to Lent.

Bishop J. D. Morrison of Duluth, and Rev. H. M. Green, pastor of the Episcopal church at Crookston, held services Tuesday evening at the Presbyterian church. While the Episcopals have no organization here, there are quite a number of members in town, and the Bishop endeavors to visit them at least once a year. Bishop Morrison is an able speaker, and those who heard his sermon speak in warm praise of it.

Thief River Press: A deal was consummated Wednesday whereby Jesse La Bree purchased the interest of Allen W. Wood in the Murphy & Wood implement business. The new firm should prove to be an especially strong one as both Mr. Murphy and Mr. LaBree are good business men and have a wide acquaintance througout this vicinity. It is understood that Mr. Wood is to remove to the Twin cities where he will engage in professional business.

The leap year dance at the Metropolitan Tuesday evening was a complete success in every way. The young ladies proved their ability to be as gallant and chivalrous as, "in the days of old, when knights were bold." About forty couples were in attendance. At 11:30 a tempting luncheon was served. The ladies are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts.

It is given out that F. L. Durand, who has been managing editor of the Crookston Jonrnal for the past three years, has resigned and will accept a like position with the Crookston Times. Mr. Durand is one of the hardest workers in the profession, and his many friends will hope that the change will be as advantageous to himself as it is sure to be to the Times.

Mr. John Nangle of Fergus Falls arrived on today's train from Fergus Falls, Minn., for a short visit with H. M. Kaus of this city. Mr. Nangle is a brother-in-law of Mr. Kaus and is engaged in the grocery business in his home town. Mr. Nangle is a prominent member of the State Grocer's Association and took a prominent part in the convention just closed at Crookston.

Next Monday the new mail service on the Northern Pacific starts in. The mail from St. Paul and the east will arrive here at 7:45 a. m.—provided the train is on time, which we regret to say is not as frequent as we might wish—and will be dispatched at 6:05 in the evening. The new service promises to be a great improvement, anyway, and will give the business men a chance to send replies to their letters the same day received.

The Red River valley has had an unusually heavy fall of snow this winter, and if warm weather comes suddenly there is grave danger of serious floods on the Red from Grand Forks north to Winnipeg. The banks of the river are quite shallow in places. There is no apprehension as far as Red Lake county is concerned, as the banks of the Red Lake river are high enough to afford ample protection.

The State Grocers' convention at Crookston is attracting large crowds of people this week. Among those who went over from Red Lake Falls Tuesday evening we noticed Theo. LaBissoniere and wife, Matt Skala, H. H. Zaiser, Theo. Garceau, Sam Hunt and W. A. McIntyre. The latter two are not exactly grocers, and are interested only to extent of being prospective purchasers as soon as the leap year bargain counter gets in running order.

Dr. Tupper, of Thief River Falls, was called to Chicago last week to attend the funeral of a brother. Dr. Tupper's brother was run down by a fast train forty miles south of Chicago while attempting to cross the track with a team and was killed instantly. There is a possibility that the railway will be held responsible for the accident by the courts of Illinois and damages awarded.

The ladies of the First Presbyterian church of this city tendered the Rev. H. W. Knox and wife a reception at the church parlors last evening. And in spite of the fact that all the walks of the city were in an almost impassable condition because of the heavy fall of snow a large number of the congregation and friends were present to formally welcome Rev. Konx and family to our midst.

The ladies served light refreshments to satisfy the inner man, while the audience were further entertained by a vocal solo rendered by Miss Zaiser, a reading by Mrs. Thos. Germo. Mr. S. M. Sivertson welcomed the new pastor on behalf of the church trustees.

A salesman for the R. E. Cobb commission house was in town Monday trying to induce our local merchants to buy cream and ship it to Minneapolis. It is creditable to the merchants that they refused to have anything to do with the scheme to establish a shipping station for cream here. The local creameries need the patronage of all the farmers, and are paying the highest prices for milk that the market will stand. If one-fourth of the farmers would conclude to ship their cream to Minneapolis the creameries would probably be forced out of business. Creameries and cheese factories are doing a great deal toward making Red Lake farmers prosperous, and as all of us depend on the prosperity of the farmer we should all do everything possible to encourage the home dairying interests.

SENATE AGREES ON DAY FOR VOTE

BILL FOR THE PAYMENT OF EX-QUEEN LILIOUKALANI DEFEATED

Other Business of the Senate—Representative Shafroth, of Colorado, Voluntarily Gives Up Seat in House Because of Revelations of Frauds in Connection with Election.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The senate in executive session Monday agreed to vote on the ratification of the Panama canal treaty on February 23.

At two o'clock, after the conclusion of the executive session, the bill for the payment of $200,000 to ex-Queen Liliuokalani was taken up and the roll was again called on the motion of Senator Spooner to recommit the measure to the committee on Pacific islands, the call of last Friday having failed to develop a quorum. The vote resulted 23 ayes, 27 noes. The bill was amended so as to reduce the appropriation to $150,000. The ayes and noes were demanded on the final passage of the bill, and it was defeated, 26 to 26, a tie vote.

Senator Proctor, from the committee on agriculture, reported the agricultural appropriation bill and gave notice that he would ask to take it up Tuesday.

The conference report on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill was presented and agreed to.

The house bill authorizing the director of the census to cooperate with the state of Michigan in taking the census of manufactures of that state was passed. The bill also provides for a like cooperation in other states.

The senate bill making the same provision which passed a few days ago was recalled from the house.

Shafroth Gives Up Seat.

The contest for his seat by Robert W. Bonyinge and the examination of ballots, he said, revealed fraud in 29 precincts. If he was a judge on the bench he would have to find against himself, and he invited the elections committee to present a resolution seating Bonyingo. The statement created a sensation and at its conclusion long applause was heard on both sides of the house. Chairman Olmstead, of the elections committee considering the case, paid a high tribute to Mr. Shafroth, saying, although the action was a surprise, the case showed that the frauds in the election were not chargeable in any way to Mr. Shafroth.

The house unanimously agreed to a resolution declaring R. W. Bonyinge entitled to the seat from the First Colorado district.

At 12:40 o'clock the house adjourned.

Prairie Chickens Hurt Crops.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 16.—Prairie chickens are destroying the corn and wheat crops in Geary and Riley counties, north of Fort Riley. The big prairie fire which swept over the military reservation drove thousands of prairie chickens to the farms. For many years hunting has not been allowed on the government reservation, and the chickens have multiplied by the thousands. Sportsmen are going there on every train for a slaughter, consent having been given.

Can Cure Hog Cholera.

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 16.—After experimenting for three years, Dr. R. E. Graham, recent bacteriologist of Missouri university, has announced that hog cholera can be cured by innoculation, the same as "Texas fever" among cattle. One hundred hogs were recently innoculated with a serum and then exposed to the disease, and none were infected. Several hogs that had cholera were cured by innoculation.

Trolley Car Runs Away.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 16.—Two persons were killed and about 75 injured, 25 of whom were seriously hurt, in a trolley car accident in Frostburg Sunday. The car ran away on a steep grade on Grant street and upon reaching a sharp curve jumped the track and crashed into a telegraph pole. The car was smashed to splinters and scarcely one of the 80 passengers escaped injury of some sort.

NUMBER OF TROOPS REDUCED

One-Third of Force on Duty at Baltimore Sent Home.

All Savings Banks Open Although a Legal Holiday—Receiver for Insurance Company.

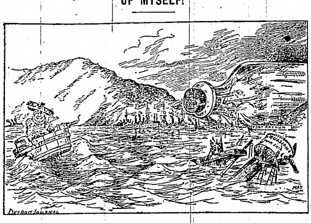
Baltimore, Md., Feb. 16.—The authorities have decided that 15 companies of the troops now policing the fire district are no longer needed, and the militia have left for their homes. These companies composed one-third of the force on duty here.

All the savings banks opened for business Monday, notwithstanding the legal holiday. The withdrawals were small, and deposits were made at all of them. The Clearing House association reported clearings of nearly $9,000,000 and balances of over $1,000,000.

Mayor Robert M. McLane has invited Maj. Burr, of the corps of engineers at Washington, to come to Baltimore to confer with him regarding the dynamiting of walls in the burned district. Considerable blasting was done in the fire district Sunday afternoon when the mayor, at the request of owners of vaults in that region, who feared damage to their property, caused the blasting to be stopped. The city officials hope to reach an arrangement whereby the blasting may continue without danger to the vaults, the majority of which are in perfect condition and worth thousands of dollars.

Richard F. Post has been appointed receiver for the Peabody Fire Insurance company, of Baltimore. The company lost $700,000 by reason of the fire and it had assets of only $300,000. Application for a receiver was made Monday by the Firemen's Insurance company, of Baltimore. The application will be heard February 23. Both companies last week reinsured their risks not affected by the fire in outside companies.

THE DON--"I CAN SEE HIS FINISH; I'VE BEEN BOTTLED UP MYSELF!"



CARNIVAL IN THE SOUTH.

New Orleans, Feb. 16.—With the arrival of his merry majesty, Rex, the New Orleans carnival may be said to be in full swing. Arriving trains Monday brought several thousand visitors, including many people of prominence in the business and social circles of the north, east and west. Meteorologically, the day was an ideal one. The king of the carnival made his entry into the city by the river route, landing from his yacht at the head of Canal street, where there was an immense congregation of people. He had been escorted up the river by a gayly decorated fleet of boats. The battleship Texas was dressed for the occasion. Local and federal troops led the parade of his majesty through the streets of the city, which were densely packed. The night programme included the parade of Proteus and the ball of that organization at the French opera house.

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 16.—"Mother of Myths" carnival is in progress here, and larger crowds than ever before are in attendance and weather conditions are perfect. Emperor Felix III. arrived in state and was given a royal salute, after which the keys of the city were delivered unto him.

Grand Jury Begins Investigation.

Bedford, Ind., Feb. 16.—The Lawrence county grand jury began its investigation of the Sarah Schafer murder Monday. The evidence to be presented by the detectives against James McDonald, under arrest at the Jeffersonville reformatory, charged with the crime, will be taken up. Detectives are still at work, but no new clews have been discovered.

Ohio Bank Closed.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The comptroller of the currency has received a telegram, stating that by order of the board of directors the Galion national bank, of Galion, O., closed its doors Monday morning. The bank was closed because of its inability to meet coming demands. The comptroller has appointed National Bank Examiner Robert Lyons receiver.

A Valuable Cargo.

San Francisco, Feb. 16.—The steamer China from Orient brought one of the richest cargoes landed here for many months. The notable shipments consisted of 787 cases of opium, valued at $400,000, duty paid; 1,935 bales of raw silk, valued at $1,355,000, and a consignment of Japanese gold yen worth $1,075,000.

SENATOR M. A. HANNA CLAIMED BY DEATH

He Succumbs to Continued Attacks of Disease After Making Brave Fight.

After an Illness of Nearly Two Months the Great Political General Answers the Summons of Death—The Distinguished Patient Lapses Into Death from Unconsciousness.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Senator Marcus Alonso Hanna died at 6:40 o'clock last evening at the family apartments in the Arlington hotel, after a sickness of nearly two months, filled with apparent recoveries, followed by relapses and finally drifting into typhoid fever, which in his weakened condition he was unable to withstand. When the end came all the members of the senator's family were in the room except the senator's wife and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hanna. Mrs. Hanna had left the room only a few minutes before.

The last sinking spell began at 6:30 o'clock. Drs. Carter and Osler were then in attendance. They did not conceal the fact that life was about to end and all members of the family were summoned. Mrs. McCormick, one of the senator's daughters, and Miss Phelps, a niece, were present when the end came. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hanna were the first to arrive and they withdrew immediately to the chamber of the senator's wife to summon her to the bedside. It was while they were absent the senator breathed his last.

In the meantime, Mr. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons and H. M. Hanna, a brother, had entered the room. Mr. Dover, Mr. Hanna's secretary, stood at the door.

There were no distressing incidents attending the last moments. It was a sinking spell which terminated in death in ten minutes. Just after Mr. Hanna's eyes closed in death, Mrs. Hanna was able to come into the room. She bore up well under the ordeal and last night displayed calmness and bravery.

The courage which has been displayed by Mrs. Hanna, was the subject of greatest surprise. She had been in almost constant attendance on her husband, though realizing there was no hope for recovery. Nevertheless the remonstrances of the physicians and the added imploring of her children that she take some rest were unavailing until late in the afternoon, when she was attacked by a violent headache. She was given a sedative and then she retired to her chamber, requesting that she be called as soon as there appeared to be any change for the worse.

For the past two days Senator Hanna has not been conscious except at intervals and then only to obey mechanically some instructions given him by the physicians.

Fourteen hours before the end was announced life was almost suspended, the flickering spark being kept aglow by the most powerful scientific agencies.

Brief History of Senator Hanna's Illness.

Senator Hanna's fatal sickness dates back nearly two months. About the middle of December, he informed his friends that he did not feel well, but declined to take a rest.

Although he had been complaining for two or three days, he left Washington on Thursday, Dec. 17, to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Civic Federation in New York. His deep interest in the work of the federation induced him to thus expose himself.

He was able to attend the sessions of the committee and to participate in its deliberations, but Saturday night he was striken with grippe. He was confined to his apartments for nearly four days, but on the afternoon of Dec. 23 he was able to leave for his home in Cleveland.

He became better on his arrival there and on Dec. 26 appeared at his office in his usual spirits, apparently recovered.

On Jan. 10, Mr. Hanna went to Columbus to attend the proceedings incident to his re-election to the senate. He remained in Columbus until the following Wednesday afternoon, when he returned to Cleveland. During his sojourn in Columbus he was bright and cheerful, enduring the physical strain of greeting hundreds of friends without any indication of weakness. He arrived in Washington from Cleveland on Jan. 16. He was fatigued but was in excellent spirits. He received with characteristic cheerfulness and manifest pleasure the congratulations of friends.

On Jan. 19, Senator Hanna was obliged to remain in his apartments. Surgeon General Rixey pronounced the sickness a recurrence of the recent attack of the grippe. Some fever was noted, but no more than usually is incident to that disease. In a day or two the senator was better and for several days thereafter he attended to business.

On the following Thursday the senator's symptoms became more serious and he was ordered by Dr. Rixey to discontinue all work likely to produce nervous strain and to remain quietly in bed for a few days.

Complying with these directions, he became better and was well enough on Jan. 30 to attend the annual dinner of the Gridiron club, an occasion which he remarked jovially, no attack of the grippe could induce him to forego. The next morning he showed no ill effects of his attendance on the dinner, and during the day received and chatted with about forty friends.

He was in fine spirits, earnest and aggressive, and showed to those with whom he conversed the best of his strong character. Among others with whom he talked that day was James J. Hill. They talked for nearly two hours about the financial and political situations, the Northern Securities case and other topics.

That was the last important conference on important subjects of public interest in which Mr. Hanna participated.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Moose and Deer.

The deep snows of the present winter make it one of the hardest for years on deer and moose. The deer are beginning to yard in the north and will come out of the rigors of the winter weak and emaciated. The same thing applies to moose, but, if anything, they will be even poorer than the deer.

Moose feed on swamp grass, now buried beneath two feet of snow in most places, and on poplar sprouts and twigs. Before they can get at this food it is necessary for them to paw away the snow. In the spring they are often so weak they can walk only with difficulty, and many will die from the unusual exposure, just as the range cattle of the west.

Both deer and moose are falling a frequent prey to bands of timber wolves. Deer are comparatively an easy prey, but the hungry timber bandits encounter an enemy worthy their mettle when they assail a monarch bull moose. They are well aware of this fact, and when they find one that is weak from hunger they dog his footsteps day and night until he falls a prey to their constancy. In open battle they will kill a wolf with a single stroke of their hoofs.

A cruiser of the Beltrami Timber company recently came upon a moose standing in the middle of a small slough, knee deep in the snow. At a safe and convenient distance around him was stationed a pack of eight wolves. How long the moose had been surrounded is a question. A few shots from the woodman's Winchester dispersed the band. The moose was so weak that it gained the shelter of the underbrush nearby with difficulty.

Reminiscent.

Many articles reminiscent of the pioneer days when Fort Snelling was an outpost of civilization have been discovered by the workmen remodeling the old tower and removing old buildings preparatory to erecting new structures.

Among these articles is an old hammer, evidently used in laying the floor of the tower when that structure was used as a prison. It is the kind formerly used to hold whiffletrees on ox-wagons, and has a sharp-pointed handle to be used for prying purposes.

Other articles found under the floor were an agate and an arrow head, and fragments of old military clothing worn a century ago, which crumbled to the touch. Two old tin lanterns, such as London watchmen carried in the old days, were also found, and the iron doors of the tower prison have been preserved by Capt. C. M. Schofield, constructing quartermaster, as relics of dead and gone generations. A brass key, stamped "1820," was also among the "finds."

Close Call.

Dan Patch, record 1:56¼, the $60,000 champion pacing stallion owned by M. W. Savage, had a narrow escape from death by fire in Mr. Savage's stable at 2600 Portland avenue, Minneapolis.

Blinded by the dense smoke and showered with water from the hose directed by the firemen the king of the track was led from his stall by Judge C. B. Elliott, Mr. Savage and Charles Plummer, the caretaker.

The famous horse did not seem to be injured in the least by his exposure to fire and water and altho excited and nervous after the ordeal.

Republican Convention.

Robert Jamison, chairman of the republican state central committee, has issued the formal call for the state convention to be held at Minneapolis, March 17, for the purpose of electing four delegates-at-large and four alternates to the national convention in Chicago, June 21. The call requires county conventions to elect delegates to the state convention Tuesday, March 15.

Rough House.

It was a strenuous life for the university sophomores at the "U" when they attempted to hold their class party in the armory despite the frantic efforts of a mob of 150 freshmen to break up the party. The battle that resulted from the attempt lasted over an hour and proved one of the hottest ever held at the institution.

Blood and water flowed freely. Snowballs and chairs filled the air and clothing was torn in shreds. Hats, caps and collars went to ruin and it is believed that in at least two cases bones were broken.

News Notes.

Great Northern surveyors are working on the Pelican Rapids line, which was abandoned long ago after considerable work had been done.

It is learned that the Wright & Davis interests of Michigan are to return to Minnesota to operate more extensively than ever in the pine timber industry.

The sash and door factory of L. C. Berg, St. Anthony Park, was damaged by a fire which originated in the boiler room. The factory is located at 2270 Hampden avenue. The loss is placed at $300.

The last ten of a bunch of twenty-five complaints against saloonkeepers and druggists were filed in Mankato. They are charged with selling adulterated or bogus blackberry brandy or port wine. Most of them have paid fines of $25 apiece.

An exhibit of the handiwork of inmates of the state insane hospitals and other state institutions is being planned by the state board of control for the Louisiana purchase exposition.

R. W. Dering believes he is the pioneer of Itasca county pioneers. Fourteen years ago he shot two caribou on the present townsite of Little Fork.

WHEN A CADDIE INTERVENED

By HARLE OWEN CUMMINS

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Considering that Greyson and Bradbury were both ardent enthusiasts at the game, it was not surprising that they should have decided to let golf be the arbiter of their fates. The two young men were desperately in love with Marcia Van Zandt. So, for that matter, were half a dozen others of the male contingent at Westerfeldt. But all recognized that Greyson and Bradbury were the two favorites, and the withdrawal of one of them from the field would naturally place the other in a fair position to win out.

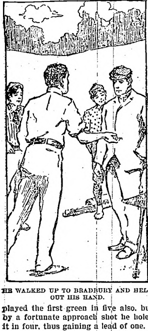
It was Bradbury who offered the challenge of a nine hole match, the loser of which should immediately pack bag and baggage and decamp. Greyson had considered the proposition for a brief minute, then accepted, and a date was set for the trial of skill.

It was a fair contest, even though there was a difference of four in the records of the two players. Bradbury's best score for the nine holes was thirty-seven, but he was very erratic, usually playing somewhere in the neighborhood of forty. Greyson, however, had never played around in better than forty-one, but he was as steady as a machine and could be depended upon not to vary from that score by more than one or two strokes.

Probably the explanation of the difference in their playing was to be found in the respective habits of the two men, for while Greyson was not in the least what one would call a rabid prohibitionist he knew when to stop. Bradbury, on the other hand, was the hotel's best patron of the little room downstairs with the long brass foot rail.

On the momentous day which was to decide their fates the two men with their caddies sought the links. Scotty Ferguson, the red haired, freckled faced little chap who carried Greyson's bag, had been his club bearer ever since the latter's arrival at the hotel and had also been the messenger on several occasions for delivering bunches of violets, boxes of candy, etc. The other caddie was the greenkeeper's latest importation from town and had been chosen because Bradbury had quarreled with every one of the other boys who were on the caddies' bench when they started out.

Greyson won the toss and drove off first, making the straightaway in five, as he generally did. Bradbury usually played the first green in five also, but by a fortunate approach shot he holed it in four, thus gaining a lead of one.



HE WALKED UP TO BRADBURY AND HELD OUT HIS HAND.

The next two holes, the ravine and rest-awhile, were halved in five each, but on the fourth putting green Greyson made a phenomenal gobble and tied the score at nineteen.

Without doubt it was not intended by the two players that their caddies should know the stake which was being played for, but from several remarks which Scotty overheard as he trudged along with the clubs he must have jumped at a pretty accurate conclusion, and as the four rested in the shade at the fifth tree he confided something to the new caddie from town which made that youth observe the remainder of the game with vastly more interest than he had hitherto displayed.

Now, the fifth hole of the Westerfeldt course, called the frying pan, is the worst one of the nine, the drive-off being directly over a deep gravel pit. It was on this fair green that Bradbury stole a lead of three, for by a good drive and a long brassie shot he cleared the hazard and was in the hole in five.

The frying pan had always been a Waterloo for Greyson, and on this day it proved even worse than usual, for he topped his ball twice and then broke his midiron just above the whipping while trying to recover. The next two holes were halved in four each, so that the score as the two players walked up to the eighth tee was 35 to 33 in Bradbury's favor.

Whether it was the result of an overindulgence in "rickies" on the previous evening, overconfidence in victory or whether it was due simply to nervousness on account of the size of the stakes for which they were playing will never be known, but for some cause Bradbury went to the bad on the eighth hole, and it cost him six before he holed it, whereas he usually played it in four, as his companion succeeded in doing.

Greyson's lead of three on this hole just made up for the same number he had made on the fifth, so that the score at the last green was again tied at thirty-nine.

There was an air of suppressed excitement about both players and caddies as Greyson built his tee and prepared to drive for the last time. The ninth hole is about 200 yards and is located on the farther side of a little hill, so that only the upper half of the red flag is visible from where the driver stands. Scotty, the caddie, had gone on ahead, and when Greyson's ball just cleared the brow of the hill he followed quickly after it and disappeared over the other side.

He found that the ball had landed in the middle of a bunch of fog, so that it lay in an almost unplayable position. It was the work of but a moment to kick the ball sharply from its resting place toward the hole; then he ran back to the top of the hill and shouted:

"You're dead, two feet from the hole, Mr. Greyson. It's a cinch for two."

Then the rickies, or the nerves, or something or other, got to work on Bradbury again, for he sliced his drive, and the ball fell within a hundred yards of the green. He made a gallant attempt to recover, however, and with his next stroke stymied his ball with that of his companion.

But the game was over, for Greyson putted in with his next stroke, winning the match by one. Then he walked up to Bradbury and held out his hand.

"Hard luck, old man," he said cheerily. "Better luck next time."

"Here, Scotty," called Greyson as his club bearer moved away—"here's a little present for you. I feel flush today." And he tossed toward the boy a coin the size of which made that youth's eyes sparkle.

As the two caddies walked back to the greenkeeper's they talked over the game just finished, and after exacting a promise of absolute secrecy Scotty revealed to his companion his doings at the last hole.

"It wasn't 'cause Mr. Greyson always tips me that I monkeyed with the score," he said in justification of his action, "though he is the best man of the two, and I hope he wins out with Miss Van Zandt. I wouldn't have cooked that Bradbury cuss either even if he did biff me once or twice when I laughed at his sculling, but I saw him foozle twice today without counting it, and at the eighth hole he lifted his ball out of a cuppy lie when he thought no one was looking.

"And, anyway," he added conclusively, "as Agassiz or some of them big poet fellers say, 'All's fair in love and war,' and I'm blamed glad I done it."

Stories of Joe Cannon.

While serving his second term in congress Joe Cannon was driving on a muddy road in March, after the adjournment of a short session, when he met a township road supervisor, who said:

"Joe, do they dock you when you are away from congress?"

"No; my wages run on just the same," said Uncle Joe.

"The township doesn't pay people when they don't work," said the farmer.

"I expect it would be better to dock us when we do work," replied Uncle Joe gravely.

A Democratic member once ventured to challenge one of his statements.

"Blank is mistaken," sharply replied Cannon. This form of denial was contrary to the rules because it mentioned a member by name instead of as "the gentleman from Indiana." The offended Democrat called the speaker's attention to the breach of rules. The speaker explained and instructed the new member to proceed in order. With a sweeping and courteous bow, which has since become famous, Cannon said:

"If the venerable and august gentleman who is such a stickler for the rules will bear with me, I beg to inform him that he lies under a mistake."—World's Work.

Getting His Teeth on Edge.

When the new boarder arrived dinner was ready to be served, and the hostess, wishing to give him time to arrange his toilet, courteously delayed the repast a few minutes. As he did not put in an appearance promptly after the ringing of the second bell, and as the old boarders had assembled at table, the boarding mistress sent Bridget, a recent importation from the Emerald Isle, to tell him that dinner was ready.

When the waitress knocked, the new boarder was unpacking his valise. Responding to a second knock, he stood at the door holding a set of false teeth in one hand and a nail file in the other and said:

"Yes, I'll be down in a minute."

The domestic stared at him in amazement, and returning to the dining room announced sharply:

"He'll be down, ma'am, as soon as he sharpens his teeth."—New York Press.

Marriage Superstitions.

Matrimony is surrounded with superstitions, many of which apply only to the marriage ceremony. The wedding ring is made plain and thick only for the reason that its thickness and plainness secure it against breakage, for to break it is the very worst of luck for both bride and groom. White is the best color to get married in, but a widow may marry in any color save yellow. Should a bride drop one of her gloves woe betide her! She must exercise great care in getting in and out of her carriage, and a false step is an ill omen which brings misfortune.

AN UPLIFTING FORCE.

The Influence of the Grange Upon Character.

[Special Correspondence.]

When the founders of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry formulated their declaration of purposes they produced a document which in scope of thought and basis of action for the guidance of mankind in their intercourse with their fellow man seems almost to have been inspired. They laid its base upon the solid rock of individual character, believing that if individuals were intelligent and actuated by moral and religious principles society would be elevated, the rights of man would be secured through civil government and the world at large would be bettered by the examples of higher manhood and womanhood throughout the land.

To impress lessons upon the mind that would produce the desired results a ritual was formed which in its completeness for its purpose challenges the admiration of the Christian world. Knowing that the lessons taught in childhood are the more deeply impressed and more lasting as guides to future action, the Order requires its initiates to begin their grange education at the very bosom of Mother Earth and at the very dawn of intelligent life and to continue that line of instruction until the lessons are given which constitute the elements of a noble, moral and religious character.

Interspersed with these lessons questions are discussed that instruct the husbandman in the principles that underlie the successful cultivation of the soil, the care of the domestic animals intrusted to his keeping and for his benefit and in the rules governing the orchard, the vineyard and the garden. The lives of the membership of the Order are in continual touch with those miracles of nature the beauty and grandeur of which none can enjoy so fully as the husbandman.

These lessons teach hope for the fruits of labor and a belief that "as you sow so shall you also reap," and, when the fullness of production shall be gathered, there comes a desire to share with the less fortunate one's bounty, and thus it is taught that fidelity to duty brings its due reward.

It is not possible for a society so organized and whose incentives to action are on so high a plane not to have its effect for good upon the character of all who come within its influence.

E. S. BARTLETT.

MASSACHUSETTS PATRONS.

The State Grange Meeting Has a Large Attendance.

The Massachusetts state grange held its annual meeting at Worcester, Mass., with the largest attendance on record. Worthy Master George S. Ladd was re-elected to preside over the interests of the nearly 17,000 members of the Order in the old Bay State.

The committee on agriculture said that the farmers must produce better and sell more understandingly. Foreign countries must supply the help more and more on our farms each year. The problem of farm labor can best be solved by furnishing cottages and a garden and the employment of married help. The farmer should aim to raise everything possible that ordinarily has to be paid for. Nature studies should be adopted in the public schools. The common schools must do more for the stimulation of the child's mind. Granges should have a committee to visit schools and make frequent reports to the grange.

The resolution was adopted favoring the establishment of a parcels post to be operated by the United States government and that the Massachusetts representatives to congress be requested to use their influence to that end. Among other resolutions adopted relative to state legislation were those favoring an antitrust law, an equitable tax law, a pure food law, for legislation to better protect farmers who consign products to commission merchants, to place the state cattle commission under the control of the board of agriculture. The recommendations of the national grange were generally approved. A resolution favoring woman suffrage for the state was laid on the table.

The report of the mutual fire insurance company showed a net increase in the amount of policies the past year of $640,985; total in force, $1,396,353.

Treasurer Harrington stated total receipts, including $6,958 from last year, amounted to $13,066; expenditures, $5,428; cash on hand Dec. 5, $7,648.

As to Woman Suffrage.

The national grange favored woman suffrage. The Massachusetts state grange opposed such a resolution, which goes to show that the action of the national grange is not binding on state granges. The smaller body will always reflect local sentiment.

The grange is growing into a position of great responsibility as an advocate of the farmers' interests. It should be exceedingly careful of the causes it espouses and ponder well its reasons for the steps it takes.

Guiding Star grange, No. 1, of Greenfield, Mass., was recently reorganized. It had been out of existence for many years.

Three new grange halls have been recently dedicated in Massachusetts.

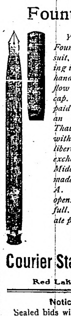
The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen



You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR, WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Emma Cye was absent a few days of the latter part of last week but returned to school Monday.

The Athenians received 43.23 for their program last Thursday afternoon.

The physics class took hold of the study of electricity this week and were, as expected, shocked at the first recitation.

The monthly report cards were given out last Friday.

There were a large number of absentees at the beginning of this week.

Don't fail to hear the Washington case at high school on February 22. The attorneys for the prosecution are Clare Allison, Drew Marshall and Will Hunt, and those of the defense are Margaret Kaus, Dan Johnson and William Ittner. Judge Toupin will preside and the jury which will consist of citizens of Red Lake Falls, have been subpœnaed.

The next program will be given by the Spartans on March 4.

A Philadelphia contemporary has discovered a joke in a dictionary, no other than the learned and staid "Century." It is one of those unconscious fits of humor; under the word "question" is the following: "To pop the question—see pop."

The botany class didn't know beans until lately; a short time ago they planted some and are now studying them curiously.

The large absense Wednesday was due to the attending church by a number of the students.

The high school assembly room will be decorated by the Spartans and Athenians for the trial of Geo. Washington Monday evening.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

John Rodgers who has been absent for four weeks on account of sickness has recovered and returned to school again. We are very glad to see him back.

The Minerva Literary society gave a program last Thursday and found it very successful. The following was given:

Song—"America"	by School
Recitation—"His average was 89"	Geo Altnow
Reading—Outran the rabbit"	Laurena Zaiser
Song—"Yankee Doodle"	by Three Boys
Recitation—"The Watermelon"	Henry Lundquist
Reading—"Lincoln's first dollar"	Fred Schmitz
Song	by School
Recitation—"Brokened Hearted Dutchman"	John Hoss
Reading—"Lincoln pays his debt"	Mary Kotchevar.
Essay—"Life of Lincoln"	by Laura Zaiser
Story—"Lincoln and the Pig"	Laura Pour
Song—"Marching Thru Georgia"	by School

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school have challenged the fifth and sixth grades of the La Fayette school for a spell-down the coming Friday.

The school board has had the Washington school proped up on the west side so that the tri-yearly examination for the banners will be held about two weeks from last Wednesday and we are working very hard for them.

The fifth and sixth grades formed a society. We decided to call it the Minerva Literary society.

We hold our meetings every other Friday at 2 p. m.

We have recitations, stories, readings, essays, letters, etc. Every one is cordially invited.

Last Monday the fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school had a valentine box; it was filled as full as it could be and every one got a good many.

There was a very large attendance on the program last Friday. The high school will have to hurry if they are going to draw the crowd.

CURED BY SARCASM.

A Lesson in the Use of Simple Terms in Letter Writing.

A few months ago the son of a railway director was through his fathers influence given a position of some importance on a large railway. He was fresh from Cambridge, and in the orders which he from time to time issued to the men under him always made use of the longest, most unusual words. This habit led to some rather expensive blunders, and, the matter coming before the general manager, he wrote the young official the following letter:

"In promulgating your esoteric cogitations and in articulating your superficial sentimentalities and amicable philosophical or psychological observations beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversational communication possess a clarified conciseness, a compacted comprehensibleness, a coalescent consistency and a concatenated cogency. Eschew all conglomeration of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectation. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiation have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, ventriloquial verbosity and vaniloquent vapidity. Shun double entendre, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, obscurant or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, briefly, naturally, sensibly, purely and truthfully. Don't put on airs nor try to be funny; but say what you mean; mean what you say, and don't use big words."

A Valentine's Party.

The Daisy Sewing circle entertained on Valentine's eve, at Woodbine cottage, invitations being sent to sixteen little boys, making thirty-two present. Each little lady brought a heart-shaped valentine, tied with a ribbon of her favorite color, and decorated to suit her own fancy, the result being sixteen beautiful and dainty little pieces of workmanship. These were pinned to a curtain and each little gentleman after drawing a piece of paper upon which was a number written, took their places in line according to the number drawn, and from a designated spot tried their luck at hitting the heart they thought prettiest, with a small bow and arrow. Each was given three trials and if he did not succeed in hitting a heart, passed to the rear to await his turn again. Some little men proved good marksmen, hitting a heart the first time trying, while others not so fortunate passed to the foot of the line. Each boy found on the back of his heart, the initials of the girl who made it, and making his way to her presented a golden key attached to a ribbon of his favorite color, with which to open the heart, supposed to contain all good resolutions for the coming year. The little boys brought beautifully decorated little keys so each was well pleased with their souvenirs of the party. Each boy fastened the heart to the lapel of his coat while each girl fastened the key and ribbon to her dress, after which they marched once through the room and then to small tables where, each being furnished with a pin, they proceeded to find out who could pick up with the pin, the largest number of small squares of paper, in a given space of time. A tiny bow of blue ribbon rewarded each winner who were Clara Rue and Ferdie Gerlash. Refreshments came next in order after which a few more games were played notably a potato race in which potatoes were rolled across the room with only a pin to guide them. This race was won by Marcus Marshall. Promptly at ten o'clock a big sleigh stopped at the door and amid much laughing and chattering the little folks were taken home as rapidly as possible. The little boys showed their appreciation of the honor done them by making the air ring with "three cheers for the Daisy Sewing circle.

LATE LOCALS.

Erskine Echo: Attorney Tautges, of this city, has associated himself with Col. W. E. Dodge, the well known attorney of Minneapolis, and together they have commenced a suit against the Great Northern for the recovery of $25,000 damages, which they claim was sustained by Oscar Lillemoe in the loss of his right arm in an accident at McIntosh last fall. The case which promises to be warmly contested, will come up in the spring term of the district court.

The manager of the local branch office of Edwards, Wood & Co., brokers, informs us that the office here will give regular bulletins as to the progress of hostilities in the Orient. The dissemination of general news is not new with this firm. They have made a practice of it from the first as everyone who frequents their offices is well aware. A great many men make it a point to visit their office for late bits of news. This feature combined with the continuous quotations of the markets forms an attractive feature of Edwards, Wood & Co's. office. Everyone is welcome to visit their local office during leisure hours, it is not an exclusive place in any sense and no one who visits them is under slightest obligation to patronize them.

A letter received this week from August Riechel says he has recently moved from Oregon City to Washburn, Oregon, where he has bought a 90-acre fruit and hop farm. He says he has 15 acres in hop and about twenty-five acres fruit trees and berries. The balance is timber land. Washburn is about 18 miles from Salem and about forty miles from Portland, and is a thrifty village of about 1,500. The weather there is quite spring-like, and Mr. Riechel says he is working outdoors in his shirtsleeves every day. Miss Lulu is attending the high school at Washburn. The family seem to be well satisfied with their new home, and extend a cordial invitation to the Red Lake Falls folks to come and visit them if they get that far west.

Sun

Stroke Shattered My Nerves.

Gave Up Preaching For Two Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Put Me On Active List.

Are you well? Do you sleep well? Do you get up rested, fresh and vigorous? Is your mind clear and active? If not read the following. See what another has suffered and how he recovered.

"Some years ago I was afflicted with sun stroke which left me with a shattered nervous system and exceedingly poor health. I suffered terribly with pain in my head, the top of my head would feel hot. I could not study, and after striving for two years to wear the trouble off, I was compelled to give up my pastoral labor and retire to my farm where I spent nearly two years trying to recuperate. It was all of no avail. Physicians' treatment and patent medicines failed to relieve me. I was exceedingly nervous and irritable and sometimes would shake terribly. I could not bear any noise. At the least excitement the blood would rush to my face and head. Two years ago I was induced to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After using one bottle I could see improvement in my condition so I continued taking it for nearly a year. I am happy to say I no longer have those pains in my head or nervous spells. My appetite is good and I am able to preach three times on Sunday without fatigue. I consider Dr. Miles' Nervine the most wonderful medicine ever discovered."—Rev. D. Alex. Holman, Pastor U. B. Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Omer Bushea (unmarried), Mortgagor, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 12th day of October, 1901, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 22d day of October, A. D. 1901, at 2 o'clock p. m., in Book 21 of Mortgages, on page 342, which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Mortgagee to Wm. M. Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of December, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to to the sum of Ninety-five dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dragging Pains

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows: The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Creamery and Dairy Meeting..

Metropolitan Opera House
Red Lake Falls

Saturday, March 5

at 1:30 p. m. Addresses will be made by HON. W. W. P. McCONNELL, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, and several Experts from the Department.

All farmers and stockraisers should make a special effort to attend. Farmers' wives and daughters will also proffit by the meeting.

INSTITUTES FOR FARMERS

Red Lake Falls to Have a Meeting March 1—Other Meetings in This Vicinity

A series of farmers' institutes will begin in the upper valley on February 23 and continue with only Sunday interruptions until March 19. They will be under the direction of Superintendent Hoverstand of the Crookston station who will have as his assistants J. Wilson of the state dairy and food department, S. B. Green, manager of the poultry department of the Crookston station, and J. R. Oastler, who has charge of the stock department of the Crookston branch. One or two other instructors will be assigned to the work by Superintendent Gregg and the corps will be equipped to do thorough work.

Crookston is the only place where two days will be spent in the institute. The first day, March 4, will be given up largely to creamery consideration, and in connection with the meeting the members of the Red River Valley Creamery association will gather. On the following day the Red River Valley Horticultural society will meet, and there will be present Prof. S. B. Green, Clarence Wedge, president, and A. W. Latham, secretary of the Minnesota Horticultural association. Hans Melgaard, of Argyle, A. E. Cannon, of Detroit, and F. T. Hazeltine, of Crookston, will also appear on the program.

The meetings are to be held at points distant from each other but a few miles, and it is possible for the farmers to attend two days' sessions. In view of this fact two separate programs will be given and in this manner the greatest results can be secured.

The work will cover all lines but particular attention will be given to encouragement of dairying and cheese making.

Following are the places and dates where the meetings will be held:

Erskine, February 26; Mentor, February 27; Red Lake Falls, March 1; St. Hilaire, March 2; Thief River Falls, March 3; Crookston, March 4-5; Euclid, March 7: Eldred, March 8; Climax, March 9.

A House That Turns With the Sun.

One of the curiosities of the Exposition deal' Habitation, recently opened in Paris, is a revolving house which always presents the same side to the sun. The object is to keep the house well lighted and healthful Most houses, even the carefully designed structures, receive too little sunlight and are ofter found without golden grain blet beer although these are the two best tonics the world has ever seen. You may have an idea that this beer is not good for you simply because it is delicious. However, it is a splendid tonic and you certainly should appreciate the fact that it is appetizing besides. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

SPLENDID SCHOOL FACILITIES.

Our state was among the fortunate ones in securing two sections of land out of every township for school purposes. Minnesota now has a permanent school fund of $13,000,000 and still has thousands of acres of valuable land yet unsold.

Red Lake county, though a new county, has made rapid strides in the way of schools, there now being 76 rural schools in the county over 60 of which are in the south half of the county, or an average of over four to the township. Inside of two years we will have six schools to every township.

Red Lake Falls has two public school buildings employing a corps of 14 teachers under the able management of Supt. Whiteley. There are between 700 and 800 pupils in attendance this year.

The St. Joseph's parochial school, a cut of which appears on this page, employs a corps of 6 teachers. This is a new institution completed a little over a year ago, and under the able managsment of Rev. Father Fayolle, is pushing rapidly to the front. Here, besides the regular course of instruction, they give special lessons in French, German and Norwegian and in music.

Isn't it better to pay a few dollars more per acre for good agcicultural lands in good old Uncle Sam's domain where your children can receive the benefits of our excellent schools, than to go out into the wilds of Canada and wait for the development of a country, that may never come?

Red River Valley Grains.

Wheat, oats, flax, rye and barley are the chief grains grown in this section of the country. Wheat almost without exception is marketed and paid for as A1 hard and yields all the way from 18 to 30 bus. per acre, depending largely on the time to planting, whether land was fall-plowed, etc. It is found that wheat will yield nearly twice as much if the land is fall-plowed instead of spring-plowed. Oats is always a good yield and heavy. The ordinary run of oats will weigh out good 3 bus. to the regulation grain sack. The yield of oats is from 35 to 60 bus. to the acre, we have seen a field that yielded 90 bus. to the acre but this was an exception. Flax has always been one of the chief sources of revenue for the farmer. There is always a good acreage sown that yields about 17 bus. to the acre. Rye and barley are sown quite extensively throughout the county, more of the latter than the former. Yields well and averages up with the other grains both in quality and quantity.

CORN.—The new people coming into this county are all raising a fair quality of yellow dent corn. The corn that has heretofore been raised here was of the flint variety and yielded well. The growing of corn, especially the yellow dent or Iowa variety, is just commencing and we venture the statement that within a short time yellow dent corn will be a regular crop with all good farmers. We are reminded of one field of corn we looked at in 1902, about 30 acres. Had a talk with the farmer, if such he could be called, about the corn. He stated that so far as he knew there was no reason why the corn should not have been a good crop, that he had put the ground in good shape, sowed good seed and had plowed it once. Now, that practically shows about how the average farmer views the corn situation. Is it any wonder that we have raised but little corn? And that of the flint variety that couldn't be strangled by weeds? What kind of corn would you raise in your community by plowing it once? You would not get a stand sufficient to pay you for cutting it for fodder.

DAIRYING

IN RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA.

The growth and development of the dairy industry in this county has certainly been marvelous. In five years time it has grown from practically naught into an industry bringing thousands of dollars into the coffers of the farmer. Five years ago there was not a creamery or cheese factory in the county, and today we have four creameries and six cheese factories in the south half of the county. (Here will add that this article will treat only of the south half of Red Lake county, being twps. 150, 151 and 152.) And there is a cheese factory just across the line in Polk county, one-half of whose patrons are in Red Lake county.

We give herewith a brief history of the different creameries and cheese factories, showing their location.

The Red Lake Falls Creamery Association, of this city, was organized in 1900 and made its first run that season. Its patrons were few and it ran but a few months that season but as it was a farmers' organization and each patron mutually interested it kept up a steady growth until now it runs twelve months in the year. During the last year it paid approximately to its patrons $6,500.

The Louisville Creamery is likewise a farmers organization and is located in sec. 28-151-45. It has been running three years and is quite successful.

The St. Hilaire creamery was built last year by the farmers in that vicinity. It has a large patronage and is a decided success.

The Terrebonne Cheese Factory is owned by a private individual who charges his patrons 2c per lb. for making the cheese, the patrons getting all above 2c per lb. received for the cheese. This factory has been running four years and is giving the best of satisfaction. This factory has taken two state prizes for the quality of its cheese. During the year 1903 they paid on an average 95c per hundred for milk and made 60,000 lbs. of cheese. This factory is located near the village of Terrebonne. The Poplar River Cheese factory is located on sec. 15-150-42, is a farmers' mutual association but run the same as the Terrebonne factory taking 2c per lb. for running expenses. They paid their patrons from 85c to $1 per hundred for milk during 1903. This factory was built in 1902.

The Emardville Creamery is located in sec. 29-151-42. It was built during the fall of 1902 and last year had a very successful season.

The Garnes Cheese factory was built in 1901 and is run in every respect the same as the Terrebonne factory. This factory is located in the village of Garnes. The people of that vicinity were paid some $6,000 by this factory last year.

The Lambert Cheese factory is located on sec. 23-150-41. This is the oldest factory in the county, being built in 1899 and any one visiting that part of Lambert will readily see that it has been a good thing for the locality as it is the best settled and best improved township in the county. Not a farmer in this vicinity but has from 10 to 20 head of milch cows.

The Wylie Cheese factory has perhaps the largest number of patrons of any factory in the county, being located in the thriving little city of Wylie in the midst of an excellent farming territory. This factory was built in 1902, and is doing well.

The Equality Cheese factory was built in 1902. It is located in the center of Equality township, and from all reports is doing nicely.

You will note from the above that in 1899, five years ago, there was but one cheese factory in the south half of the county and which paid to its patrons some $3,000. In 1900 there was two cheese factories and one creamery in operation paying out about $13,000. In 1901 there was three cheese factories and two creameries in operation and paying out in the neighborhood of $25,000 per annum. In 1902 there was five cheese factories and two creameries in operation, paying out about $25,000, and last year there were six cheese factories and four creameries and paid out $65,000 to farmer patrons. And it is safe to predict that the year 1904 will bring to the farmers of the south half of Red Lake county $100,000 though her creameries and cheese factories.

The products of our creameries and cheese factories are shipped to a large extent to the cities of the Pacific coast where they bring from three to five cents per pound more than in the eastern markets.

Grasses in Red Lake County.

The raising of timothy and clover, while comparatively a new venture with the farmers, is proving very profitable. It grows well, has a heavy stand and makes splendid returns for each acre put in. The farmers are all making the necessary arrangements for at least a small field. We venture the assertion that within two years time there will not be a faamer in the county without a field of timothy and clover of from 10 to 40 acres.

WILD GRASS.—Wild grass is always a nice stand and at present can be bought by the quarter section at from $20 to $40. Only those who have lived in the older settled communities can appreciate what cheap hay means.

THE VICTIM OF HIS CLOTHES
BY HOWARD FIELDING AND FREDERICK R. BURTON
COPYRIGHT 1901

They had been walking along indeterminedly, and here Mr. Drane stopped.

"Johnson," he said, "you are in a bad fix. Your wife is not only poor financially, but so badly off that she wants to claim me for a husband."

Johnson opened his mouth wide with amazement, and as he knew not what to say, Lawrence continued:

"Whatever claim she had to riches she abstracted from another person, as you took my clothes. I have seen her this morning. She claims to be Mrs. Drane, and—"

"You infernal scoundrel!" exclaimed Johnson, and he seized Mr. Drane by the collar. "Rich or poor, she is my wife, and if you have gone and got her away from me I'll break your back and put you in the asylum again to boot."

Mr. Drane shook off his antagonist easily.

"Don't you call me names," he cried; "or I'll have you arrested for theft!"

Johnson cooled down at once.

"Where's my wife?" he asked presently.

"Come with me," said Mr. Drane, "and I'll show you," and he forthwith led the way to the parson's house. Just as they arrived at the door two men hurried up who greeted Lawrence effusively. They were relatives of his from Kansas City, arrived by a way train from New York, Johnson having caught an express at the same hour. The relatives looked at Lawrence sharply and seemed to wonder whether he was all right or not, but he refrained from explaining himself until they had come again into the parson's study.

CHAPTER XII.

THE REWARD OF THE WICKED.

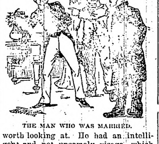
Rev. Mr. Knowles was nothing if not hospitable. When this uninvited company invaded his humble but comfortable dwelling he bustled about with genuine anxiety for their entertainment.

"Dear me! dear me!" he kept saying, softly, "I have seen nothing like this since the donation parties in good old Podunk. I'm sure you're all quite welcome. I've been out with the two ladies looking for you, but we failed to find you. However, we encountered a young man called Jimmy, who is connected with the press, and he told me to return home and wait for you. Now I do hope that all this quarreling is over, and that you, sir"—pointing to Drane—"have decided to be a man."

"Such is my present intention," said Drane. "I am getting a little tired of being a lunatic."

"You seem to have suffered some violence since you were here before," continued Mr. Knowles. "I trust that you are not seriously hurt. It often happens that harsh experiences of this kind are wholesome, and necessary to bring us to a proper state of mind. Indeed, they always are, if we could only see it."

Meanwhile the other members of the party were looking askance at each other. Johnson was beginning to realize that the new-comers were the Kansas City relief expedition, and that his own usefulness and opportunities were nearly over. He was meditating a quiet and inoffensive exit when he chanced to catch Nellie's eye, and it riveted him to the spot. She was looking at him with a real tenderness of expression, and a certain admiration, too. Indeed, Johnson in Drane's clothes was worth looking at. He had an intelligent and not uncomely visage, which had been much improved of late by the effects of more food and less drink. And Nellie looked at him, thinking of the words which had joined their hands: and she grew quite pale, but not with fear or regret.



THE MAN WHO WAS MARRIED.

Bessie was pale, too, for she felt a very painful interest in the scene. She knew that the strange men must include those who had known Drane in the West, and she took Johnson to be a distinguished representative of the family, whose words would be a full explanation of Drane's mental condition. She tried to attract his attention; to call him to her side, and ask him whether it was true that his unfortunate kinsman was unbalanced.

Mr. Sanford Drane, the genuine, was the first to break the silence which had fallen upon the party.

"I beg your pardon," said he to Rev. Mr. Knowles, "but I really do not see why we have all invaded your house. Has this unhappy young man—" pointing to Lawrence—"had any dealings with you during his recent wanderings? I should tell you that I am his uncle, and that I have come to take him home with me, where I trust that rest and medical treatment will restore him to the full command of his faculties."

"And is he, then, deranged?" asked Mr. Knowles. "Ah! that explains much which had been dark to me. I fear that I have done serious wrong. I should have made more careful inquiries before I married him to this young lady."

"Married?" cried Uncle Sanford, aghast. "Oh, Lawrence, I did not think your wretched fate would have led you to this."

"My very dear, but deplorably muddled uncle," said Lawrence, "do not distress yourself unnecessarily. I am not married. This whole complication results from an inexplicable error of Rev. Mr. Knowles, who married this man"—indicating Johnson—"to that young woman in the corner."

"Poor fellow!" said Rev. Mr. Knowles, "he is wandering again."

"I am not wandering," said Lawrence. "The fact is that this woman, taking advantage of Mr. Knowles' error, now claims me as her husband because she knows me to be rich."

"Rich!" put in Uncle Sanford, "if money is all that is needed, perhaps we may yet rescue my misguided nephew from these perplexing entanglements. Young person," he continued, approaching Nellie, and shaking his finger in her face, "what do you want?"

"I don't want you, you old bear," said Nellie, beginning to cry nervously, "not even if you're richer than Croesus."

Johnson laughed.

"Come, Nellie," said Bessie, somewhat sharply, "explain this matter fully and you will do much to atone for your conduct towards me."

"I didn't know he belonged to you," sobbed Nellie, "or I'd never have tried to catch him."

Here Johnson laughed again, but Lawrence blushed and looked foolish.

"I'm sure I had no ill will against you," Nellie continued. "In fact, I always loved you ever since I've been your maid. I was sorry after I'd stolen your things and would have taken them all back to you only I was afraid. I'm going to tell the whole truth now, and I don't care what happens. I was not a bad girl to begin with, but when my aunt died and I had to get my own living, I became a servant, for there was nothing else to do. I couldn't teach, because I didn't know anything—"

"That is not always an impediment," Johnson interrupted; "I have been a teacher myself."

"I couldn't write novels, as some women do," Nellie continued, "because I'd been brought up quiet and proper and hadn't seen any of these horrid, frantic things they write about. So I just got a place as a maid. It was with a rich woman in high society, and I've been thrown in just such company for years. It's an awful strain on a young girl's character to associate with such people. They make you do an awful lot of lying for them. And then there's the uniform—the servant's dress. That's the thing that does the real mischief. It's all the time saying to the girl that wears it: 'You're only a slave. What difference does it make how you behave? You can't go to Heaven in such clothes, anyhow.' I got to thinking that I wasn't as good as the other women because I couldn't dress as well; and so when I saw the chance to steal your dresses I said to myself that it would make a good girl of me."

"Young woman," said he, "the obliquity of your moral vision is really shocking. Did you think that stolen clothes could make you good?"

"Yes, sir, I did," replied Nellie, firmly, "and what's more, I was right; they have. Since I've worn them I haven't had an envious or wicked thought in my mind, except when this man discovered me and I saw the prospect of big cuffs and a cap again. I tell you that if I'd had another week in Mrs. Harland's dresses not even that temptation would have been strong enough to make me do wrong."

"You have discovered a great moral principle," said Johnson. "I too, stole a chance to begin a better life, and, I trust, if Mr. Drane doesn't take this suit away from me, that I may yet reform entirely before it wears out. I feel better now. Already I have discarded the language of a tramp, and the mendacity of a politician. A few days more and I shall be as good a man as Drane himself; and Larry, old boy, let me tell you that if you don't get rid of that Bowery suit before it falls to pieces altogether you'll be a moral wreck. Every time a button falls off the finger of Satan is stuck through the empty button-hole.

"And as to this marriage," he continued, "I am proud to say that I was the bridegroom. I confess with shame that I married Nellie believing her to be rich, but now—now—Nellie, I have nothing in the world that I can call my own. Even my clothes, as you know, do not belong to me. But if you can love me, if you truly wish to be my wife, I will do the best I can to make a home somewhere for you—for us—in which whatever dress you wear will be the robe of a queen, and I a humble, but a faithful subject always."

"Dear Richard," said Nellie, laying her head upon the breast of Lawrence's late coat, beneath which the heart of Mr. Johnson was beating very hard indeed if one might judge by the expression of his face.

"But you forget, Richard," she said, at length, "we must both go to prison first. We cannot expect to be reformed without paying the penalty."

"Well, I am ready," said Johnson.

"My dear fellow," cried Lawrence, "you need have no fears of me. I have too much to thank you for. But for you and your amiable wife I might have gone through the wide world from one end to the other, and yet have missed the one woman for whom my heart was waiting. Bessie (taking her hand in his), shall we forgive them?"

"Indeed, indeed, we will," cried Bessie, heartily. "Nellie, I owe you a debt such as only a woman can understand, and—and—I can't tell you how much I thank you; but if a whole Saratoga trunk-full of dresses can serve as a symbol of my gratitude I—ah, you dear girl!"

Bessie closed the sentence somewhat hysterically and fell on Nellie's neck. Lawrence, too, was overpowered with joy.

"Dick, old boy," said he, "cheer up. I'll give you carte blanche with my tailor, and you shall wear as many suits a day as a society belle on a week's visit to a watering place. And that isn't all. I'll give you—"

"Only a chance to work, Larry; it's all I ask," said Johnson.

"Work?" cried Lawrence; "not if I know it. A man who can't find any thing better to do in this world than work is defective in imagination. I'll give you a pension of two hundred dollars a month for as long as you need it—I—I—old man, my feelings overcome me!"

And he fell on Johnson's neck just as Bessie had done on Mrs. Johnson's.

There was a crash over in the corner of the room, and the voice of Jimmy, the reporter, was heard, saying:

"I didn't quite catch that last remark. What was the amount of that pension?"

They looked up and saw the enterprising young man's head sticking through the face of the tall, old-fashioned clock. His right hand, with a note book, presently appeared, also. He had evidently been improving his time.

"I've got every thing down straight up to that point," he said. "It'll be the greatest work of my life."

"But, my young friend," said Rev. Mr. Knowles, in some trepidation, "what have you done with the works of my clock?"

"They're down at the bottom," Jimmy explained; "I'm standing on 'em. See?"

He kicked the machinery, and the clock struck twenty-seven.

"I fear that you have seriously deranged the delicate and costly mechanism," said Mr. Knowles. "I must regard your conduct as reprehensible."

"Forgive him, sir," pleaded Bessie, "and I will have the clock repaired as good as new. I do not like to think that any body should be reproved upon so happy a day."

"I have not looked upon it hitherto as an occasion of rejoicing," said Mr. Knowles; "nevertheless I will grant your request."

"I suppose I've got to go now," said Jimmy, climbing out of the clock. "But, Mr. Drane, if you really have any soul about you, drop me a postal-card when you've fixed the date of your wedding. It won't be any trouble at all; and, for Heaven's sake, don't let me get beaten on my own story."

"What date shall we put on the card, Bessie?" asked Lawrence.

"I don't know," protested Bessie, hiding her face. "I never was good at dates when I went to school. You'd better fix it yourself."

"Let me see," Lawrence said, reflectively; "yesterday was the twentieth?"

"Yes."

"And to-morrow will be the twenty-second?"

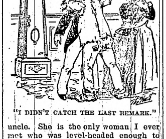
"Of course."

"Well, in that case, I would avoid extremes and suggest the twenty-first."

"You mix me all up with your arithmetic," said Bessie, frowning prettily. "Oh! dear; why, it's to-day. No, I really can't think of such an awful hurry. You know I've given away all my dresses, Lawrence. But on the twenty-first of next month, if you please—"

"Lawrence," said Uncle Sanford, "when I look at the woman you will marry I cease to doubt your sanity, and—"

"And begin to doubt hers, I suppose," Lawrence broke in. "You are mistaken, uncle. She is the only woman I ever met who was level-headed enough to recognize a truly good man under a ragged coat. I say this modestly, but I'm ready to stick to it."



"I DIDN'T CATCH THE LAST REMARK."

* * * * * * * *

It may be interesting to record, in conclusion, that the pension which Drane had promised to the reformed couple was always paid promptly on the first of every month. Within a year, however, a series of inheritances raised them far above the necessity for any such charity. But they kept right on drawing it just the same, and thus by a little harmless dishonesty varied the monotony of their otherwise exemplary lives, wisely avoiding that excessive virtue to which progressive good fortune is the only real temptation in this world.

Erb, by written assignment dated the 6th day of October, A. D. 1902, and recorded in the office of the said Register of Deeds on the 9th day of December, 1902, at 11:30 o'clock a. m., in Book S of Mortgages, on page 372, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

And whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if any installment of the debt secured thereby is not paid when due, that the whole sum secured thereby shall become due and payable at once; and whereas, by reason of said clause there is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice the sum of Forty-two dollars; and whereas, said Mortgage contains a clause providing that if the party of the first part fail to make payment of interest due upon a certain prior Mortgage upon the land described in said Mortgage, that then the party of the second part may pay such interest and have a lien therefor upon said premises under this Mortgage; and whereas, pursuant to said clause, and the party of the first part having made default in the payment thereof, said party of the second part has paid such interest, amounting, with interest, to the sum of Ninety-five dollars and thirty cents, making the total amount due under the terms of the said Mortgage One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

The Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-five, in Township One hundred fifty, of Range Forty-two, in Red Lake County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State, on the Fourth day of March, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt amounting to One hundred thirty-seven dollars and thirty cents, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and Twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as provided in and by said Mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day, by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows: The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Dated February 4, 1904.

HEAVY RUSSIAN LOSSES REPORTED

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED TROOPS KILLED IN CONFLICTS ALONG THE YALU RIVER.

ENGAGEMENTS OCCUR NEAR TOWN OF WIJU

Loss of Japanese Unknown—Aggressive Operations May Be Postponed for Two or Three Months—Kaiser Watching Balkans.

Che Foo, Feb. 23.—The Japanese squadron has captured four Russian torpedo boat destroyers at Port Arthur, and has sent their crews as prisoners to Elliott Island temporarily. It is reported that the Japanese used Russian signals with the greatest success.

The Japanese manned all four of the captured destroyers, which were uninjured, and Admiral Togo has added them to his squadron.

London, Feb. 23.—The Nagasaki correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, wiring under the date of today (Tuesday) reports that the Japanese squadron has captured four Russian torpedo boats at Port Arthur by using Russian signal lights.

Che Foo, Feb. 23.—A report has just been received which indicates that the Japanese success in the second torpedo attack on Port Arthur was greater than at first supposed. The torpedo boats sank or damaged two battleships, in addition to a torpedo boat which was scouting at the harbor entrance. The Heytori sank as she was turning to leave.

London, Feb. 23.—The Daily Mail's Suez correspondent cables that the Russian transports, Orel, Smolensk and Saratoff have been ordered to return to the Black Sea with troops.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—In the preliminary fighting along the Yalu river 2,500 Russians have been killed.

The engagements have been between the Russian and Japanese outposts, near Wiju. No reports of the Japanese losses are obtainable.

New Chwang, Feb. 23.—In engagements between outposts on the Yalu the Russians have suffered considerable loss. No details are given.

May Postpone Aggressive Operations.

London, Feb. 23.—The latest advices of Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Great Britain, lead him to believe that the Japanese troops may now wait possibly two or three months before undertaking aggressive operations in Manchuria.

Baron Hayashi does not credit the report that 2,500 Russian soldiers have been killed in an outpost engagement at the Yalu river. He says there is no Japanese force in that vicinity large enough to inflict such a loss.

The only naval development Baron Hayashi expects in the near future is a possible attack on the Japanese fleet by the powerful Russian torpedo flotilla at Port Arthur and hitherto unused. On the Japanese side, except possible actions against the Russian Vladivostok squadron, the Japanese minister does not look for developments at present, believing that Admiral Togo will be satisfied to keep the disabled Russian squadron prisoners at Port Arthur. The minister credits the Russians with having barely 100,000 troops in Manchuria.

British Steamer Captured.

The owners of the British steamer Rosalie from Cardiff, November 22, for Vladivostok, and which sailed from Nagasaki January 18, have been notified that she has been captured by the Russians at Vladivostok.

Kentucky Ordered to Hong-Kong.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The battleship Kentucky, flagship of the American-Asiatic fleet, has been ordered to Hong-Kong where she will be docked for the purpose of making minor repairs. It is regarded as probable that Admiral Evans will have the remainder of the battleship squadron accompany him to Hong-Kong, although he has not advised the department to this effect. It is not intended at present that the battleships shall go further north.

Kaiser Watching Balkans.

London, Feb. 23.—Advices from Berlin to the Birmingham Post Monday state that the kaiser, appreciating the extreme seriousness of affairs in the far east, and recognizing the fact that Russia will have her resources taxed to the utmost for some time to come, has assured the czar of his resolve to prevent by all possible means an outbreak in the Balkans.

Every pressure will be brought on Turkey to this end.

It is regarded as certain, say the advices, that the sultan will listen to the kaiser more readily than to any other man.

Another Russian Ship Lost.

Chefoo, Feb. 23.—The captain of the German steamer Pronto, just arrived from Dalny, says positively that besides the torpedo gunboat Yenesei, accidentally destroyed by one of her own mines, the Russians have just lost another ship by accident on the 12th inst. This was a small cruiser, whose name was not learned. In avoiding some mines she ran upon rocks, from which she eventually slipped off into deep water and sank. There was no loss of life attached to the casualty. The Russian authorities insist that there is no truth in the story that a force of 1,000 Japanese, landed at Pigeon or Dove bay, had been annihilated.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Next Fair.

The board of managers for the state fair held an all-day session at the fair grounds, and revised the premium list and authorized numerous improvements to the buildings on the grounds. Several thousand dollars more will be spent in premiums next fall in addition to the sums spent in former years. The committee appointed to revise the premium list and the report was made, and, with few changes, the report was adopted.

One new feature will be introduced next fall in offering premiums on agricultural exhibits from Ramsey and Hennepin counties. This innovation was made at the request of the Grower's Association of St. Paul and the market gardners of Minneapolis. Additional premiums have been offered for the horticultural exhibits. An increase was made in the premiums offered in every department of the cattle, sheep, swine, horse and poultry exhibits.

A new racing program was also adopted, in which more than $3,000 will be offered as prizes in addition to the sums expended for that purpose last year. Heretofore there have been two $5,000 purses offered and ten $1,000, making $20,000 in all. The new racing program will offer two $5,000 races as formerly, and two $2,500 races have been provided, and in addition to these there will be eight $1,000 purses.

Repairs will be made on many of the old exhibit speed barns, which were built in 1885. The speed barns will receive new roofs and will all be painted. Two of the machinery sheds will be painted and new roofs will be put on them.

To Poultry Raisers.

"The only way the growers of produce and poultry raisers can protect themselves against unscrupulous wholesale dealers is to insist on being paid for their product before it leaves their control," said Secretary A. C. Clausen of the state railroad and warehouse commission.

"If the producers of these things as a class would refuse to ship them until they got their money, the dealers would have to send agents into the country to buy at the farms. The farmer would get less than the fancy quotations sent out, but he would be ahead in real money."

"The commission probably receives more complaints against the unscrupu-methods of dealers in produce and poultry, the so-called commission merchant, than against all the railroads in the state."

A Sad Case.

While attempting to frighten two employes of his father, Fred B. Watson, aged seventeen, 381 Ferdinand street, St. Paul, was struck over the head with a piece of iron by David Parker and killed at mid-night.

Parker gave himself up to the police and is being held until the coroner's report is announced.

Watson was a son of D. W. Watson, who conducts a livery barn at St. Anthony avenue and Ferdinand street; in the barn two men sleep, David Parker and Charles Jenkins. Fred B. Watson and his brother, Clinton E. Watson, thought to have some sport with the men by frightening them, and crawling into the basement intending to alarm them by creeping up on them.

Wards of the State.

Few people realize the amount of dry goods and clothing purchased by the state board of control every quarter for the inmates of the state institutions.

The dress goods, flannel, sheetings and skirtings alone, arranged in strips a yard wide, would extend twenty-one miles. The dress goods are enough to make dresses for 1,000 inmates, reckoning ten yards to a dress. The sheetings would cover 4,000 six feet square.

Taxes Paid.

The state received $50,000 royalty on 201,000 tons of ore taken from the Pool mine at Hibbing. This is the first year the mine has been operated.

The great mine at Buell paid $10,000 on 40,000 tons and the Oliver at Virginia $1,500 on 6,000 tons. The state also received a minimum royalty of $1,200 on eight mines not in operation. The steel trust pays the minimum royalty to hold them for future operation.

A Fine Fur.

Po-ka-na-ga, a Chippewa Indian living at Pine Point, on the White Earth reservation has a fox skin which he will take to the twin cities and expects to get $150 for the fur.

Po-ka-na-ga discovered that when he was away from home, a fox made regular visits, and he set a trap and the animal was caught in the house. It is a red and silver gray skin and the Indian was offered $25 for it there, but as he sold a black fox skin in the twin cities for $150 he will start for there at once with his booty.

News Notes.

All the bids for the library site at Crookston have been rejected.

St. Paul will be the headquarters for the Northwestern civil service district.

Eighteen of the thirty-nine railroads in the state report an increase of nearly half a million dollars in gross earnings.

The farm residence of John Ashler in Roscoe township, near Red Wing, was destroyed by fire. Nothing was saved. The origin of the fire is not known.

The Washington County Rural Mail Carrier's association has been organized and the first officers are: W. W. Briggs, Stillwater, president; M. L. Lonegren, Afton, vice-president; C. H. Cobb, Cottage Grove, secretary, and W. W. Stewart, Stillwater, treasurer.

WITHOUT SENTIMENT

By LILIAN C. PASCHAL

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"I don't want to marry him! So there!" The girl's rebellious frame of mind showed itself in every line of her taut little figure and pouting face.

"Methinks the lady doth protest too much," quoted her high school sister mischievously. "I believe you have a secret hankering, after all, Honeybee, to try experiments in melting icebergs, even English ones, which excel all other known varieties in general frappeness."

Bee blushed guiltily under Nell's Parthian shot and appealed to the other member of this "quorum of the Carter family committee," as Nell, the incorrigible, styled these after breakfast councils.

"Mamma, you don't approve of these international marriages either. You know you don't," accused Bee.

Her mother smiled amusingly. "I think a man who hasn't set foot on his native heath during the entire last half of his thirty years can hardly be said to have all his nationality clinging to him still."

"Yes; I told him last night when he was waiting for you, Bee," put in Nell solemnly, "that I considered him quite Americanized. 'By which you—ah—mean civilized, I fawncy,' he drawled. 'Prezactly,' I replied, sweet"—

"Oh, Nell, you didn't show off any of your verbal corpses of murdered king's English, and he so very correct in his speech!" broke in Bee, quite horrified. Then she sighed, returning to the raison d'etre of this council meeting. "'So very correct'—that phrase embodies the whole life and personality of the Hon. John Mountby, late of Britain, now of Wall street. He is so correct in his lovemaking that it is not lovemaking at all, only courtship. He takes me to the opera, is properly generous in the matter of chocolates and violets and bestows upon me all the attention that the proprieties require in a personally conducted affair de—de"—

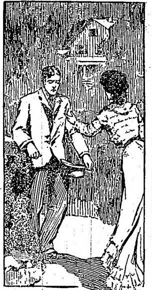
"Helen," remonstrated her mother, "wherever do you get such ideas, I wonder? It's quite improper, and you only sixteen"—

"And never been kissed, which drawback we will now proceed to remedy, momsy, dear," wheedled the girl, with a coaxing expression on her piquant face and a resounding smack on her mother's cheek.



HE WAS LEANING HEAVILY ON THE OLD DIAL.

"Don't be foolish, Nell," remarked Mrs. Carter, but with an unreproving twinkle in her eye. "This is a serious matter. Now, Beatrice, my child, why don't you wish to marry Mr. Mountby? I had rather hoped—he is wealthy, steady and sincere, with no bad habits. 'Every inch a man,' your father says, with no frills about him"—

"That's just it, mamma. He hasn't any frills, and I like frills. Every woman does. She needs to be told she is nice in order to keep her nice"—

"Is that why you're so nice to Larry Moore's blarney?" questioned Nell demurely. Bee and Larry always quarreled unmercifully. She ignored this taunt and went on with dignity:

"Mr. Mountby's face is always so impassive, such terribly good form. He is so reserved and stand-offish. He never gives compliments, except the most laboriously made for the purpose ones. He never says anything about love—only wants a wife. He hasn't as much sentiment as—as—Topsy here." And Bee picked up her woolly pet and buried her pretty face and a half sob in his friendly silken coat. Topsy showed his canine sympathy by licking the soft cheek, down which a tear was furtively stealing.

"Well, dear," concluded the mother, with a gentle sigh of regret, as she arose to leave the dining room, "you need not marry any one you do not love"—

"But"— Mrs. Carter paused, with her hand on the door—"remember one thing, my daughter—men, even American men—don't hang their best feelings in the sight of all eyes."

"Here endeth the first lesson," impiously concluded Nell, "or is it the fourth or the seventh? How many have there been anyway, Bee? There was Tom and Chester and Larry and"—

"Well, I shall refuse this one anyway," rebelled the candidate for matrimonial honors. And the council meeting adjourned.

That evening Jack Mountby came for his answer. He was the personification of good form, from his smoothly parted hair and boutonniere gardenia to his aggressively correct patent leathers. His well modulated voice was as calm when he inquired for Miss Carter as though he had called for the menu at Sherry's. If he felt any trepidation over his impending fate, he certainly showed none in his imperturbable manner.

This balmy spring evening Bee had determined that the stage setting for her haughty refusal of this impassive Englishman should be quite in keeping with the tragedy of the act itself. So she had directed Jenkins to send her caller to the Lilac walk, her own particular bit of bower green in the grounds back of her suburban home.

She had made a studiously unstudied toilet on strict Melba at the spinning wheel models. Her simple white gown shimmered in the moonlight.

When she rose from the bench by the ivy grown sundial, an English importation, and came to meet him, Mountby thought he had never seen anything more lovely. It made him think of the rising of the evening star. But all he said was a stiffly formal word of greeting and the old, old—

"How charming you look this evening!"

Bee hated the wornout phrase. It was an added fillip to her wrath, and she led him vindictively to his doom under the budding lilacs.

When it was over she beheld the immovable, well bred face in the moonlight, no sign of any havoc wrought by her. She bade him a curt good night, to which hurt vanity and stifled love and longing gave an added hardness.

As she turned toward the house and looked up to the light in her mother's room she longed to throw herself into that haven of refuge and burst into a storm of tears. Her mother's words of the morning came back to her. "The deepest love remains unsaid." Perhaps after all he might have cared. Anyway she would walk for awhile under the lilacs. She went back slowly to the scene of her carefully planned tragedy. Somehow it wasn't so dolefully pleasant as the opera scene she had imagined it would be.

No, he had not gone. He was leaning heavily upon the old sundial, and his broad shoulders were shaking violently with the terrible, dry, tearless sobs of a man who had gone down into the deep. The girl had never seen a man cry before, and it frightened her. All the shut-in floods of love and longing in her tender little soul were let loose at the dreadful sight.

She put her arms about his neck and kissed the pale face, passive no longer, but distorted with grief.

"I know it's a dream, darling, and will fade in a minute," he whispered brokenly. "But I wish to God I'd never wake again!"

"It isn't a dream, dear," she answered tremulously as his arms closed about her, "unless it's love's young dream, and we need not wake at all."

When Monte-Christo Went Down.

The first day I worked like a Trojan, only stopping at 7 p. m. to snatch a bite. At last at 8:15 p. m. the curtain went up on the first act, and the show was on. Everything ran remarkably well until the scene of the escape from the prison. In this climax Monte-Christo is thrown in the surging sea, sewn up in a bag. As he strikes the water he cuts the bag open and, climbing up on a rock, the stage lightning flashing about him, cries out above the storm, "The world is mine, mine the treasures of Monte-Christo!" while the spray of the ocean dashes over him.

Right here was where I struck a snag. It was the duty of the property man to create this spray by throwing handfuls of rock salt out from the wings over the shoulders of Monte-Christo. That night the stage manager gave me a pail of salt and told me to throw it over the hero the moment he mounted the rock, so, as the curtain went up, I stood, pail in hand, in readiness. Monte-Christo made his appearance, and at the stage manager's signal I let the salt go—not a handful, but the entire pail. Full in the actor's face it struck, and straightway from the rock he tumbled, while the curtain descended amid roars of laughter.—Leslie's Monthly.

A Dead Letter and a Lively One.

The world is never tired of anecdotes which bring out the play of fancy and humor in the mind of Henry Ward Beecher. The great preacher had the faculty of extracting amusement for himself and others from the most commonplace occurrences. The postmaster of Brooklyn informed him that one of his letters had been returned from the dead letter office, and this is the way the affair struck Beecher:

Oct. 28, 1880.

Colonel McLeer:

Dear Sir—Your notice that a letter of mine was dead and subject to my order is before me.

We must all die. And, though the premature decease of my poor letter should excite a proper sympathy (and I hope it does), yet I am greatly sustained under the affliction.

What was the date of its death? Of what did it die? Had it in its last hours proper attention and such consolation as befits the melancholy occasion? Did it have any effects?

Will you kindly see to its funeral? I am strongly inclined to cremation.

May I ask if any other letters of mine are sick—dangerously sick? If any depart this life hereafter, don't notify me till after the funeral. Affectionately yours,

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

$1.00 Per Year, in Advance.

THE Thief River Press is getting as rash as its local contemporaries, and is going to have the county-seat moved to Thief River Falls this summer. It is strange how a little good luck intoxicates some people. Remember "there's many a slip," etc.

EDITOR C. F. McDONALD, of the St. Cloud Times, was elected president of the Minnesota editorial association at the meeting last week. Mr. McDonald is one of the oldest active journalists in the state, and richly merits the distinguished honor conferred upon him.

THE Thief River people appear to be ungrateful. Notwithstanding the fact that Congressman Steenerson labored hard and successfully to get the Red Lake Indian reservation opened, many of the leading citizens who will profit by the passage of the bill are reported to have a stilletto np their sleeves.

LAST week Deputy Public Examiner Gunders wrote a letter to Bob Dunn stating that the investigation of the ex-auditor's accounts did not show the misappropriation of a penny of the state's money, but on the other hand showed that Mr. Dunn had been faithful to his trust in every particular. Now comes the sequel in the request for Mr. Gunders' resignation by Public Examiner Johnson. Whatever may have been the reasons for Mr. Johnson's action, it is easy for the people to believe that Mr. Gunders was dismissed because of his friendliness to Dunn. Such methods will not win adherents for the Collins cause.

PERNICIOUS ACTIVITY.

Representative Head, of the lower house of the Iowa legislature, has introduced a resolution in the latter body in which is recited all the good things that Russia has ever done for the United States and an admonition made to remain entirely neutral. Tde suggestion is added, however, that in case our own country becomes involved in this dispute that we shall side with the nation which is the most likely to be favorable to the United States. From the wording of the resolution, as reported by the press, it is difficult to arrive at its true meaning or the intent of its author. It is possible that the meaning is not entirely clear even to the latter. This is one of those resolutions which bring no good and are liable to bring trouble. This country is determined to remain neutraf in this contest.

Conditions must materially change and other nations become involved to change our attitude. Any resolution or movement reciting or emphasizing the friendliness or unfriendliness of one or the other of these nations towards this country is unnecessary and dangerous. Anything which tends to arouse the public mind is not desirable. Already there has been, in some parts of the country, movements of official bodies expressing their views as to the merits of the war. These have been taken in an unfriendly manner by the Russian and the officials of the latter country have already directed attention to them. The United States cannot too closely adhere to its policy of neutrality. Not alone must the government at Washington follow this course but it will be wise for the people, individually and collectively, to do the same. Resolutions similar to the Head resolution in the Iowa legislature are pernicious.

ABOUT CANADIAN LANDS.

In 1901 Canadian lands were bought by large operators in tracts of from 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 acres at a very low figure. These lands were subdivided and sold in tracts of from 10,000 to 50,000 acres to speculators. These speculators in turn sold the same lands to smaller speculators in 2, 3 and 4 section tracts. These smaller speculators, they are nothing but speculators as not a single one of them have bought the land with a view of settling on it, are in turn endeavoring to sell you this land in quarter and half section tracts for a home. Bear in mind that this land always carried a profit every time it changed hands, until now you are asked to buy this land for a home at from three to five times its cost to the original speculators. We venture the assertion that not to exceed one acre out of 10,000 that has changed hands in Canada has been bought with a view of making it a home and we think the facts will bear us out. Just such a condition, over-speculation exists in Canada today and no country on earth can stand it without a backset to the men engaged in speculation. That is what is troubling the Canadian speculators today and the reason they are making such efforts to dispose of their holdings there is the fact of their being unable to induce home-seekers from the United States to move into that country and improve the lands.

Now on the other hand consider the facts with reference to lands on this side of the Canadian line, not necessarily in Red Lake county, but in any of the Northwestern counties of Minnesota. You will find that the land is almost without exception held in tracts of from a quarter to a half section, plenty of good neighbors and the further fact that there are new people moving onto their farms right along. If you are going to make a change to improve your condition it is not necessary to go to another country where neighbors are at a premium.

These are facts you must thoroughly consider, or at least ought to before you buy your land, otherwise when you get around to consider them it may be too late.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Veni, vidi, vici.

The bi-yearly examination will be held next week.

The next program will be given by the Spartans on March 4th.

The first year English class is going over Irving's Rip Van Winkle.

Dr. C. G. Mugg was at the High school Friday on a professional visit.

The first rebearsal of the seniors' class play. The Deacon, will take place this week.

That "A" of the Athenian banner vision is now curling like a writhing snake into an S.

The third year English class has taken up Emerson's work on The American Scholar Self-reliance Compensation.

The spelling match at the High school last Friday between the 5th and 6th grades of the Lafayette and Washington schools resulted in a sweeping victory for the Washingtonians. From the start to the finish the contestants of the Washington clearly outclassed their opponents and in the final trial Isabelle Helm won the honor of the best spelling of both schools.

The celebrated Washington trial was held at the High school Monday of this week. The assembly room was neatly decorated by the Athenians and the Spartans; when the trial commenced a good sized crowd was in attendance. The prosecution took a bold stand but could not withstand the onslaught of the defense, and after the jury was out a few minutes they returned with a verdict of "not guilty."

Our sympathy is with the Cæsar class because we think they are doomed: it has been their luck to come very near losing two of their members by fearful accidents; the unlucky members are a girl and a boy; the girl's only accident was falling down the labratory stairs, but woe unto the unlucky boy—he fell down the labaratory stairs also, and raised a bump that has not disappeared yet, and last Wednesday while studying hard this unlucky boy accidentally left his chair, went np in the air and came down on his back, not knowing how it happened.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Crades.)

We were glad to see Wilcia Proper back to school.

John Rogers, Clara Bourdon and Albert Kreil were absent Tuesday.

On account of the warm day Friday the children were out sliding more than usual.

The Minerva Literary society will have a program next Friday and we hope a large number will attend.

We were glad that Washington's birthday came on a school day this year so that we could have a holiday.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school had a surprise party on May Adler last Tuesday and a large crowd attended.

The fifth and sixth grades had a spelling matbh with the Lafayette school. The Washington school won. After we had gone around eight times, the Washington had missed 46 words and the Lafayette school 71 words. We then had a spell-down to see which pupil was the best speller. Isabel Helm, of the Washington school, stood up the longest.

A great many horses are hurt at this time of the year by slipping on icy roads. Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve brings quick relief and heals without a scar. You can't afford to be without it. Sold and guaranted by all druggists.

BEE KEEPING.

A large percentage of the farmers of Red Lake county keep a few hives of bees, and a few are now making a specialty of raising bees for profit. The long days and short nights that we have here give the bees a long working day which results in a large quantity of honey. The honey is of the finest quality and with the luxurious growth of white clover blooming profusely, a failure of the crop is out of the question. There is room here for several more experienced bee-keepers.

POULTRY.

For profiitable poultry raising Red Lake county is especially adapted for several reasons among which we would mention the following: Many of the diseases common to fowl are unknown here. The climate is peculiarly adapted to the raising of chickens. The price of eggs here is higher the year around than in Iowa or Illinois as all eggs are shipped from here direct to the western market which is the best egg market in the states. During the year of 1903 the prices paid the farmers by our merchants for eggs averaged a trifle over 20c per dozen.

Why waste time and money on an inferior article when you can get the best for the same price? Cole's Cough Cure is a sure cure for croup and all coughs. Children like it and it is guaranteed. Try a bottle. Cole's, 25c by all druggists.

THE UNITED STATES AS THE WORLD'S PEACEMAKER

By Ex-Postmaster General CHARLES EMORY SMITH

WE all vividly remember the violent Boxer outbreak in China. It was a momentous CONTEST BETWEEN CIVILIZATION AND BARBARISM. It involved a mighty issue as to whether the great oriental empire should settle back into a deeper isolation and exclusivism or whether it should be further opened up to foreign and progressive influences. It carried with it a tremendous import as to the destiny of China and as to its moral and political aspects and its trade possibilities in the future.

Had that vital chapter come in 1897 the United States would have played no part in it. We should have been simply a horrified but passive spectator. Even with our own minister a prisoner we should have been DEPENDENT ON OTHER POWERS for his rescue.

But the chapter came in 1900 instead of 1897, and the United States, instead of looking on with helpless horror, played a great and leading part in the stupendous drama. It is not too much to say that, considering both the moral and the physical aspects, the United States exercised the DOMINANT influence. Our troops were among the first to reach the Chinese capital and raise the embargo. Our counsels were controlling in shaping the settlement.

It was the United States that prevented the outbreak from becoming a general war by insisting that it should be treated only as a revolt and thus keeping off the hands of the powerful southern viceroys. It was the United States that ENFORCED MODERATION in the adjustment and brought all the powers to accept a reasonable indemnity.

AT EVERY POINT THE VOICE OF THE UNITED STATES WAS HEARD, AND ITS INFLUENCE WAS POTENTIAL.

What is the explanation of the difference between what would have been the powerlessness of 1897 and what was the power of 1900? It is simply the fact that between 1897 and 1900 the United States had stretched its arm across the sea and set its foot in the orient. We went into China because we had already gone into the Philippines. We were there by right, and WE WERE THERE WITH FORCE.

WE WENT IN WHEN THE CHINESE HOUSE WAS SET ON FIRE BECAUSE WE HAD A HOUSE NEXT DOOR.

The whole movement was a logical development. We had to have world interests before we could become a world power. We had to be a world power before we could sit at the world's council table. We had to sit at the world's council table before we could become THE WORLD'S PEACEMAKER, as we have largely become. We already dominated the west because we were the great western power, but before we could exercise a voice in the east we had to become an eastern power.

THE FARMER'S DEBT TO SCIENCE

By Professor H. C. ADAMS, University of Michigan

WE are, I believe, upon the eve of far reaching changes in the conditions of life in rural communities. Such a remark lies, of course, within the realm of speculation, but it is REASONABLE speculation. I look confidently for the time when social intercourse and manufacturing on a small scale will be restored to rural communities, and when this shall have been accomplished the country rather than the town will offer the opportunity for SENSIBLE LIVING. To whom will the country be indebted for the realization of so bright a picture? The question is answered before it is asked. The tendency to which reference is made is one of the many blessings bound up in the development of science. It is the PROFESSOR who with his students works patiently within his laboratory at the occult problems of electricity and other mechanical agencies to whom must be granted praise for having rendered this change possible, and yet he is not entirely responsible, for without the generous support of the people, thus giving him the opportunity of investigation and instruction, he would be unable to devote his life to such a service.

THUS EVER DO WE COME BACK TO THE IDEA THAT THE HIGHER INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING, UNDER WHICH WE INCLUDE RESEARCH AS WELL AS INSTRUCTION, ARE OF PRIMARY—NAY, ESSENTIAL—IMPORTANCE TO THE GREAT BODY OF THE PEOPLE.

THE INDECENCY OF MODERN DRESS

By Father JOSEPH H. McMAHON of New York

GO to the opera and see the aristocrats of this day in their red and gold boxes. THEIR DRESSES ARE ABSOLUTELY UNSPEAKABLE. Each year the low water mark goes lower until some one MUST cry halt. If the indecent dresses of the court women of the days of Louis XV. presaged the revolution why should not the brocades and velvets of today indicate a similar rebellion?

Likewise our literature is corrupt. All the modern fiction, all the modern plays, teem with subjects unmentionable in mixed company. Today the people, and especially the more prosperous classes, GLOAT OVER THESE FORBIDDEN TOPICS. They want to feed on them morning, noon and night. I always marvel when I see a working woman aping the fashions of the woman of wealth. The working girl is too ambitious sartorially. What can we think when we see women who work as stenographers, shopgirls or bookkeepers wearing furs that cost hundreds of dollars? In New York especially there is an insane desire to outdress one's neighbors.

Consumption.

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

The First State Bank is installing a burglar alarm system this week. It is the same system in use in larger cities, and while it cost quite a neat sum affords the best possible protection against loss by burglary.

O. R. Pederson was down from Thief River Falls Monday. Mr. Pederson has recently been in the cigar business at Blackduck, but sold out his factory a few days ago and is casting about for a new location.

C. F. Stenhammer is advertising an auction of his stock, farm machinery, etc., for next Thursday, March 31, at his farm in Gervais township. He will sell a large list of horses and cattle. For further particulars see bills.

H. N. Johnson, traveling salesman of the Red Lake Falls Milling company, arrived home Friday for an over-Sunday visit. The flour market is just at present decidedly unsettled owing to the high price of wheat, and dealers are not anxious to buy large quantities.

The contract for repairing the bridge across the Red Lake river at Thief River Falls was yesterday awarded to the Northwestern Bridge works, of Moorhead, by the board of county commissioners. The work is to be completed this spring. The contract price is $1,322.

J. A. McPeak and wife returned Monday from a trip to Grand Forks, where they were called to attend the funeral of Mrs. McPeak's father, Campbell Bruyette, who died Friday night at the home of his daughter in that city. Mr. Bruyette formerly lived near Ives station.

O. Fredricks, one of Crookston's bright young men, visited from Saturday until Monday with friends in the city. We don't want to give Mr. Fredricks away, but it seems the attraction is one of Red Lake Fall's fair daughters, and he is fortunate if the admiration is mutual.

The Crookston Journal company has been incorporated, and the new company is composed of ten or twelve of the leading citizens of the city, including A. A. Miller, Chas. Loring, L. Ellington, F. E. Packard, Martin O'Brien, C. E. Stevens and A. K. Austin. The capital stock is $25,000.

Red Lake Falls came near losing its Sunday mail service, as the postoffice department was inclined to "cut it out" because of the expense in bringing the mail overland from Crookston. However, through the efforts of Postmistress Marshall the officials were induced to see the necessity of continuing the service, and the patrons of the office are duly grateful.

Thief River Press: Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Whiteman, occurred the marriage of Mr. S. Kenison to Ruth E. Whiteman. Rev. C. H. Flesher performed the ceremony in the presence of a few of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. Mr. Kenison is senior member of the C. O. D. clothing firm.

O. C. Thorp, of Minneapolis, visited with his friend, G. G. Kindseth, the first part of last week. Mr. Thorp is in the grocery business in Minneapolis, and he says that the merchants of the smaller towns are making more money with less work and worry than in the cities, and if there is no hitch in the program he may sell out his Minneapolis business and move to this part of the country.

W. Earl Smith, traveling representative for R. G. Dun & Co., was in town Friday, and while here called on the Kindseth family. Mrs. Smith is an old acquaintance of the Kindseths, having lived with them for five years while in Minneapolis, and also visited with them here three years ago. Her maiden name was Emma C. Derse, and she was married to Mr. Smith last summer at Denver, Col.

Herman Lintner left last Wednesday evening for Duluth to prove up on his homestead. Mr. Lintner came near losing his train at Tilden, as the Northern Pacific flyer was stuck in a snow drift at Delorme, and for a time it looked as though the passengers would be stranded for the night. However, the engineer decided to run the engine to Fertile for help, and most of the passengers were taken to Tilden on the tender.

As will be noticed by an advertisement elsewhere, S. Cunningham, proprietor of the Racket store, is closing out his entire stock of goods, consisting of notions, tinware, glassware, books, rugs, etc. As he desires to leave the city as soon as possible, heavy reductions will be made in order to move the goods quickly. THE COURIER is sorry to learn that Mr. Cunningham and his estimable family have decided to leave Red Lake Falls.

The new mail service over the Northern Pacific started Monday morning, and mail over this road is dispatched at 5:15 p. m. All mail for the east is sent on this train. Mail for Crookston, Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Wylie may be dispatched on this train, and will go north from Fertile the following morning. Mail for the Great Northern closes at 2 p. m. All mail for Crookston, Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Wylie may be sent on this train.

The COURIER job room is getting out a special edition of 12,000 copies of the paper for the Lewis-Higinbotham Land company. The paper is made up entirely of articles relating to Red Lake county, her churches, schools, railroads and business interests, and is intended to be used as a missionary pamphlet among the farmers of southern Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. The boys are certainly going after business, and we hope their efforts will be rewarded.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington and Lafayette schools contested for honors in a spelling match at the high school room Friday, and it appears that the Washington representatives are entitled to a large share of the glory. Twenty pupils from each school entered the contest, and in spelling around eight times 46 words were missed by Washington and 71 by Lafayette. In the final spelldown all of the Lafayette pupils were retired when Washington had seven on the floor. In the individual spelling match between the seven Miss Isabel Helm was the victor.

STEEL BRIDGE TO BE BUILT

Sheriff Linnihan Neatly Foils the Plans of a Combination of Bridge Companies.

This morning the board of county commissioners voted to build a 200-foot steel bridge over the Red Lake river in the city of Red Lake Falls, to take the place of the wooden structure now in use.

The contract for building this bridge has been awarded to the Illinois Bridge company, which was represented by Sheriff Dan Linnihan. It is understood Mr. Linnihan will have charge of the construction work. The price of the bridge is to be $6,655, which is nearly $2,300 lower than the next lowest bid. It is evident that a combination was formed by the other companies represented in the bidding, and Sheriff Linnihan quietly slipped in a bid which will save the county a tidy sum.

Work on the new bridge will be started as soon as the weather permits, and Mr. Linnihan informs us that the material will be shipped in a few days. The approaches to the bridge, which will cost upwards of $1,000, are to be constructed by the city of Red Lake Falls.

Dr. H. Grundy was down from Thief River Falls Tuesday.

The Republican county convention to select delegates to the state and district conventions has been called to meet at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday, March 15. Each voting precinct is entitled to three votes in the convention. The call is signed by C. L. Dobner, chairman, and Thomas Germo, secretary.

Mrs. Henrietta Marchildon, administratrix of the Joseph Marchildon estate, which was probated when Red Lake was a part of Polk county, has filed some sensational charges against a former judge of probate of Polk county. Mrs. Marchildon alleges that illegal orders were issued and other papers falsified by a clerk in the office during the regime of Judge Benson.

Crookston Journal: Clerk of Court Lanctot yesterday issued announcements to the petitioners in the Red Lake county ditch matter stating that the final hearing of the petition would be given at the court house here before Judge Watts on next Friday. The petition has 63 signers from among the farmers and property holders along the proposed route and if the plan is thought feasible viewers will be appointed by the Judge to report on the probable cost of the work and advisability of the routes suggested. The ditch will undoubtedly be built during the coming summer.

George Washington is not guilty of the crime of cutting down his father's cherry tree. This verdict was rendered by the jury in the mock trial held by the high school scholars at the school building Monday evening. Mr. Washington was prosecuted by attorneys representing the Athenian society, and defended by the Spartans. Both sides of the case were remarkably well conducted, and they deserve great credit for their work. Judge Toupin was on the bench. A large crowd was present, and enthusiasm was at a high pitch among the partizans of both societies. A neat sum was realized, and this money will be used in defraying the expenses of the graduating class next June.

TROOPS OF CZAR ARE IN COREA.

The Russian Hosts Are at Wiju and First Great Land Battle Is Looked For.

Determined to Secure Control of the Yalu at the Outset—Scouts Cross the River and Survey for a Conflict—All Telegraph Lines in Hands of Military.

Chefoo, Feb. 22.—A decisive battle on the Yalu river is believed to be imminent, if not already in progress. A series of skirmishes preliminary to the main encounter have already taken place. Russian troops are swarming on both banks of the Yalu and seem greatly to outnumber the Japanese, who for days have been harassed by Cossack cavalry.

Must Control the Yalu.

Russia is determined to secure control of the Yalu at the outset, for this is the strategic point on which depends the success of the land campaign in Corea and Manchuria. To this end Alexieff has massed many thousands of troops along the firing line, and the viceroy has declared that he will crush Japan in an early series of land engagements, if he has to mobilize the entire Russian army.

Scouts Survey for Battle.

In preparation for the first of the great land battles the Russians threw out a skirmish line of scouts. Fully 1,500 of these, most of them mounted Cossacks, reconnoitered first in Wiju and vicinity.

Crossing the Yalu river, they freely entered the town of Wiju and scouted the surrounding country. Satisfied with the evident relative weakness of the Japanese forces, they recrossed the river and rejoined the main force.

Plan Indorsed.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Secretary Hay has received Russia's formal recognition of the neutrality treaty of China, outside of Manchuria, and now regards his plan as indorsed by practically the whole civilized world.

First Land Encounters.

In the vicinity of Port Arthur similar scouting expeditions were under way, and one of these precipitated the first severe land encounter. A picket of Cossacks attached a small detachment of Japanese troops on Corean territory. The Cossacks captured some Japanese, on whom they found maps and papers. The collision was presumably between reconnoitering parties. The losses on neither side are given.

All authorities here agree that a decisive land battle on the Yalu must follow. All telegraphic lines between Corea and Japan are now in the hands of the military authorities.

Japs Slay Russians.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—There is authority which prohibits doubt of the veracity of the report that outpost engagements have taken place on the Yalu resulting in the Russian advance guards being driven back with losses which are estimated at 2,500 lives. The battle is said to have been fought on the Corean side of the river.

Ordered to Leave Shanghai.

Shanghai, Feb. 22.—Urged by the Japanese consul here the taotai ordered the Russian gunboat Mandjur to leave the harbor before five o'clock Sunday afternoon, but the order was ignored. It is said that a Japanese squadron has been ordered to enforce the taotai's demand and to enable Japan steamship companies to resume service between Japan and Shanghai.

Disaster in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Two men were asphyxiated, one was burned to death and several were seriously injured in an explosion of blast furnace gas at the plant of the Lackawanna Steel company Sunday. The dead men are: George Reynolds, a mason; Michael S. Smith, a mason; Frank Prenatt, employed in the power house.

Lived Over a Century.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Rose Isreal, who was said to be the oldest woman in Chicago, having passed her one hundred and fifth birthday, died at the home of her son-in-law, S. Lowenstein.

CONGRESS KEEPS BUSY.

Washington, Feb. 16.—The senate yesterday agreed to vote on the ratification of the Panama canal treaty on February 23. The agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $6,072,380, was reported. In the house Mr. Shafroth (Col.) voluntarily resigned his seat on evidence of fraud at his election; investigation showed he was not to blame. His action is the first of the kind on record.

Washington, Feb. 17.—After feeling remarks by Senator Foraker in announcing the death of Senator Hanna in the senate yesterday, the adoption of the usual resolutions and the appointment of the committee to take charge of the arrangements for the funeral, the body at 12:12 adjourned as a further mark of respect. The house also held but a short session, adjourning out of respect to the deceased senator.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The senate and house transacted no business yesterday out of respect to the memory of Senator Hanna.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Panama canal question was the uppermost topic in the senate yesterday, and Senator Spooner spoke in favor of the subject during the greater portion of the day. The house passed the fortifications appropriation bill.

Washington, Feb. 20.—There was no session of the senate yesterday, adjournment having been taken on account of the funeral of Senator Hanna. The house began consideration of the naval appropriation bill, in committee of the whole, ten hours being allowed for general debate.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—The canal treaty with Panama was again the chief theme in the senate Saturday. Mr. Spooner, who held the floor, yielded to Mr. Morgan, who spoke in opposition to the ratification. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the naval appropriation bill. The committee on post offices completed the post office appropriation bill, which carries $169,997,588.

MAY WHEAT AT $1.07.

Cereal Raises Four Cents and Pandemonium Prevails on Chicago Board of Trade.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—The war situation in the far east and the withdrawal of the Russian and French ambassadors from London boomed wheat on the board of trade Saturday, and the wildest excitement prevailed. May wheat reached $1.07 a bushel, an almost unprecedented figure. The shorts were in a panic throughout the session. The pit was fairly crazed. The desire to buy was so marked and the response so enormous that control of the market was wrested from J. Ogden Armour and his brokers.

Naval Veteran Dead.

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 22.—Commander William P. Randall, U. S. N., retired, died at his home in this city Sunday, aged 71 years. Assigned as acting master on the frigate Cumberland during the civil way, he participated in the battle with the Merrimac, and was credited with having fired the last shot from the frigate before she was sent to the bottom.

Result of a Spree.

Maysville, Ky., Feb. 22.—G. W. Bramel, a farmer 12 miles from this city, got home very much intoxicated Saturday night, ran his brother away from the house with a Winchester and afterward killed his wife, driving his children out in the cold rain. While in his delirium Bramel set his house on fire and perished in the flames.

Due to a Broken Frog.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—A passenger train on a branch of the Big Four railroad was wrecked early Sunday near Wauponsee, Ill., resulting in the death of one passenger and the injury of five others, the names of whom could not be learned. A broken frog is said to have caused the wreck.

Given Two Years.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 22.—Samuel C. Hazzard, alias Hargreave, the West Pointer and former army officer convicted of bigamy, was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary Saturday.

SENATOR HANNA IS LAID AT REST

Funeral Services Over Remains of Distinguished Ohioan Held at Cleveland.

Great Throngs Take Last Look at Dead Statesman While Thousands of Others Are Unable To—Many Noted Persons in Attendance—Body Deposited in Chapel.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 19.—Surrounded by great masses of flowers and guarded by a detail of state militiamen, the remains of Senator Marcus A. Hanna lay in state and were viewed by 50,000 persons yesterday afternoon. The casket stood on the same catafalque on which rested the remains of President McKinley at Canton. As his lifelong friend and companion it was thought fitting that the same bier should be used for Senator Hanna.

The Last Rites.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 20.—The last rites over the body of Senator Marcus A. Hanna were held yesterday afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal church. During this solemn service, Cleveland was a silent city. Nearly all business was suspended for the entire afternoon. Street railway and steam road traffic on every line in the city was stopped for five minutes from one to 1:05 o'clock. People generally in all parts of the city bowed their heads in reverence for a brief space of time at that hour. Cleveland mourned as it never mourned before.

An Immense Throng.

Thousands who were unable to view the remains of the dead senator, as they lay in state in the chamber of commerce auditorium Thursday and Friday, flocked to the corner of Euclid and Case avenues, to witness the conveying of the simple black casket, bearing the remains of the senator, into the church. There they stood with bared heads and moistened eyes as the cortege moved into the edifice where the last earthly tribute was paid the dead.

The Funeral Services.

A few moments before one o'clock Mrs. Hanna, accompanied by her son, Dan, entered the church. She was dressed in deep black and was heavily veiled, and as they slowly walked down the aisle to the first row of seats the stillness of death fell over those within the walls of the church and heads bowed in token of sympathy. Other members of the family followed. When the body had been gently placed upon the bier and the pallbearers had been seated the choir chanted the Thirtieth and Nineteenth Psalms. President Pierce, of Gambier college, an institution of which Mr. Hanna was a benefactor, read the lesson, and Bishop Leonard then delivered the eulogy.

Body Placed in Chapel.

The service was most solemn and impressive, and outbursts of sobs could be heard at frequent intervals from all parts of the church.

The body, accompanied only by the family, pallbearers and Bishop Leonard, proceeded slowly out Euclid avenue to Lakeview cemetery where a final farewell of the dead was taken in Wade Memorial chapel. The services consisted simply of a prayer by the bishop. The body was deposited in a crypt in the chapel to await burial at the pleasure of the family.

Honor Hanna's Memory.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 20.—Yesterday was generally observed throughout the anthracite fields as a day of mourning and all the mines and collieries were closed, out of respect to the memory of Senator Hanna. President Mitchell, of the miners' union, had issued a proclamation that the men cease work at noon, and the miners and mine employes so heartily favored the plan that they did not report at all for work in the morning.

In Memory of Hanna.

New York, Feb. 22.—Commander Booth Tucker, of the Salvation Army, conducted a memorial service for Senator Marcus A. Hanna Sunday in Memorial hall, army headquarters. Commander Booth Tucker said that in the death of Senator Hanna the Salvation Army had lost one of the best friends it ever had. "He was one of the grandest men the world has ever seen," said the commander. "He knew the army, and stood by to help in the launching of our work. The effect of his help will go on, even though he is now dead."

Hero Loses His Life.

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 22.—In an attempt to save the life of Ames G. Allen, of Chicago, with whom he was skating on Cayuga lake, Louis T. Dickinson, of New York city, a senior at Cornell university, lost his life Sunday. The two young men had skated as far as Atwater, 18 miles north of Ithaca, when Allen broke through the ice. While attempting to pull him out Dickinson fell in and sank after struggling for some minutes to regain the ice. Allen was dragged ashore after having been in the water more than half an hour.

Says a Tramp Has Rights.

Des Moines, Feb. 22.—The Iowa supreme court decided that a tramp has rights which a trainman must respect, affirming a decision from Pottawattamie county, in which Joseph Johnson secured judgment for injuries sustained by reason of forcible ejectment from a moving train.

Demand Statehood.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 22.—The federal assembly, by a vote of 60 to 15, demanded that Porto Rico be admitted to statehood or that the island be granted independence.

FIVE ARE INDICTED.

Grand Jury Investigating the Iroquois Theater Horror in Chicago Returns True Bills.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Five persons—two city officials, the active manager of the Iroquois theater and two of the theater attaches—must answer to the law for the fire panic that cost 575 lives, says the special grand jury that has been investigating the horror, and Mayor Harrison's administration is censured. Those against whom true bills were voted are:

George Williams, commissioner of buildings; charged with malfesance in office and held to be directly accountable for the lack of protection in the theater.

Edward Loughlin, building inspector; charged with palpable omission of duty in connection with his investigations of the theater.

SIEGE IS RAISED.

Government Forces Defeat Insurgents at San Domingo After a Two Days' Battle.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Late last night the state department received a cablegram from Minister Powell, dated at San Domingo, February 16, saying: "A decisive battle has been fought between the government forces and the insurgents. It extended over two days and resulted in a victory for the government. The siege has been raised and the insurgents are in retreat."

Close attention is being given by administration officials to affairs in San Domingo. A number of warships are being kept in the waters of that country so that American interests may be zealously protected. Forcible interference in the affairs of the country, however, have been avoided up to this time, so far as news received by the department is concerned.

It is authoritatively stated that the question of the annexation of San Domingo to the United States never has received the slightest consideration on the part of the administration.

BULLETS FLEW FAST.

Madison, Ill., Feb. 20.—In an effort to close up a pool room that has for a long time operated in the outskirts of this city, three constables, augmented by a posse of citizens and bearing warrants for the arrest of six men connected with the poolroom, precipitated a riot late yesterday, which resulted in the shooting of seven men. Two may die. The wounded are: Lee Harlan, druggist, probably mortally; William Schooley, posseman; Edward Harris, spectator, not seriously; Edward Downs, seriously; Patrick McCambridge, policeman, probably mortally; two unknown, not seriously.

BLAST KILLS MANY.

Cars of Dynamite Explode in Utah and Over a Score of Persons Lose Their Lives.

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 20.—Two carloads of dynamite exploded at Jackson station, on the Ogden-Lucin cutoff yesterday, killing 23 and injuring 30 workmen. The victims, it is said, are mostly Greeks.

The explosion wrecked everything within a radius of half a mile. The accident was caused by a water train running into the two cars loaded with dynamite. Five locomotives were reduced to scrap iron and the big steam shovel at Jackson was demolished. As soon as news of the explosion reached Ogden a special with physicians, nurses and stretchers was hurried to the scene.

Must Surrender Big Sum.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 20.—Judge Tarrant rendered a verdict for $94,000 against Gerhard Terlinden, the German absconder arrested in Milwaukee some years ago, in favor of the Disconto Gesellschaft, of Berlin, Germany, who had charged him with misappropriating 400,000 marks. The money was deposited in Milwaukee banks by Terlinden prior to his arrest and has been in litigation since that time.

Death of Col. Bouck.

Oshkosh, Wis., Feb. 22.—Col. Gabriel Bouck, leader of the northern Wisconsin democracy and former state attorney general, died yesterday morning at the age of 76. He served two terms in congress, being elected in 1876 and 1878. He commanded the first company raised in this section for the civil war, and later was made colonel of the Eighteenth Wisconsin infantry.

Installed President.

Fourteen Killed.

Paris, Feb. 22.—Fourteen employes of a celluloid comb factory, at the corner of the Boulevard Sebastopol and the Rue Etienne Mariel, lost their lives in a fire which started by an explosion of gas. About 20 other employes were injured.

Official Notice Given.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—Ambassador McCormick has been officially notified that Russia will not participate in the St. Louis exposition.

On the Way to Bellegarde

By TRYNTJE DU BOIS

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

In going from Macon to Geneva there are two routes, the one by Nantua and the other by Bellegarde. Both are so charming and so picturesque that the choice between them is sometimes nearly heartrending.

It was on a cold, bright, late autumn day in November that a pretty girl, apparently an American, started to get into the Bellegarde train. Waiting as if to enter the same compartment stood a man well loaded with valises. Perhaps it was because he also was an American that when he saw her helplessly struggling on the steep, ladder-like steps he immediately put forth a strong hand and raised her gently to the level above.

Perhaps it was because she was not positive as to what he was that, barely bending her head in acknowledgment of the courtesy, she stepped swiftly over the bouillotes, seated herself in the farther corner and turned a steadfast gaze far and away.

He seized the strap and swung himself upward after her, then banged the door and jerked up the window. The latter was stubborn, and ere it was firmly fastened the train had left the station and was speeding fast.

"IS MY HAT ON STRAIGHT?" SHE ASKED.

As he seated himself he threw a quick glance at his companion. She was a pretty girl with blue eyes, a lovable nose, a kissable mouth and an irreproachable traveling outfit. A look of amusement crossed his face as he noted the frigidity of her bearing, for he knew enough of human nature to be quite positive that she was thinking of him. Her rigid interest in the scenery on her own side assured him of that fact. He unhooked the indicateur and studied it carefully, and when he stood up to throw it on to the bundle rack he felt that her eyes had been turned his way, so he sat down again, folded his arms and waited for time to pass a little. The possibilities of French trains are great. Those without tempers gain them; those with tempers lose them—in both cases one speaks.

She appeared unalterably fixed in her determination, but nevertheless he waited quietly, hopefully.

Each looked out of their own window. The Jura mountains were massing themselves one against another in a reckless desire to become Alps as soon as possible, and the Albarine was running from one side of the track to the other as if in all its previous course of existence it had never seen a railway train before.

Suddenly they were swallowed up in a tunnel, and the girl gave a quick, startled cry.

"It's very short," he said politely.

She did not answer.

They came out into the light again and stopped at Artmore. He let down the window and leaned out, that being the favorite recreation of the continental traveler. The village was overflowing with soldiers, cockades, bands and wine.

"It's the day of the lot drawing for the army," he said as he drew in his head and raised the sash again. His tone was disinterested in the extreme.

"And that's Mont Colombier on your side," he added.

She looked at Mont Colombier and said with a chill haughtiness, "Thank you."

The valley of the Albarine was beginning to merge into the grander valley of the Rhone, the latter river sweeping broadly beside the railway, while the Alps, increasing with each nearer view, loomed heavily above.

"The finer view is on this side," he remarked kindly. She did not turn her head.

"I'll sit on that side if I ever return this way," she murmured.

When he climbed in again she glanced at him about halfway to his knees, and he felt he had made some progress.

"The next is Seyssel," he announced cheerfully; "the half on the opposite bank is in Savoy."

She looked across at the Savoy half of Seyssel, and he contemplated her full face for two seconds.

"How interesting!" she commented coolly and turned to the French half.

He pulled his mustache, and the color in his eyes deepened with an undisguised mixture of amusement and interest.

Another tunnel.

"Our lamps seem to have been forgotten." (His voice.)

"Evidently." (Her voice.)

He knew from the sound that she had turned toward him to speak.

Then they came into the daylight once more and rolled swiftly above the Vezeronce.

"We really ought to have a lamp," he said anxiously. "The tunnels are many between here and Bellegarde."

She looked at him furtively, and he caught her eye and smiled openly.

"Don't be frightened, though," he said, with ready reassurance. "I am a married man."

Some curving lines crept between her eyes and lips.

"I'm married, too," she responded.

They exchanged glances.

With a roar the train plunged into darkness again.

When it flew forth a chance passing cinder would have perceived that he had changed his seat to one by her side; also that her face was flushing.

"Do you know," he said, "when I got in I was fairly frightened at your lofty bearing."

"Were you?" she said. "How nice! I wanted to frighten you. I've read that is the proper feeling for ladies to try to inspire when they find themselves alone with a man."

"Are you often successful?" he queried.

She bit her lip. Then:

"No," she answered frankly.

He took her hand in his.

"Tell me," he said earnestly, "were you ever successful?"

She hesitated, and her hesitation was suddenly swallowed in another roar of engulfing blackness.

"Go on," he whispered. (Whispers rush in where angels fear to tread.)

"Well," she replied slowly, "once before today—only once, mind you—I went through a tunnel with a man"—

She stopped.

"Oh, the unfeeling brute!" he cried impetuously.

The train came forth to the sunlight once more.

"Is my hat on straight?" she asked demurely.

"Yes, it's straight," he said, "but it's meant to go a little tippy, isn't it?"

"Hand me the mirror out of your valise," she said. "I think I'd better see for myself."

He stood up and proceeded to seek the article demanded.

"I suppose I may as well haul them down. We get off at Bellegarde, you know."

"Yes," she replied. "And I do hope, dear, that I never in all my life shall be so mad again as I was at you when I got on to this train."

He kissed her, laughing.

"You were mad," he said. "You were just awfully mad. I wondered if you'd ever speak to me again."

"I don't care," she said, smiling and pouting at once. "I wanted to go by Nantua, and you knew it."

Blaine and Conkling.

The first speech I heard Mr. Blaine make after I entered the senate was at the called session of 1879, when he replied to Senator Hill of Georgia on the amendments proposed by the Democrats to the army appropriation bill which prohibited the appointment of supervisors and United States marshals to be present at the polls. He was not an orator, but a strong, incisive and attractive speaker, who prepared himself thoroughly and was quick to see the most vulnerable point of attack in the enemy's lines.

The seat of Roscoe Conkling, Blaine's most inveterate enemy, was on the Republican side of the aisle in the senate chamber, while Blaine occupied a seat on the same row, but some distance east of that occupied by Conkling. The debate had become very warm, and as Blaine, in his excitement, advanced toward Conkling and the Democratic side of the chamber, shaking his fist defiantly at his opponents and hurling invectives at the Confederate brigadiers, as he called them, Conkling, forgetting for the moment Blaine's turkey gobbler speech in the Thirty-ninth congress, when they were both members of the house of representatives, suggested another point to his old enemy, which Blaine accepted with alacrity, and this was the only time in fifteen years when the two had spoken to each other.—George G. Vest in Saturday Evening Post.

Won His Bet.

"Daddy," said a boy to his father, "I've got a pencil which will write green, purple, crimson or any color you like."

"Not the same pencil, my son."

"You daren't bet me a dime it won't, daddy."

"I'll give you a dime if it will," said the old man.

The youngster dived into his pocket, produced the stump of a common lead pencil and wrote on a piece of paper the words, "magenta, green, crimson, purple," etc.,

"There, daddy. Say it won't write any color you like now. Fork over that dime."

Of Course He Could.

"I'm dreadfully worried. I haven't heard from George for three whole days."

"But he's on the ocean and can't write till he reaches the other side."

"Nonsense! Couldn't he put the letter in a bottle and throw it overboard? I've often read of such things."—New York Evening Journal.

Candid.

"Did you ever lose yourself in any of the great roles you assumed?"

"Well," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, "I wasn't exactly lost, but I have found it pretty hard to get home."—Washington Star.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by

Press Correspondent New York State Grange

PORTLAND GETTING READY.

Plans Already Being Made For the Entertainment of National Grange.

Oregon and Washington are already hustling to give the national grange a grand reception in November, 1904. In the first place, a campaign for increased membership is now being conducted by State Lecturer J. H. T. Smith of Washington, and likewise in Oregon there will be a strong effort made to show a large percentage of increase when the national body convenes.

Evening Star grange, No. 27, of Portland, Ore., is alive to the situation. A resolution was adopted at a recent meeting congratulating State Master Leedy in securing the next meeting for Portland, and a movement was started by the grange to give the eastern grangers an exhibit of green vegetables and fruits that will surprise them in November. Grapes on the vines and strawberries, raspberries, etc., could be shown. It has been suggested that Oregon and Washington combine and make a grand display of farm produce. From the Portland Oregonian we learn that there are some up to date grangers in that locality. Ewartsville grange owns ten acres of land and has built a fine hall. In this hall all the social functions of the neighborhood are held, as well as the regular business meetings of the grange. A Thanksgiving dinner, at which more than 300 were fed, was served in this hall. This grange has established an annual three days' picnic, with a fair and live stock show, where the best stock in Whitman county is shown and liberal premiums are awarded.

B. G. LEEDY.
[Master Oregon state grange.]

Pine Grove grange, at Albino, is the second oldest in the county and has a membership of 140. This grange is out of debt and has a substantial fund in the treasury, which will probably be used to build a hall. The grange is keeping clear of politics and devoting its energies to bettering the social and financial condition of the farmers. Its work is largely social and educational. The first grange was organized in this county about three years ago.

LECTURERS' BULLETINS.

A Means of Communication Between State and Subordinate Granges.

There is growing need of a means of communication between state lecturers and lecturers of subordinate granges. No method is so inexpensive and efficacious as a monthly bulletin, in which the state lecturer may communicate with the subordinate lecturers on assigned topics for discussion, impart information on matters of present or future interest and thus make it possible for the subordinate grange to keep constantly in touch with the state organization. As an example of what we are speaking of we may refer, with high commendation, to the Michigan state grange lecturers' bulletin, edited by Mrs. F. D. Saunders of Rockford, Mich. The advantage of issuing such a bulletin regularly is that it can be entered in the mails as second class mail matter and thus be entitled to the pound rates of postage.

Vermont In Line.

C. J. Bell, master of the Vermont state grange, says that the attendance at the recent session of that body was the largest for twenty years and it was one of the most successful meetings ever held. There are 110 subordinate granges in the state, ninety-five being represented at the state meeting. There are twelve Pomonas in the state.

Worthy Master Bell's annual address laid great stress on the need of legislation in the farmer's behalf. Governor J. C. McCullough was the principal speaker at the public meeting. Professor Morse of South Paris, Me., well known in grange circles, was humorist of the occasion.

The Grange Must Do Things.

F. A. Derthick, master of the Ohio state grange, is father of these weighty words: "If a subordinate grange wishes to exert a commanding influence in its community it must have a good financial footing. If it deserves to persuade men and women to join, it must have something to join." The next thing it must have, or the first thing, we would say, is an interesting and profit yielding programme. You haven't much of a grange if it isn't doing something.

Nearly 6,000 Patrons In One County.

Jefferson county, N. Y., is probably the banner grange county in the United States. It has 5,926 Patrons in thirty-two subordinate granges. All New Jersey has only 6,000. Moreover, the state grange dues of every subordinate grange are paid to date. Jefferson is necessarily influential in the grange affairs of the Empire State.

Pennsylvania Patrons.

The gain in the Order's membership in Pennsylvania last year was over 5,000, thirty new granges having been organized. As an instance of their progressiveness Cambria county may be cited, where there are twenty-two granges, sixteen of which own their own halls, valued at $25,000.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

LATE LOCALS.

J. W. Bourdon is reported quite seriously ill this week.

Joseph Gray returned this week from the lumber woods, where he has been working during the winter.

The topic for the meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. Sunday evening will be "Heroism and Other Lessons from China."

The Presbyterian church society has purchased the folding chairs and hymn books formerly used by the Evangelical society.

A choir has recently been organized at the Presbyterian church, and the worshippers at that church can be assured of splendid music at each service. The choir will be led by Prof. F. A. Whiteley in the morning and by S. C. Nauman in the evening.

Farmers and citizens generally should remember that a state farmers' institute is to be held at Red Lake Falls next Tuesday, March 1. Some of the best instructors in the state will be here to talk on various topics pertaining to farm work and stock raising. Remember the date and attend.

Special meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church every evening of next week. Rev. Donald McKenzie, pastor of the Crookston church, will preach Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 1 and 2. The meetings will close with the communion service on Sunday morning, March 6. An invitation is extended to all to attend these meetings.

Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, assisted by several exyerts from the dairy and food department, will conduct a dairy and creamery meeting at the Metropolitan opera house Saturday, March 5. Everybody interested in creamery management and stock-raising will be benefitted by attending this meeting. There will be no charge for admission, and it is hoped that a large gathering of farmers and their families will be present to profit by the excellent advice the speakers will offer.

Henry N. Johnson has resigned his position with the Red Lake Falls Milling company, the resignation to take effect next Tuesday, and will soon leave for Park River, N. D., where he will be local agent for the Robertson Lumber company. This is one of the largest yards owned by that company, and pays the highest salary with the exception of the yard at Crookston. Mr. Johnson is no stranger to the lumber business, having been local manager at Red Lake Falls for nearly two years for the same company, and having several years previous experience. He is a splendid young man, and has many friends in Red Lake county who will wish for him the greatest success.

Stroke Shattered My Nerves.

Gave Up Preaching For Two Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Put Me On Active List.

Are you well? Do you sleep well? Do you get up rested, fresh and vigorous? Is your mind clear and active? If not read the following. See what another has suffered and how he recovered.

"Some years ago I was afflicted with sun stroke which left me with a shattered nervous system and exceedingly poor health. I suffered terribly with pain in my head, the top of my head would feel hot. I could not study, and after striving for two years to wear the trouble off, I was compelled to give up my pastoral labor and retire to my farm where I spent nearly two years trying to recuperate. It was all of no avail. Physicians' treatment and patent medicines failed to relieve me. I was exceedingly nervous and irritable and sometimes would shake terribly. I could not bear any noise. At the least excitement the blood would rush to my face and head. Two years ago I was induced to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. After using one bottle I could see improvement in my condition so I continued taking it for nearly a year. I am happy to say I no longer have those pains in my head or nervous spells. My appetite is good and I am able to preach three times on Sunday without fatigue. I consider Dr. Miles' Nervine the most wonderful medicine ever discovered."—Rev. D. Alex. Holman, Pastor U. B. OUR WATER POWER
IS SECOND IN IMPORTANCE IN STATE OF MINNESOTA

GREAT MANUFACTURING POSSIBILITIES

The world is just awakening to the possibilities of water power, and it is not an idle boast to say that the next decade will witness a tremendous growth in towns and cities located on streams susceptible to water power development. Water is the cheapest power on earth, and manufacturers are looking for cheap power. Inside of five years cheap power will be considered more of an item than adjacency to market or nearness to the raw product.

Red Lake Falls has one of the finest water powers in the United States. The Red Lake and Clearwater are both rapid streams and of sufficient capacity to operate mills and factories requiring millions of horse power. This great natural advantage cannot be too widely advertised. It ought to be dinned into the ears of manufacturers that this city affords equal advantages with Niagara Falls; that here the equivalent to twenty-five thousand tons of coal is going to waste every week.

When Red Lake Falls becones a manufacturing center—and the day is not far distant—farm values will increase tenfold, city property will enhance in price, and there will be a measure of prosperity for all.

Just now several large manufacturing concerns are investigating the possibilities of our water power, and it seems likely that next year will see the installation of plants employing in the aggregate several hundred men. Possibly others could be induced to locate here. Every citizen should do his mite toward forwarding this great work.

1904 TO BE THE BEST YEAR OF ALL

The year 1904 will witness more development and improvement in all lines of activity in Red Lake county than any one year since its earliest settlement. Those who will be most strikingly and directly benefitted by this development will be the farmers and others who own real property. The "Soo" line, desiring a direct route from the Twin Cities to Winnipeg is projecting a new line northward from Glenwood to the Canadian border at Emerson. This new line has already been surveyed and penetrates the east-central portion of Red Lake county, through its entire length, opening up a new territory, well settled, which has hitherto had from 15 to 35 miles to railroad station. This will have the effect of raising land values in that portion of the county from an average of about $12 an acre, which is the present price, to an average of $30 an acre, or over, which is the price of land near and in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls. This new road will run through the richest and most fertile portion of the county, timber and prairie, well watered by the Clearwater river and other rivers and streams. At various points on the Clearwater are splendid water-falls and at such points new towns are to be built, gaining for the farmer easy access and new markets for his products. So that at no time since the first settlement of this community has there been afforded brighter and more promising prospects for the investor and the settler. This is the ground-floor period for investors who desire to double their money in a year or two. With the opening of this new road there will be such an influx of new settlers as has rarely been seen; new towns will spring up and that portion of the county which has heretofore lagged behind because of no railroad accommodations will forge ahead by leaps and bounds.

RAPP WILL IS CONTESTED

Miss Bertha Pederson Claims to Be Common Law Wife and Demands Share of Estate.

The will of the late Hon. Chas. G. Rapp, of St. Hilaire, which was filed with the judge of probate last December, is being contested by Miss Bertha Pederson, of Thief River Falls, who claims to be the common law wife of the deceased.

Notice of the contest was filed last Saturday in Judge Tarrant's office by Attorney Henry W. Lee, attorney for Miss Pederson. In the notice for contest it is alleged that Miss Pederson and Mr. Rapp were married in California some time in December, 1902, and that Mr. Rapp repeatedly promised to provide for her in his will. It is further claimed that the will offered for probate by Oscar F. Post is not the last will and testament of the deceased, and it is intimated that the last will has been destroyed or hidden by interested parties.

Miss Pederson also alleges that a few days before his death Mr. Rapp gave her his pocket-book, containing $60 in money and a certificate of deposit for $250 on the Frst State Bank of St. Hilaire, and wants authority from the court to compel payment of the certificate.

The hearing on the contest is set for April 14.

Regarding the contest proceedings today's St. Hilaire Spectator has the following to say:

"The people of St. Hilaire and Red Lake county are pretty well acquainted with this Miss Pederson. It has been an understood fact that she was employed by Mr. Rapp as a paid attendant puring his long and finally fatal illness and in that capacity remained with him until the end of his life last November. During the last few months of his life Mr. Rapp occupied his own rooms in this village and Miss Pederson attended him. But during all the time she made no claim whatever of being his wife or of having any claim against him of any kind.

"Altogether the matter looks very much as if the petitioner had been led into the afair by her attorney who saw a possible chance to levy a post mortem tribute by an attempt to blackmail the living legal heirs and traduce the memory of the dead without taking into consideration the possible defamation of his client's character which must almost inevitably result from his efforts."

A Communication.

EDITOR COURIER: The personal attack made upon me by the Gazette last week with regard to the creamery meeting next Saturday is entirely unwarranted. If the editor of that paper is as anxious to give the news as he would have us believe he has had ample opportunity to learn about the meeting next Saturday, as posters have been up in all of the business places for nearly three weeks past. Last summer I asked the Gazette to print several items regarding the creamery and dairy interests, but as none of them ever appeared in print I took it for granted that the paper did not care for news of that nature. The writer may not know all there is to know about common courtesy, but he never yet found it necessary to attack anyone without cause or provocation. Respectfully,—WILLIAM LAURITZON.

Returns to the Klondike.

Con Short and wife and J. E. Buskirk drove in Monday afternoon from Lillo, and Mr. Short took the Great Northern the following day for Seattle, expecting to leave there in a few days for Dawson, Alaska, where he has extensive gold mining interests. Mr. Short's company will develop a new mine this season, and it is necessary to get on the ground as soon as possible to get the work under way. He expects to return to Red Lake county in the fall.

First State Bank Vault Equipped With Latest Electrical Alarm System.

An electrical burglar alarm system has been installed in the First State Bank this week by the American Bank Protection company, of Minneapolis. By this system the bank is assured of absolute protection from burglary, since when the alarm is set no portion of the vault or lock can be touched with drilling tools, the lock tampered with or explosives used without turning on the alarm, which can be heard several blocks away. This alarm continues until some one gets into the vault and turns off the current.

The apparatus used in the installation of the system is quite elaborate and guaranteed absolutely reliable. The electrical cabinet, containing the working machinery of the system, is placed inside the vault. On the outside, directly above the vault door, are placed two sounding boards, on each of which is placed a large gong, and over each gong a heavy steel shield, which is indestructible. The vault door is lined with steel, and the dial and handle of the lock are so adjusted that any movement of the same by the burglar will cause an alarm. The lock is also protected so that any attempt to bore through would start a terrible clangor. The vault is thoroughly lined, top, bottom and all sides, with double plates of steel, insulated and electrically connected. It is impossible for a burglar to get through an outside plate without touching an inside plate, which would start the alarm. In addition to the gongs outside the vault wall is placed a large fire alarm gong outside the building, protected with steel shields and steel housing. None of these gongs can be tampered with without giving an alarm.

From 10 p. m. to 7 a. m. the whole system is connected with the battery, and any attempt by a burglar or the bankers themselves to enter the vault at night would start all of the gongs.

The system seems to be as nearly perfect as human ingenuity can devise, and it is safe to assume that no bank robber would care to run the risk of getting into the vault of the First State Bank. The company fully guarantees the system, and if it fails to operate the bank will be fully reimbursed for all the money or other property the burglars are able to secure.

The system is quite interesting, and no doubt the officers of the bank will be glad to show it to their friends and patrons, and explain the principle upon which the system is operated.

FAREWELL TO H. N. JOHNSON.

Knights of Pythias Hold Smoke Social Monday Evening.

At the close of their regular lodge meeting Monday evening the Knights of Pythias held a "smoke social" in honor of their brother Knight, Henry N. Johnson, who leaves this week for Park River, N. D., to become local agent for the Robertson Lumber company. Besides a large attendance of the members of the lodge, about half a dozen friends of Mr. Johnson and of the lodge members were present to enjoy the occasion. After a couple hours of whist and card games, luncheon was served. After the cigars were passed Chancellor Commander McIntyre presided over an informal fellowship meeting, and brief remarks were made by Knights Germo, Whiteley, Gaass, Lewis, King, Zaiser, Hunt and others. Expressions of regret at the departure of their friend Johnson came from every speaker, and acknowledgment of these tokens of esteem was fittingly and neatly made by Mr. Johnson.

The occasion happened to be the birthday of another member of the lodge, H. H. Zaiser, and as it was his first birthday in eight years, the banquet board was replenished by a liberal supply of oranges.

BIG FLOOD IS EXPECTED

Heavy Snow Likely to Inundate the Red River Valley in the Spring.

A special from Grand Forks to the St. Paul Dispatch says that a great deal of interest is being taken just now in the prospects for a flood in the Red River Valley this spring. That there is a possibility of one is not doubted. But opinions differ as to the probability. One of the time-honored stories of the Northwest is that when in the early days A. W. Bangs, father of the now famous Bangs brothers, came to Grand Forks looking for a location to practice law, after looking the country over, he said to the elder of the brothers: "Tracy, let's find some other place. A country where the rivers run north, and the Irish vote the Republican ticket is no country for you and me."

The fact that the Red river runs north has caused a great deal of sorrow. For 300 miles the river drags it sluggish way through a country that is almost a dead level. It drains a territory nowhere less than fifty miles in width, and one of its tributaries, the Red Lake river, brings water to it from the great pine regions of Minnesota. The bed of the river is narrow, with high, preciptitous banks, and a light precipitation over the great area of country drained is sufficient to change its level many feet. As a rule, the water is flowing freely near the head from two to three weeks before the ice has broken at the mouth. This condition causes the ice to gorge all the way down, and when there is a heavy snow-fall and the other conditions are right, high water is inevitable.

This year there is more than the average amount of snow in the valley, though its depth does not compare with that of the famous flood of 1897. Through the upper end of the valley the snow is comparatively light. Farther north there is more, and it is blown into great drifts. The country tributary to the Red Lake river has more snow than for many years, and lumbermen are all looking for quite high water. In the spring of 1897 the bed of the river itself was blown full of snow, and the entire river was represented by a gigantic snow bank, 300 miles long, 50 feet thick and the full width of the river. The prairies were afloat long before this snow bank was melted, and the waters from the south were seeking an outlet, and, failing to find it, were piling up against the accumulation of snow and broken ice.

Some of the old settlers say that some of the floods of the long ago were worse than the one of that year. However that may be, the government gauge at Grand Forks showed a record of 47 feet 6 inches above low water mark, which is the highest official record. The ordinarily peaceful stream becomes a raging torrent, and its width was measured by miles instead of feet. On the Minnesota side, near and below the mouth of the Lower Snake, farm houses stood in water up to the second stories, and many were swept away by the waves that rolled across the farms.

From the present outlook such a flood is not to be anticipated this year, but there is ample opportunity for high water that will keep some of the residents busy. One thing that is noted by old residents is the thickness of the ice. The ice on the Red River runs now from three to four feet thick and it is still freezing. This means that it will take the river longer to clear itself, and there will be a correspondingly good chance for it to gorge. Taking it altogether the chances are now that while it will probably not reach the record point, it will be higher than it has been for many years with one exception.

SUNDAY CLOSING LAW GOOD

The Supreme Court Says That Stores Cannot Legally Be Kept Open on the Sabbath Day.

The supreme court of this state has held that the law passed by the last legislature, prohibiting dry goods and grocery stores, butcher shops and other places of business from keeping open on Sundays, is constitutional. Thus a question of some interest has been settled.

Last year the city authorities of Wadena decided to enforce the Sunday closing law, and all stores have since been practically closed on that day. Some in this city have been of the opinion that the law could not be enforced, but it seems from the decesion of the highest court in the state that it can be.

The decision of the supreme court was upon a case taken from the district court of Ramsey county. Judge Jaggard held that the law was constitutional, and the case was appealed to the supreme court, Judge Jaggard's decision was sustained. Judge Lovely wrote the decision, which is as follows:

"First—Chapter 318, Laws of 1903, which prohibits the keeping open of butcher shops for the sale of meats and other business places on any portion of Sunday, while it authorizes confectionery and tobacco to be sold in an orderly manner on that day, held not to be such an unreasonable discrimination between these several occupations as to invalidate the law for violation of sections 33 and 34, article 4, of the Constitution of this state prohibiting special class legislation."

Chapter 362, provides, an act to amend section 229 of chapter 1 of title 10 of the penal code of the state of Minnesota, as follows:

"Be it enacted by the legislature of the state of Minnesota:

"Public Traffic—All manner of public selling or offering for sale of any property upon Sunday as prohibited, except that meals may be sold to be eaten on the premises where sold or served elsewhere by caterers; and prepared tobacco in places other than where spiritous or malt liquors or wines are kept or offered for sale, and fruits, confectionery, newspapers, drugs, medicines and surgical applicances may be sold in a quiet and orderly manner; provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be construed to allow or permit to public sale, or exposing for sale of uncooked meats, fresh or salt, or groceries, dry goods, clothing, wearing apparel of any kind, or boots or shoes.

"Section 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

"Approved April 21, 1903."

JUDICIAL DITCH ORDERED

Will Redeem Many Thousand Acres of Choice Farming Lands East of Red Lake Falls.

As a result of the hearing of the judicial ditch matter before Judge William Watts at Crookston Friday the court issued an order for the immediate survey of the route proposed, which is practically an order for the completion of the work, as after the survey is made property owners who may object to the movement will have to show sufficient and good cause for discontinuance of the work.

The ditch will be one of the largest ever built in the northern portion of the state. It will be approximately 24 miles long and the average cost per foot for its building will be fourteen hundred dollars.

Through the Big Meadows, which have always in the spring and fall of the year been inundated but which will be fields when drained, the ditch when surveyed will run from the eastern corner of the town of Johnson in Polk county through the towns of Equality and Garnes in Red Lake county and empty into the Lost river at the Larry O'Neil homestead.

The course of the big ditch will be directly west and it will be located almost upon the divide line which separates the waters of the Clearwater and Lost rivers. The country which the drainway covers is a romantic one. Lost river, into which the ditch empties, has long been the subject of fabled stories and gossips. At a certain point in its course the river drops into the earth and its further course is untraceable. Some think that it is spread out over the meadows while others believe that it has a subterranean channel.

The meadows which the ditch will convert into fertile farm property has every year since the settlement of the country yielded enormous crops of hay when the waters of the sloughs were low enough to allow of cutting.

Approximately $50,000 will be spent on the project, but there are so many who will be benefitted by the ditch and so large a territory is covered that the cost will not be heavy upon individuals. It will be practicaliy speaking the most beneficial ditch—the most good to the greatest number of any ditch ever projected in the northern portion of the state.

A peculiar feature of the ditch which has attracted considerable attention is the recommendation that a high road be built along the side from the dirt which is taken out. The residents of the meadow have always been bothered by the swampy roads and the building of a high and dry turnpike for their use will benefit them considerably.

WHAT HE OVERLOOKED.

With Dobbin to draw them, were speeding away.
Above in the heavens the roguish stars blinked
The way that for ages at lovers they'd winked.

"For every star falling this night you may claim—
To kiss the young lady; so get in the game."
This message Marconic was flashed through the air,
But he didn't get it or else didn't care.

A rocket celestial flashed over the sky.
"I see a star falling," said Bess, with a sigh.
"That's nothing surprising or startling or queer,"
Said John. "They're quite common at this time of year."

Just then a bombardment of twinklers began,
But John sat erect, like a sawdust stuffed man,
While Bess said: "Oh, my! But, say, isn't this grand?"
But somehow she couldn't make John understand.

The stars seemed to whisper: "Make haste! It's all right!"
But John only wondered just what had piqued Bess,
For as to the trouble he couldn't quite guess.

The stars at each other winked hard with delight
As John turned away with a formal "Good night."
They said: "Such a sleigh ride, with never one kiss!
Just call up the foolkiller; tell him of this."

He Was Battle Scarred.

"Yes, I have been through four wars," said the veteran, "and I have had some experience."

"Four wars?" said his admirer. "Which ones?"

"Mexican, civil, Spanish and matrimony," sadly replied the old soldier.

ANTS KIDNAP THEIR FOES.

Raid Neighboring Villages and Carry Off Many Prisoners.

Dr. H. C. McCook tells of a species of kidnaping ants which make organized attacks on other ant villages for the purpose of capturing slaves. Here is an account of the attack:

"At last the muster is complete. Mysteriously, but effectively, the signal 'Forward!' is given, and the column moves from the hill. There is no regular alignment, but a show of solidarity, a holding of the ranks within close compass and touch—a 'rout step,' in fact. There is no general; there are no subordinate officers, but such is the sympathetic unity that they seem to move in response to one will and command. If every warrior is a law unto himself the law so binds and animates and compels all alike that the ends of an organized cohort are served.

"Assault, battle and pillage follow quickly upon the sortie. The objective point of the march is not far away. A hundred yards distant is a Fuscan village. The route thereto lies across the edge of a grove, over a footpath, along a fallen tree, under whose shelter and shaded by tufts of grass is the devoted commune. It is feeble in numbers, and there is a bare show of defense as the freebooters hurl themselves upon the hill and plunge into the open gates. The villagers flee at the first onset through unassailed or secret passages. Some run the gantlet through the assailing ranks. All who can carry a part of the family treasures—eggs, larvæ and pupæ. Like their Brobdingnagian brothers of the human race, when disaster befalls their first care is for their offspring. The fugitives mount into nearby clumps of low wood plants, whence they look down upon the devastation of their homes—with what feelings? For one must suppose that the midgets do feel, though sometimes he would fain hope otherwise.

"Meanwhile the invaders issue from the gates, bearing in their jaws the Fuscan young and occasionally an adult. They take the home trail, but not in ordered ranks. It is go as you please now. They are welcomed back by their black confederates, who receive the captives and take them—their very own sisters perhaps—into the domestic quarters. The soldiers hurry back to the scene of action, for their work is not yet finished."—Harper's Magazine.

The Saracens and the Moon.

The Saracens called the moon Cabar the Great, and the crescent still surmounts the Turkish mosques and is emblazoned on the green standard of the prophet. Schlegal mentions a story that Mohammed "wished to pass with his disciples as a person transfigured in a supernatural light and that the credulity of his followers saw the moon, or the moon's light, descend upon him, pierce his garments and replenish him.

"That veneration for the moon which still forms a national, or, rather, religious, characteristic of the Mohammedans may perhaps have its foundation in the elder superstition or pagan idolatry of the Arabs."

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Uncle Sam's Penny Crop.

According to advices from the treasury department, the government mill at Philadelphia will cease to grind out pennies for a time, there being now a surplusage of this kind of currency in the country. During the past five years 3,000,000,393 pennies have been shipped from the Philadelphia mint, which is the only one that coins the one cent pieces, to various parts of the country. Between July 1, 1902, and June 1, 1903, 89,600,000 cents were coined. If this five year output were collected in a heap it would make a sizable stage mountain at least.

Placed side by side in a straight line 3,000,000,000 pennies would make a ribbon over 23,000 miles long and would come pretty near girdling the earth. Piled on top of one another they would reach up toward the stars for a distance that would take a good many Eiffel towers to equal, for it would be not less than 2,400 miles, far out beyond the point where the force of gravitation is supposed to be very active. Since, on the ordinary basis of computation, there are supposed to be about 290,000,000 children in the world under ten years of age, Uncle Sam would be able to give each child on the earth ten copper keepsakes and have enough left over to fill a good sized savings bank besides. So much for the penny crop.—Leslie's Weekly.

American Use of Electricity.

America leads the way in the application of electricity. In his presidential address to the Institution of Electrical Engineers Mr. Kaye Gray mentioned a plate glass works in which there were four generating sets of 4,000 kilowatts each and one of 350 kilowatts. There were also 20 motors of 450 horsepower each and 20 of 200 horsepower. Another concern using electricity on a large scale was a colliery, which possesses a plant of 2,900 kilowatts capacity and comprises 44 mining locomotives and 75 miles of underground trolley wire. The dominating factor in regard to the employment of electric power is, of course, that of efficiency compared with cost. Mr. Gray made a comparison between the Carnegie works and Krupp's at Essen. "At the Carnegie works," he said, "electricity is used for almost everything requiring power. It is stated that in the Homestead Steel works of Pennsylvania by the aid of electricity 4,000 men make as much steel as is made at Krupp's with 15,000 men."—London Telegraph.

Too Big a Contract.

Assistant Postmaster Knowles recently told this story of civil service examinations: "Not long ago," he said, "we had as applicant for the place of letter carrier a bright young man whose degree of intelligence scarcely fitted him for the place. He had made up his mind before coming in that the civil service examination was a fraud, a humbug and two or three other things not so good. However, he made out to answer the questions to his own satisfaction at least and expressed surprise that they were not more difficult. Finally the examiners asked him:

"'How far is it from Philadelphia to Chicago?'

"'I don't know,' he said, 'and I don't care. But if I've got to walk to Chicago to deliver letters I'll quit this thing right now and stick to farming.'"—Philadelphia Press.

The Newest Bridge Project.

The greatest project for bridge work comes from Asia, where a railway commission has just recommended the old plan of connecting Ceylon with India by a bridge across the reef called "Adam's bridge" and the island of Rameswaram, says a New York paper.

Ceylon is pretty far from the Bowery, but we are all interested in it because the Ceylon tea grows there; because it is there that every prospect pleases and only man is vile and because it is assigned by local tradition as the original home of Adam, whence Adam's bridge to the north.

Geological evidence shows that Ceylon was originally joined to India by a continuous isthmus, which, according to the temple records of Rameswaram, was breached by a great storm in 1480.

Snake Poisoning Antidotes.

In the pathological laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania an investigation designed to discover antidotes for all kinds of snake poison is conducted. Many experiments are made with rattlesnakes, cobras and other poisonous reptiles, and the effects of their venom upon animals are studied. The physicians regard alcohol taken internally as a valuable stimulant, but not as an antidote. The most valuable remedial agent is the intermittent ligature, a band about the wounded limb, which is loosened for an instant at stated intervals, thus allowing the poison to enter the system in very small quantities. In this manner the patient is enabled gradually to overcome the effects of the poison.—Exchange.

Future Life of Animals.

Sir William Blunden, a doctor and baronet, has just favored a meeting of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals with some views on the future state of animals. He "certainly believed," he said, in the future existence of animals, and, though he could not bring forward evidence in support of his proposition, he could not at the same time bring forward evidence to the contrary. If they took the case of the tinker's ass, which was born and reared in hardship, he found it hard to think that a merciful Creator formed that animal merely to suffer at the hands of man without receiving some compensation in the next life, if not in the present.—London News.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows:

The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Dated February 4, 1904.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

5421-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. FORCES OF COREA JOIN THE JAPS.

ORDERS FROM GOVERNMENT TO THE STANDING ARMY ARE FORMALLY ISSUED.

Japanese Say the Harbor at Port Arthur Is Blocked—Russians Fleeing from Dalny—Mikado Troops Are Landing.

Seoul, Feb. 27.—The Corean government has decided to order the Corean troops to join the Japanese in the field. The standing army now consists of about 17,000 men with European methods. In 1896 it was taken in hand by a Russian colonel with three commissioned and ten non-commissioned officers, who retired, however, in 1898. A royal bodyguard of 1,000 men was formed and has been well drilled, and periodically a draft of well trained men is transferred from it to other regiments of the standing army.

Says Harbor Is Blocked.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The Japanese minister has received the following cablegram from the Japanese minister for foreign affairs, dated Tokio, Friday:

"Before dawn on the 24th instant four old ships under escort of torpedo boats proceeded to the mouth of the harbor of Port Arthur where they were sunk with success in order to close it. The officers and crew of the vessels returned safely, No official report has as yet been received from the admiral commanding the squadron, but there is no doubt that the squadron itself is all safe."

Russians Fleeing.

Shanghai, Feb. 27.—The Russian retreat from the Japanese invasion of the Liaotung peninsula has commenced. Dalny, 50 miles north of Port Arthur, is being evacuated. The Russians declare they have mined the breakwater, the docks, the wharves, and the railway to prevent the Japanese from using them.

Thousands Have Landed.

London, Feb. 27.—Estimates based on the Burleigh dispatch from Shanghai are that already an army of about 150,000 Japanese soldiers has been borne to its destination, or, rather, destinations, for it is evident the transports have not all shaped the same course.

Fleet Is Safe.

Tokio, Feb. 27.—Not one of Japan's squadron was put out of commission in the attack on Port Arthur on the night of the 23d. The entire squadron was sighted off Shantung on Wednesday, the following day, and all the ships were intact. They were proceeding rapidly, and none seemed to be disabled in any way.

Skirmish Fight.

"Tokio, Feb. 28, 9 a. m.—A number of the enemy's cavalry appeared at a point 700 meters north of Ping-Yang, Corea. Our infantry fired upon them, causing them to retreat."

May Wipe Out Port Arthur.

Tokio, Feb. 29.—It is understood that Admiral Togo's main fleet is still in the vicinity of Port Arthur, and it is expected that this fleet will continue bombarding the place until it is untenable or until the Russian fleet is destroyed.

LIVES LOST AT SEA.

Steamer Queen Catches Fire While Big Storm Is Raging and Fourteen Persons Perish.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 29.—After battling for five hours with a fire that all but consumed the ship and a storm that every moment threatened to sink the vessel, the steamer Queen arrived in this port yesterday. During the period of peril, which created a panic among the 200 passengers on board, 14 persons lost their lives. Three were burned to death, three were suffocated, one died from exposure and seven were drowned.

Of the survivors many are prostrated. The women did nobly, and two of them sacrificed their lives. One died from exposure and exhaustion; another fell from the deck while aiding the small children to reach the life boats.

Deal Completed.

Washington, Feb. 27.—President Roosevelt at 11:50 a. m. yesterday signed the proclamation putting into effect the treaty with Panama regarding the isthmian canal. As soon as the proclamation was signed it was returned to the state department where the exchange of ratifications already had taken place between Secretary of State Hay and Minister Buneau-Varilla, of Panama.

Kruger Dying in Exile.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 29.—A letter received in this city by Gen. Benjamin Viljoen, formerly of the Boer army, announces that ex-President Kruger, of the Boer republic, is slowly dying as an exile in Mentone, France, and that Dr. Reitz, state secretary under President Kruger, is also an exile in Holland and a constant sufferer from nervous prostration.

Scaffold Fell.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—James Byron was killed, two other men were severely wounded and 19 had narrow escapes from being crushed beneath ten tons of lumber shortly after noon yesterday when a monster scaffold, reaching from the main floor of the new post office building to the top of the large done in the center of the structure, a distance of 170 feet, collapsed.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Eggs and Poultry.

Minnesota is not generally considered a poultry and egg state, yet poultry and eggs are seventh in the list of farm products. The shipments from Minnesota points in 1899, according to the United States census reports, were valued at $7,364,856. It would have required a train more than twenty miles long to haul the egg shipments alone.

Wheat, amounting annually to $50,601,948, heads the list of Minnesota farm products. Then follow the dairy products, animals sold, oats, hay and corn. Eggs and poultry are next. Than comes barley, valued at $7,220,739, and flaxseed, valued at $5,898,556. Still the average citizen does not consider eggs and poultry as important a product as flaxseed.

With the settlement of Minnesota the production of poultry has increased rapidly. Compared with Wisconsin, Minnesota makes an excellent showing, altho it is still considerably behind Iowa, the banner egg state of the union.

The number of chickens in Minnesota in 1879 is given at 2,258,385; Wisconsin, 3,855,726; Iowa, 8,539,774. In 1890 Minnesota had 4,744,211, Wisconsin 6,173,812 and Iowa 21,928,273. The figures for 1900 show a still large increase except for Iowa, altho in that year poultry less than three months, old was not counted. Minnesota had 8,142,693, valued at $2,274,648; Wisconsin had 8,447,549 valued at $2,410,714, and Iowa 20,843,347, valued at $6,535,464.

Outlaw Dogs.

There are two outlaw dogs in Duluth upon whose head a price is set. One is described as a bulldog and the other as a wooly-looking creature, and they travel together, killing dogs they run across, without the slightest regard to pedigree.

The highest priced dog killed by the murderous canines is rated at $100, and was owned by Dr. H. V. Goetichus. A dozen other dogs have been killed by the fierce brutes and individual rewards are offered for them, dead or alive.

Several dogs have been severely injured, but escaped with their lives. The strange dogs are operating in the eastern half of the city in the best residence districts. They will be killed on sight.

We Won Again.

Dairy Commissioner McConnell has received word that Minnesota butter makers took first and second place in the first of the series of six national scoring contests, conducted by the National Creamery Butter Makers' asssociation, and the dairy division of the department of agriculture. H. C. Hansen, of Smith Mills, ranked first in the country on this test, with a score of 97, and H. A. Goetsch, of Money Creek second, with 96¼.

This contest was held in Chicago. The next one will occur there, and the last four will be at the St. Louis exposition, the highest average in these four getting the exposition medal.

Socialists.

The nomination of state officers by the Socialists in the state convention hall occupied the attention of the delegates during the greater part of the session.

Following is the complete ticket: Governor, J. E. Nash, Minneapolis; lieutenant governor, O. E. Lofthus, Shelly; secretary of state, J. E. Carlson, St. Paul; state treasurer, C. E. Keith, Mankato; attorney general, G. W. Downing, Fergus Falls; railroad and warehouse commissioner, C. C. Talbott.

Children escaped.

The Crosby Mine boarding house, located at Nashwank, a small mining town, has been destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $6,500.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Draper, who conduct the boarding house, were left alone in the building by the temporary absence of their mother. One of the children amused himself by raking coals out of the stove to the floor, which ignited. The children, realizing their danger, left the house for a place of safety. The fire found its path and the building was soon consumed.

Wild Geese.

A flock of fifty wild geese alighted in a swamp near the state fish hatchery. Executive Agent S. F. Fullerton stated that at dark the geese remained in the swamp and apparently had not decided whether to go on North or to turn back to the South.

The geese came from the South. The arrival of geese it is believed usually indicates the approach of spring. Mr. Fullerton said he had never before observed geese coming from the south at this time of year.

THE PERPLEXING INITIAL

By CHARLES SLOAN REID

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The roar of the river as its waters tumbled over the rocks drowned the sound of footsteps, drowned even the sigh of the breeze among the tree tops. A dense shadow lay over the gorge, for the sun was behind a cloud.

The fish in the stream had not been biting to suit a young fisher woman, and she had thrust her pole into the bank and gone aside to carve something in the bark of an old beech. Laboriously she worked away and at length had completed a single large A.

A man approached along the river trail and stood directly behind the girl, watching her work. A flush passed over his face when he saw the letter the girl had carved, and he frowned. Then he coughed, and the girl was startled. She turned quickly around.

"You, Amos?" she exclaimed.

"Me, Marth," was the answer.

"Why didn't ye whistle or somethin' 'fore ye got so close?"

"Wanted to see what ye're doin'."

Marth's face reddened slightly.

"Well?"

"Well, I see ye've got that schoolteacher in yer mind."

"'Tain't so. Now, I wonder what put that in yer head?"

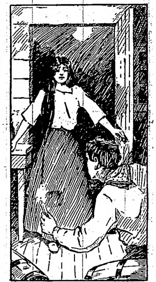
"I see ye're fixin' to carve his name."

Marth looked up at the letter in the bark, then looked at Amos in silence.

"Don't reckon ye can hardly deny it," continued Amos jealously, "for I don't reckon ye could say that letter stood for anybody else around these parts but Aldrich; so I put it up ye're a-thinkin' a right smart about that same schoolteacher."

"Amos Underwood, ye haven't got a grain o' sense. Ye can't see two inches afore yer nose." Marth's eyes were dancing.

"I reckon ye think so, Marth. But I think I know what's what when a girl carves a chap's name on a tree. Marth, girl, I think ye might have spared me this kind o' thing, an' me thinkin' of ye the way I do. Ye might have waited till I was—till somethin' had happened to me. Then I'd allers thought ye loved me."



SPRINGING THROUGH THE OPENING, SHE CALLED HIS NAME.

Marth glanced again at the letter in the bark, then back at Amos, and looked disgusted.

"I never said I was a-thinkin' one mite about the schoolteacher, have I?"

"Not with yer mouth, but ye've said it up there with yer pocket knife." Amos pointed at the big letter in the bark.

Marth turned a steady gaze, full of fire, upon the man's face for a moment, then let her words fly.

"Amos Underwood," she snapped, "ye're the biggest gump I ever saw. I hate ye. I despise ye. Now, ye go. And I do hope the revenues will get ye this very night."

"Marth, I"— Amos had taken off his hat.

"No ye don't!" Marth stamped her foot. "Ye've said enough. Go!"

She pointed up the trail, and Amos moved slowly away.

Marth had wound up her fish line by the time Amos had gone from view, and she turned toward the old beech again.

"The crazy," she murmured. "He couldn't remember his own name started with A. Well, he's gone, and I'm glad of it. I do hate a man that can't see with his eyes open."

The girl followed the trail to the top of the ridge, then turned off to the left and went toward a cabin on the side of the mountain.

As the afternoon dragged along Marth went over and over in her mind the scene on the river bank, and at each rehearsal she softened a little toward Amos until at last each return of the wish she had uttered deepened her regret, for in a superstitious way she feared that her wish might bring the officers into that part of the country, and Amos would indeed be in danger.

But Marth kept herself busy all the while, trying to drive out of her mind the scene and her words under the branches of the old beech.

At dusk she milked the cows, then went to the spring for a pail of water. As she stood and began slowly to dip the water from the rocky basin with a long handled gourd her quick ear caught the sound of hoof beats against the stones, and she turned her head and peered through the woods to the right of her. Just across a shallow ravine a trail led around the side of the mountain, and on this trail Marth's eyes could now see three shadowy horses and riders, and there was a gleam of polished metal which told the girl that each rider had a gun strapped to his back.

For a moment Marth's heart stood still. She knew she was gazing upon the dreaded revenue officers, and her thoughts flew to Amos, more than three miles away down the ravine, where he would soon be at work in the distillery.

The girl sat motionless until the riders had passed a bowlder which protruded from the hillside. Then she seized her pail and ran up the trail to the cabin. There was but one thought in her head. Amos must be warned and saved at any cost. Saddling a small mule which she led from the stable, she leaped upon his back, dragged a shotgun up after her and rested it upon the animal's neck. Then she set off along a trail which diverged from that taken by the officers.

The mule was soon urged into a trot, and this pace he was forced to keep up down the rugged, water worn trail through the darkness of the deep woods. Marth sat like a statue on the animal's back, with her ears strained to catch the least sound and her eyes wide open for any sign of the officers. The murkiness of the woods seemed to hold no terrors for her. She was thinking of the unrighteous wish she had uttered to Amos.

At last she reached a high rock overlooking a bluff, and she stopped and listened intently. Then, slipping down from the saddle, she crept into a laurel thicket on one side of the rock and after a few minutes came out in the glare of a furnace fire. She was at the doorway of Amos Underwood's stillhouse. Springing through the opening, she called his name. Amos turned quickly, and his hand grasped the butt of a revolver, but when he saw Marth he allowed his chin to drop to his breast, and his hand fell limply to his side.

"Have ye brought 'em, Marth?" he asked.

"No, Amos, but they're comin', an' I've come all the way here to warn ye so's ye could save yerself. I'm sorry for what I said, though I didn't reckon I'd ever own it."

"Marth, I—I reckon, then, ye do love me some, though ye did start to carve"—

"Amos, jest plain Amos, on that tree. I reckon A stands for Amos, don't it, crazy?"

"Marth, I've been a gum fool! But I'm powerful happy right now."

He extended his arms toward Marth, but the girl backed away.

"No time for that, Amos. Don't ye hear them hoof beats?"

The moonshiner caught the girl's hand, and together they sprang into the laurel. Five minutes later they stood on the rock above the stillhouse and listened to the work of destruction that was being carried on by the raiders' axes.

"Well, ye're safe anyhow, Amos," whispered Marth, and Amos, catching her in his arms, tousled her hair with his chin.

The Beverage of Paraguay.

Mate, the national beverage of Paraguay, is brewed from the dried leaves of the ilex and does not intoxicate. Mate can be drunk hot or cold, it can be taken with cream and sugar, like tea or coffee, and it can be used "straight," which seems by far the best way of drinking it. Plain mate is quite bitter, and, like beer, it is an acquired taste. The first sip gives a distinctly bitter taste, and the drinker sets down his glass with a wry face. Presently, as soon as the bitter effect wears off, the imbiber has a pleasant recollection of the sensation. By this time the powerful stimulating property of the drink has begun to work and the drinker feels like taking another sip. Mate makes the user of it "feel good," makes him look with a brighter eye on the dark side of life, makes him forget his troubles for the moment, and, best of all, unlike beer, it makes him feel like working or doing something with his brain or his hands instead of loafing or gossiping.

Chemists who have carefully analyzed mate say that it is perfectly harmless. It has only the smallest percentage of caffeine and volatile oils, and it never leaves a bad after effect. Even when the drinker has a disordered stomach or bad nerves the consumption of mate is not followed by unpleasant feelings.

Geographical Taffy.

"What town is this?" asked the eminent statesman, who was making a political tour of the provinces.

"Ionia," they told him.

The eminent statesman stepped out to the rear platform of the gorgeous private car in which he was traveling.

"My countrymen," he said impressively to the cheering throng at the station, "your beautiful and thriving young city has a rare distinction. Independently of its commerce and manufactures, independently of its charming location, independently, I may add, of the stalwart men and fair women who inhabit it, so many of whom I see before me, not forgetting these bright and winsome young children who are also here, the hope and mainstay of the republic—independently, I say, of all these, your lovely city"—

—"has the rare distinction of bearing a name that has only five letters and yet has four syllables!"

The applause as the train moved away was simply deafening.—Chicago Tribune.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM,

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

TOM SHEVLIN and Tom Lowry are condidates for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention. Isn't it funny how people who could not be elected to office by the people always find it easy to control legislatures and conventions?

THE Democratic state convention to select delegates to the national convention will be held at Duluth, June 26. This is the first time in a great many years that either of the leading political parties has called a state convention outside of the Twin cities.

THE managers of the Collins campaign have had a disagreement. Sam Johnson bounced P. A. Gunders because the latter had the temerity to say a good work for Bob Dunn, but Jim Martin was not long in seeing that the action of the public examiner would prove a boomerang and disavows any connection with the dismissal.

THE editor and publisher of the Cosmopolitan Magazine makes an appeal for an investigation by congress of the post office department, and asks the removal of the postmaster-general and the third assistant postmaster-general as a preliminary to any porperand honest investigation.

THE friends of John Morgan, of Thief River Falls, are urging his candidacy as a district delegate to the Democratic national convention. Mr. Morgan is a member of the state central committee, and his Democracy can be traced back to the cradle. Red Lake county will certainly do all it can to advance John's condidacy, and we are pleased to learn than he has many friends in the other counties of the district.

FIGURES given out by the state board of control show that there are 6,636 persons confined in state institutions—penal and charitable—against 6,377 inmates in the same institutions this time last year. There are found to be 3,896 persons in insane hospitals, 2,276 males and 1,620 females. In correctional and penal institutions are 1,190 males, 86 females, a total of 1,276. The state prison at Stillwater has 635 inmates but 9 of whom are females.

IT is altogether probable that some of the Minnesota congressmen will have opposition at the primaries this year. It is semi-officially given out that Editor H. J. Miller of Luverne will go after McCleary's scalp in the Second, and Buckman and Volstead with not have smooth sailing. Halvor Steenerson appears to be more foatunate, and up to date there is no talk of an opposition candidate, although one or two aspiring Republicans are alleged to be grooming for a contest in 1906.

INTEREST in the opening of the Red Lake reservation lands is shown by the fact that the senators and members of congress from this state are being deluged with letters asking for copies of the bill that resulted in the opening of lands. These requests come from all parts of the state and from all other states, in fact. The supply of the documents has been exhausted, and Senator Clapp has introduced a resolution providing for the printing of a supply numbering 4,000 for immediate use. The demand for the terms under which the land may be taken means that the rush of settlers will be heavy when the opening actually occurs.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. | WM. ITTNER, | W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

The class of 1904 has a membership of eleven.

Several business callers were at the high school this week.

Wednesday's blizzard caused a large absence at the high school.

The Seniors will have the second rehearsal of their class play Saturday.

Clement LaBissoniere was absent last week and returned to school Monday.

Some of the tri-yearly examinations were held Wednesday. The remainder will follow on Thursday and Friday.

It is now about two weeks since the "hatchet" trial and the Athenians are still off their feet.

The dreams of half-holidays on the warm days of spring were rudely shattered by Wednesday's gale.

The physics class is reviewing this week. The class performed some interesting experiments last week.

The seating arrangement of the assembly room has been slightly changed. The "ring" of girls down in the corner was broken.

The question for the debate which will occur on March 11 is "Resolved, That the American Indian Has Been Wrongfully Dispossessed of the Land on the American Continent by the White Man." Alice Erickson, Lillian Nauman and Rose Sutter will argue for the affirmative and Harry Garceau, Vina Carver and Clara Marchand for the negative.

The program of the Spartans will be given tomorrow, and visitors are cordially invited to attend. It is as follows: Song by the school; humorous recitation, Clara Marchand; book review, Ella Krueger; vocal solo, Margaret Kaus; recitation, Orson Doe; essay, Harry Garceau; recitation, Elsie Mead; character sketch, Edna Swanson; essay, Mamie Linnihan; song by school.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Crades.)

We hope to have another spell-down.

Carl Buse was absent a few days of last week.

The tri-yearly examinations began last Wednesday. We hope to win both banners.

The sixth grade had an experiment in oxygen and carbonic acid gas in reading class last week.

The fifth and sixth grades had their regular examinations for the month of February last Friday.

Nine of the scholars were late last week. The reason for their tardiness was that they were playing on the ice until the last bell rang.

If the fifth and sixth grades of the Washington building win both banners this term we are going to have a celebration, so all of the pupils are working hard.

The pupils of the second grade gave a program February 26. The first grade was invited. Many visitors were present, and all the children seemed to enjoy the exercises.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school gave a program last Friday and it was very successful. There were present seventeen grown people and six young ladies from the high school

The Minerva literary society gave the following program last Friday: Song, "Come, O Come With Me," school; essay, "How I Spent My Summer Vacation," Joseph Skala; recitation, "The Robin and the Buttercup," Clara Bourdon; story, "The Old Fashioned School," Lizzie Schlessinger; recitation, "Story of an Apple," Matthew Kotschaver; reading, "Two Farmers Fight With a Leopard," Walter Garceau; song, "She Wears a Red Rose," four girls; recitation, "Seeing Things at Night," Marcus Marshall; essay, "A Blueberrying Party," Florence Hennemuth; recitation, "Somebody's Mother," Alice Zaiser; letter from Sitka, Alaska, Nathalie Kriel; recitation, "Babies and Kittens," Judith Rue; song, "Dip the Oar," school.

OPHTHALMOLOGY.

Dr. Lanctot will visit Red Lake Falls again on Wednesday and Thursday, March 16 and 17, 1904. Dr. Lanctot will have some interesting literature on Ophthalmology. Call at Grand View hotel and get a free book.

WYLIE.

William Tyselling loaded a car of oats Monday.

Nick Eckstein was a business visitor at St. Hilaire Sunday.

H. A. Johnson and Andy Letvig visited at St. Hilaire last Sunday.

Mrs. J. C. Thill went to Crookston Wednesday night to consult Dr. Dunlop.

John Hedland left for the Pacific coast last Monday. He expects to purchase a farm there.

Miss Lizzie Helm was here this week attending to the wants of our ladies in the way of fashionable millinery.

Chas. Gerlash jr. has been hauling lumber for some days to be used in the construction of a fine new house.

Several of the young people from Wylie were entertained by P. A. Nelson last Sunday. Mr. Nelson will soon move back to Atwater, Minn.

Mrs. M. E. Todd went to Crookston last Wednesday to visit the family of her brother, Charles Sletten, who leaves this week for Hood River, Oregon.

There are a few items we dare not mention for fear of personal injury, viz: we dare not say anything about Ab's fast drive to town or Ikey's "long" day.

Henry Tyselling has finished a very successful term of school in the town of Bray last Friday. Henry is contemplating a course at a business college this spring.

Aug. Moran has the lumber on the ground for a new house to be built in the spring. Mr. Morin is one of the most successful farmers in this community and we are pleased to note these signs of prosperity.

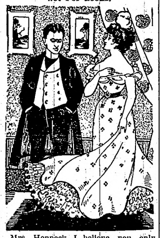
The blizzard seriously interfered with the special sale of our up-to-date merchants, Romsos Bros. We understand these special sale days will be a feature of their business in the future. Watch for them and take advantage of the cut prices.

This spring you will need a nerve food, one that will cleanse and reconstruct your nerve centers and wasted energies. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do it. 35 cents. Tea or Tablets. A. L. Reichert.

Buy Spectacles and Eyeglasses

where your eyes will be carefully and scientificaly examined. Our optical department is the place where you will get the best for you money and where you may be sure of a perfect fit.—Henry W. Anderson, Optican.

Not For Looks.



Mrs. Henpeck—I believe you only married me for my money.

Mr. Henpeck—Everybody else thinks the same thing.

Any form not in stock will be printed to order, provided a reasonable number are taken.

Notice of Dissolution.

The partnership heretofore e isting between Leo Steinert and C. F. Johnson, known as the Northern Minnesota Milling Co., is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

Dated this 1st day of March, 1904.

LEO STEINERT,
C. F. JOHNSON,

m3-17

LATE LOCALS.

Hon. Marcus Johnson is up from St. Paul this week.

E. M. Hoff was down from St. Hilaire Saturday on business.

Attorney Chas. E. Boughton was a business visitor to St. Hilaire over Friday night.

For Rent—A number of improved farms. Inquire of Union Land & Investment Co.

The subject of Rev. Knox's communion sermon Sunday morning will be "Our Union with Christ."

Carl Pochardt arrived today from Marshall, Minn., and will prepare for spring work on his farm near town.

Mrs. R. H. Duntley has been sick with pneumonia this week. Mr. Duntley came down from St. Hilaire yesterday to look after the confectionery store.

Miss Janette Martin, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere, for several weeks, returned to her home at Crookston Saturday.

The topic for the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening will be "How Christ stills the storms of life;" Ps. 107: 23-31. The leader will be Miss Stella Hennemuth.

H. P. Benson will have an auction sale on his farm in Gervais township next Wednesday, March 9, bills for the same having been printed at the COURIER office today. Mr. Benson has quite a large list of stock and machinery.

Rev. Father Fayolle has been suffering from a mild attack of pneumonia for the past week, and no services were held Sunday because of his illness. The many friends of the genial rector will hope that he will soon be restored to perfect health.

Thief River News: At the request of the sheriff of Stearns county, George Jarman arrested Mike Wagner last week. Wagner is charged with stealing an overcoat from a Sauk Center man, and has been taken there to answer to the charge. His wife and family reside in this city.

Michel LaPlante, a resident of Wyandotte, was examined by Judge Tarrant Monday for insanity, but as a number of physicians testified that he was not insane but simply a victim of disease he was released. Mr. LaPlante left the same day for Canada, where he has relatives.

A suit in justice court was tried before Judge Lewis Monday involving a claim of $50 by John Deforge against Messrs. Skala and Schmitz for payment for stock taken up by Mr. Deforge last summer in his capacity as poundmaster. The jury found a verdict of $10 in favor of Deforge.

Ole Finsand came near losing a valuable horse last Friday. He had delivered a load of wood at the residence of S. L. Lewis, and in driving away the team broke through a well covering, and both horses were precipitated into the water. After an hour's work the horses were rescued without apparent injury.

Rev. Donald McKenzie, who preached at the Presbyterian church Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. was entertained at the home of Rev. H. W. Knox. Revs. McKenzie and Knox were classmates at the Auburn Theological seminary, and no doubt the visit was greatly enjoyed by both of the reverend gentlemen.

It will be noticed elsewhere that Leo Steinert has retired from the Northern Minnesota Milling company, and the business is now managed solely by C. F. Johnson. The milling plant is shut down temporarily, but the feed mill is running, and Mr. Johnston tells us that he expects to arrange to start up the mill at full capacity in the near future.

Crookston Times: John Gilbertson, who is alleged to be the father of an illegitimate child born to Miss Simonson, of Thief River Falls, and who turned up missing all of a sudden, will probably be arrested today if he has not already been apprehended in the lumber camps near Cass Lake or Bemidji. The child was born in this city a few days ago, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Gilbertson and placed in the hands of an officer.

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

Senator Allison and Senator Spooner have a contention. It is about a channel in the Mississippi river along the boundary line between the great state of Wisconsin and the great state of Iowa.

Mr. Spooner recently presented a resolution in the senate. It asked for a committee of the senate committee on commerce to proceed westward at some convenient season and ascertain what diabolical work the government is doing opposite the county of Grant by closing the Glen Haven channel. "It has been navigable for rafts and steamboats," announced Mr. Spooner, with an eloquent flourish, "for forty years."

Mr. Allison demurred. He understood that a committee of army engineers was already investigating the same subject.

"There is no constitutional objection to my offering a resolution, I hope," observed Mr. Spooner.

"None whatever," retorted Mr. Allison.

"The senator and myself will have some exchange of views probably when the resolution is reported," remarked Mr. Spooner nonchalantly.

"Very well," said Senator Allison. And with a little further dialogue the two rested their cases. But when the right day comes they are expected to thrash over the question of that boundary as vigorously as any two farmers ever contested their line fences.

Reeder's Committees.

An experience meeting was held in the house cloakrooms the other day on the Republican side, and most of the time was devoted to saying things about Speaker Cannon in connection with committee assignments. The protests were perfervid in many instances, but none equaled the famous shriek of Reeder of Kansas, who found himself on the three committees of ventilation and acoustics, irrigation and mileage when the list was read in his first term.

"Great Scott!" shouted Reeder. "Wind, water and distance? They must think I am a combination of the weather bureau, the coast survey, and a railroad time table."

Only America Awake.

On the mantelpiece in the office of the supervising architect of the treasury stand four statuettes, rough models in plaster, designed only to show effects and indifferent as to the relative proportions of parts, which may one day be enlarged to heroic size and done in marble for the decoration of the four corners of the new custom house in New York city. They are the work of Daniel C. French, the eminent sculptor, and suggest apparently the varying conditions of commerce in the four great divisions of the earth. The principal figure in each piece is a woman. Asia is represented by a magnificent but cold oriental type, with the pose and surroundings of one dead. Europe bears the signs of a nonvigorous life, and all around her are the indices of decay. She is evidently stricken with death, though still struggling against it. Africa's head has fallen forward on her breast, and her whole figure is relaxed in the attitude of sleep. America is robust, awake, alert, in the full maturity of healthy power.

The designs have been approved, and Mr. French will probably soon go to work upon the larger models, from which the final marbles will be fashioned.

The Annoyances Without the Wealth

Some time ago a facetious friend of Elmer Dover, Senator Hanna's secretary, sent out a story to the effect that in addition to the salary allowed him by law Senator Hanna also paid Mr. Dover his senatorial salary and that Dover was making so much money that he had to keep it down in the cellar in barrels.

The story went the rounds, being copied by papers from Maine to California. The great majority of readers of course accepted the story at its true worth—as a bit of pleasantry. Others, however, appear to have read and literally believed, and Mr. Dover's mail has been flooded with begging letters. They come from almost every state of the Union and demand money for almost every conceivable project.

A few of the writers are frank enough to put their request for assistance on the ground that they need the money. Others want help for needy widows and orphans "who always have voted the Republican ticket," and the pastors of struggling churches seek assistance, and colleges and universities ask endowments.

Mr. Dover expresses the belief that the annoyances of a rich man are sufficiently hard to bear, but that it is asking a little too much that he should have to suffer the annoyances without having the riches.

A dispatch from Washington states that Representative Steenerson called at the postoffice department on Saturday and recommended the reinstatement of Andrew Eiken, postmaster at Crookston, who was suspended from the office some time ago because of irregularities in his postal account. Mr. Steenerson filed with the postmaster general a statement from Eiken in which he explains the cause of his irregularities, which he claims were unintentional and with no thought of defrauding the government.

Gather the roses of health for your cheeks,
While the parks are shining with dew
Get out in the morning early and bright,
By taking Rocky Mountain Tea at night.
A. L. Reichert.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Alexander Rogers and Miss Isabel Bulman, both of Thief River Falls, were married Monday evening by Rev. Geo. E. Satterlee, at Crookston.

H. N. Johnson will leave today or tomorrow for Park River, N. D., to engage upon his new work as manager of the Robertson Lumber company.

It is semi-officially stated that the Soo line will go through Erskine, and that contracts for construction work are being let with that understanding.

Auctioneer Joseph Belair reports that the Holzmer auction in Terrebonne Tuesday was largely attended and that everything was sold at very good prices.

The backbone of winter appears to be broken, and the weather this week has been more endurable. It seems unlikely that we can get much more forty-below salubrity.

Frank E. Hunt returned yesterday from St. Paul, where he has been attending the meeting of the state hardware association and looking after business matters.

There was quite a rush at the office of the county treasurer Monday to pay personal taxes. It was the last day before the penalty attached. The personal taxes are fairly well paid up.

B. O. Wilkinson and wife returned Tuesday from a month's visit with relatives and friends at Iowa Falls, Iowa. Master Leslie, son of Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, made the trip with them.

Our merchants are beginning to recieve their lines of spring goods. The Red Lake Falls merchants anticipate a heavy trade this spring, and are stocking up quite heavily in consequence.

Carl Nelson, formerly a traveling salesman for the Empire Cream Seperator Co., has been employed by Joseph Helm, and will assist in selling goods for that popular machinery emporium this seson.

Wood prices have advanced somewhat this week. It is said that the supply of dry wood is about exhausted and from now on the roads will be in bad shape. At present dry poplar is commanding $3.50 per cord.

J. E. Buskirk, one of our Lillo friends, was a business visitor to the city Tuesday and made his annual settlement with the Courier. Mr, Buskirk reports the arrival of a boy baby at his home a few weeks ago.

The Busy store has the largest stock of fish during the lenten season. Among them are toout, smoked bloaters, salmon trout, herring, fresh and salted herring, cod fish and salmon steak.—Garceau & Zaiser

Conductors Spears, Lockman and Withey take turns at running the cannon-ball limited on the Red Lake Falls line. The same conductors are in charge of the new daylight passenger between Crookston and Barnesville.

Peter A. Nelson's auction in Black River township, which was to have been held Wednesday, has been postponed on account of the stormy weather until next Monday, March 7. Mr. Nelson has a large list of stock, machinery, grain, household goods, etc. Remember the date, March 7.

Last Thursday Dr. Patterson of Lambert, assisted by Dr. Neeral of McIntosh, reduced a dislocation of the hip on the six-year-old child of Simon Bernier, of Lambert township. The operation was a success, and the doctors deserve great credit. The child is doing as well as could be expected.

The weather bureau reports that February, 1904, was the coldest Feburary in the history of Minnesota. Barring the last five days the temperature averaged below the zero mark throughout the month. The nearest record month was in 1875, when the thermometer registered an average of 7 above.

Thomas Green left yesterday for Montana to buy two carloads of Western horses for the firm of Sieff & Green. This firm expects to do quite an extensive business in horses this year. They will have a carload of Illinois horses here in a few days, and will receive additional shipments as the market warrants.

Don't fail to attend the creamery and dairy meeting at the opera house Saturday afternoon, March 5. This meeting will be addressed by Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, and other specialists from the department. Remember there is no charge for admission and everybody is welcome.

The county commissioners meet at Thief River Falls next Thursday to take action in the Ragnald Ronning case. Mrs. Ronning is a pauper and there is a dispute between the townships of North and Numedal as to her residence. Auditor Ford and County Attorney Grady will accompany the members of the board.

Rev. Donald McKenzie, of Crookston, assisted Rev. Knox in holding special meetings at the Presbyterian church Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Rev. McKenzie is one of the most eloquent preachers in this part of the country. The meetings will continue all of this week, and close with the communion service Sunday morning.

James McIntyre, the Thief River attorney, has pulled up stakes and left this week for Blaine, Wash., where he will be cashier of a new bank organized there. Mr. McIntyre has been a resident of the county for two years past, and in the last campaign was the Republican candidate for judge of probate. His many friends will wish him success in his new field of activity.

The township elections are to be held on Tuesday March 8. In many of the towns considerable interest is being manifest in the result and some hustling is being done for the places. We ask all of our correspondents and friends to send in results from their towns in order that we may gave a complete list of the new officials.

A teachers' training school will be held at Red Lake Falls this summer, commencing in July and continuing four weeks. The conductor will be Prof. E. E. McIntyre, superintendent of the Crookston schools and president of the Minnesota Educational society. He will be assisted by Prof. C. S. Yaeger, of Fosston, and one or two other instructors.

Oliver Caron returned Saturday from Calumet, Mich., to which place he was called some weeks ago by the serious illness of his father. Mr. Caron reports that the old gentleman is not much improved, and that he may die at any time. The winter in northern Michigan, according to Mr. Caron, has been unusually severe and they have at least twice as much snow as we have in Red Lake county.

Before Judge Watts Saturday, arguments were made by Attorney Whipple of Duluth for a new trial in the case of Iver Johnson vs. the St. Hilaire Lumber company. Johnson sued the company for $500 damages for being wrongfully discharged and was awarded a verdict of $268 at the last term of court in Red Lake county. The case will be carried to the supreme court.

Dr. J. B. McNerthney, of Tacoma, Wash., arrived Tuesday for a visit with friends and relatives in this vicinity. Dr. McNerthney is a son of John McNerthney, a former well-known resident of this vicinity, and will be remembered by all of the older residents of the community. The Doctor reports that he has met with great success in his new home and is warm in his praise of the Coast country.

J. A. Walker and wife returned Saturday from Port Elgin, Ont., where they have been visiting for the past four months with Mr. Walker's relatives. Mr. Walker says the winter there has been exceptionally severe and the snow so heavy that train and wagon traffic has been greatly hampered. From all reports the past winter has been a hard one all over the north and central portions of North America.

The creamery manager engaged a few weeks ago is unable to take the position tendered him, and this week the officers have made a contract with F. Thompson, of Watonwan county, who has had several years successful experience in creamery work. Mr. Thompson is expecteed here next week. William Lauritzon, the present manager, will have charge of the Emardville creamery again this summer.

The COURIER is requested by the county auditor's office to call the attention of tax payers to the necessary fee that must accompany all delinquent tax payments and which goes toward the payment of publishers' fees. The amount is 30 cents, which is the charge for every property description published. Several instances arising in which there has been more or less misunderstanding in this matter it has been deemed advisable to call the attention of delinquents to this particular feature. After a judgment is entered an additional fee of 10 cents is tacked on to all delinquencies.

BAD BLAZE AT THIEF RIVER

Six Buildings in Business Center of Town Destroyed by Fire Saturday.

Thief River Falls had a $15,000 fire Saturday morning. The fire broke out in the bowling alley managed by K. J. Weeks at about 8 o'clock, and before it was got under control six buildings were burned. The trouble originated in an overheated stove, and the building was a mass of flames before the department reached the scene.

Owing to the excessive cold and the freezing of the hose the work of the fire fighters were not effective, and it soon became apparent that most of the buildings on that block would be burned, with grave probability that the greater part of the business district of the city would be destroyed. Finally it was decided to blow up Curtiss' drug store with dynamite, and the progress of the flames was stopped at this point. The losses and insurance are given out as follows:

K. J. Weeks, bowling alley and office building, loss $1,000, insurance $500; John Morgan, saloon, loss $6,000, insurance $2,000; Delmonico restaurant, loss $500, insurance $300; Curtis Drug company, loss $1,000, fully insured; James Meehan, three buildings, loss $3,500, insurance $1,900.

The stock of the drug store was nearly all removed, and the goods in the offices and lodging rooms over the building were nearly all saved. It is understood that several of the prominent citizens have made an offer for the corner burned out, and if they get it will erect a modern three-story hotel, with business rooms on the first floor.

On some lines of merchandise there is a possibility of two much advertising, and probably this is true of leap year matrimonial bargains. On the subject the Crookston Times says: "No weddings have as yet been reported as a result of the bargain counter offerings of old bachelors at Red Lake or Thief River, although the goods were displayed in the most tempting manner by the papers up river."

F. D. Packard and Will D. Fee, representing the Crookston Journal, were in the city yesterday doing missionary work for the subscription department of their paper. The Journal has been greatly improved under the new management, and deserves to succeed. The Journal now has a complete Associated Press service and the general news features compare very favorably with the more pretentious metropolitan dailies.

A state farmers' institute was held at the opera house Tuesday afternoon, and the meeting was addressed by Prof. Hoverstad, manager of the Crookston experiment station, and other members of the state institute corps. Unfortunately the meeting was not advertised, and at the time of the editor's visit to the meeting less than a dozen farmers were present. It seems too bad that the time of the instructors should be wasted because of the incompetent work of the advertising bureau. The same mistake was made here two years ago, and someone is certainly to blame for this condition of affairs. The farmers of this vicinity can be got out to a meeting if the proper kind of advertising is done.

RUSSIANS SUFFER ANOTHER DEFEAT.

JAPANESE FLEET TOLD TO CAPTURE RUSSIAN STRONGHOLD AT ALL COSTS.

RUSSIAN SCOUTS ARE DRIVEN BACK BY JAPS

Clash Reported on Corean Territory—Reported Loss of Two Japanese Boats Confirmed—Request of the United States Granted.

Yinkow, March 1—Fifteen Japanese warships appeared off Port Arthur at 10 a. m. yesterday and at once began a furious bombardment. The cruisers Novik, Askold and Bayan, with four torpedo boats, steamed out to meet the attack, but they were forced to retire. The Askold was in a sinking condition and the Novik was badly damaged. A torpedo boat was sunk and the Retvizan again was damaged. The bombardment lasted two hours. The Japanese fleet then withdrew in perfect order, and without loss. Much damage in the city is reported to have been done by shells from the Japanese warships.

Two Jap Boats Destroyed.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—An official news agency Monday published the following dispatch:

"Port Arthur, Feb. 29.—It is confirmed that a Japanese torpedo boat destroyer was blown up and another sunk during the recent fighting. The wreck of the latter was subsequently washed ashore."

Prepare to Defend Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Sunday, Feb. 28.—Gen. Stoessel, commander of the garrison here, has issued a general order directing the attention of the troops and inhabitants to the fact that the Japanese intend to land and seize the fortress. The general declares the Japanese consider the seizure of Port Arthur to be a question of national honor, and from their obstinate attacks and bombardments of the fortress and bays he can only conclude that the enemy will make every effort to capture the fortress, failing which the Japanese will destroy the railroad and withdraw.

"The enemy, however," proceeds the general order, "is mistaken. Our troops know and the inhabitants are herewith informed by me that we will not yield. We must fight to the finish, as I, the commandant, will never give an order to surrender. I bring this to the notice of those less daring and call on all to become convinced of the necessity of fighting to the death. Those who leave without fighting will not save themselves. There is no way out. On three sides there is the sea and on the fourth will be the enemy. There is no means of escape except by fighting."

Notwithstanding the heavy gale which is blowing the lights of Japanese scouting vessels were visible in the offing during the night.

Grants the Request.

Washington, March 1.—The Russian army formally has granted the request of the United States that certain officers of the American army be permitted to accompany the Russian troops and witness their operations in the war with Japan. Ambassador McCormick, in a cablegram informing Secretary Hay of this fact, states that the officers cannot join the Russian army before April 15, of the Russian calendar.

The officers who have been designated for this service are Col. J. B. Kerr, of the general staff; Capt. Carl Reichman, Seventeenth infantry, Capt. George Gatley, and Capt. William D. Judson, of the engineer corps. All of the above are in Manila except Capt. Judson, who is in this city and who will leave at once for St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The Novoe Vremya Monday publishes a remarkable editorial on the parallel between Port Arthur and Sebastopol, pointing out that the ports are identically situated, Golden Hill corresponding to the Malakoff, Dalny to Eupatoria, Admiral Alexieff to Admiral Nachimoff, and the Retvizan to the Tria Sviatitella. The editorial, however, warns the Russians to abjure fatalistic beliefs. Although written without knowledge of Gen. Stoessel's equally remarkable general order, issued at Port Arthur Sunday, the Novoe Vremya's editorial comes as a strong reinforcement of its purport, that Port Arthur must in no case be surrendered. Both seem to foreshadow a siege of Port Arthur and a bombardment, which a dispatch from Liao-Yang says it is rumored at Newchwang will occur Tuesday. Official opinion continues to be that the Japanese will make no attempt to invest Port Arthur immediately, although it is added that they evidently are determined to force matters as rapidly as possible. In 1894 they landed on the northern part of the peninsula and the Chinese made no resistance, still it took 28 days before Port Arthur was really invested. The object of the Japanese now may be to avoid this preliminary delay by disembarking their troops at Pigeon bay.

"If they do," said a naval expert, "they will meet with opposition which will render their plan impracticable."

China Japan's Ally.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—Discussing the attitude of China the Sviet says it considers China is a secret ally of Japan, and that "like America and Great Britain she will do everything possible to injure Russia." The Sviet anticipates that China eventually will become an open enemy [illegible] Russian authorities in the far east are already taking precautionary measures to ward off any sudden attack on the part of the Chinese.

Will Take Americans Away.

Washington, March 1.—United States Minister Allen cables the state department from Seoul that in pursuance of an arrangement he has made with the Japanese minister a returning transport will bring Americans from Ping Yang, a point in northwest Corea, near the border of Manchuria. The Americans in Seoul and vicinity have already been sent to the Philippines.

Mr. Allen says that Russian scouts, on arriving at Ping Yang Sunday, were pursued by the Japanese.

Provisions of Treaty.

Wei-Hai-Wei, March 1.—The treaty signed on Tuesday last between Japan and Corea provides for the latter conforming to Japanese ideas of reform, Japan pledging the safety of Corean royalty and territorial independence. Japan is authorized to resist the encroachments of a third party, and to occupy Corean territory, if necessary for strategic purposes. This provision of the treaty justifies Japan's occupation of Chemulpo and Seoul, and probable movements northward.

The treaty is considered highly satisfactory by both parties. A Corean envoy, who is proceeding to Peking, during an interview Monday with Gov. Lockhard expressed convictions that the treaty would be of the highest benefit to Corea, provided Russian encroachments were frustrated, and that Japan would incur Corea's deepest debt of gratitude.

PRAISE FOR PAYNE.

President Congratulates Postmaster General for Successful Presecution of Conspiracy Cases.

Washington, March 1—The president has sent the following letter to Postmaster General Payne:

"White House, Washington, Feb. 27, 1904.—My Dear Mr. Postmaster General: While all the work of the post office department and the department of justice in connection with the postal frauds is not yet over there is already to the credit of the departments, and therefore primarily to your credit, such an amount of substantial achievement that I take this opportunity to congratulate you personally upon it. It is impossible to expect that corruption will not occasionally occur in any government. The vital point is the energy, the fearlessness, and the efficiency with which such corruption is cut out and the corruptionists punished. The success of the prosecutions in this case, as compared with previous experiences in prosecuting government officials who have been guilty of malfeasance or misfeasance, is as noteworthy as it is gratifying, and must be a source of encouragement to all men who believe in decency and honesty in public life. What has been accomplished by you, by those who have worked under you in your department, and by the department of justice, redounds to the credit of the whole people and is a signal triumph for the cause of popular government. If corruption goes unpunished in popular government, then government by the people will ultimately fail, and they are the best friends of the people who make it evident that whoever in public office, or in connection with public office, sins against the fundamental laws of civic and social well being, will be punished with unsparing rigor.

"Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

ORDERS RELEASE OF TURNER

Supreme Court Grants Plea of British Anarchist and Sets Case for Hearing.

Washington, March 1.—In the supreme court of the United States Monday an order was issued for the release of John Turner, on bail, and setting the hearing of his case by the court for April 4 next. Turner is a British subject, who was taken into custody upon arrival in New York last October on the charge of being an anarchist, and his deportation ordered. He was detained at Ellis island and instituted habeas corpus proceedings in the circuit court for the Southern district of New York. His petition for a writ was denied, and he brought the case to the supreme court. It is claimed on behalf of Mr. Turner that he is only a theoretical anarchist. He came to the United States to engage in lecturing and writing. The application for release on bail was partly for the purpose of permitting Turner to fill lecture engagements in other countries.

A World's Fair Bank.

St. Louis, March 1.—To facilitate the handling of large sums of money during the exposition period, 17 of the largest banks and trust companies of St. Louis have organized the Bankers' World's Fair national bank, chartered by the federal government and capitalized at $200,000. The specific purpose of the bank is to have a convenient depository for the government funds, the gate receipts of the world's fair and the concessionaires, and for all those who wish to deposit their money for safe keeping. The bank will be located inside the grounds.

FOUND GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

JURY IN FAMOUS POSTAL TRIAL AT WASHINGTON RETURNS A VERDICT.

Machen, Diller B. Groff and Lorenz Must Serve Two Years in Penitentiary and Pay Fine of $10,000—Sentence of Fourth Postponed.

Washington, Feb. 27.—"Guilty as indicted," was the verdict announced by Carl Petersen, the foreman of the jury in the now famous post office conspiracy trial shortly after eight o'clock Friday night, stating at the same time that this was the verdict as to all four defendants, August W. Machen, late general superintendent of the rural free delivery division; George E. Lorenz, of Toledo, O., and Samuel and Diller B. Groff, of this city.

Motion for New Trial.

When the cases were called to-day for the the pronouncing of sentence, the counsel for the defense moved for a new trial. The motion was overruled as to all of the defendants except Samuel A. Groff, whose motion was left for further and separate consideration. After noting exception the defense made a motion to arrest judgment. This motion was overruled except as to Samuel A. Groff, whose motion will be considered later. Exceptions were noted by the defendants, and after arguments as to the sentence that should be pronounced, the court took a recess until 2:15 in the afternoon.

Are Given the Limit.

Justice Pritchard in the afternoon sentenced Machen, Diller B. Groff and Lorenz each to two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000 each. The court decided to make the several counts in the indictment constitute one offense. The beginning of their penitentiary sentence is to date from the time of their arrival at the penitentiary. All three defendants have given notice of appeal and have furnished bonds in the sum of $20,000.

Samuel A. Groff, the fourth defendant, has been allowed four days in which to prepare his case on motions for a new trial and arrest of judgment.

President Writes Letter.

Bandits Kill Mail Clerks.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 29.—Word has just been received here that an Alabama Great Southern passenger train was held up by train robbers at 1:50 this morning and two railway mail clerks killed.

MEET DEATH IN BLAST.

Five Workmen Are Killed by an Explosion in a Sugar Plant in Waukegan, Ill.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 25.—A terrific explosion of starch dust at 6:30 o'clock last evening wrecked two huge structures at the plant of the Warner Sugar Refining company in Waukegan and resulted in death and injury to workingmen.

Three bodies have been taken from the ruins, two of which have been identified. One man is missing and a dozen or more are injured. The estimated property loss is $1,000,000.

So great was the force of the explosion that the debris was hurled into trees and telegraph wires half a block on every side, and the ground between was covered with sections and bits of the brick walls and with the iron beams of the roof of the buildings. The known dead are as follows:

Jacob Spiece; ran starch machine.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Spark Drops Into Keg of Powder in Miner's Home—Woman Killed—Three Injured.

Bellaire, O., Feb. 26.—One woman is dead and three men fatally burned as a result of a powder explosion south of this city Thursday. Mrs. Michaiel Tondocovich was killed. The injured: Michael Tondocovich, Joseph Tondocovich and Samuel Waghigich. Tondocovich is a miner. He had a keg of powder in the kitchen and was stooping over it to fill his can preparatory to entering the Empire mine. A drop of burning oil from his miner's lamp fell into the powder and a terrific explosion followed, destroying the house and blowing the occupants to the street. All were burned about the face and upper part of the body and none can live. Seven shanties occupied by miners were destroyed in the fire.

Gen. Dick Named.

Columbus, O., Feb. 25.—Gen. Charles Dick was nominated by acclamation for both the unexpired and regular terms for United States senator, to succeed the late Senator Hanna, at the caucus of the republican members of the legislature last evening. The name of Gen. Dick was the only one presented. As the republicans have a large majority in both branches, Gen. Dick's election is assured, and the balloting on March 1 will be only a formality.

Tornado in Oregon.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 27.—A tornado struck the little town of Mount Tabor, a few miles east of Portland, Friday, and demolished two houses, besides damaging a number of other buildings. There were several narrow escapes, but so far as learned no one was seriously injured. The wind was accompanied by hail of unusual severity.

Ex-Congressman Dead.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 25.—Henry M. Pollard, aged 68 years, a prominent St. Louis attorney and former Missouri congressman, died Wednesday night at his home. Four months ago his health broke down, but he still continued actively engaged in his legal practice. His death came suddenly.

Landis Renominated.

Frankfort, Ind., Feb. 26.—Representative Charles B. Landis, of the Ninth Indiana district, was renominated by acclamation by the republicans yesterday. The resolutions indorsed the national and state administrations.

Pays the Penalty.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 26.—John Conroy, convicted of killing his wife while she was asleep in their home in this city on December 2, 1902, was hanged in the county jail yard yesterday.

Died at an Old Age.

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 26.—James Bare, the oldest man in western Iowa, is dead, aged 102. Bare never wore glasses, and could see to thread a needle up to the time of his death.

COUNTY BOARD MEETING.

Red Lake Falls, Minn.,
Feb. 23, 1904.

Pursuant to call the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county met in special session at the Court House at 1 o'clock p. m.

All members present.

Minutes of meeting of Feb. 1 and 2 read and approved.

Bids for bridge work were opened and considered.

Commissioner Johnson offered the following resolution:

Be it resolved that the bid of the Northwestern Bridge Co., of Moorhead, Minnesota, for repairing the bridge across the Red Lake River in the city of Thief River Falls for the sum of $1,325, be accepted and the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and the County Auditor be instructed to execute a contract with said Northwestern Bridge Co. for said repairs.

Adopted by unanimous vote.

Bids for construction of new steel bridge in city of Red Lake Falls laid aside to be considered later.

Commissioner Sutor offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, it appears from the application of the Town of Numedal in Red Lake county, that one Ragnald Ronning is a public charge of said Town, and said town claims that the said Ragnall Ronning is resident of the Township of Norden in said county, said application is made pursuant to Chapter 291 of the Laws of 1897 to have said Board to ascertain the legal residence of said Ragnald Ronning.

Be it Resolved, That the members of this Board meet at the city hall in the city of Thief River Falls in said county and state on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1904 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day to hear and receive the evidence of the respective Towns and all persons interested as to the legal residence of the said Ragnald Ronning.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be served upon the Chairman of the said Town of Norden not later than February 29, 1904.

Seconded by Commissioner Johnson and adopted by unanimous vote.

Feb. 24, 1904.

Board reconvened at 9 o'clock a. m.

All members present.

The bond of James Brady in the sum of $2,000 for the construction of piers under Terrebonne bridge was approved and the County Auditor instructed to draw his warrant in favor of said James Brady in accordance with the terms of the contract.

In the matter of the petition of Mike Grassman and others for a new school district, hearing on same was adjourned to March 12, 1904, at 1 o'clock p. m.

In the matter of the petition of J. B. Marcotte and others for a new school district, on motion carried unanimously the same was granted and the following order was made:

State of Minnesota, } SS.
County of Red Lake. }

The petition of J. B. Marcotte and others, who constitute a majority of the freeholders who are legal voters residing in the District hereinafter described, asking that the same be formed into a school district, having been presented to the Board of County Commissioners of said Red Lake county, and the County Superintendent of Schools having endorsed on such petition his written approval thereof; and it appearing that there are within such District so to be formed, the required number of residents between five and twenty-one years of age.

Now, said petition having been publicly read at a meeting of said Board of County Commissioners, held on the 24th day of February, A. D. 1904 and it having been duly considered by said Board,

It is by said board ordered, that a School District be, and the same is hereby formed within the Town of Louisville in the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, bounded and described as follows:

The west one half of section 3 and all of sections 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 16, 17 and 18 in Township 151, Range 45, the same to be known and designated as School District No. 22 in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, at a meeting held February 24, 1904.

[Seal] Wm. C. L. Demann,
Chm. Bd. Co. Comrs.

Attest:
James E. Ford,
County Auditor,
Red Lake County.

Feb. 25, 1904.

Board reconvened.

All members present.

On motion duly carried auctioneer's licenses were granted to O. G. Harlis and Peter K. Olson.

On motion carried unanimously, abatements of taxes were granted subject to the approval of the State Auditor as follows:

I. T. Aastad, Rudolph Wadekemper, Evan Hanson and Merchants State Bank.

The application of G. H. Sandum for abatement of taxes was laid over till next meeting.

On motion carried unanimously, the damages assessed for right of way for Red Lake Falls & Gervais county road were ordered paid.

Be it resolved, that the bid of Dan Linnihan for the construction of a 200-foot steel bridge across Red Lake River in the City of Red Lake Falls to replace the present wooden structure, for the sum of $6,655, be accepted, and the Chairman of this Board and the County Auditor be instructed to execute a contract with the said Dan Linnihan or his assignee, the Illinois Bridge Co., for the construction of the same when plans and specifications for said structure satisfactory to the Chairman of this Board, the County Auditor and the County Attorney, together with a surety bond in the sum of $7,000 be filed in the office of the County Auditor, and that payment for the construction of the said bridge be made as follows;

$2,000 when the bridge is completed and accepted. $2,000 one year from that date. $2,000 two years from that date, and the balance three years from that date.

Resolution seconded by Commissioner Johnson and carried by the following vote;

Aye, Commissioners Sutor, Johnson and Demann.

No, Commissioners Hanson and Falardeau.

Resolution declared adopted.

First: He thinks a 160-foot bridge sufficiently long to span the river at the point desired. 2nd: That in his opinion, the city of Red Lake Falls should bear part of the expense in constructing the bridge.

The twenty-five miles of dike to make possible the drainage of the Zuyder Zee, which will reclaim from the sea land enough to support 3,000,000 Dutch, is to cost $76,000,000 and be thirty-three years in building.

A boycott was declared lately by the shoemakers of Bogota refusing to repair in any way shoes of American manufacture, having become alarmed at their cheapness and the hold they are getting on the markets of Colombia.

There is conclusive evidence to show that in one unbroken nocturnal flight the European bird known as the northern bluethroat passes from central Africa to the German sea, a distance of 1,600 miles, making the journey in nine hours.

France coins more gold than do other countries. Two thousand three hundred tons of that precious metal turned into gold coin in the last forty years is her record. Great Britain has used up but 1,400 tons in the same space of time for the same purpose.

The vineyards of central Asia are all from American stock. Ohio has a large and regular export trade in cuttings with all the wine growing countries, owing largely to the fact that the American vine is free from many common parasites, notably phylloxera.

The axman is doomed to disappear from the forests of the coast range. The new "lumberman," in the form of a pneumatic engine, is now in use in the forests of Mount Shasta. Each crew of seven men does the work that formerly required twenty-five woodmen.

The colonial treasurer of the Transvaal has sent to England for $50,000 worth of pennies with the view of aiding in the reduction of the cost of living in the Rand. Owing to the dearth of pence matches are at present used as a portion of the currency of the Rand.

The city of Grasse, France, is widely known on account of its perfume manufacture. The average consumption of roses for that purpose is about 2,650,000 pounds and that of orange flowers about 660,000 pounds per year. The annual sale of these essences amounts to $1,000,000.

The legislative assembly of Cape Colony has adopted the Bloemfontein customs convention. The customs convention, to which the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, Cape Colony, Natal and Rhodesia were parties, provided for a 10 per cent preference in favor of Great Britain and reciprocating colonies.

Morgangife (morning gift) was the Anglo-Saxon term for pin money. It was bestowed on the wife on the day after the marriage. When pins were scarce and articles dear pin money was given on New Year's day, and on Jan. 1 and 2 the court ladies repaired to the pinmakers' shops to replenish their stock for the next year.

Even the poor in the United States and England eat white bread. In most of the continental countries of Europe rye bread is the staple. The Russians use buckwheat. The Laplanders have a bread made of oaten meal mixed with pine bark, and the Icelanders make their flour from lichens. Banana flour is used in the south sea islands.

Great Britain is to have an habitual criminal law resembling those of some of our states. According to the Daily Mail the plan now under consideration is that of an industrial penal settlement for the special benefit of such "habituals," where special efforts would be made to reform them and opportunity given them of regaining their liberty by industry and good conduct, but only on probation.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

TO CANVASS THE COUNTY.

George L. Austin Engaged in Missionary Work for the Courier.

George L. Austin, of Fergus Falls, Minn., has been employed to canvass Red Lake county in the interest of the Courier, and during the next few months he expects to personally interview every resident with a view to securing his name on our subscription last. Mr. Austin has had many years of experience at the business of solioiting, and it is a safe bet that as a result of his work several hundred persous will be new readers of THE COURIER.

Mr. Austin is authorized on behalf of the publisher to execute contracts and receipt for all money, and his business transactions will have the same force and effect as though entered into by the publisher.

We hope the COURIER's friends will treat Mr. Austin kindly, and if any of our readers can do anything to assist him we shall be very grateful indeed.

The Importation of Eggs.

The egg market has ruled abnormally high throughout the United States during the winter, and for the first time this season eggs have been imported from Europe, and for the first time in about fifteen years they have sold at a profit of from six to eight cents, after paying the duty of five cents a dozen. In former years there were large importations of eggs from Canada and Europe, but importations from Europe have not been profitable. The fact that there is now a profit of six to eight cents per dozen in importation from Europe, suggests an opening to the American farmer for a good profit.

The value of the egg product is scarcely realized. It is one of the great sources of wealth to the farmer. The producers of the west will find it profitable to increase the output of eggs.—Commercial West.

Telephoning Mail.

A proposal to use the telephone in rural districts in connection with the postoffice has been put forward by Senator Fairbanks of Indiana. It seems to be a plan to allow correspondents who so desire to have the contents of their letters telephoned to the receiver from the postoffice just as telegrams are now often telephoned from the telegraph office. What will our hurry-up modern methods find next to save time? With all this rush one needs golden grain belt beer, or some other good tonic, to keep the nerves steady and the mind clear. When you are tired and worn out you get confused. This means you need golden grain belt beer to refresh both mind and body. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. THE TOWNSHIP ELECTIONS.

Auditor Ford Sends Out Instructions to Town Clerks.

The annual town and villiage elections occur next Tuesday, and as there is some change in the law in regard to the election of supervisors, Auditor Ford is sending out the following circular to the town clerks:

"Chapter 64 of the laws of 1903 (sec. 150, page 39 of Booth's Township Manual) provides that at the annual election of township officers in 1904 there shall be elected three supervisors, one of whom shall be elected for three years, one for two years and one for one year, so that the term of office of one shall expire each year. At each annual town meeting thereafter, one supervisor shall be elected for the term of three years.

"As regards the term of office and election of chairman, the wording of the statute is vague and indefinite, and in order to dispel any doubts that may arise as to its exact meaning, I have secured the opinion of the county attorney, which in substance is as follows:

"'Any one of the three supervisors to be elected in 1904, may be designated on the ballot as Chairman regardless of the length of time for which he is to be elected; that he will act in the capacity of Chairman during the term for which he was elected Supervisor and when that term expires his successor must be elected as Chairman for the term of three years.'

"Please bring this matter before the voters at your annual town meeting so that the workings of the new law may be fully understood by all."

FED STATE'S POULTRY.

Farmer Wants Pay For Corn Consumed by Prairie Chickens.

Executive Agent Fullerton of the state game and fish commission has received from G. B. Harrison of Perham a bill for $54.45 for feeding 500 prairie chickens 121 days at 45 cents a day. Harrison says that he did not get his corn in last fall and that the chickens have been feeding on it all winter. Mr. Fullerton sent an answer to Harrison that he cannot allow the claim until he receives indisputable evidence that 500 chickens were fed in the manner specified. Mr. Harrison's letter follows:

"Dear Sir: The State of Minnesota under the law is supposed to be the owner of all the wild game in the state. I inclose a bill for feeding about 500 of them since the last of November. I did not get my corn in and had to feed them all winter and they have got away with most of the corn. The bill is for feeding 500 chickens four months, 121 days, at 45 cents a day. Please remit by draft by return mail and oblige."

And e'er has died the welcome bell
We hear the old year's funeral knell
Peal forth against the midnight sky.

We welcome them with open heart,
Their birth mark with a holiday,
As though they would be ours for aye;
Tomorrow's morrow they depart.

With mirth and sadness, smiles and tears,
Success and failure, joy and woe,
Down through the aisles of time they go
To join their silent sister years.

Perhaps a few more streaks of gray,
Some added lines, care's filigree,
Are all they leave to tell that we
Are one more milestone on the way.

And these make up the slender lease
We hold on this brief span of time;
The new year, old year, knell and chime;
Then rest, eternal, endless peace!

Stay By the Creamery.

St. Peter Herald: Nicollet county is being worked at this time by a body of centralizers who are knocking the creamery business wherever they can, and are trying to dissuade creamery patrons from hauling milk to the creamery. That is, they are trying to sell hand separators, and also trying to induce farmers to ship their cream to the central company at St Paul and prove by their own figures that the change will show a profit. The Herald cannot believe that a single creamery patron can be induced to desert the best institution for him ever established in the country. The centralizer may pay more just now and much less later on. One thing is certain, if the creamery was not known the centralizer wouldn't pay much of anything. There are farmers who are located too far from the creamery to patronize it. For him the hand separator is a most valuable piece of machinery, and no one would argue against it in his case, but the man who can patronize the creamery and does not, or who would desert it for the centralizer, we have only pity. Dairy Commissioner McConnell, when here, said: "Don't allow yourself to be led away from the creamery by any inducement or by gain." He must have had the centralizer in view.

It is a novel theory—not of anatomy, but of treatment; first discovered by Dr. Miles, and since made use of by many wide-awake physicians, who appreciate its value in treating the sick.

If you are sick, we offer you a way to be made well—Dr. Miles' Nervine.

This medicine is a scientific cure for nerve disorders, such as Neuralgia, Headache, Loss of Memory, Sleeplessness, Spasms, Backache, St. Vitus' Dance, Epilepsy or Fits, Nervous Prostration, etc.

By toning up the nerves, Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine will also cure those diseases of the internal organs due to a disordered nervous system.

Some of these are: Indigestion, Bilious Headache, Kidney Trouble, Chronic Constipation, Dropsy, Catarrh, Rheumatism, etc.

"My brother had nervous prostration, and was not expected to live. I prevailed upon him to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and now he has fully recovered. You remember I wrote you how it saved my life a few years ago, when I had nervous trouble. I preach its merits to everyone."—REV. M. D. MYERS, Correctionville, Iowa.

RED LAKE COURIER.

CONTINUING THE RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER.

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 23. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 10, 1904. WHOLE NUMBER 283.

DAIRY MEETING SUCCESSFUL

Large Turnout of Farmers to Hear Hon. W. W. P. McConnell Last Saturday.

Nearly two hundred farmers, many of them accompanied by their wives and daughters, attended the dairy and creamery meeting at the opera house Saturday afternoon, and the remarks of the speakers undoubtedly awakened many of their hearers to the importance of the dairy industry and the peculiar advantages of Red Lake county in that line.

Prof. James A. Wilson, a lecturer employed by the dairy and food department, spoke for half an hour, and left many valuable suggestions with his audience.

Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, who is one of the orginal creamery advocates in Minnesota, and has never lost any of his enthusiasm, dwelled at length upon the growth and development of the industry. According to Mr. McConnell, and there is no better authority, there are now 761 creameries in the state, and all but 75 of them are owned and managed by farmers' co-operative associations. The total product of these creameries last year amounted to over $15,000,000, and the value of all creamery and dairy products in the state for the same period was upward of $25,000,000. The number of creameries and the gross output is growing rapidly each year, and at the present rate of increase will be doubled in five years. Mr. McConnell referred briefly to the banner dairy county of the state—Freeborn. This county of twenty townships now has twenty-seven creameries, and their products last year aggregated nearly $1,200,000—over $3,000 for every day of the year. The farmers of Freeborn are the most prosperous in the state. In this connection Mr. McConnell told a story to illustrate how the dairy farmer stood in the community. If a farmer came to the bank for a loan, the cashier would look down through the railing, and if he saw milk spots on the farmer's boots the ability of the farmer to pay was not questioned. If the cashier failed to observe this evidence the customer was asked to go out and find a couple of good endorsers.

The speaker also referred to the necessity for cleanliness, wholesome feed and substantial shelter. Cows will not give milk in abundrnce unless they are properly cared for, and the farmer expecting to make money out of cows without a lot of hard work will be disappointed. Dairying is a business, and business methods must be applied. Apropos to this feature, Mr. McConnell told of a farmer in a southern county who complained that there was no money in the business. Asked how many cows he had the farmer said fifteen. "Why don't you buy more?" asked Mr. McConnell. "Well," the farmer replied, "fifteen is all my wife can milk and care for." The farmer cannot expect to succeed in dairying if his ambition goes no further than having "all the cows his wife can milk and care for."

In conclusion the speaker stated that no county in the state was better adapted to dairying than Red Lake. The numerous rivers and streams furnish an abundance of good water, wild and tame grasses are abundant, and every natural advantage is here to aid the farmer in his work. Already we have seven creameries, and four cheese factories, and many farmers are making a goodly profit from their cows. The dairying business ought to be doubled in the next few years.

The pronounced success of the meeting is due largely to the personal efforts of William Lauritzon, manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery. He arranged the meeting, secured the speakers, advertised it, and did a lot of personal work among the farmers to secure a large turnout. THE COURIER is glad to know that his efforts were successful, and trusts the meeting will have made many of the farmers do some hard thinking on the advisability of engaging more extensively in the dairying business.

NEW IMPLEMENT HOUSE.

Swanson & Olson Machine Co. Will Soon Be Ready for Business.

S. A. Swanson and Peter K. Olson have formed a partnership for the establishment of a new farm implement house, and will do business under the name of the Swanson & Olson Machine company. They have bought a complete stock of "anti-trust" goods, and will be ready for business about the 20th of the present month. Their office and headquarters will be at Mr. Swanson's land office. A carload of the famous Van Brunt drills is expected here in a few days. Both of the gentlemen are hustlers, and are well adapted to the business. THE COURIER hopes they will prosper.

MENACE TO HEALTH.

Property Owners Should Clean Up Their Premises Early.

The coming of spring this year brings with it a grave danger, which, however, may be avoided if property owners act promptly. When the weather finally breaks up there will be set free a vast amount of waste material which has been accumulating on the surface of the ground. The ground has been frozen hard since early in November. A large amount of refuse of all kinds had been accumulating, and when the first thaw occurs much of this rubbish will find its way to the surface. While the weather remains cold this waste material is rendered innocuous, but an soon as the warm and mild breezes come the dormant bacteria which this rubbish contains will become active and produce disease. Therefore it behooves every householder to clean up his premises at the earliest possible moment and thereby prevent the refuse from doing harm. It has been years since Red Lake Falls has had such a long, cold winter, and the amount of waste material that has accumulated must be enormous. Yet in other years when the winters have been short and open there had been enough rubbish left on the surface of the ground to produce a marked menace. This is an important matter and it is well to consider it beforehand.

DISAGREE ON INDIAN LANDS

President Roosevelt and Secretary Hitchcock Inspired by Conflicting Motives.

According to a Washington dispatch, President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock are not in accord as to the method of disposing of the public lands in Minnesota and elsewhere which are about to be opened to settlement. The president, for political reasons, is disposed to listen to the views of the Western Republican senators and representatives, while the secretary is looking strictly after what he regards as the interests of the government, by applying business principles to the sales.

Within the last few days the president has talked with several Western senators and representatives, especially those from Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, about the proposed sales. The president is leaning toward the auction plan of sale, and it is probable that Secretary Hitchcock will fall in line. The secretary, however, prefers the system of sealed bids, and he points to his experience in Oklahoma as showing that the government will realize more for the Indians whose lands are sold by employing this method.

Many of the Western senators and representatives are opposed to either plan. Among these is Representative Dixon, of Montana. He says the principal objection is that the best lands would go to the men with the most money, leaving the poorer lands for people of small means. He advocates the old plan of registering all persons who wish to obtain land, and if the number exceeds the number of lots to be disposed of, to draw the names according to the lottery plan.

Of the old Crow reservation in Montana, about 1,100,000 acres will probably soon be sold, as a bill providing for this has been passed by the house. The measure has the approval of the interior department and will probably secure favorable action in the senate.

Sec'y Hitchcock is violently opposed to the registration plan, both as applied to the old Crow lands and to the Rosebud and Red Lake lands. He says it is his duty to look out for the interest of the Indians, and they invariably receive more money when the method of sealed bids or auction is followed.

THIRTY-ONE IN FOUR DAYS.

The Courier's Missionary Brings in a Snag of New Subscribers.

George L. Austin, who is engaged in canvassing Red Lake county for new subscribers for the COURIER, brought in his first report Saturday evening, and up to that date he had put in four days' work and rounded up thirty-one good citizens who had heretofore neglected to get next to this paper. He expects to keep at work for a couple of months, or at least until everybody in the county has had a chance to get in on the deal. Mr. Austin is a first-class solicitor, and a splendid young man. If any one else is thirsting for a chance to receive the weekly visits of this great moral lever, we advise them to have their dollar ready, for Mr. Austin is sure to call for it. You simply can't lose him. Now is the time for all good men to come to the front.

The list of new subscribers turned in last week by Mr. Austin is as follows:

Red Lake Falls—H. F. Weckop. August Morin, Christ Gedde, Gilbert Gross, K. A. Henderson. Chas. Seeger. W. A. Pope. Nels Bjergo, A. Sagenschneider, Chas. Subbert, F. Arndt. Myron Boyce, C. Gerlach.

SOO CONTRACT IS LET.

Work to Be Commenced As Soon As Spring Opens Up.

Dirt will fly on the new Soo line through Red Lake county when Foley Bros., Larson & Co., contractors of St. Paul, begin work on the grading contract which they were awarded Monday. The work will began as soon as spring opens up and gangs will be put to work at both ends of the line and at midway points. The firm expect to employ about 3,000 men, 2,000 teams and four steam shovels. The contract calls for grading from Otter Tail to Emerson, about 200 miles. The time limit is November 1. It is now stated authoritively that the line will go through Erskine, and there will be little change in the original survey through Red Lake county.

ST. HILAIRE ELECTION.

Only Contest Was for the Office of Village Treasurer.

The annual village election at St. Hilaire was held Tuesday, and was devoid of excitement or contest, save on the office of village treasurer. T. J. Thorkelson, the popular druggist, was re-elected mayor. The other officers are as follows: Councilmen, D. Patterson, N. G. Otterness and A. S. Wilson; recorder, K. O. Gigstad, treasurer, Leonard Holmes; constable, K. R. Killand; justice, O. H. Peters.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It is easier to marry money than to cash in after you have done it.

Women naturally hate clubs, because they know how many bachelors they make.

If a girl can't have the man she wants, the next best thing is for her to keep any one else from having him.

A woman will stand a great deal more squeezing than an orange, but a man quits doing it to both about the same time.

It makes a man feel very virtuous to go home late expecting a scolding and find his wife has had to go to her sick mother's for the night.

Gather the roses of health for your cheeks,
While the parks are shining with dew.
Get out in the morning early and bright,
By taking Rocky Mountain Tea at night.
A. L. Reichert.

A Notable Decision.

Beuson Monitor: The United States supreme court has handed down a decision to the effect, that a passenger who travels on a railroad train on a pass, who loses his life on account of an act of careless on the part of the railroad company, does not stand on the same footing as that of a passenger who pays his fare. All passes contain a stipulation exempting the company from liability in case of accident. If a party, freely and voluntarily chooses to accept the privileges offered and having accepted the privileges, the court says that party cannot repudiate its condition. This decision is of great importance to railroads for it has generally been the opinion of lawyers that the non-liability clause on the passes would not hold good in the courts. It does not seem reasonable that a railroad company should be held responsible for the death or injury of a party with whom the company exacted no compensation for the trip. Besides, it is poor way of showing your appreciation of courtesy extended.

M., containing Three Hundred Twenty (320) acres, more or less, and situate in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota; upon performance by said second party of certain conditions and payments in said contract stipulated:

In This, That the said Fred Gehner, party of the second part, has failed to pay the sum of Four Hundred Eighty-nine and 61-100 ($489.61) Dollars, which, by the terms of said contract, was due and payable on the first day of October, 1903, and the further sum of Two Hundred Fifty-eight and 39-00 ($258.39) Dollars interest, which, by the terms of said contract, was due and payable on the 20th day of October, 1903, and has further failed to pay the taxes duly assessed against said premises for the year 1902, in the sum of Forty ($40.00) Dollars;

Now, Therefore, the undersigned, George A. Cory, vendor under said contract, hereby elects to declare, and does declare the whole of the payments and interest specified in said contract due and payable, and further elects to declare, and does declare said contract null and void, and that said contract will be cancelled and terminated thirty days from the time of the service of this notice.

Notice is Further Given, That there is now due and payable on said contract the sum of Four Thousand Six Hundred Sixty and 12-100 ($4,660.12) Dollars, and may be paid to the undersigned, George A. Cory, at the Triumph State Bank, at Triumph, Martin County, Minnesota, on or before thirty days from the time of the service of this notice, together with all costs and expenses in and about the service of this notice; and said contract reinstated pursuant to the terms thereof and the statute in such case made and provided.

Dated, March 2, 1904.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows:

The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Dated February 4, 1904.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN BACK BY KOREANS

THIRTY INVADERS KILLED AND REMAINDER FORCED BEYOND YALU RIVER.

WHEREABOUTS OF THE FLEET IS DISCOVERED

Vladivostok Squadron Covering Movement of Troops—Japs Bombard Russian Stronghold, But Little Damage Is Reported.

Seoul, March 8.—The Russian soldiers operating in the vicinity of Anju are committing all manner of excesses, maltreating the native women and perpetrating robbery upon every opportunity. Korean soldiers attacked a body of the invaders on Friday last, the 4th instant, and succeeded in killing 30 of them. It is reported that as the result of a collision between Russians and Korean soldiers at Kang-Ge the Russians were driven beyond the Yalu river.

Squadron Discovered.

Tokio, March 8.—It is believed that the Russian Vladivostok squadron is now in the vicinity of the mouth of the Tumen river, engaged in covering the movement of troops from Possiet bay to the valley of Tumen. Russian scouts are reliably reported to have penetrated south as far as Kiung-Sung. The earlier Russian movement into northeastern Korea was regarded as a diversion, but it now appears that a considerable force participated. It is thought that the Russians may occupy and fortify some strong position on the Tumen river. Reports regarding Russian movements in northwestern Korea are meager and unreliable. The force north of the Yalu is being increased, but it is doubted if any considerable number of Russians have crossed the river.

Vladivostok Bombarded.

Vladivostok, March 8.—A fleet of five Japanese battleships and two cruisers appeared off this place at 1:25 o'clock Sunday afternoon and bombarded the town and shore batteries for 55 minutes. The fleet approached from the direction of Askold island, at the east entrance to Ussuri bay and about 32 miles southeast of Vladivostock. Entering Ussuri bay the enemy formed in line of battle, but did not approach to a closer range than a mile and one-third. They directed their fire against the shore batteries and the town, but no damage resulted, as most of the 200 lyddite shells failed to burst.

Russians Remain Silent.

The Russian batteries, commanded by Gens. Veronetz and Artamonoff, did not reply, awaiting a closer approach of the enemy. The Japanese fire ceased at 2:20 p. m. and the enemy retired in the direction of Askold island. Simultaneously two torpedo boat destroyers appeared near Askold island and two more near Cape Maidel. The Japanese ships were covered with ice.

The attack resulted in no loss to the Russians, but cost the enemy 200,000 roubles ($100,000) in ammunition. Most of the projectiles were six and 12-inch shells.

The population of Vladivostock was warned of the presence on the horizon of the presence of a hostile fleet and the prospect of attack during the day, but it remained tranquil.

One Woman Killed.

Outside of killing a woman and wounding a few men the bombardment of Vladivostok by the Japanese fleet did no material damage. The wooden cottage of an artisan was the only building wholly destroyed. It was pierced by a shell from a 12-inch gun, which after traversing the roof and wall fell in the yard, killing the woman previously referred to.

In the quarter of the city called the "Dirty Corner" a shell fell on the house of Col. Shukoff without exploding. It traversed a bedroom, destroying a stove, and penetrated the wall. It finally burst near the regimental safe, which was standing in the courtyard.

Five sailors were slightly wounded by the explosion of a shell in the courtyard of the Siberian naval barracks. Outside of these casualties no one was killed or injured and there was no outbreak of fire anywhere in the city. The fact that the Russian batteries did not reply to the Japanese bombardment was due partially to the slight chance of hitting the enemy's warships at such a long range and partially to a desire not to betray the position of the batteries.

It is now thought that the attacking squadron consisted of a battleship, four armored cruisers and two unprotected cruisers.

The night passed quietly. The inhabitants and troops are in unusually high spirits. A strict search is being made throughout the town for Japanese. The police have posted placards on the walls offering a reward for infomation as to the whereabouts of Japanese, and threatening with trial by court-martial any person found guilty of concealing them.

Vast Army to Oppose Japan.

St. Petersburg, March 8.—Russia's plan for the campaign in the far east includes the dispatch of four army corps, each made up of two divisions of infantry, one division of cavalry, and one brigade of artillery. The total strength of the four corps will be 74,527 officers and men, 67,860 horses and 496 guns. This immense force does not include the army which will be required to man the fortresses at Port Arthur, Dalny, Mukden, Harbin and other strategic points.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Very Old Woman.

After a very short illness, Mrs. Pureheart Wakeley is dead of pneumonia at her home in Sharon, LeSueur county, and by her death undoubtedly the oldest woman of Minnesota has been removed from the scene of her remarkable life.

Mrs. Wakely was 111 years of age. Despite the fact that she was married three times and became the mother of fourteen children, who all lived to the age of twenty or more, and many of whom married and became fathers or mothers, yet all of Mrs. Wakeley's husbands, relatives and descendants died and passed away before she did, and at her death had not a relative to survive her.

At Johnstown, Pa., where all their numerous descendants lived, and where forty-three members of the family, being all of them with the exception of Mrs. Wakeley and one son, were overtaken by the flood of May 31, 1889. With this son Mrs. Wakeley came to Le Sueur county, and bought a large farm in Sharon township. Six years later they rented the farm and moved to Galveston, Texas, where the son lost his life in the storm and tidal wave that befell that city. Yet Mrs. Wakeley escaped that terrible disaster and went back and again resided on the farm, where she resided until the time of her death, dying intestate.

In default of all heirs at law, her property, which amounts to about $10,000, will eschest to the state.

Chased by Wolves.

To be chased across the ice a distance of five miles with a pack of mad wolves in hot pursuit, and burning his clothing to keep the animals off, was the adventure which Otto Bremner experienced.

Bremner is employed at the Schroeder lumber camp in Cook county and while going to Tafte, a postoffice down the shore, for supplies, he noticed a pack of wolves a short distance out on the ice feeding on the carcass of a deer they had run down. He tried to sneak by without being noticed, but their sharp eyes viewed him, and they were soon in full chase. He had a pack upon his shoulders, and reaching for a garment therein, set it afire, and ran with a flame streaming behind him.

When one garment was consumed he lighted another, and finally the pack sack itself itself was used as a torch and before he reached Tafte he stripped off his mackintosh and consigned it to the flames.

The wolves were in hot pursuit, but kept at a considerable distance from the blaze. Bremner was completely exhausted from his race for life, but barring a few burns upon his hands and face, he was little the worse for adventure.

Treed the Bear.

A large black bear was tracked to his lair in a tree between Minneapolis and St. Paul.

A large number of people noting the large tracks in the snow joined in the chase, which proved exciting, as it was conducted entirely without the aid of firearms.

A local museum was moving a part of the menagerie, consisting of four wolves, two coyotes, two bears, etc., from their quarters in Minneapolis to the museum at Harriet island in St. Paul. On the way over one of the two bears got loose and made immediate tracks for the woods.

The keepers followed on the run and finally brought bruin to bay, when he took refuge in a tree. He was at last coaxed down by libations of honey and other sweets.

Relief of Settlers.

Many settlers in Minnesota and the Dakotas are interested in a bill which passed the senate legalizing land proofs and entries made outside the limits of United States land districts.

It appears that, subsequent to the act of 1902 many settlers proceeded to file entries and complete proof in accordance with what they supposed to be the law. The errors were due to the failure of the local officials to comply with the orders of the general land office. As a result many settlers were subjected to hardships which the measure passed proposed to remedy.

Stolen Jewelry.

Bold thieves secured about $500 worth jewelry from Hudson's store on Nicollet ave, Minneapols. The thieves cut a hole about a foot square in the plate glass window and took eleven diamond rings and seventeen watches.

The work was evidently done by experienced men and a diamond was used to cut the glass. The hole shows that the men who made it knew their business, for the edges were smooth.

Wolfer Will Remain.

N. F. Boucher of the North Dakota penitentiary will not be warden of the Minnesota penitentiary.

He accepted the appointment to take the place of Warden Henry Wolver, who desired to leave the position to go into business.

For some unexplained reason Mr. Boucher has withdrawn his acceptance of the position and the board of control requested Warden Wolfer to continue in his present capacity. He has agreed to do so.

News Notes.

The state bowling tournament will be held March 28, 29 and 30.

Little Falls will have free mail delivery May 1.

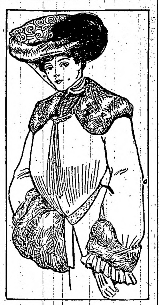
Mrs. Carroll, mother of Mrs. W. R. Peyton, was found dead in her bed at Grand Meadow.

Citizens of Perham will vote on the question of bonding the town for $20,000 to extend the water mains and put in sewers, at the municipal election next month.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Stunning Street Costume.

One can find no prettier combination than that employed in this costume. It is heavy French broadcloth, with deep collar and cuffs of chinchilla. The collar is fastened with ends of gray chenille, and the sleeves are finished with frills of blue accordion plaited silk. The shaped belt is studded with steel beads. A charming hat of heavy wool lace, with chinchilla band and black plume and chinchilla muff, completes a strikingly beautiful costume.



A PRETTY COMBINATION.

Winter Hats.

The choosing of winter hats is a serious problem this year, and it is well to remember that not only must the color be in accord with the costume, but the shape also. Following out the law of exaggeration that has been fashionable for so long a time, if the style of the gown is one that makes the wearer look short and broad, the hat is broad and flat; if the lines are long and slender the hat gives height and slenderness. But here also it is foolish to choose an unbecoming hat simply because it is a fashionable shape and color.

Hats to match the costumes in color are very smart this season, as are also the all black hats again, and the colored hats will be worn not only with the gowns they match, but with the black costumes as well, and indeed with gowns of contrasting colors they will be seen. Small and large shapes are alike in favor.

Winter Walking Suits.

A number of the latest walking suits are being made with extremely long coats, sometimes reaching to within sixteen or eighteen inches of the hem of the short skirt.

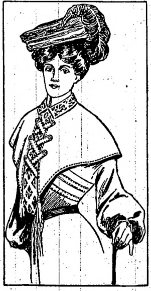
One thing should never be lost sight of in ordering one of these long coats. It is one of the oldest Greek canons of art that an oblong should never be divided in the middle nor yet exactly in thirds.

Consider the gown as a flat surface and see that the line of the coat crosses correctly; otherwise there will always be something vaguely ugly and ungraceful about it, something which the average observer will not be able to define, but will be sure to notice. The garment will be voted unbecoming.

With these long jackets are worn very severely cut skirts without flounces and usually without trimming except braid or flat gimp.

Very Attractive.

Waist of a stylish tailored costume of brown cloth. The trimming on white cloth is of embroidery in brown and burnt orange. The plain skirt is trimmed with curved stitched bands like the bodice.



AN ODD WAIST.

Tan and White.

A costume of tan cloth is trimmed with bands of a brilliant white silk braid two inches wide. These are arranged in irregular fashion up and down the skirt and are trimmed with disks of tan colored velvet. The same trimming is used on the bolero, which has a novel feature in the shape of small coat tails.

AS TO NICKNAMES.

Given Often For Absurd Reasons, and Generally They Stick.

"Wonderful how names stick to a person," said the observant man. "There were two nice little women in our village who came on us one evening, and we offered them popcorn which the children had just brought in from the kitchen. They refused, but not so emphatically as to keep us from giving them two heaping plates of the corn. We kept refilling the plates and they kept crunching all the evening. There was something so funny about it that I called them 'The Popcorn Ladies,' and the name has stuck to them so that the whole village knows them by it.

"I once knew a man who talked incessantly in a high pitched voice, and a bright girl dubbed him 'The Chirper.' The name was quickly passed around among the young people, and now the greater part of his friends know him by that name. A dignified young woman of my acquaintance goes by the name of 'Whont' to this day because when she was a little girl she used to call herself 'Mrs. Whont' when she played grownup ladies, and the family picked it up. She simply can't shake the absurd name.

"More than one red haired man is known by the name of 'Pink' and philosophically accepts the title. I have an acquaintance who holds a responsible position who is known by the name of 'Dotty.' It seems that one day a mischievous girl discovered that he had three prominent dimples. She promptly dubbed him 'Dotty Dimple,' and now he is known to all his associates as 'Dotty.' Another man of my acquaintance is always called 'Bluebeard' because he has such a white and thin skin that if he does not shave daily his beard shows blue through it. That name, too, came through a woman's quick wit.

"In a certain household a very feminine little woman is still called 'The Boy' because when she was a young girl she went through a serious illness which made it necessary to cut her hair short. Her younger sister said she was 'the boy' of the family, and the dainty lady is still called by that absurd name.

"An effeminate man was once called 'Viola' by one of the boys in the office, and now we know him by nothing else. Another one of the boys in the office is always called 'Chesty,' and, though he got angry at first, he has cheerfully accepted the new name now.

"Our bookkeeper is always putting in his oar when it is not at all necessary, and I think now he will be known until the end of time as 'General Butts.' A friend of mine who is always called 'Cheerful' does not know whether he is called that because his friends believe he has a cheerful disposition or because they consider him a cheerful idiot. But, at any rate, he can't shake the name."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Beaconsfield's "Don'ts."

An inquiring and aspiring person once asked Beaconsfield to tell him the secret of social success. "Never discuss the authorship of the 'Letters of Junius,'" was the reply.

Beaconsfield's biographer, Mr. Wilfrid Meynell, adds something positive to this witty negative rule for getting on in the world. A distinguished member of parliament begged the Victorian statesman to tell his young son something to remember, something that would help to make him an agreeable and popular member of society.

Beaconsfield hedged. "Model yourself after your father," he said to the lad.

This was not altogether satisfactory, and the M. P. insisted upon a definite rule of conduct.

"Well, my boy," said Beaconsfield, "be amusing. Never tell unkind stories. Above all, never tell long ones."

A Large Fish.

An Englishman visiting Lake Tahoe asked a native if there was any good fishing in the lake.

"Oh, yes, stranger."

"What kind of fish do you catch here?"

"Oh, all kinds, stranger."

"What is the weight of the largest fish you ever caught?"

"Waal, stranger, we don't take weighing machines when we goes fishing, and I am an honest man and wouldn't like to say how much that last trout I caught would weigh. But I tell you, stranger, that when I pulled that fish out of the water the lake went down a foot."—Birmingham Post.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

WONDER if Brer Groundhog hasn't forgotten that he was sent back for only six weeks?

WHEN a man gets a raise in salary or has a good run of business he is just that much ahead until his wife finds it out.

THE opera "Baron Humbug" is to be produced soon by a Minneapolis Republican club. The play is said to have nothing to do with the tariff question.

A HORRID misanthropist writes that no man can know a woman's whole character until he has taken her for a wife, and even then she breaks out in a new spot once in a while.

AN exchange remarks that the chunk of ice next summer may be a little thicker than usual, but it will not be quite so broad. The length of the bill will remain about the same.

RED LAKE county has five Republican papers. Three of them are in favor of Dunn, one for Collins and one non-committal. This seems to be about the ratio all over northern Minnesota.

THE Republican county convention to select delegates to the state and district conventions will be held at Red Lake Falls next Tuesday, March 15. Each voting precinct in the county will be entitled to three delegates.

A CHICAGO capitalist orginated a money-loaning scheme by which he secured $22,000 in interest on a $4,000 loan in four years, with the principal unpaid at the end of that time. Pretty soon Shylock may be considered a philanthropist.

THE Crookston Times truthfully says: "A man who prefers the city weekly to a home paper because "it's got more in it," reminds us of a man who picked out the largest pair of boots in the box because they cost no more than a pair that fitted him."

EXAMINER JOHNSON is having all sorts of troubles with his experts hired to "find something" in the state auditor's office. Why doesn't Johnson go after it himself? He would be sure of obtaining a report without habeas corpus proceedings.

THE Adrian Democrat is becoming alarmed at the prospective dangers of the "yellow peril." This paper says: "The Japs fight like fury. They have killed 4000 Russians and are ready to kill more. It looks as if the 'yellow peril' is coming to the front. Some day the proud Anglo-Saxon may be only a bone in some Jap museum."

IN England the income tax is levied on gross incomes estimated at $4,330,000,000. In 1861 that tax amounted to $1,500,000; it now amounts to $12,500,000. England furnishes the basis of all our legal lore, and yet it seems never to have occurred to the ermined chancellors of the British empire that an income tax is unconstitutional.

EX-GOVERNOR SWINEFORD says the bane of Alaska is official "graft," which permeates every branch of public service. The United States has experienced this same trouble with all of its outlying possessions, and for that matter plenty of it has been going on under the dome of the nation's capitol. The American politician is enterprising and forehanded. Like the busy bee, he "improves each shining hour," for he knows not when the other fellows may get in power.

THE Northern Pacific railway has been added to the large number of corporations which prohibit the use of alcoholic liquors by their employees at all times. This is a most effective form of lecture on the evils of intemperance. It is reported that Andrew Carnegie has offered to add ten per cent to the wages of all the employees on his estates in Scotland who will totally abstain from use of alcoholic liquors. This he can well afford to do.

THE Minneapolis Journal wants the Republicans of Minnesota to go on record on Canadian reciprocity and tariff revision and straighten out the kinks in our congressmen. However, it is dangerous to fool with vital issues during a presidential campaign, and after election the people are glad enough to forget about politics. This country needs less partisanship and more patriotism; less chicanery and more honesty; less idol-worship and more independence of thought and action.

IT costs quite a bit of money to be a delegate to the national convention of either of the great political parties. Hotel headquarters for a state are usually engaged for a week, and the price is from $1,500 up. Cigars, "lemonade," and other incidentals are always on tap for visitors to headquarters, and the total bill represents a tidy sum, which is borne pro rata by the members of the delegation. It is given out that it will cost the members of the Republican delegation from Minnesota $700 each. The Democrats are less extravagant and it is figured that $300 will carry them through, though perhaps most of them will take along an extra $10 bill to be prepared for contingencies.

RUSSIA's complaints do not get a very sympathetic reception here. Japan, she says, has been guilty of gross infractions of international law in attacking the cruisers found at Chemulpo while keeping from their commanders knowledge of the fact that war had begun. Japan has also violated the neutrality of Korea in what might be called a continuing manner. This is true enough, but the American press disposes of the matter shortly by saying, in effect, that the Japs have merely adopted David Harum's advice to "do unto others as they would do unto you—and do it first." It is considered also that complaints of Japanese misdoings have a queer sound when heard in connection with Admiral Alexieff's notification to the Chinese in Manchuria that if they did not co-operate with the Russians they will be severely handled.

MINNESOTA is becoming quite an egg and poultry state. The hens in this state lay over 40,000,000 dozens of eggs each year. According to the United States census reports the shipments from Minnesota points in 1900 were valued at $4,437,148. In regard to poultry, Minnesota in 1900, had 8,142,693 chickens, valued at $2,274,648. In the same year Wisconsin had 8,447,549 valued at $2,410,714 and Iowa 20,843,347, valued at $6,545,464. By these figures one can readily see that this state is fast overtaking Wisconsin but is a long way behind Iowa, which is the banner egg and poultry state in the Union. In ten years Wisconsin's increase is only 35 per cent while Minnesota's is over 100 per cent. Eggs and poultry are now seventh in the list of farm products in this state but it is only a question of time when they will be as valuable as the butter is.

THE SATURDAY EVENING CLUB

NARROW ESCAPE FOR THE DOG —A MISSING MEMBER—QUALIFICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP—DEBATE AT THE NEXT MEETING.

The Saturday Evening Club, at its last regular conclave, attempted to outline a course of study for the coming spring season. Chairman Pillseller rapped for order, and absolute quiet would have reigned had not Pete Gangleshanks' dog been asleep. Imagining the sound of the gavel to be a call to duty the canine carefully seized Dr. Toothpuller by the calf of the left leg in the fond delusion that he was holding a winged loon at bay.

This unexpected diversion created great excitement, heated remarks flying fast and furious. Judge Spoopendyke Sylvanus suggested that the dog was obviously out of order and ought to be treated like any other nigger failing to recognize his proper place in society. This aroused the righteous indignation of Pete's brother, Sy Gangleshanks, who thought the Judge had wittingly offered insult to the whole family. However, Dr. Sawbones kindly volunteered to administer a sleeping potion to the dog, and peace was again restored—all save the piece torn from Toothpuller's leg. The incident was not again called to mind except when occasionally Toothpuller's wounded calf gave an involuntary twitch.

In resuming, Attorney McJawbones nominated Banker Peirgan J. Morpoint as Secretery and Treasurer, but as the question of bonds could not be satisfactorily arranged, the Club voted to put its funds and property in the hands of the Chairman, and engaged Sammy Stovepipe as Special Auditor to make report on the condition of the Treasury every twenty-four hours, and oftener if suspicious circumstances should develop.

At this juncture it was noted that Johnnie Lumberman was conspicuous by the vacancy of his chair, and upon report by the Secretary that no excuse had been filed, a Special Committee consisting of Pete and Sy Gangleshanks and the Visitor from St. Paul was appointed to bring him forthwith before the Club to answer to the charge of contempt. Johnnie was apprehended at the hotel making goo-goo eyes in the mirror, and yielded to the entreaties of the Committee without serious objection. He plead guilty to the charge, but argued in extenuation that inasmuch as he had never given audible expression to his contempt he ought to be let off with a reprimand. The failure of the culprit to appreciate the gravity of his offence angered the Club's Legal Adviser, and the Water Cure was suggested. Dr. Sawbones, however, contended that water in large doses might prove fatal, and several other members fearing the establishment of a precedent spoke against the proposition.

In order to minimize the evils of non-attendance Dr. Toothpuller moved to amend the constitution by incorporating a section requiring all new members to be married, and giving the present members not having reached that state of perfection six months to comply with the rule. As several members averred that they had neither hope nor ambition in that direction the motion was amended by giving the Club authority to expel a member upon securing evidence that he had contracted the habit of hanging over the front gate on Saturday evenings.

As the time of the Club had been largely encroached upon by trivial interruptions further discussion of the course of study was postponed until the next meeting. It was decided, though, that at the next meeting there would be a debate on the question, "Resolved, That When Pete Gangleshanks Plays a King of Spades, it is the Duty of the Three Succeeding Players to Drop a Queen."

Power Transmission by Rope.

Since the acquisition of the Philippine Islands a large number of factories in this country have substituted Manila rope for belts in transmitting power. The introduction of this rope has built up an industry within a few years which is classed among the greatest industries of the islands. The average life of a rope belt is from eight to ten years and it requires practically no care. A similar revolution in business circles is being worked by the increased use of golden grain belt beer by business men. It takes place of golf and nourishes both mind and body. Order a case of your nearest dealer or by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

Chilblains, chapped hands and cracked finger tips—how many have them? Do them up in Cole's Carbolisalve a few nights and they'll be cured. Get Cole's —it's guaranteed to be the best. If it isn't Cole's it isn't Carbolisalve. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR. WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

Ole Gjerberg was absent Tuesday.

Albert LaFreniere was absent Wednesday.

The physiography class is studying land formations.

The different high school organizations will elect officers soon.

The botany class is longing for the first permanent signs of spring.

The exams of the half-year studies will occur in about a month from the present time.

The next debate comes on March 18 instead of on the 11th as was formerally stated.

The physics class had an experimental review this week and is studying the text on electricity.

The graft of some of the high school students is as great as that in some of the municipalities.

The second of the tri-yearly exams are over and the average mark is higher than in the previous tests.

Last Friday the students divided into two classes and had a spelling match during the interval before the program.

Electricity is being put to many useful functions. At the high school its latest use is to detect the doings of the privileged class.

The athletic association held a meeting Wednesday after school and elected officers, besides transacting other important business.

Snow balls have been flying, thick and fast during the occasional thaws. The small boy, suffering from the effects of a "hard one" files his complaint with the teacher.

The Seniors are laboring with their class play, rehearsing on Saturdays. Under the able direction of Prof. Whiteley the work is progressing very satisfactorily.

The Spartans received 27 points for their program last Friday. The program was good but far too short. Why not awake that program committee with a bomb of hornets?

The boys are considering the possibility of a field meet with some of the neighboring high schools. As a meet is of much importance we hope that arrangements can be made.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Grades.)

Alvin Anderson was absent Tuesday.

Lillian Brady and Joseph Skala were absent Monday.

John Hoss who has been ill has not returned to school.

The warm weather made the boys think of marbles.

The girls are starting to play pull-away and other games these warm days.

Brenetta Schusser and Corneluis Schmidt were tardy Monday morning.

The tri-yearly examinations came off last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

We are all anxious to get our report cards to see what we got in the examinations.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the school had no recesses on account of the examinations.

We had a drawing contest Monday, Isaac Mayhew and Isabel Helm were the prize winners.

The fifth and sixth grades had a spell down Friday and the fifth grade won. Edith Hanson stood up the longest.

We are not going to have our program Friday but we are going to have it two weeks from Friday because we are having examinations now. We wish you all to come.

The Week's News

NEEDLE CARRIED BY VEINS.

M. O. Sertedahl reports a peculiar incident at his house. A little more than a year ago Mr. Sortedahl's little son, Olaf, had the misfortune to run a needle into his right knee, and the top of the needle was broken and hidden in the flesh in such a manner that it was never found, although medical attendance was at hand promptly. The physician said that in all likelihood the needle would never cause further trouble, so the wound was allowed to heal without making further efforts to get it out. Last Monday the family was surprised by having the boy pull the broken needle from his left arm. It is the opinion of the physicians that the needle must have been carried by the veins through the heart and possibly through the brain to reach the opposite arm. It is certainly a peculiar and unusual incident.

WE'RE HEALTHY, ANYWAY.

It is generally conceded that the past winter has been the most severe for a quarter of a century, but it has not been an unmixed hardship. There has been practically no sickness in Red Lake country, and the usual large number of colds and coughs attendant upon an open winter has been prevented by the steady cold. On the whole the winter has not been so bad, if we look at it right. When the thermometer gets down to zero it is too cold to do much work out of doors, and an additional twenty or thirty degress doesn't make it much worse. Northern Minnesota people are prepared for cold weather, wood is cheap and plentiful, and there is little wind. The people here are healthy and prosperous, so all in all there are plenty of worse places to live than in the Red River valley.

THANKS THE CONTRIBUTORS.

The expenses of the creamery meeting last Saturday were borne by the business men of Red Lake Falls, and William Lauritzon, the promoter of the enterprise, wishes to thank the following contributors: Garceau & Zaiser, J. R. & E. Fortier, Bourdon Land Co., Bangs & Co., Theo. LaBissoniere, John E. King, Frank E. Hunt, First State Bank, O'Brien Bros., P. B. Gaass, Merchants State Bank, Bank of Red Lake Falls, Joseph Helm, William Findeisen, Henry Gonigam, Berthon & Armstrong, Delorme & St. Marie.

TAX PAYMENTS INCREASE.

Treasurer Tandberg reports that during January and February he collected $25,826.12 in taxes. Last year for the same period the collections amounted to $22,660.18. This shows that the people of Red Lake county are paying up their taxes in good shape.

CHANGE LOCATIONS.

It is stated that H. L. Viegel has rented the building now occupied by the Racket store and will move his saloon there the fore part of April. L. A. Kaufer will move his harness shop to the building now used by Mr. Viegel.

SCHOOLS GET MONEY.

The March apportionment of state school funds is announced this week, and amounts to $1.45 per pupil. Red Lake county has 3,267 pupils entitled to apportionment, and the amount the county will receive from the state is $4,737.15. From fines and other sources the county has on hand $610.73, so that the various school districts will receive $1.64 for each pupil. Thief River Falls will get $1,075.84; Red Lake Falls $910.20, and St. Hilaire $372.12.

NEED SPRING MACHINERY?

Joseph Helm, the old reliable machinery dealer, has a spring announcement in this issue. Everything in the line of drills, seeders, plows, harrows, wagons, buggies, cream separators and gasoline engines will be found in stock here at prices that are guaranteed to be right. Mr. Helm says he is prepared to offer better bargains than ever this spring and the farmers will make a mistake if they neglect to call in and look over his stock before making purchases.

OLD SETTLER LEAVES.

Louis Grimm and family left Tuesday evening for Mendon, Mich., where they will make their home in the future. Mr, Grimm sold his farm south of town last fall at a handsome price, and decided that he would go back to his old home to spend his declining years. He says he has nothing against Red Lake county, for he has made good money here and kept in splendid health. The many friends of the Grimm family will be sorry to lose them from the community.

SUED FOR MALPRACTICE.

Dr. F. H. Gambell, the well-known Thief River physician, has been sued for malpractice by Max Koenig, former proprietor of the bowling alley at that place. Mr. Koenig alleges that Dr. Gambell attempted to heal a broken arm last August, and that the work was done in such an unskillful and negligent manner as to leave the arm in a practically worthless condition. Chas. H. Schellbach is attorney for Dr. Gambell and Perl W. Mabey for Koenig.

REPUDIATE RAILROAD BONDS.

At the election Tuesday the voters of Gervais township decided to resist payment of $1,500 of bonds issued in 1886 in aid of the Northern Pacific railroad. The Gervais people claim that the election held to vote the bonds was illegal, and that the entire proceeding was without warrant of law. The holders of the bonds have recently commenced suit to collect delinquent interest on the bonds amounting to $495.

DEPUTY DAIRY COMMISSIONER.

James A. Wilson, who is now an assistant in the office of the state dairy and food commissioner, will hereafter have charge of the inspection work in the Red River valley, with headquarters at Thief River Falls. Mr. Wilson will also hold dairy meetings wherever there is a demand for them. Mr. Wilson makes a splendid talk on dairying and stockraising and his hearers are sure to profit from his addresses.

WILL MOVE TO CANADA.

Dr. W. O. Tessier was in the city Monday and informed the Courier that he intends to dispose of his property interests in Terrebonne within the coming month and move to the Northwest Territory, where he thinks there are some splendid openings. The Doctor's father went up there a couple of months ago and has secured a government position at $75 per month.

BROUGHT TO WRONG TOWN.

Crookston Journal: William Wilson is the name of a man brought down from Ives yesterday morning in a very critical condition. He has been at work there and was taken sick recently. His family was in destitute circumstances and his wife brought him down for medical treatment. She should have taken him to Red Lake Falls as Ives is in Red Lake county.

The Busy store has the largest stock of fish during the lenten season. Among them are toout, smoked bloaters, salmon trout, herring, fresh and salted herring, cod fish and salmon steak.—Garceau & Zaiser

Rev. Father Vachon, from the Saskatchewan country, is in the city this week endeavoring to organize a colony of French farmers to move to western Canada. We are unable to learn what success he has met with.

Dr. Lanctot will visit Red Lake Falls again on Wednesday and Thursday, March 16 and 17, 1904. Dr. Lanctot will have some interesting literature on Ophthalmology. Call at Grand View hotel and get a free book.

Mentor people believe they are harboring a fire-bug, as a quantity of waste soaked with oil was found in Stenerson's lumber yard. The village council has offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension of the incendiary.

The county commissioners go to Thief River Falls today to hold a committee meeting, called for the purpose of determining the residence of a pauper. Auditor Ford and County Attorney Grady will accompany the commissioners.

We understand that Rev. Andrew Walker has received a call from the Presbyterian church at Grand Rapids, and it is altogether probable that he will accept. The people of Grand Rapids are to be congratulated upon securing Rev. Walker.

The ladies' aid society of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual election of officers at the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon, March 16, at three o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all the ladies of the congregation.

Berthon & Armstrong tell us that their new spring stock of clothing and furnishings is now being received and the entire line will be displayed within a week or ten days. Watch the COURIER's advertising columns for further particulars.

The new fire reservoir on the east side is nearing completion. Fritz Gerke, the well-known mason, has charge of the construction work, and there is no question but that it will be a good job. This cistern will afford the north side people ample protection against fire.

The Republican primaries will be held at the usual voting places Saturday evening. The county convention will be held next Tuesday at the court house in Red Lake Falls. Each voting precinct will be entitled to three delegates.

Mrs. Albert Walswick, living a few miles north of town, died Saturday afternoon from consumption, having been ill for several months. The deceased was 46 years of age, and leaves a husband and several children. The remains were shipped Tuesday to Northwood, Iowa, for interment.

The Nauman brothers received the sad intelligence Saturday afternoon of the death of their uncle, Rev. C. Spielman, of Mendota, Ill. Rev. C. and S. C. Nauman expected to leave Saturday evening for Mendota to attend the funeral, but found out that they could not make railroad connections. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon.

Last week the Courier stated that "the average cost per foot" for building the judicial ditch in the eastern part of the county would be $1,400. Of course the word "mile" was intended instead of "foot," so the farmers along the route of the ditch need not be apprehensive that the price of the ditch is going to force them into bankruptcy.

"Some people are wondering why I did not attempt to collect the personal property tax against the Red Lake Falls Lumber company," said County Attorney Grady yesterday. "Now a whole lot of people imagine that a personal tax is a lien against the property, but it is not true. Personal taxes are differentiated from a realty tax in that the property assessed cannot be held for the payment of taxes. There is no property that I can find belonging to the Red Lake Falls Lumber company, and if anyone thinks he can collect the tax I will have him appointed special county attorney for the purpose."

Wear Good Shoes..

Very well, but do you know where to get them? Some people are never satisfied with the quality of their Shoes, and at the same time they never try to improve their condition. If you will try our guaranteed lines you will solve the problem of knowing where to buy good Footwear. We have some lines of Shoes that we have now sold for eight years.

Budd's Children's Shoes

is one of these lines. With a great many people in this locality they are a synonym for quality. Always look nice—always wear well. We fully guarantee them.

"Little Giant" Boys' Shoes

The only Shoes that will stand the hard knocks of boys. Try them once and we assure you that you will never want any other.

Utz & Dunn Ladies' Shoes

are incomparable. Their $3.50 "ST. CECILIA" Shoe is the acme of perfection. See the new toes and heels.

For a cheap Shoe try our GODMAN'S and "HARD-WEAR"—$1.50 and $1.75. We match them against anything in the city at 50c a pair more. They have the "look" and the quality at the price.

CLOTHING

Our Spring Clothing is now here. We invite the good dressers as well as the economical buyers to inspect our assortment. We show the peerless KUPPENHEIMER Clothing in all the latest weaves and colorings of the season. We can save you money on Clothing if you will only give us a chance to do so.

Cravenette Rain Coats

(KUPPENHEIMER MAKE)—a nice line of them at $15.00 and $17.00—worth a great deal more. Nothing else on the market like them for fit.

MANY LOSE LIVES IN PRAIRIE FIRE

FLAMES SWEEP OVER THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF LAND IN OKLAHOMA.

Survivors Are Destitute of Clothing, Food and Fuel—Property Loss Is Immense—Kansas and Nebraska Counties Also Suffer.

Lawton, Okla., March 5.—Driven by a terrific gale from the north, which at times reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour, a prairie fire swept over 75,000 acres in Comanche county, inflicting damage now estimated at $200,000 and causing a heavy loss of life. The city of Lawton was saved only by great effort, while many farmhouses were consumed. Kiowa county was also visited by a prairie fire, while damage is reported from all over the southwest.

Losses Are Large.

The losses from wind and fire reported to date follow: Hobart, $40,000; Vinson, $8,000; Lawton, $5,000; small country town aggregate $50,000; farm property, $100,000. The loss of life is known to be large, but it is impossible at this time to give any accurate figures. A report has been received at Ft. Sill that an entire Apache Indian village was swept clean. The report has not been verified.

Hundreds Are Homeless.

Three thousand square miles of territory in Kiowa and Comanche counties were swept by the fires. Hundreds of people are homeless and the financial less covers a wide extent of country.

At Hobart, the county seat of Kiowa county, the fire approached from the east, destroying the stables and fifteen race horses, 15 residences, two business houses and various small buildings. Spreading to the southwest, the fire swept acres of government military and timber reserve and Indian school reserve.

Spreading westward the flames covered miles of the homestead district, destroying houses, barns and stock. It was in this district that five persons are reported to have perished in attempting to protect their property.

Fight the Flames.

Late at night the fire began moving southward toward this city. At midnight 5,000 people of the city were fighting the fire. The advance line of the fire was fully two miles in length. By hard work they saved the town. Stories are coming in of how families lay out on the prairie throughout the cold night after the storm had passed, with only thin clothes on. Hundreds of people are destitute and are suffering intensely from the cold and their burns. Clothes, medicine, and physicians are being sent out from all the cities and towns of the district to relieve the suffering.

Fires in Kansas.

Salina, Kan., March 5.—A prairie fire swept over part of this county. Reports received here state that the fire raged in Ellsworth, Lincoln, Graham, Ellis, Russell and Salina counties. Two lives are reported lost.

Nebraska Reports Loss.

Lincoln, Neb., March 5.—Prairie fires raging in western and southwestern Nebraska have been checked. Many animals lost their lives and many barns were burned in McCook. The loss will amount to several thousand dollars.

HIS CAREER ENDS.

Germany Loses a Great Soldier in the Death of Field Marshal Von Waldersee.

Hanover, Prussia, March 7.—Field Marshal Count von Waldersee died at eight o'clock Saturday evening. He had been ailing for a long time, but it was only within a day or two that his friends had become alarmed over his condition. His malady was intestinal trouble. Count von Waldersee will be given a military funeral. He was very popular will all classes, who received him with cheers whenever he appeared in public.

Field Marshal Count Alfred von Waldersee was born in Potsdam in 1832, and entered the Prussian army at the age of 18. In all he served in the army more than 50 years and during that time won renown as one of the ablest soldiers in the world. He served in four campaigns, that of Schleswig-Holstein in 1854, the war with Austria in 1866, the campaign against France in 1870-71, and in the conflict against the Boxers in China in 1900. He was a man in whom Von Moltke, the famous German tactician, put the greatest trust, and was selected by him as the most promising candidate in the empire for military honors. When Von Moltke retired, owing to the disabilities of age, Waldersee was made chief of staff, and thus became, under the kaiser, the chief commander of the army.

To Protect "Old Glory."

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 7.—The house has unanimously passed a bill recommended in a message from Gov. Hunt the purpose of which is to prevent the desecration of the United States flag and the use of the black flag of Porto Rico.

Bank Robbers Convicted.

La Crosse, Wis., March 4.—Edward Raymond, Otto Kellar and James Murphy were convicted yesterday of robbing the Spring Grove bank at Caledonia, and were sentenced to serve five years each.

Killed Himself.

Des Moines, Ia., March 5.—President La Rue, of the Corning bank, shot himself through the head Friday, dying instantly. His bank failed this week.

UPHOLDS PLURAL MARRIAGE

President Smith Gives Testimony Before Senate Committee in the Smoot Inquiry.

Washington, March 3.—Mormonism was placed on trial before the senate committee on privileges and elections yesterday when the taking of testimony was begun to determine whether Reed Smoot, of Utah, should retain his seat in the senate. Joseph D. Smith, president of the Mormon church, was on the witness stand all day and in his testimony admitted that he believed polygamy to be right and that the governing bodies of the church held the same position, and that the church still taught polygamy.

With startling frankness Mr. Smith admitted—or rather proudly declared—that he is a polygamist, that he has continued to live and cohabit with several wives, and has had children born to him by his plural wives in open violation of the law since the manifesto of 1890. He stated unreservedly and unhesitatingly that he knew he was violating the law, but preferred to do so rather than give up his wives.

Washington, March 6.—Admissions drawn from Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, respecting his continued violations of the law forbidding polygamous cohabitation again constituted the feature of the proceedings Saturday before the senate committee on privileges and elections against Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah. The witness, angered by the persistent efforts of some members of the committee to obtain from him every detail of his remission in obeying the law, turned on congress and charged that body with interfering without authority in his private domestic affairs and usurping the powers of the Utah courts, which alone, he said, possessed the right to hold him to account for his conduct.

Vladivostock, March 7.—A fleet of five Japanese battleships and two cruisers appeared off this place at 1:25 o'clock Sunday afternoon and bombarded the town and shore batteries for 55 minutes. The fleet approached from the direction of Askold island, at the east entrance to Ussuri bay and about 32 miles southeast of Vladivostock. Entering Ussuri bay the enemy formed in line of battle, but did not approach to a closer range than a mile and one-third. They directed their fire against the shore batteries and the town, but no damage resulted, as most of the 200 lyddite shells failed to burst. The Russian batteries, commanded by Gens. Veronetz and Artamonoff, did not reply, awaiting a closer approach of the enemy. The Japanese fire ceased at 2:20 p. m. and the enemy retired in the direction of Askold island. Simultaneously two torpedo boat destroyers appeared near Askold island and two more near Cape Maidel. The Japanese ships were covered with ice. The attack resulted in no loss to the Russians, but cost the enemy 200,000 roubles ($100,000) in ammunition. Most of the projectiles were six and 12-inch shells.

TRADE REVIEW.

New York, March 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Business continued to improve, despite the difficulty of low temperature and high prices. Weather conditions have been singularly unpropitious, deep snow retarding distribution of merchandise and excessive cold delaying the opening of spring trade and structural work. Yet retailers are making extensive preparations and plans are submitted for numerous building operations. It may be said with some degree of assurance that the iron and steel industry has made further progress in the right direction and the prospect is brighter than it has been at any time during the winter.

"Failures this week in the United States are 236 against 240 last week, 287 the preceding week and 229 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 27, against 22 last week, 20 the preceding week and 16 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Trade and industry are still irregular, being active in favored sections, but hampered in others by the prolongation of winter weather, with its concomitants of delayed transportation, car shortages or floods. Southern trade advices, as heretofore, reveal sustained activity; southwestern reports show improvement, and western dispatches are rather more optimistic though the volume of business is not equal to a year ago in that part of the country, nor in the east, where wholesale and retail trade is backward."

Offer Rejected.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7.—The second joint conference of coal operators and miners adjourned sine die Saturday without reaching an agreement, the latter delegates voting to reject the offer of a two years' wage scale equivalent to a reduction of 5½ per cent. President Mitchell says the action means a strike, which will affect 325,000 union men.

Took Poison.

Waterloo, Ia., March 2.—N. T. Blake, cashier of the First national bank of Dunkerton, committed suicide Tuesday by taking carbolic acid. His act was not discovered until he was dead. He had been cashier about a year. The bank officials suspect embezzlement and are examining the accounts of the bank.

Three Lives Lost.

New York, March 7.—One priest and two servants were killed and two other priests were severely injured at a fire which destroyed St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church and the adjoining rectory in Long Island City Saturday.

SKY SCRAPER IN NEW YORK FALLS

THIRTEEN STORY BUILDING COLLAPSES AND SEVERAL PERSONS ARE KILLED.

Without a Moment's Warning the Frame Work Went Down With a Crash—Overloaded Floors Caused the Disaster.

New York, March 4.—Twenty persons were killed, and several injured in the collapse yesterday of the steel skeleton of the Hotel Darlington, a 13-story structure in course of erection at 57 West Forty-sixth street. The steel framework had been erected as far as the eleventh floor and the structure was swarming with iron workers, masons, and laborers. Without a moment's warning the upper floor sagged and collapsed, and the whole framework went down with a grinding noise and a crash that was heard for blocks.

Fell on a Hotel.

A part of the huge steel frame crashed into the rear of the Hotel Patterson, slicing off an end of the dining-room and killing Mrs. Ella Lacey Storrs, wife of Frank Storrs, a wealthy resident of Rye, Westchester county. Mrs. Storrs was at luncheon with the wife of Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage. Mrs. Storrs, whose husband is in London, England, and Mrs. Savage were buried under the debris of the roof and walls. Mrs. Savage barely escaped being struck, and her skirt was pinned to the floor by a mass of fallen bricks.

Floors Overloaded.

The cause of the disaster was the overloading of the floors. Foreman James Halpin, in charge of the ironworkers, stated that there was a large quantity of cement and other building material on the fifth floor and that on the ninth floor were 83 iron beams which were to have been used in constructing the remaining floors of the building.

FOR SECOND PLACE.

Senator Fairbanks Would Not Refuse Republican Nomination for Vice President.

Washington, March 5.—The Star says: "Senator Fairbanks will not resist a movement to make him the vice presidential nominee of the republican party. If the convention nominates him he will accept. More than that, he will not attempt to discourage efforts looking to his nomination. It is only fair to say that no explicit declaration by Senator Fairbanks to that effect has been made. The Indiana delegation in congress is convinced that Senator Fairbanks has yielded to the solicitation of men high in the councils of Indiana to take second place on the national ticket."

Receives Same Penalty.

Washington, March 7.—Justice Pritchard overruled the motion of Samuel A. Groff, one of the recently convicted defendants in the post office trial, and sentenced him to two years in the Moundeville penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000, sentence to begin on arrival at the penitentiary. Groff immediately furnished bond for $20,000 pending an appeal.

For Another Term.

Baraboo, Wis., March 4.—Joseph W. Babcock was renominated for congress by the republicans of the Third Wisconsin district. Congressman Babcock received 83 votes to 18 for Col. D. O. Maloney, of Mount Vernon. The delegates chosen to the national convention are Col. John C. Clark and R. P. Perry. They were instructed for Roosevelt.

Six Trainmen Drowned.

Cleveland, O., March 7.—Six men were drowned and four others injured as a result of the collapse of a bridge spanning Yellow creek, near Irondale, on the Cleveland & Pittsburg railroad.

WORK DONE IN CONGRESS.

Washington, March 1.—The architectural changes made in the white house were the subject of a large share of yesterday's discussion in the senate. In the house the District of Columbia appropriation bill was considered and a bill was introduced for relief of the Baltimore fire sufferers by providing a rebate of all duties on imported building materials and remitting all internal revenue taxes now due in the burned district.

Washington, March 2.—The senate yesterday passed the bill requiring the use of American vessels in transporting government supplies, and took up the bill prohibiting the use of other than American vessels in shipping merchandise to the Philippines. The house on Tuesday concluded general debate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Washington, March 3.—The bill for the regulation of Philippine shipping was again the principal subject of consideration by the senate yesterday. A large number of private pension bills were passed. The house devoted the entire day to consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, but did not conclude action on the measure.

Washington, March 4.—For almost four hours yesterday the senate, while technically engaged on the naval appropriation bill, discussed a wide range of subjects, including the policy of the United States in the Philippines and the Russo-Japanese war. The house passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and took up the Indian appropriation bill.

Washington, March 5.—Senator Proctor yesterday reported the army appropriation bill, which carries $77,620,942. The naval bill was further discussed. In the house the conference on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was adopted, and the Indian appropriation bill was discussed.

Washington, March 6.—The senate yesterday agreed to the report of the conference committee on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. A bill was passed authorizing the president to extend an invitation to the international congress of hygiene to meet in Washington in 1909. The naval appropriation bill was further considered. Senator Foraker gave notice that on Thursday, March 31, he would ask the senate to consider resolutions of respect for the late Senator Hanna. In the house the Indian appropriation bill was passed, and the post office bill was reported.

Famous Writer Dies.

Guilford, Conn., March 4.—William Henry Harrison Murray, the writer, better known as "Adirondack Murray," died yesterday at his home here, aged 64 years. Mr. Murray had been in poor health for two years. As an author, traveler, lecturer and clergyman he was widely known.

Can't Give Clear Title.

Washington, March 7.—Negotiations in the Panama canal matters have been halted just as the government was about to hand $10,000,000 over to Panama because Attorney General Knox has found that Attorney Cromwell cannot give a clear title to the property.

Pioneer Minister Dead.

Springfield, Ill., March 5.—Rev. Robert Clark, one of the pioneer Methodist Episcopal ministers of Illinois, is dead at his home in Waverly, aged 84 years.

Court Grants Revision.

Paris, March 7.—The criminal branch of the court of cassation Saturday granted the appeal of Alfred Dreyfus for a revision of his trial at Rennes.

Clothiers Suffer by Fire.

Decatur, Ill., March 7.—The Race clothing and manufacturing store was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday. Loss, $75,000; fully insured.

Indiana Republicans.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 5.—The republican state committee fixed a state convention for April 26 and 27 at Indianapolis.

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease,

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

The MAN FROM NEW YORK

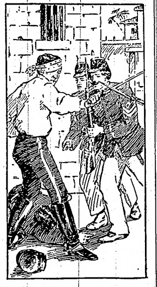
By JAMES NORFLEET

...Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure...

It was by no means an unusual item in the morning papers. It consisted of less than twenty lines and was to the effect that the cashier and confidential man of the B. and O., Broadway, had been missing for two or three days and that upon examination it had been found that he was short $15,000 in his accounts. The usual explanation was put forward—the races, the stock market and an uptown apartment—and it was added that the police were on the defaulter's trail.

* * * * * * *

A Cuban who wandered down to the north shore of his island one morning soon after daylight for a dip in the surf came across a sight which startled him and sent him running back to his sleeping comrades among the trees.



HE FOUGHT HIS LAST AND GREATEST FIGHT.

There was a battered old skiff on the sands, and a few feet from it lay a man asleep.

"Caramba! Wake up! Wake up!" said one of the half dozen Cubans who came down and surrounded the sleeper and wondered who and what he was.

"Well?" asked the man as he rubbed his eyes and sat up.

"Who are you?"

"You can call me the Man From New York."

"How did you get here?"

The man pointed to the old boat and rose to his feet to yawn and stretch.

"What do you want here?" continued the questioner.

"Take me to General Garcia. I guess he always wants recruits, and I am ready to join."

That was the introduction of the Man From New York. He gave no name and no information about himself. He simply said he was ready to fight for the cause, and he was assigned to the ranks and given arms. After the first skirmish he was made a sergeant; after the second, a lieutenant. He was a cool, fearless fighter and an acquisition. No questions were asked of him by the Cubans. He was one of a hundred Americans who had found their way to the island to take a hand in the revolution. Among themselves, however, they said:

"He is a fighter—too much of a fighter. It must be his desire to get killed. He came to us because he had done something to disgrace his name in the States, and he feels that he can never go back. We do not care to know what it is. If we had a thousand more like him we could capture Havana."

For a year Garcia's band neither won a victory nor suffered a defeat in which the Man From New York did not participate. As time went on he grew more morose and vindictive. His voice was seldom heard except in connection with duty, and the Spaniards came to know him as a terror. A price was put upon his head. Men hunted for him as dogs hunt for game, but they failed to catch him. Two or three times the proffered reward brought about his betrayal by men he had led to victory through forest and swamp, but he escaped falling into the hands of the enemy until the cause of freedom was almost won.

A thousand Spanish soldiers had crossed the famous trocha to beat the forests. Garcia had planned their destruction and gathered re-enforcements from every quarter.

In the gray of the morning the Man From New York led thirty men against the flank of the thousand to produce a diversion, and for a time the thousand were thrown into a panic and suffered great loss. Then the Cuban general's plans went wrong, and the enemy were allowed to take heart and rally. The regiment swung about and attacked the thirty. The thirty soon became only twenty-five, then twenty, then ten. Then the ten surrendered. The Man From New York stormed and raved and entreated. He cursed them in one breath and entreated in another, but the ten had had enough fighting.

"So it is you!" exclaimed the Spanish colonel when the leader of the ten had bowed to the inevitable. "I would rather have captured you than Garcia himself. You shall die in the streets of Havana after the governor general and the people have had a good look at you. As for the others, let four be taken out and shot at once. We will decide the fate of the others later on."

The five were confined in a sugar mill for the rest of the day and night, and the Spaniards rejoiced as over a great victory. For a time the Man from New York sat apart from the others and did not enter into their hopes and fears. Then a Cuban sergeant, a Cuban who had lived in Boston for years, but had made his way back to his native land to give his life for liberty, crossed over to him and said:

"They may spare us, senor, as we are Cubans, but your death is certain."

"Only a matter of a couple of days," was the reply.

"We have known you, and yet we have not known you well," continued the sergeant. "You have a name; you have friends in the States; you want to send a last message to some one."

"I have no name, no home, no friends," replied the lieutenant after a moment. "There is no one to whom I would send a message. If any one thinks of me it is with contempt."

"A mother?" softly queried the sergeant.

"Yes, but no message."

"A girl—a sweetheart?"

The lieutenant shook his head, and the sergeant drew away a pace and sighed. Presently he whispered:

"Senor, we have been proud of you. You have been a devil in battle. You have made your mark, and you have got to die because of it. We wish to remember you as a fighter."

"Don't worry, my man," said the officer as he laid a hand on the other's arm. "I see your drift. You don't want to think of me as standing blindfolded against a wall to be shot at. Well, that shall never happen. Leave me alone now and wait for the morning."

An hour later the officer was put into a room by himself and told that at daylight he would be started for Havana under escort. He was awake and alert at daylight. When the corporal's guard came to lead him forth he fought his last and greatest fight. The Spanish soldiers told of it to the last day of their occupation of Cuba. When at last he was killed his enemies stood around the dead body and removed their hats in respect. "Two dead and three wounded" was the corporal's report.

One morning last month a daily paper raked up the old case of defalcation in connection with another affair and closed by saying, "As far as we can learn the police have never secured a clew to the defaulter's whereabouts."

A Comical Situation.

In a volume of war reminiscences Major Stiles, a Confederate soldier, tells this story of the retreat from Richmond just before Lee's surrender at Appomattox: "I remember in all the discomfort and wretchedness of the retreat we had been no little amused by the naval battalion under that old hero Admiral Tucker. The soldiers called them the 'Aye, Ayes,' because they responded 'Aye, aye!' to every order, sometimes repeating the order itself and adding, 'Aye, aye, it is, sir!' As this battalion, which followed immediately after ours, was getting into position and seamen's and landsmen's jargon and movements were getting a good deal mixed in the orders and evolutions, all being harmonized, however, and licked into shape by the 'aye, aye,' a young officer of the division staff rode up, saluted Admiral Tucker and said, 'Admiral, I may possibly be of assistance to you in getting your command into line.' The admiral replied, 'Young man, I understand how to talk to my people.' And thereupon followed 'a grand moral combination' of 'right flank' and 'left flank,' 'starboard' and 'larboard,' 'aye, aye,' and 'aye, aye,' until the battalion gradually settled down into place."

The Club Among Savages.

The club, or mace, was probably the first, as it is the most universal, weapon, and every nation would seem to have some form peculiar to itself. The Maori spent years of labor in grinding to shape his battledoor-like "meral" out of jade or greenstone. The New Britain savage makes a hole through a granite pebble by dropping water on it while hot and thus forms the head of his club. The Fijian found ready to his hand a tree whose evenly radiating roots he trimmed into an exact likeness of the mediæval "morgenstern," wherewith the Swiss battered down the Austrian ranks at Sempach.

The mace of the Persian horseman was of steel, with a head formed of six or more radiating blades or ridges, and had often a basket hilt like a sword. The terrible Mahmud of Ghazni, like the knight of Border song, "at his saddle girth had a good steel sperthe full ten pound weight and more," and it was with this that he shattered the idol of Somnauth before the eyes of the horrified priests, strewing the temple floor with the jewels hidden within.—Chambers' Journal.

How Buffaloes Were Slaughtered.

The buffaloes traveled "on the run" and in great herds. It was always a helter skelter dash at full speed, heads down, long, shaggy hair tossing over gleaming eyes and every one for himself. If an animal fell it was trampled to death by the thousands passing on. The annual migration was simply a wild dash for food. The leaders were not always so wild and stupid as the rest of the herd which they led in the awful scramble. They would scent danger, but that often availed little with the galloping, bellowing ones behind them.

So the hunters used to frighten the leaders into taking a direct line for a ravine, where, if the front ranks halted, they would be pushed over by thousands. It was a reckless, wholesale slaughter of noble animals and accounts partly for the scarcity of the buffalo in later years.—J. L. Vance in Our Animal Friends.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

G. G. Thornburg, a Crookston real estate man, was looking after business matters in the city yesterday.

William Lee and the Misses Kate and Anna Campbell were guests of friends at Thief River Falls Sunday.

The McKenzie family is expected up from Lyon county next week. They will live on a farm near town.

Judge Tarrant expects to go to Thief River Falls today to visit friends and look after business matters.

Theo. Garceau has been laid up with a cold this week, but expects to get back to his work in a day or two.

Attorney Chas. H. Schellbach was down from Thief River Falls yesterday on business at the court house.

Misses Lucy Hunt and Ina Linniban were guests of the family of W. A. Sorsoleil at St. Hilaire over Sunday.

A. D. Berry was in from Louisville Monday to get election ballots printed and secure other supplies for the election.

Ed G. Holm, one of the COURIER's good friends up in Rocksbury township, was a caller yesterday to renew his subscription.

W. Sandtrock, traveling salesman for W. J. Dyer & Bro.'s music house, was the guest of his friend, A. L. Reichert, over Sunday.

Mrs. Peter Lundquist returned to St. Hilaire Monday to resume her school work after a week's vacation which she spent at home.

Attorney W. A. McIntyre went down to Crookston Thursday evening and remained over Saturday to look after business matters and visit friends.

Wilhelm Michelet, the Thief River attorney, was in the city Monday on business at the court house. The Courier acknowledges a pleasant call.

Fred Taylor came up from St. Paul Monday to spend a few days with his family. Mr. Taylor has a good position with the Union depot company.

Adelard Lemieux went to Minot, N. D., last Friday to visit his brother, Wilfred, and attend to some business matters. He is expected home this week.

Christopher Christianson was called to Crookston Monday evening to attend the funeral of his brother, Christian Christianson, who died at his home in that city the previous day.

L. E. Davidson, an inspector for the dairy and food commission, was calling on our merchants Saturday. He tells the COURIER that not a single article of impure food was found in the city.

Miss May Waterman, of Ada, Minn., has been the guest of her friend, Mrs. J. L. Tracy, the past week. Miss Waterman is the accomplished "hello" at the telephone exchange in that city.

William Erickson went to Grand Forks Monday on a business trip. Some of Billy's friends say there is a girl in the case, but we refuse to believe it, for Billy is too industrious to spend his time frivilously.

H. N. Johnson left Monday morning for Park River, N. D., where he becomes local manager for the Robertson Lumber company. The best wishes of the Red Lake Falls people will go with Mr. Johnson.

W. H. Blunt and wife, of Thief River Falls, attended the creamery meeting Saturday. Mr. Blunt is manager of the Thief River creamery, and is counted one of the most succesful buttermakers in the Northwest.

Dr. C. I. Johnson, the popular proprietor and manager of Johnson's printing machinery and type house at St. Paul, was a pleasant caller today while enroute to Thief River Falls, where he went to make settlement for a printing press he recently sold the Review people.

M. T. Whitmore has resigned his position as assistant bookkeeper for the Red Lake Falls Milling company and will leave next Wednesday for his home at Montevideo, Minn. Milt has several good positions in sight, but is not certain as yet what line of work he will take up.

Matthew Steele, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Jennie, arrived Tuesday from Marshall. Minn., and will at once go to housekeeping on the Joe Gray farm, which they purchased last summer of Ed L. Healy. The Steeles are first-class people, and the Courier welcomes them to Red Lake county.

Gilbert Gross and family arrived last week from Marshall, Minn., to become residents of this community. Last summer Mr. Gross bought the Fontaine farm, southeast of town. This is one of the best farms in the county and commanded a fancy price. Mr. Gross starts in by subscribing for the COURIER, and we trust he will be happy and prosperous in his new location.

Hon. L. C. Simons returned yesterday from his trip to the Pacific coast. During his travels he covered a distance of 5,000 miles, and says he has gained quite a comprehensive knowledge of the western country. Mr. Simons thinks that of all the country he visited southern California and eastean Washington are the most delightful as well as the most prosperous. The rainy season, which lasts about six months, makes many portions of the Pacific slope very unattractive just now.

Indians Consent to Move Off Reservation Lands in Three Months.

Indications are that the Red Lake reservation will be opened to settlement about July 1.

Representative Steenerson yesterday received a letter from Secretary Hitchcock stating that he had directed the commissioner of Indian affairs to send a special agent from his office to secure the consent of the Indians now on the land to remove to the diminished reservation within three months.

The act provides that the Indians shall remove within six months, but Steenerson has been advised that the Indians will consent to get off the reservation in half that time, as they are satisfied with the terms of the law and anxious to see the lands sold.

The Basis for Judgment.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: The fact is that neither Dunn's nor any man's fitness for governorship is going to be judged by formal declarations. Personal character and official records are the essential basis of judgment. Dunn's honesty, energy and courage are very generally recognized, while his courage as a member of the legislature and as auditor has won for him the respect and admiration of very many citizens in all parts of the state. There is, moreover, probably no one better acquainted with the business of the State. There is, therefore, no reason to doubt that Dunn, if elected, would give a vigorous and intelligent administration.

EAT POISON IN SMALL DOSES.

Mr McConnell Believes Dyes Are Injurious.

The state dairy and food department has begun a special investigation to determine the effects of vegetable colorings for butter. The department is sending to Chicago for analysis by butter experts in the service of the United States department of agriculture, samples of butter containing coal tar and aniline dyes. The experts at Chicago do not know in which samples either of the colorings is used, so that their judgment is formed solely by the effect produced on the butter.

Commissioner McConnell is satisfied that colorings containing coal tar and aniline dyes are injurious to health, and he is trying to find a harmless vegetable coloring to take the place of the coal tar. Some of the vegetable compounds have not proved satisfactory, since they give an oily flavor to the butter. The coloring contain oil, and Mr. McConnell believes that the excessive oily flavor of the vegetable compound is caused by the fact that to produce the required tint more of the vegetable compound has been used than of the coal tar dyes.

"If the coal tar dyes were used to color only butter it wouldn't be so bad," said Mr. McConnell, "but they are used in many other classes of food. I'll venture to say that if I go to a restaurant in St. Paul and get a square meal, there will be at least seven kinds of food that contain coal tar or aniline dyes. They will be in the butter, catsup, apple preserves, cherry pies, canned tomatoes, black-berry brandy and strawberry jam.

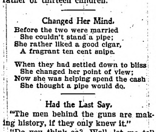
IT IS HIS TRADE.

Behold the villain in the play,
The gentleman with cunning low
Who, plotting dark to have his way,
To any length or depth will go.
He keeps the heroine at sea
Till thwarted by the hero keen
And shows how mean a man can be
When he is paid for being mean.

For three long acts and maybe four
He works his underhanded game,
Keeps gentle folk in an uproar
And quite lives up to his bad name.



But do not censure him or say
He merits final overthrow.
Remember, he is drawing pay
For being mean and vile and low.

For when he hires by the year
The manager doth specify
That he shall every night appear
A villain of the deepest dye.
Some fellows you may chance to know
Are just as cruel every whit
As any villain in the show
And do not get a cent for it.

Had Inside Information.

"It is nonsense to say that the shoe factories have shut down because of overproduction. There could not be such a thing."

"How do you figure that out?"

"I know without figuring. I am the father of thirteen children."

Changed Her Mind.

Before the two were married
She couldn't stand a pipe;
She rather liked a good cigar,
A fragrant ten cent snipe.

When they had settled down to bliss
She changed her point of view;
Now she was helping spend the cash
She thought a pipe would do.

Had the Last Say.

"The men behind the guns are making history, if they only knew it."

"Do you think so? Well, let me tell you it is the man behind the blue pencil that makes it after they have retired and are wondering what is to come next."

Her Figure Caught Them.

Her face was not so pretty,
Her form was nothing great,
And she was rather shy on sense;
But, oh, her figure was immense!
So men came round to wait
Upon this girl of beauty shy
Whose charms seemed quite a blank
Attracted from all quarters by
Her figure in the bank.

When Poverty Pinched.

"How does Widow Bronson manage to make both ends meet?"

"Poor woman! She doesn't! She is obliged to make one end breakfast food."

Couldn't Set 'Em Up.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"To get a glass of lemonade."
"May I go along, my pretty maid?"
"My credit won't stand for two, I'm afraid."

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 24. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 17, 1904. WHOLE NUMBER 284.

G. O. P. HOLDS LOVEFEAST

Delegates Elected to District Convention at Crookston and State Convention at Minneapolis.

A delegate convention of the Republicans of Red Lake county was held at the court house Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of selecting ten delegates to the district convention at Crookston and eight delegates to the state convention at Minneapolis.

The convention was called to order by C. L. Dobner, of Thief River Falls, chairman of the Republican county committee, and on motion of J. A. Duffy Mr. Dobner was elected chairman of the convention. Thos. Germo, of Red Lake Falls, was made secretary.

A committee of credentials consisting of D. Patterson, H. E. Ives and D. B. Bakke was appointed, and they reported the following delegates entitled to seats in the convention.

St. Hilaire—D. Patterson, Thos. Thorkelson, H. E. Ives.

Thief River Falls—K. J. Weeks, J. W. Eastman, C. L. Dobner, H. L. Dudley, F. H. Kratka, J. M. Bishop, D. B. Bakke.

Red Lake Falls—J. A. Duffy, Thos. Germo, A. P. Toupin, Frank E. Hunt, N. M. Watson, S. S. Haislet, S. M. Sivertson, G. G. Kindseth, J. J. Padden.

Polk Centre—S. J. Swanson, Chas. Naplin, F. C. Leppert.

Poplar River—Chas. Hallas, Joseph Pigeon, R. Lefebre.

Emardville—Paul I. D. Ostby.

Red Lake Falls township—L. H. Freeze.

Terrebonne—George Dupont, Lewis Mathews.

Lambert—Louis Doucet, A. E. Sorenson.

On motion the following delegates were chosen to attend the district convention at Crookston:

Dr. N. M. Watson, S. M. Sivertson, A. P. Toupin, Thos. Thorkelson, S. J. Swanson, Ira C. Richardson, Joseph Belair, Charles Hallas, Thomas Germo and J. M. Bishop.

Delegates to the state convention at Minneapolis were selected as follows:

D. B. Bakke, S. S. Haislet, Dr. N. M. Watson, Thos. Thorkelson, M. O. Sortedahl, C. N. Bourdon, L. C. Simons and A. P. Toupin.

A committee consisting of S. S. Haislet, H. L. Dudley and H. E. Ives was appointed on resolutions, who made the following report:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Red Lake county in convention assembled felicitate the Republican party of the state and nation upon the faithful performance by its public officers of the commission entrusted to them, upon the general optimism and good cheer so prevalent in its rank and file, born as well from distant and recent achievements for mankind as from the strong feeling of security and confidence in the future success of the party.

We most heartily endorse the wise, patriotic and manly administration of that strenuous American, Theodore Roosevelt, and employing the words used on a former occasion re-affirm that "its acts have been established in wisdom and patriotism," and at home and abroad it has distinctly elevated and extended the influence of the American nation. Walking untried paths and facing unforseen responsibilities, President Roosevelt has been in every situation the true American patriot and the upright statesman, clear in vision, strong in judgment, firm in action, always inspiring and deserving the confidence of his countrymen.

Resolved, further, that our delegations to the congressional convention at Crookston and to the state convention at Minneapolis be instructed, and they hereby are instructed to stand unalterably for such delegates to the Republican national convention at Chicago as shall stand first, last and all the time for Theodore Roosevelt for president, to the end that the delegation from Minnesota may stand as firmly and unflinchingly for Roosevelt as the latter stands firmly and unflinchingly for the enforcement of law.

ALTERNATE DELEGATE TO REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PALACE HOTEL IS BURNED

Total Loss Aggregates About $10,000, With Insurance of $7,500—Origin is Unknown.

Red Lake Falls had a serious conflagration Monday night. Shortly after two o'clock the Palace hotel building was discovered to be on fire, and in a few minutes the entire structure was a mass of flames. For a time it looked as if the entire block would be destroyed, but after several hours' hard work by the fire department the flames were checked when Robillard's saloon building was reached.

It is thought that the fire must have been burning for more than an hour before it was discovered. No one knows how it started, but it is generally believed to be of incendiary origin. The fire was started in the liquor room of the saloon, and spread rapidly all over the building. The firemen did heroic work, and it is only by reason of their efforts that the entire block did not burn. The losses are reported as follows:

Latendresse Bros., saloon and hotel building, valued by the proprietors at $7,000. Insurance, $6,000; $4,500 on the building and $1,500 on the saloon stock and fixures. The companies represented are as follows: Hartford, $500; London, Liverpool & Globe, $500; American Fire, $500; Queen, $500; London, Lancashire & Globe, $500; German Alliance, $500; Insurance Co. of North America, $750; Norwich Union, $500; joint policy Insurance Co. of North America and Fire Association of Philadelphia, $750; Palatine, $500; Greenwich, $500.

John A. Duffy, building occupied by Union Land & Investment company and Gonigam Real Estate agency, loss $1,700; insurance, $1,150.

Union Land & Investment company, loss $350; insurance, $300.

A small loss was incurred on the building occupied by A. M. Robillard's saloon, fully covered by insurance.

The fixtures and goods in the office of the Gonigam Real Estate agency were all saved. Mr. Gonigam had no insurance.

Sparks From the Fire.

Gonigam's real agency is located in the Schreiter building formerly occupied by the Healy agency.

There are no theories advanced as to the cause of the fire—and everybody is entitled to his own guess.

Latandresse's saloon was burned out slick and clean, and at present no steps have been taken to re-establish the business.

Fortunately there was little wind at the time of the fire. Had there been a strong east or south breeze the entire block would have been destroyed.

The fire had a good start before the alarm was turned in, and by the time the firemen arrived on the scene the hotel building was a mass of flames.

The Union Land & Investment company is now domiciled in the Henry Kaufer building, next door to the barber shop. Manager Gaass didn't let any grass grow under his feet, and had the building engaged half an hour after the fire started.

The Crookston Journal was prompt in giving an account of the fire, but its figures are somewhat exaggerated. The entire loss will not exceed $7,000, but the Journal says it is $35,000, and that it is "one of the worst catastrophes that has ever occured in the upper country."

Frank Brouillette was badly injured about the head and face while in performance of his duties as a fireman. While attempting to tear down the rear wall of the Palace hotel building he was caught by the falling timbers. His face was somewhat burned and one ear lacerated. However, his injuries are not serious and it is expected that he will be on deck at LaBissoniere's store in a few days.

Twenty-five New Subscribers to the Courier This Week.

THE COURIER's enterprising and persistent missionary, George L. Austin, reports another handsome list of new subscribers this week. He struck several days of blizzardy weather, and took two days' lay-off on his own account, but made a little hay while the sun shone. The list up to Saturday night reached twenty-five new ones. Mr. Austin says he hasn't struck a locality yet where the COURIER was not highly spoken of and regarded as the newsiest paper in this section. Those who will hereafter read the COURIER are as follows:

Minneapolis, March 17, 4:30 p. m.—(Special to the COURIER: The Republican state convention today elected Senator Knute Nelson, Senator Moses E. Clapp, Governor Samuel R. VanSant and Thomas Lowry as delegates at large to the Republican national convention at Chicago in June.

The platform endorses President Roosevelt, and declares for reciprocity and gradual revision of the tariff.

STEPHENS AND MARCKELL

The Republican district convention to select two delegates to the Republican national convention was held at Crookston yesterday. L. H. Bailey of Bemidji was chairman and D. W. Meeker of Moorhead secretary. Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston and Amos Marckell of Perham were chosen as delegates to the national convention. Howard Dykman of Breckenridge was a candidate, but was third in the race.

Dr. N. M. Watson of Red Lake Falls and George E. Perley of Moorhead were named as alternates.

Resolutions were passed endorsing President Roosevelt and Congressman Steenerson. The Van Sant administration was left out in the cold.

S. M. Sivertson was a member of the committee on resolutions and A. P. Toupin on present organization.

DITCHES ARE GOLD MINES.

Add $8,000,000 to Value of Minnesota Farm Lands.

Approximately 800 miles of ditches, draining 1000,000 acres of land and increasing its value $8,000,000, have been completed by the state and by the counties in the northern part of Minnesota, says George Ralph, engineer of the state drainage board, who has just filed a report with the secretary of state.

Mr. Ralph says that much of the land drained could not be sold at any price before the ditches were constructed, and now brings from $8 to $13 an acre. The state has constructed 200 miles of ditches, draining 400,000 acres of swamp land and adding more than $2,000,000 to its value. State ditches are constructed in Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk, Beltrami, Norman, Clay, Wadena, Otter tail, Traverse, Grant, Big Stone, Wilkin and Aitkin counties.

Several counties in the northern part of the state have constructed of their own accord approximately 600 miles of ditches. The ditches are to be paid for by a tax levied against the property benefited ranging from 60 cents to $1 an acre. The ditches are from eight to fifty feet wide.

Polk county has 300 miles of ditches, which drain 600,000 acres and add to the value of the land $3,000,000. Red Lake county has constructed 125 miles of ditches, draining 250,000 acres and increasing the value of the land to the extent of $1,250,000. The ditches in Marshall county are 75 miles long, and 150,000 acres are drained and increased in value at an average of $5 an acre. Kittson has 50 miles of ditches and Norman 40 miles. Those drain 100,000 and 80,000 acres respectively, and increased the value of the land to the extent of $500,000 and $400,000.

Mr. Ralph says that tile drainage is being tried by some of the counties with considerable success.

"Tile drainage, as far as I have observed, is satisfactory," said Mr. Ralph. "Where tiles are used I have found that the soil is porous and free from excessive moisture, so that farmers can begin work much earlier in the spring. This system of drainage works very satisfactorly with the system of state ditches. The tiles make excellent lateral drains, and the state ditches convey the water received from the tiles."

MORE CREAMERIES IN SIGHT.

Farmers Realize the Benefits of Stock Raising and Dairying.

A general movement is being made to start creameries throughout the Red River valley, as the need of them is becoming felt by all. The one crop idea is a back number and the farmers are abandoning the old method.

The sole dependence of the valley farmers upon their wheat does not pay and they are gradually coming to a realization of the fact. They are beginning to raise cattle extensively and their idea is that when the cereal crop fails they will be able to fall back on something substantial.

It has been proved that there is nothing more valuable to the farmer than the good butter-making cow, and as the valley affords sufficient pasturage for the feed, all that is lacking is the work and energy of the farmer and now that the association of the farmers has been formed it is believed that it is only a question of a short time until every farmer is devoting a good share of his time to the making of butter.

NEED MORE PURE AIR.

State Superintendent Wants Better Ventilation in School Houses.

Restlessness, irritability and dullness of pupils are often due to impure air rather that indifference or perverseness, says the state superintendent of public instruction in a bulletin just sent out through the state, which says that hereafter schools seeking state aid much have other means of ventilation than doors and windows. "Doors and windows alone cannot adequately supply the schoolroom with fresh air," says the bulletin. "Other means must be provided for securing that and for the withdrawal of foul air."

"For rural schools, it is useless to cousider the elaborate machinery of the fan system. We must content ourselves with the less scientific gravity system which if properly installed and used, will greatly improve conditions for physical and mental development. "The department does not wish to be understood as making anbitrary rules regarding any one plan of heating and ventilating school buildings, but it does insist that for the receiving of special state aid some satisfactory system be put in during the present school year, before application is made for the aid; and that proper discriminatoin may be made in awarding it, the application must indicate definitely the system used by the school applying."

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF Red Lake, ss:

In Probate Court,
Special Term, March 1, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Soren Gunderson, deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Soren Sorrenson, of the County of Red Lake, representing among other things, that Soren Gunderson, late of the County of Red Lake, in the State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of January, A. D. 1896, at the County of Red Lake, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitionee is a son of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John L. Finke granted;

It is Ordered, That said petition be heard before said Court, on Friday, the 25th day of March, A. D. 1904, at one o'clock p. m., at the Probate Office, in the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, in said County.

Ordered Further, That Notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Courier, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 1st day of March, A. D. 1904.

By the Court,
N. W. TARRANT,
Judge of Probate.

H. W. LEE,
Attorney for Petitioner,

Notice of Sale on Execution.

State of Minnesota, } ss
County of Red Lake.

In District Court—Fourteenth Judicial District.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution, directed and delivered to me, issued out of the district court of Red Lake county, state of Minnesota, on a judgment rendered and docketed therein on 31st day of December, A. D. 1903, in favor of the Robertson Lumber Company, a corporation, plaintiff, and against Thomas Belair, defendant, for the sum of One Hundred sixty-three and 33-100 dollars ($163.33). I have levied upon and will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, at the front door of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on Saturday the 9th day of April, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon all the right, title and interest of the said Thos. Belair, in and to the following described real property, towit:

Lots numbered twenty-two (22), twenty-three (23), twenty-four (24), of block ten (10) in Buse & Bottineau's addition to the original townsite of the village (now city) of Red Lake Falls, in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, according to the recorded plat thereof.

Dated this 23rd day of February, 1904.

D. LINNIHAN,
Sheriff Red Lake County, Minnesota.

W. A. MCINTYRE,
Plaintiff's Attorney. (f25-m31)

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

A mortgage, with power of sale, was made by Thomas S. Lowry and Isabella Lowry, his wife, to J. M. Wagner, dated the 7th day of October, 1901, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Red Lake county, Minnesota, on the 24th day of December, 1901, at 3 o'clock and 30 minutes p. m., in Book 36 of Mortgages, on page 512 thereof, of Red Lake County records.

On the 19th day of May, 1903, the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said J. M. Wagner to Earle F. Andrus, by an instrument in writing, which said instrument of assignment was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said Red Lake county, on the 22nd day of January, 1904, at one o'clock and thirty minutes p. m., in Book 15 of Mortgages, on page 98.

Default has been made in the conditions, agreements and covenants of said mortgage, and there is claimed to be due and is due the subscriber at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage, the sum of Two Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars and ninety-eight cents, of which one hundred and thirty-one dollars and forty cents is on account of the balance of the principal of the installment note described in the mortgage, eighty-seven dollars and sixty cents is on account of the interest on the prior mortgage described in said mortgage, which fell due on October 7, 1903, which the mortgagors above named failed to pay, and which was paid by the subscriber, and the balance of which is interest on said sums above named.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises described therein and hereinafter described, to satisfy the amount which shall at the date of said sale be due on said mortgage, together with the costs and expenses of said sale as allowed by law, the taxes, if any, paid by the subscriber, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars which is a reasonable attorney's fee for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and is agreed in said mortgage to be paid in such event.

Said sale will be made at the main front entrance of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, Red Lake county Minnesota, on Saturday the 19th day of March, 1904, at ten o'clock a. m. of said day by the Sheriff of said Red Lake county, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are situated in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, and are known and described as follows:

The south east quarter (s. e. ¼) of section 31, township 150, north of range 44, west of 5th p. m.

Dated February 4, 1904.

MRS. CECELIA STOWE,
Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weaknes and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

WINE OF CARDUI

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Largest sizes at moderate prices.

PLUCK 60 PER CENT.

Teachers' Examinations Weed Out Majority of Applicants.

Nearly twothirds of the candidates for teachers' certificates who took the February examinations, held at the county seats throughout the State utterly failed to pass.

The number of candidates was 4,811, of whom 530 applied for limited first grade certificates; 2,157 for second grade certificates; 2,064 for limited second grade certificates, and 60 for renewal of certificates already granted to them. There were issued 221 complete first grade, 791 complete second grade, 93 conditional first grade; 613 conditional second grade certificates; a total of 1,922; which represents 39.95 per cent. who were unsuccessful.

In determining results from these examinations the State superintendent of public instruction received from the county superintendents 30,311 examination papers, of which 2,296 were of the first grade and 28,015 of the second grade. These papers were examined under the direction of the State department of instruction, and the work requires the services of about seventy-five readers for the period of more than ten days.

At the general examination of last October 48 per cent of the candidates passed, but at that of last March only 29.5 per cent passed.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

An Early Breakfast.

After a strenuous journey through Hart county, during which he rode many miles in a buggy, Special Pension Examiner E. S. McIntyre has returned with a story illustrating the courtesy of Kentucky farmers.

After dark one night Colonel McIntyre drove up to a farmhouse and after pounding on the door with his buggy whip, finally aroused the farmer, who had been sleeping.

"Can I get a bed and an early breakfast?" he asked.

"Yes, we can give you a bed and I reckon an early breakfast too."

All hands went to sleep but Colonel McIntyre.

He had some papers to look over and at midnight turned in. In what seemed to him ten minutes after he had gone to sleep he was awakened by a knocking on the door. He reached for his trusty weapon, at the same time wondering what burglars were doing abroad among the farms of Hart county.

"Git up in there!" a voice shouted. "It's gittin' up time. Your breakfast is ready."

Colonel McIntyre arose in the dark, slowly dressed and came into the breakfast room.

"What time is it?" he asked.

"It's about 2 o'clock, I reckon."

"Well, what the thunder do you mean by waking me at 2 o'clock?"

"Didn't you say you wanted an early breakfast?" said the farmer, with deep concern.

Colonel McIntyre ate his breakfast in silence.—Louisville Herald.

Positive Order.

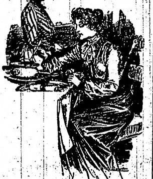
"I'll bet," said Cadley scornfully, "that you didn't do the proposing. Dollars to doughnuts your wife asked you to marry her."

"Oh, no; you're wrong!" replied Henpeck.

"Oh, come off!"

"No. She didn't ask me to marry her. She told me to."—Philadelphia Press.

Drawing the Line.



Mistress—You say there's a man at the door wishes to see me. Does he look like a gentleman?

Norah—Well, not exactly like a gentleman; just something like the master.

A Remedy Suggested.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that the proletariat is becoming more and more difficult to manage."

"Yes," replied her hostess; "Josiah thinks so, too, but his idea is that if people wouldn't eat hearty just before goin' to bed very few of them would ever have it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Stupid.

Perdita—It doesn't matter if this is the third installment of the story. The synopsis is printed, telling how the first chapters went; so you can start reading it from here.

Penelope—Yes, but how stupid of them not to have the synopsis tell how it ends!—Judge.

Obvious Use.

Teacher—The reindeer, you know, is a domestic animal that inhabits the polar regions, where there is much snow. Can any one in the class tell me what the reindeer is used for?

Tommy Tucker (raising his hand)—Yes'm; for pullin' snowplows.—Chicago Tribune.

Ready to Relieve Him.

"It is a generous and helpful world," said the multimillionaire.

"Indeed?"

"Yes. When it was announced that I desired to die a comparatively poor man there was a general movement to assist me in the enterprise."—Washington Star.

Familiar Story.

Gunner—I wonder what that pretty society leader has been talking about for the last hour?

"She has been telling the society reporters she had 'nothing to say.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Poor Consolation.

"Gracious!" sighed Mr. De Spepsey. "I wish I could acquire an appetite."

"Foor goodness' sake," exclaimed his wife, "what do you want with an appetite? It would only give you more dyspepsia."—Philadelphia Press.

A Seeming Impossibility.

Jean—Maud says she believes in being young while she can.

Ethelle—Oh, she's done better than that for at least five years. She's been young while she couldn't.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Missed.

Visitor—Won't you be glad to see your little sister again?

Bobbie—Yes; I haven't anybody to take cake away from.—Chicago Post.

MEETING AN AUTHOR.

Robert Barr's Visit to His Friend Captain Mayne Reid.

Robert Barr, the author, told with glee how Captain Mayne Reid, who was a friend of his, came to London and sent his address to Barr. The latter started to call on Reid. He did not know the street and, asking a bus man if his vehicle passed such and such a street, was assured that it did. In due course he came upon the street. In his letter Mayne Reid said he had taken a corner house in this street and added that he had a delightful garden and a high wall. "When I got down from the bus," says Mr. Barr, "I found that the corner house had a high wall and doubtless behind it a delightful garden, which answered perfectly the description which Captain Mayne Reid had given me.

"I said to a policemen, because I wanted to be sure, 'Could you tell me where Mr. Reid lives?' And he answered, 'Do you mean Mr. Reid, the author?' And I replied, 'Yes.' So the policeman pointed to the premises I had already selected as the residence of my friend. Therefore I went through the gate without fear and rang the bell at the residence, which stood some distance back in the garden. I was admitted and asked if Mr. Reid was at home. I was told that he was and was shown into a room on the left hand side of the passage. Waiting there some time, an old, slippered man came in, whom I did not recognize.

"'Do you wish to see me?' he asked. I rose from my chair and replied, 'I have called to see Captain Mayne Reid.' 'I beg your pardon,' he said very frigidly. 'I am Charles Reade,' with which he turned his back upon me and left me there alone. That was the only time I had the pleasure of meeting one of England's greatest authors. Captain Mayne Reid had taken a corner house in a street of the same name in Maida Vale, some miles from where Mr. Charles Reade resided during his last days."

THE MODEL GUEST.

He Knows Just When, What and How to Do or Not to Do.

A really fine specimen of the guest who does his best has a spirit which cannot be broken by weather or weariness. He can manage to talk to any one, even if he should discover with a shock that he is sitting next to his worst enemy. He knows how to come into any discussion and how to keep out of it. He does not seek his own amusement, yet he never fails to show that he is amused. He is tolerant of every opinion, and though he may have many convictions of his own and may state them so as to do them justice he never tries to proselytize.

His visit is not a mission, and he never for a moment fancies himself on the hustings, in a debating society, a pulpit or a court of justice. Above all, he has a good opinion of himself. Good wine needs no bush. He has no desire to boast, but he is certain that he will not be slighted. If his hostess assigns to him a dull job he is sure it is because she thought he could do it well, and if he feels it to be really below his powers he takes her mistake into account not while he is under her roof, but when he next receives her kind invitation. He is not plagued by that craving of the oversensitive to be like their company nor does he belong to that race of born dissenters who would always rather be different.

But, alas, conscience and talent do not always go together. There are some high principled guests who are terrible bores. In their solicitude to be agreeable they never stop talking, but pursue their garrulous ideal like a dog following a carriage. To every interruption they give immediate but momentary attention and run breathless on.—London Outlook.

Evolution of the Folding Bed.

Mrs. De Flat—Have you anything new in folding beds?

Dealer—Only this, madam, and it really is quite a success. On arising in the morning you touch a spring and it turns into a washstand and bathtub. After your bath, you touch another spring, and it becomes a dressing case, with a French plate mirror. If you breakfast in your room, a slight pressure will transform it into an extension table. After breakfast, you press these three buttons at once and you have an upright piano. That's all it will do, except that when you die it can be changed into a rosewood coffin.—New York Weekly.

She Won.

He was a philosopher and a talker. She was a woman of action. They stood together on the bridge and watched a tug that was hauling a long line of barges up the river.

"Look there, my dear," said he. "Such is life. The tug is like the man, working and toiling, while the barges, like the women, are"—

His wife gave him no time to finish the sentence. "I know," she said. "The tug does all the blowing and the barges bear all the burden."

The Official Time.

Jerrold—As I was saying, I had $50 on Topnotch at 100 to 1. The race was six furlongs and Topnotch won.

Harold—What was the time?

Jerrold—Why—er—I heard the clock strike 2 just as I woke up!—Puck.

To Avoid Publicity.

Young Author (who thinks himself famous)—I believe I should enjoy my vacation better if I could go incognito.

Friend—Good idea! Travel under your nom de plume.—New York Weekly.

Girls have a way of getting a lot of special scenery on when they wait on table at a church social.—Atchison Globe.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

Bowling Green, Ky.
About a year ago I was attacked by acute rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE NECESSARY MAGAZINE IN THE PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

The Review of Reviews is often called a necessity, in recognition of its usefulness in keeping readers "up with the times."

In Presidential election years the REVIEW OF REVIEWS is more than ever "the necessary magazine." Everybody wants to be truly and quickly informed about this or that public question that has forged to the front; to know about the new candidates and personal factors in politics, to have a complete picture at hand of the current movement of history.

In Dr. Shaw's editorials, in its authentic and timely contributed articles, in its brilliant character sketches, in its condensations and reviews of all the important articles of other magazines, and in its hundred a month of valuable portraits, witty cartoons, and interesting views, the REVIEW OF REVIEWS gives the much desired news of the world's and our own progress. "The World under a Field-glass" is the way one subscriber describes it.

Men in public life, like President Theodore Roosevelt, the members of Congress, and the great captains of industry, who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided it is "indispensable."

WILLIAM R. HEARST will not be nominated for president by the Democrats if Bro. McDonald of the St. Cloud Times can prevent it.

THE Janesville Gazette says the Americans are rapidly being divided into two classes: those who ride automobiles and those who dodge them.

ON the theory that "it's the hit bird that flutters" numerous congressmen are paying altogether too much attention to the Bristow charges.

THE moral wave at Bemidji went out with the ebb of the first tide. At the recent municipal election the "wide open" policy was endorsed by a vote of 500 to 85.

PRESS AGENT NELSON, of the Collins bureau, is said to be a charming letter-writer, but still more fetching are the little enclosures prefaced by "Pay to the order of."

IN announcing the opening of a ladies' bath parlor at Crookston the Journal says "Baths are in Shape." Wouldn't it be more appropriate to say "Shapes are in Bath?"

MARY MCFADDEN observes: "Think what inspiration the present political situation would be to the late John S. Vandiver. 'Hot Tamales' would be highly flavored and widely sought."

IT is admitted that Senator Dick is not long on statesmanship, but he is a good wire-puller and knows a thing or two about practical politics. And this is the best recommendation for a seat in the upper house—nowadays.

SINCE Press Agent Nelson is devoting all of the daylight and a little midnight oil in the service of the Collins campaign, why doesn't he have the decency to resign his job as state librarian? We are surprised that Mr. Nelson should continue to draw a salary for which he gives no labor.

WHEN it comes to lynching negroes the South is no longer the whole show. Last week in the old Republican state of Ohio, where abolitionists used to sprout from every fence corner, a colored murderer's person was riddled by a hundred bullets and a serious race riot ensued. Shades of Ben Wade! What changes time has wrought.

WARDEN WOLFER is charged with being in partnership with the people given the contract for prison labor, and a scandal of serious proportions is brewing. The members of the board of control are involved, as it is said they had knowledge of the situation some months ago, and yet took no steps to investigate the charges made against Wolfer.

WHEN Wisconsin's capital building was destroyed py fire, a stuffed bird was among the precious relics lost. This stuffed bird was all that was mortal of "Old Abe," famous as a battle eagle during the civil war. Wisconsin's old soldiers very generally express keen regret because of this loss, for "Old Abe" played a really conspicuous part with the Wisconsin soldiery.

RED LAKE FALLS and one of her prominent citizens were accorded a distinguished honor at the Republican district convention at Crookston yesterday by the selection of Dr. N. M. Watson as an alternate to the Republican national convention. The Doctor was in no sense a candidate, but it seems he could not escape the wish of his friends to thrust the honor upon him. THE COURIER extends its hearty congratulations.

THESE are hard times for the would-be benedict. The business agent for the garment workers' union in St. Louis, a woman's union, recently declared that a true union girl would scorn a wooer who came to her without a union card in his hand, and the employees of the Corn Exchange bank in Chicago have been notified that they will not be allowed to marry while in the employ of the bank unless they have an income in excess of $1,000 a year.

JOE TRIGG, the well-known agricultural writer, says: "A scientific journal closed a long article on wild mustard lately by saying that if the western farmer only knew what a fine dish mustard greens are they would eat all the mustard up which grew on their farms. We know of some farms where the old man and all his tribe would have to eat greens all day and all night, too, to make any impression on the crop of mustard raised."

WHEN Senator Fairbanks first went to Washington he was unacquainted with the extent to which the game of poker was played by government officials. He was asked to recommend a man in the treasury department. "But he plays poker," protested the senator. "That makes no difference," said Senator Pettus. "If all the poker players in Washington were to lose their jobs on that account there wouldn't be enough of us left to organize a debating society."

SOME excitement was precipitated at the Republican county convention at Crookston by the appearance of W. E. McKenzie, editor of the Crookston Times, as a delegate. Some of the delegates insinuated that McKenzie was a Democrat and wanted him put out. Senator Stephens was the sponsor for McKenzie, and admitted that while McKenzie was once a Democrat he never worked at it very hard, and that his appearance in the convention was in itself conclusive evidence that he had reformed.

A STARTLING change on the gubernatorial checker-board is scheduled for next week, as it is given out on the q. t. that the Red Lake Falls Gazette will hereafter support the candidacy of Judge Collins. Immediately after the last election the Gazette announced itself as favorable to Bob Dunn, and until last week there was no more rantankerous Dunn paper in the state. During the last few days the paper has seen a great light. Last week it did not have a word bearing on the situation, and at Collins headquarters at St. Paul it is given out that the Gazette "will not hereafter be for Dunn." It is a little early in the game to eat crow, and how the Gazette expects to secure support for Collins after a couple of years of uncompromising service in the Dunn cause passeth all understanding.

TROUBLE in the form of another coal strike will probably be the result of the failure of the soft-coal miners to reach an agreement with the operators in the Indianapolis conference. If there is a strike it will not be for higher wages this time, but against the five per cent reduction in wages offered by the mine-owners as the last and best bid they would make to prevent a suspension of work. Mr. Mitchell, however, is, as usual, trying to prevent a strike, and it was hinted in Sunday's dispatches that his resources had not been entirely exhausted. April 1 is the date set for the threatened strike, and if it comes it will involve 200,000 men in Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and western Pennsylvania. The anthracite miners are not in any way involved in the present dispute.

EXAMINER JOHNSON'S alleged investigation of the state auditor's office has developed to be a clear case of attempted persecution of Bob Dunn. After spending several thousand dollars in hiring experts for the purpose of "finding something" Mr. Johnson practically admits the utter failure of his sleuths to find a flaw in the record of Dunn as state auditor. The sole charge made is to the effect that an insignificant trespass case was compromised for a less amount than Mr. Johnson thought ought to have been secured, and it turned out that this case was settled for $3,000 more than the cruisers estimated the timber was worth and that the matter was wholly in the hands of Mr. Iverson, the present state auditor, who was deputy under Mr. Dunn. Both of the experts employed to examine the office are warm in their praise of the efficient manner in which Mr. Dunn transacted the business of his office. It is evident to the mind of a layman that Johnson is doing more to place Dunn in the governor's chair than any other person in the state.

THE MERGER DECISION.

The United States supreme court Monday handed down a decision in the Northern Securities case, and the contentions of the government were sustained. The court holds, by a vote of five to four, that the Securities company is an illegal combination to control traffic rates on the railroads belonging to the holding company. Judge Harlan, author of the decision, says: "No scheme or device could certainly more effectively come within the prohibition of the anti-trust law, and it is within the meaning of the act a trust."

While this decision was in a measure expected, the country traversed by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads will not look for substantial relief from the declaration of the court. There are too many ways of carrying out agreements and "understandings." As long as the stock of the two roads is controlled by the same directors, it will take a long stretch of the imagination to discover a reason why the owners of the roads will care to operate them as competing systems.

The decision handed down by Judge Harlan was concurred in by Judge Brown, Brewer, McKenna and Day, while Chief Justice Fuller and Judges White, Peckham and Holmes dissented.

Democrats and democrats.

Duluth Herald: That both the presidens and vice president of the Minnesota Editorial association are Democrats, as well as the two preceding presidents, is a matter of general comment throughout the state. Tom Bowen used to say that "all good editors are Democrats, even the ones that write Republican editorials." Possibly because Minnesota contains so many good editors, it's people are so generally democratic although voting the Republican ticket. In fact there are mighty few that are not democrats when the word is spelled with a l. c. "d"

The Week's News

Banners Awarded.

The second examinations for the grade banners in the public schools were held two weeks ago, and the awards were made Monday morning. It happens that there are no changes in the list of winners, the third, fourth and fifth grades of the Lafayette school and the second and sixth grades of the Washington school being successful. Much interest and enthusiastic rivalry has been manifest in the examinations, and Prof. Whiteley says the plan has been a decided success. The general averages are eight per cent. higher than at the previous examinations, and a general improvement is shown all along the line.

Early Opening Promised.

Banker C. L. Dobner was down from Thief River Tuesday to preside over the deliberations of the Republican county convention, and in conversation with a Courier reporter Mr. Dobner stated that they had received word that an agent of the interior department was now on his way to Thief River Falls, and that the officials at Washington state that in all probability the reservation will be open for settlement by June 20. The expeditious action on the part of the government is very gratifying to the people of the north end of the county.

Ladies Elect Officers.

The ladies' aid society of the Presbyterian church held election of officers at the meeting yesterday afternoon, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. Chas. E. Boughton; first vice president, Mrs. John E. King; second vice president, Mrs. P. B. Gaass; treasurer, Mrs. H. Hennemuth; secretary, Mrs. S. M. Sivertson. Various committees were appointed and plans made for active work during the spring and summer. The ladies have a handsome sum in bank, and have accomplished a great deal of work during the past year.

Equality is Booming.

J. E. Buskirk is moving to the city from Equality township, and will go in partnership with W. G. Brown, the contractor and builder. Mr. Buskirk has had long experience in that line of work, and we bespeak for him a liberal share of patronage. Mr. Buskirk tells us that at the recent election Equality township voted a tax of $700 for general town purposes, and most of this sum will be used in improving the highways. Equality is bound to become one of the best towns in the county in a few years.

Convention of Land Agents.

M. O. Sortedahl, C. N. Bourdon and L. C. Simons are at St. Paul this week to attend a convention of land agents. The object of this meeting, which includes all the land men of the state, is to secure better and uniform excursion rates from the railroads and discuss the general situation as related to their business.

The people of Red Lake Falls will be sorry to lose Mr LaBissoniere and his estimable family.

Wreck at St. Hilaire.

A small-sized freight wreck occurred at St. Hilaire Monday evening. Several cars were put in the ditch and the engine got off the track. An engine was sent up from Crookston to clear the tracks and take the train in. Conductor Marvin and Engineer O'Brien, who were in charge of the train, were unable to locate the blame for the accident, but it was probably due to a broken rail.

Institute at Thief River.

A farmers' institute will be held at Thief River Falls March 25 and 26, and the speakers will be Hon. W. W. P. McConnell, Col. R. A. Wilkinson, Prof. T. A. Hoverstad and Prof. James A. Wilson. Several local people will also talk on poultry, fruit raising, live stock, grasses, etc. The farmers of the northern part of the county should turn out to this meeting and make it a big success.

A Strenuous Exstence.

The Crookston newspapers are leading a strenuous existence. A few weeks ago the Journal enlarged to a six-column quarto and commenced giving a very complete Associated Press service, and now the Times has started a morning edition—issuing two papers daily. This is the most audacious undertaking ever attempted by a newspaper in a town the size of Crookston.

GOVERNMENT WINS THE MERGER CASE

THE SUPREME COURT DECIDES AGAINST NORTHERN SECURITIES COMPANY.

HOLDS IT VIOLATION OF ANTI-TRUST LAW

Opinion Is Read by Justice Harlan—Declares Principal Object of Corporation Is to Prevent Competition—A Noted Case.

Washington, March 15.—The opinion of the supreme court of the United States in the case of the Northern Securities company vs. the United States, involving the merger of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railroad companies, was handed down Monday and was in favor of the government. The opinion was read by Justice Harlan. The opinion of the United States circuit court for the district of Minnesota was affirmed.

The effect is to sustain the contention that the Sherman anti-trust law applies to railroad combinations of the character in question. Justice Harlan said that in the merger of the two roads the stockholders disappeared and reappeared in the securities company, the two thus becoming practically consolidated in a holding company, the principal object being to prevent competition. "No scheme or device could certainly more effectively come within the prohibition of the anti-trust law, and it is within the meaning of the act a trust."

A Noted Case.

The case has attracted more attention than any other suit before the court since the first insular cases were decided, and has been regarded by bench and bar as equal in importance with those cases and with the income tax case. It was argued in December last for two days, and attracted general attention at that time, as it did previously when the decision was rendered by the circuit court for the district of Minnesota.

The action was brought in the circuit court under the law of February 11, 1903, which was for the purpose of expediting the case, and was heard by the four circuit court judges of the circuit. They united in a decision favorable to the United States and opposed to the contentions of the railroad companies.

The suit was instituted by the United States against the Northern Securities company and the two railroad companies, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern, and their leading stockholders for the purpose of dissolving the merger of the two roads which the United States declared had been created by the creation of a holding company, the securities company This consolidation was claimed to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. It was claimed on behalf of the government that this consolidation was in effect a pool created to promote the interests, not of one system at the expense of the other, but of both at the expense of the public. The railroads claimed that the transfer of the stock of the two companies to the securities company was in the nature of a sale and perfectly legitimate. The contentions of the securities company were reviewed, and Justice Harlan said they had received full attention. He quoted the various opinions involving the trust question, saying that from them it is to be gathered that all contracts in restraint of trade, reasonable or unreasonable, are prohibited by the Sherman law, and that congress has the power to establish such regulations as are laid down in that law. He then continued to reply in detail to the points made for the securities company.

In conclusion he announced the confirmation of the decision of that court, saying:

"The judgment of this court is that the decree below of the circuit court be and hereby is affirmed, with liberty to the circuit court to proceed in the execution of the decree as the circumstances may require."

The decision was concurred in by Justices Brown, Brewer, McKenna and Day, while the chief justice and Justices White, Peckham and Holmes dissented.

Justice Harlan concluded at 1:18. He was followed by Justice Brewer who, while concurring in the judgment, did not accept all of the language of the opinion.

Justice Holmes then read the dissenting opinion.

Gov. Van Sant Highly Elated.

St. Paul, Minn., March 15.—Gov. Van Sant, when told of the decision in the merger case, was highly elated. He said: "I am very much gratified with the result of the decision of the supreme court in the merger suit, for in my opinion the decision means more to the people of our country than any event since the great civil war. It will for all time prevent the formation of illegal trusts and unlawful combinations."

Commend Proclamation.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—President Roosevelt's recent proclamation regarding the observance of neutrality by all officials and the abstention from either action or speech which might cause irritation to either Japan or Russia has produced a great impression here. The newspapers Monday morning print prominently articles commending the substance and spirit of the proclamation in the highest terms.

THE CASE OF REED SMOOT.

Inquiry Before the Senate Investigation Committee Brings Out Facts Concerning Mormonism.

Washington, March 11.—The Reed Smoot hearing yesterday brought out the fact that the Mormon church insists on controlling the votes of its members. Andrew Jensen, assistant historian of the Mormon church, testified that he had never known of a prosecution of a polygamist who continued to cohabit with plural wives he had married prior to the manifesto of 1890.

Washington, March 12.—The only witness on the stand yesterday in the investigation of the Smoot case before the senate committee on privileges and elections, was E. B. Critchlow, former assistant United States attorney for Utah. He continued his history of the Mormon church.

Washington, March 14.—That Reed Smoot could not have been elected to the United States senate without having first been chosen as an apostle of the Mormon church and that after he was so chosen he could not have been defeated, was asserted by Judge Ogden Hiles, assistant United States attorney from 1886 to 1890 and later a judge of the district court of Utah, who was a witness Saturday in the Smoot case before the senate committee on privileges and elections. The committee adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

RIVERS OVER THEIR BANKS.

Destroy Immense Amount of Property and Make Many Persons Homeless in Pennsylvania.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 11.—The city of Wilkesbarre and the Wyoming valley have suffered immense loss by floods. At Plymouth the entire business section of the town was under water. Only a few business houses escaped the flood and as a result the merchants have lost thousands of dollars' worth of goods.

At Middletown between 700 and 800 houses were surrounded and could only be reached by entering the second-story windows, and many houses were entirely ruined.

Summing up the situation in brief, over $1,000,000 worth of property has been destroyed in the Wyoming valley and over 2,000 families rendered homeless. Though the river was falling at Wilkesbarre towns in the vicinity of Bloomsburg were experiencing the worst flood in their history. Five spans of the great steel bridge erected by the state at Catawissa were swept from their piers and carried 400 yards by the ice. There was almost a complete suspension of mining throughout the valley, the water flowing into the collieries faster than it could be pumped out.

UNDER MILITARY CONTROL.

Normal Conditions Have Been Restored at Springfield, O., After Three Days' Rioting.

Springfield, O., March 11.—The race disturbances which have terrorized the town for the last three days as the result of the murder of Patrolman Collis and the subsequent lynching of the negro Dixon, who shot Collis, are held well in check by the 13 companies of state militia, and the authorities are of the opinion that no more troops will be needed to control the situation. Both Chief of Police O'Brien and Sheriff Routzahn believe, however, that it would be a mistake to materially decrease the number of troops now on hand.

Springfield, O., March 12.—After another quiet night and every indication of order yesterday, the withdrawal of part of the troops has begun. The troops will return to their homes gradually.

WEATHER HELPS TRADE.

Conditions in the Business World Indicate Considerable Improvement.

New York, March 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "More seasonable weather has brought increased activity in business, normal conditions existing for the first time this year at many points, and there is evidence of an effort to recover lost ground and prepare for a large spring trade. Collections are also improving and structural operations revive with the higher temperature, stimulating the markets for building materials and increasing real estate transfers. There has been great damage from floods, although the severe winter had caused unusual preparation for troubles of this nature. Manufacturing returns are favorable.

Young Woman Killed.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 11.—A Journal special from Oconomowoc, Wis., says: While returning with a group of young people from a wedding Wednesday night, Miss Ida Knopp, aged 20, was struck and killed by a Milwaukee train, and her sister Annie and Herman Raasch were seriously injured. The party had stepped off the track to allow a fast mail train to pass, and stepped on another track, stepping directly in front of a freight train.

Scores Drowned.

Paris, March 10.—The French steamer Cambodge, of 2,355 tons, which left Rangoon February 17 for Cochin-China and European ports), has been wrecked in a storm off the coast of Cochin-China, and it is believed a hundred persons were drowned.

Denver, Col., March 12.—A petition for divorce filed in the district court of Big Horn county, Wyo., January 9 last by Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), has just been made public. The complaint charges cruelty.

WORDS OF CAUTION FROM PRESIDENT

ROOSEVELT WARNS OFFICIALS NOT TO EXCITE ANGER OF JAPAN OR RUSSIA.

Says Friendship Now Exists with Entire World and This Peace Must Be Preserved by Observance of Declaration of Neutrality.

Washington, March 11.—After a conference with Secretary of State Hay, President Roosevelt yesterday issued the following executive order respecting the observance of the proclamation declaring the neutrality of the United States between Russia and Japan:

"All officials of the government, civil, military and naval, are hereby directed not only to observe the president's proclamation of neutrality in the pending war between Russia and Japan, but also to abstain from either action or speech which can legitimately cause irritation to either of the combatants. The government of the United States represents the people of the United States not only in the sincerity with which it is endeavoring to keep the scales of neutrality exact and even, but in the sincerity with which it deplores the breaking out of the present war, and hopes that it will end at the earliest possible moment and with the smallest possible loss to those engaged.

Hard to Avoid Offense.

"Such a war inevitably increases and inflames the susceptibilities of the combatants to anything in the nature of an injury or slight by outsiders. Too often combatants make conflicting claims to the duties and obligations of neutrals, so that even when discharging these duties and obligations with scrupulous care it is difficult to avoid giving offense to one or the other party. To such unavoidable causes of offense, due to the performance of national duty, there must not be added any avoidable causes.

Friendly with All.

"It is always unfortunate to bring old world antipathies and jealousies into our life, or by speech or conduct to excite anger and resentment toward our nation in friendly foreign lands. But in a government employe, whose official position makes him in some sense the representative of the people, the mischief of such action is greatly increased. A strong and self-confident nation should be peculiarly careful not only of the rights but of the susceptibilities of its neighbors, and nowadays all of the nations of the world are neighbors one to the other. Courtesy, moderation, and self-restraint should mark international, no less than private, intercourse.

"All the officials of the government—civil, military and naval—are expected so to carry themselves both in act and in deed as to give no cause for just offense to the people of any foreign and friendly power, and with all mankind we are now in friendship.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Resignation Accepted.

Champaign, Ill., March 10.—The resignation of Dr. Andrew Sloan Draper, president of the University of Illinois, was accepted Wednesday by the board of trustees. It takes effect April 1, when Dr. Draper assumes the duties of commissioner of the consolidated educational system of New York. He will return here July 1 to close up the work of the university for the current year.

Boom for Gen. Miles.

Des Moines, Ia., March 14.—About 75 prominent Iowa democrats held a conference here and launched a boom for Gen. Nelson A. Miles for the democratic nomination for president. It is claimed that the Iowa movement is part of a national one inaugurated by Gen. Miles' managers.

Kansas Republicans.

Wichita, Kan., March 10.—The republican state convention named a full state ticket, headed by E. W. Hoch, editor of the Marion Herald, who was nominated by acclamation. The platform indorses President Roosevelt.

WORK DONE IN CONGRESS.

Washington, March 8.—The senate yesterday passed the naval appropriation bill which has been before it for the past four or five days, and then took up the army bill. Postal affairs engrossed the attention of the house practically to the exclusion of all else.

Washington, March. 9.—The senate spent almost the entire time yesterday discussing the committee amendments to the army bill concerning provisional troops in the Philippines and the consolidation of the adjutant general's office with the record and pension office. The fortification bill was reported. In the house 32 claim bills were passed.

Washington, March 10.—The senate yesterday passed the army appropriation and the Philippine shipping bills. In the house the Bristow report on congressmen hit by the report bitterly assailed it.

Washington, March 11.—The senate yesterday passed a number of bills relating to Alaska, but failed to act on the measure authorizing the election of a delegate in congress from that territory. A bill was passed authorizing the award of brevet commissions for gallant conduct on the part of army officers in China and the Philippines. In the house no business of importance was transacted.

Washington, March 12.—The nomination of Gen. Leonard Wood to be major general occupied most of the time of the senate yesterday. Nearly the entire day was spent in executive session. In the house an investigation of postal affairs so far as members of the house are concerned by a special committee of seven members to be appointed by the speaker, was ordered. The climax of the day was reached when Representative Alden (Mich.) condemned every executive department of the government for its arrogant treatment of the only branch of the government in direct touch with the people of the country—the house of representatives—and shouted out the name of Speaker Cannon for president of the United States. The house thundered its acquiescence.

Washington, March 14.—The senate on Saturday considered the fortification appropriation bill and passed a bill having for its purpose the prevention of the desecration of the American flag by its use for advertising purposes. In the house Speaker Cannon appointed a select committee to conduct the investigation of the Bristow postal report. The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was agreed to.

Mine to Reopen.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 14.—Preparations are being made to resume work at the Harwick coal mine this week. The final search for bodies of the victims of the explosion of January 25 is being made and if no more are found the mine will be turned over to the owners again for operation. Since the date of the accident 178 bodies have been taken from the mine.

Four Burned to Death.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 11.—Four unidentified men were burned to death in a box car containing gasoline which caught fire at Branch Intersection, ten miles east of this city. Two others, George Klinger, of Harrisburg, and William C. Lyter, of Lewiston, barely escaped with their lives, their bodies and clothes being badly burned.

Sacrifices Life for a Child.

Portland, Ore., March 10.—In a heroic attempt to rescue Oza Brown, a little girl who had fallen into the Willamette river from a steamer, Sumner Smith, the 21-year-old son of W. K. Smith, one of the most prominent capitalists of this city, Tuesday night sacrificed his own life. The little girl was saved, but Smith was drowned.

Dies of Blood Poison.

Washington, March 11.—Congressman George W. Croft, of Aiken, S. C., died at his home in this city yesterday of blood poisoning. Mr. Croft had been ill for over six weeks as the result of an injury caused by a splinter in his thumb, from which blood poisoning resulted.

RUSSIANS ATTACK JAPANESE FLEET

THE TORPEDO BOAT FLOTILLA LEAVES PORT ARTHUR AND FIRES ON ENEMY.

Russians Reported to Have Burned Wiju and Then Retreated as the Japanese Advance—Rumor That Port Arthur Has Fallen.

St. Petersburg, March 12.—Official reports from Viceroy Alexieff to Emperor Nicholas show that a Japanese torpedo boat and a Russian destroyer were sunk during a naval battle that began Thursday night and ended yesterday morning off Port Arthur. Following the battle at sea the whole Japanese squadron bombarded Port Arthur, but failed to capture the port. The Russian forts answered the firing and, it is believed, destroyed a Japanese cruiser. On the ships which participated in the night attack one officer was seriously and three others slightly wounded, two soldiers were killed, and 18 were wounded.

The Situation.

Seoul, March 12.—The situation now is this: The Japanese will have an army of 150,000 men in Korea within three weeks, including 35,000 already landed at Chemulpo. The scene here daily is one of well ordered chaos. The harbor's edge is piled high with 200,000 tons of stores, packs of equipment, light guns, carriages, and bullet proof shields for 5,000 cavalry and pack horses.

First Battle of Its Kind.

Washington, March 12.—Naval experts say the battle between torpedo boats off Port Arthur is the first of its kind in naval history. Great interest was manifested at the Army and Navy club by military strategists last night, and the navy department will ask for full particulars as soon as possible.

Burn a Town.

Seoul, March 14.—It is reported that the Russians have set fire to the town of Wiju, on the Korean side of the Yalu river, and have retreated across the river into Manchuria. A complete Russian evacuation is proceeding, due to the Japanese advance northward. In a cavalry skirmish at Kasan, north of Anju, Korea, March 8, the Russians were driven back. Their losses are not known.

Russians Abandon Port Arthur.

Tientsin, March 14.—An unconfirmed report has reached here that Port Arthur has fallen.

London, March 14.—A dispatch to the Central News from Tokio says: "It is asserted here that the Russians virtually have abandoned Port Arthur.

Losses in Naval Attack.

Tientsin, March 14.—Information from an official who was an eye witness of the bombardment of Port Arthur on Wednesday and Thursday is to the effect that the Russians had 25 killed on the battleship Sevastopol, 20 on the Retvizan and 20 in the town. The Russians claim to have sunk a Japanese cruiser. The latest reports place the Japanese loss at nine killed, five seriously wounded and 17 slightly hurt. The Japanese fleet was not damaged in the fighting.

Confusion in Manchuria.

Peking, March 14.—Private Chinese reports that are being received here state that the whole of Manchuria is in a state of utter confusion, owing to the Russians having seized all food supplies and other commissariat necessities. The natives are streaming south toward the ports and are suffering great hardships.

To Protect Americans.

Seoul, March 14.—The United States ship Cincinnati left Chemulpo Saturday for Chinnampo to bring away the women and children from the American company's mines at Unsan. The families of American missionaries south of the Yalu are not considered to be in any danger, but every precaution is being taken for their safety.

Great Tunnel Finished.

New York, March 12.—President McAdoo, of the New York & Hudson River Tunnel company; Chief Engineer Parsons, Gen. McCarter and 14 directors of the company emerged from the completed tunnel under the North river at the foot of Morton street yesterday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. They had started from the Jersey City end at 4:15 o'clock and made the trip in 30 minutes. This is the first time any person has walked under the Hudson river from shore to shore.

Banks Assign.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 12.—The Farmers' bank, of Garden Grove, Ia., and the bank of Coin, Ia., made assignments Friday. The Garden Grove institution assigned to its creditors. It has a capital of $60,000, with liabilities unknown and supposed to be vastly larger than the assets. The Coin bank has assets of $30,000 and it is alleged the assets are sufficient to pay depositors.

Peace in Colombia.

Washington, March 14.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Charge Snyder, at Caracas, dated yesterday: "The Colombian government has issued a decree reducing the standing army from 11,000 men to 5,000 men. Also one declaring peace again in the republic except Panama.

Another Theater Victim.

Chicago, March 11.—After suffering for weeks from burns she received at the Iroquois theater fire Mrs. Elizabeth Carrington is dead. She is the five hundred and seventy-sixth victim of the fire, according to the coroner's records.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Unique Display.

Elaborate preparations are being made by Coss & Co., of Eveleth, for a moose, caribou, elk and deer display at the world's fair at St. Louis. J. C. Congdon, a representative of the firm, is in St. Louis, securing a site for a building and to let the contract for its erection. William Coss, the senior member of the firm, owns or controls between 150 and 175 mounted moose, deer, caribou and elk heads, and these, in addition to many mounted ducks, geese, prairie chickens and birds of the Minnesota forests and lakes, will go to make up a scientific display. Two live moose, a stuffed bear and other wild animals are also included in the list for the exhibit. Another feature will be four buck Indians and two squaws, to be taken from the Sucker Point reservation. The bucks will demonstrate how birch bark canoes are made and the squaws will be engaged in bead work and making moccasins.

A Blow at Grafters.

If present plans carry, the grafters of Minnesota will have a hard time during the approaching campaign to mulct the many candidates out of the price of a drink of beer or whisky, or a keg of beer or ale as the case may be.

It will also be tough sledding for the gentlemen who are always just a little short on ready cash just about the time the candidate puts in his appearance and wants to negotiate a loan of five or ten for a few days, and then forgets to pay it back.

When the members of the Minnesota delegation in congress return home after the adjournment they will hold meetings in their respective districts which will be attended by all the candidates for nomination on the Republican ticket. They will devise means whereby they will be protected from the "grafters" who are always about during a campaign.

It is stated that the Democrats in Minnesota intend to adopt a similar plan.

A Queer Accident.

An accident occured to a logging train near Burwell that has proved more serious than the first report suggested. One of the cars broke in two and the front part derailed, the engine dragging it for a distance of between five and six miles. One of the wheels on the front truck was broken off, and the engine dragging it over the ties, caused it to act as a huge saw or knife, cutting off the ends of the ties in pieces about a foot long and hurling them upon the track in front of the car. This went on for the entire distance between Burwell and the Northern Pacific junction before the engineer noticed it, cutting off the ends of over 10,000 ties.

The story seemed almost incredible, but is nevertheless a fact. All travel over that piece is necessarily slow, while all freight traffic is suspended. It will take several days to repair the damage.

Horticultural Society.

The Red River Valley Horticultural society met at Crookston for its first annual gathering and permanent organization. The association was started at a farmers' institute held at Crookston last year, but officers were not selected. Representatives of the fruit growing industry from various points in the valley gathered and after an interesting session choose Frank T. Haseltine of Crookston president, O. J. Hagen of Hendrum vice-president, T. A. Hoverstad of Crookston secretary and A. E. Cannon of Detroit, treasurer.

Wyman Elliott, president, and A. W. Latham, secretary of the state association, delivered addresses; Frank T. Haselstine, the pioneer nurseryman of the valley; O. A. Solem of Norman county, who has been successful in growing apples, and Mr. Cannon of Detroit read papers, and all reported success in some of the lines followed.

Badly Burned.

Mrs. Snyder, wife of Prof. Harry Snyder, professor of chemistry at the school of agriculture, was horribly burned at her home, 2090 Commonwealth avenue, St. Paul, and is said to be in a critical condition.

Miss Hansen, a servent, who went to Mrs. Snyder, was also badly burned about the arms and face. The house was set on fire, and the rear portion of it burned away, causing a loss of $500. The accident had been caused by a skirt that had been cleaned by gasoline catching fire. Altho Mrs. Snyder's condition is serious it is thought she will recover.

Lumbering.

Seventy squatters from the Twin Cities and other towns in Minnesota who have taken up the greater portion of an unsurveyed township in Itasca county, have formed the Northern Minnesota Log and Timber company, for the purpose of marketing their pine direct, without having to contribute to the middleman's profit. They will put in a sawmill, cut off the timber and dispose of it to the open market.

News Notes.

A new driving club will be organized in St. Paul.

The Minnesota Boat club is planning to hold two regattes.

Only two state banks have gone into liquidation since 1899.

The last legislature passed conflicting laws relating to fish houses.

The Pelican Rapids Telephone company has elected the following officers: President, J. P. Wallace; vice-president, O. M. Carr; treasurer, N. P. Moen; secretary and manager, C. L. Wood.

The Civic Improvement association was organized at St. Cloud, with a membership of sixty of the business men. Officers and committe chairman were elected.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLI KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE; making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buvers.

Moses Verboncker and family left this morning for Grand Forks, where they will make their future home. The Verbonckers are old residents of Red Lake Falls and will be missed by a large circle of friends.

William Lauritzon was at St. Hilaire from Friday until Monday looking after the creamery at that place in the absence of the manager, J. G. Winkjer, who was in the southern part of the state to assist in scoring in a creamery contest.

Joseph Smith, the irrepressible life insurance agent, was over from Crookston Tuesday looking after business in that line. Mr. Smith has lately returned from an extended trip to the Pacific coast, where two of his sons are living.

Editors Eastman, of the Thief River News, and Ives, of the St. Hilaire Spectator, were deligates to the county convention Tuesday. They were chaperoned by H. L. Dudley, a retired newspaper man, and of course kept out of trouble.

J. A. Walker and H. B. Costello, prominent Equality farmers, were in the city Tuesday on a business mission. Mr. Walker recently returned from an extended visit with relatives in eastern Canada, and thinks Red Lake county is good enough for him.

Swan Larson was in from Equality township Monday, enroute to the Saskatchewan country, where he will investigate the farming advantages of that region. Mr. Larson is holding on to his Red Lake county farm, however, and will not sell until he is assured of a better outlook up north.

Charles Hallas, of Poplar River, was here to attend the convention Tuesday and went on to Crookston as a delegate to the district convention. Mr. Hallas tells us that his daughter, Anna, has been very ill with appendicitus at Minneapolis for the past couple of weeks, and Mrs. Hallas is in attendance at her bedside.

Miss Kathrene Ford returned Saturday from St. Paul and Milwaukee, at which cities she purchased her spring stock of millinery and studied the new styles in trimming. Miss Ford will have an unusually large and well-selected line of goods this spring, and it will pay the ladies to call in when the goods get here.

N. B. Fitch, of Minneapolis, has been in the city this week in the interest of the Manhattan Life Insurance company. Mr. Fitch expects to find a local agent here, and is pushing the business all over the northwestern part of the state. He is a member of the firm of Thurman & Fitch, northwestern agents for that company.

Mrs. S. Cunningham and little son left yesterday for St. Charles, Minn., where the family will reside in the future. Mr. Cunningham expects to have his business affairs wound up by the latter part of next week, and will leave in a day or two thereafter. He has been engaged as head clerk in one of the leading stores at that place.

Fred Taylor's family is moving to St. Paul, where Mr. Taylor is employed by the Union depot company. They went down Tuesday evening. The Taylor family are old residents of the city, and their many friends will be sorry to learn of their departure. Mr. Taylor was postmaster of Red Lake Falls under the last Cleveland administration.

PASSED ON RONNING CASE.

The Controversy Between Numedal and Nordon Townships Decided.

The county commissioners met as a committee of the whole at Thief River Friday morning to hear evidence and determine the legal residence of Mrs. Ragnald Ronning, a pauper, who has been supported by the town of Numedal for some years. The Numedal authorities claimed that the woman rightfully belonged to Norden township, and asked the commissioners to make an official declaration to that effect. The evidence was not sufficient to determine where the woman belonged, but the commissioners dedided that she did not belong to Nordon, and it would appear that Numedal will be obliged to continue supporting her, unless the case is appealed to the district court and the action of the commissioners overruled.

The board returned to Red Lake Falls Friday afternoon and held a special session. The petition of Mike Grassman et. al. for a new school district in Terrebonne and Grove Park townships was granted. The petition of Joseph Carriere et. al. for a county road in Emardville was granted. G. H. Sandum's petition for abatement of taxes was rejected. Quite a number of bills were allowed.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR, WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters.

The debate will be held tomorrow.

Will Hunt was absent the first of the week.

Some of the boys visited the summer garden on the roof this week.

Wanted—someone to bring on the freshness of spring in a hurry. None but Freshmen need apply.

A rule has been formed which assures protection to the boys. The girls are not allowed to snowball them.

The H. S. O. elected officers last Friday as follows: Iza Tibbetts, president, and Drew Marshall, secretary, for the remainder of the school year.

The Athenians held a meeting Monday after school and elected Maude Findeisen president. The president appointed new program and reporting committees.

An accidental leak in the roof caused the library to be slightly flooded Monday afternoon. There was a general rush for "The Houseboat on the Styx" and some made hot "Pursuit of the Houseboat."

At a meeting of the Spartans Monday morning Doretta Mathies was elected president and Iza Tibbetts secretary. A new program committee was appointed, but the reporting committee was not changed.

The statues of Lincoln and Washington on the walls of the assembly room overhung the reciting senior American history class. "Hot class," nodded Lincoln. "Beats Valley Forge," replied Washington. "And Cold Harbor," added the Emancipator.

The Athenian program for next Friday is as follows: Song by school; oration, Mike Connerty; essay, Cora Adler; recitation, Drew Marshall; news edition, Maude Findeisen; essay, Mabel Zaiser, recitation, Mabel Rue; vocal solo, Alice Erickson; essay, Ralph Healy; recitation, Joseph Toupin.

The Athenian reporting committee, after having been asleep for the past month, woke up last week and sent in a bunch of notes. We naturally supposed that after their long rest they could think up something new, but in their last issue they are springing the same old story regarding the colors of the Spartans. If our colors do cast a weak, sickly shadow, they are far ahead of the Athenian colors, which cast no shadow at all. We do not need to mingle our colors with the stars and stripes of Old Glory in order to make them prominent, as the Athenians did. Meanwhile, every afternoon the same weak (?) sickly (?) shadow will hover over the assembly room and bring back to memory the time when the orange and green proudly walked all over the Athenians in the famous hatchet trial of the 22d ult.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Grades.)

Judith Rue was absent for a few days.

The boys are playing marbles now because of the bare ground.

The second grade of the Washington school won the banners.

We are not going to have the celebration because the fifth grade lost the banner.

Tuesday morning the stove got a spell and it blowed out smoke through the pipe.

Tuesday morning most of the pupils were excited over the fire which occured the night before.

Three of the boys in the fifth and sixth grades came late for they were playing in an old log house.

It is very hard for the sixth grade to learn how to draw the map of the New England States exactly.

The report cards in the lower rooms have been given out. Some were rather disappointed in their marks.

The fifth and sixth grades got their examination papers back and the teachers decided that the sixth grade would keep the banner.

The Minerva Literary society will give the following program Friday: Essay, Theodore Tandberg; recitation, Robert Lawton; reading, John Rodgers; essay, Robert Zaiser; recitation, Carl Buse; dialogue, Graham and Austrid Kindseth; recitation, Bernetta Schmidt.

For scratches and mud fever Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve is a guaranteed cure. It quickly cures wounds, galls and sores, leaving neither scars nor blemishes. Keep Cole's in your stables. 50c and $1.00 by all druggists.

THE FARMERS' EXCHANGE.

First Meeting of State Organization Held at St. Paul.

The first general meeting of the Minnesota Farmers' exchange was held last Thursday at St. Paul. The organization was perfected and a constitution and by-laws were adopted.

According to to the articles of incorporation the purpose of the newly formed organization is to act as a commission and broker for its own members, secure good markets for farm produce, build and maintain elevators, own and operate flour mills and engage in the buying and selling grains, seeds, etc.

The exchange will have a capital of $500,000 and the stock will be sold at $20 a share. An attempt will be made to secure the cooperation of farmers in all parts of the state and local branch organizations will be instituted in every agricultural county.

Smutty Wheat.

There has been an alarming increase in the amount of smutty wheat marketed each succeeding year. All varieties of wheat are subject to smut and all seed should be treated with formaldehyde, or formaline, as it is sometimes called, which will positively eliminate smut from wheat. The Minnesota experiment station gives the following directions:—"Make a solution of one pound of formaldehyde in 40 gallons of water. Spread the wheat six inches deep on the barn floor, or in a wagon box. Sprinkle on the mass sufficient of the solution to merely wet the surface of every kernel of wheat. Shovel wheat over a few times while sprinking on the water to insure that every kernel is covered by a film of the solution. Occasional stirring is necessary for rapid drying and to prevent heating or germination before sowing. The grain should not be sacked unless thoroughly dried. It is best when treating only enough seed for home use to apply the liquid two or three days previous to sowing the grain and it will be necessary to open the drill a little wider than if the wheat were untreated.

With a run down constitution or your blood in an unhealthy condition you are an easy mark for the Grip. Cole's Bludbilder is a remedy that makes new blood, will build up the system and produce perfect health. Try it now. Cole's is guaranteed to satisfy by all druggists.

The Camphor Industry.

The annual consumption of camphor throughout the world is about 10,400,000, pounds. Part is used medicinally. In Japan a certain amount is utilized in the lacquer industry; in China, it is burned to give light or in funeral ceremonies. But its chief use is in the celluloid industry, because it is the base of this product and of it principal derivativas, and since this industry has been considerably developed in the last few years. The island of Formosa furnishes about half of this product. The consumption of golden grain belt beer is increasing more and more as the public realizes that this delightful beverage is especially suited to home use—at the family board—being of it healthful tonic qualities. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

These wild March days bring coughs that are liable to develop into serious lung troubles. Cole's Cough Cure if taken in time will break up the worst cough. You should keep a bottle handy. 25 and 50c. Sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

G. N. Uniforms.

The particulars of the new orders to employes of the Great Northern concerning the wearing of uniforms are outlined in a dispatch to the Minneapolis Journal. Heretofore conductors and other employes of the Great Northern have been at liberty to buy their uniforms of whomever they desired, so long as they complied with the requirements of the company as to style. As a result a few tailors in each city along the line have done an extensive business in this line. A new order of the company gives notice that uniforms and caps are contracted for by the company, and that no other uniforms or parts of uniforms may be worn than those furnished by the contractor designated from time to time by the general superintendent.

Cole's Carbolisalve is a world famous cure for burns and scalds. Instantly stops the pain and always cures without scars. Cole's is guaranteed. Keep a box handy. 25 and 50c by all druggists.

Transplanting at Night.

In an article appearing in one of the botanical papers the author discusses in an interesting manner the transplanting of plants in foliage at night. It is customary to transplant trees after the leaves have fallen in the fall or winter. It is now found that trees may be transplanted in May or June with little or no injury, provided the process is carried on at night. At night time nature and man recuperate from the exertions of the day. No man can start this recuperation for himself and family easier than by regularly using golden grain belt beer at his meals. It is brewed with the greatest possible care and makes an ideal tonic. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

NEW GREAT NORTHERN TOWNS.

To Be Established on the Thief River Falls Extension.

The Crookston Times says that Monday morning En. Johnson left with a crew of men for Thief River Falls, where under the direction of Geo. Ralph they will begin the survey of three townsites on the proposed extension of the Great Northern north from this point to Roseau. This extension will be built early the coming summer and will tap a very rich prairie country dotted with groves, making an ideal agricultural and stock country. The towns will have a stretch for 30 mile to the east that will be tributary, and a good distance to the west.

The towns will be located 12, 21 and 30 miles north of Thief River respectively. The name of the first will be Holt, the second Ingalls and the name of the third has not been settled as yet. These towns will all be laid out on modern plans with wide streets, etc., and will be on desirable locations for prosperous villages surronnded by well improved communities.

The plats will be ready in three weeks, and as the section which is traversed by the extension is an exceptionally rich one there will be a good stiff demand for the desirable building lots.

A COMPLETE REPORT

Of Births And Deaths Is What Sec. Bracken Would Have.

Joseph Perrault, clerk of court of Red Lake county, has received a letter from Dr. H. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, relative to the matter of securing more accurate records of births and deaths. In many cases during past years these reports have been far from perfect in several respects, and Clerk Perrault is asked to communicate with the township and village clerks and other in the county who are required by the law to make such reports, and urge upon them the necessity of making these reports more nearly complete.

This letter has not been addressed to Clerk Perrault because there has been any greater negligence in this county than in other parts of the state. The same letter has been sent to all the county clerks of court in the endeavor to secure better reports.

It is quite important that there should be a complete and official record of all births and deaths. In his letter Mr. Bracken calls attention to the fact that it often saves a great deal of time and trouble in probating estates and in other legal proceedings if an accurate birth and death record is at hand.

Mr. Bracken encloses an extract from the law, setting forth the penalties to which persons place themselves liable by failing to make birth and death reports. These penalties have never been strictly imposed but such action may become necessary in case success does not follow the means Secretary Bracken is now taking to secure better reports.

Connery Will Case Settled.

Thief River News: The contest over the will of the late John Connery, who made a will upon the day before his death leaving all of his property to Mrs. Anna Robertson, to whom he was engaged to be married, was settled out of court the first of the week. By the terms of the settlement Mrs. Robertson will receive about five-sixths of the estate, which is valued at over $7,000 and the brother and sisters who brought the contest will get one-sixth. Attorney Chas. E. Boughton, of Red Lake Falls, represented Mrs. Robertson in the settlement and Attorney Ira C. Richardson, of this city, represented the legal heirs.

Four Ribs Broken.

St. Hilaire Spectator: While engaged in milking her cows a week or so ago Mrs. Anton E. Anderson, of River Falls township, had the misfortune to have four of her ribs broken by being crushed against the wall of the barn by one of the animals. Dr. Cummings was called promptly and attended to her injuries. So far no further damage has been found and Mrs. Anderson is reported as recovering steadily.

Take It Away.

When winter's keen and piercing blast
 Is cold enough to freeze one's ears,
When steely pointed snow flies fast
 And on the window frost appears,
It really seems to me that I
Find winter's pleasures rather shy.

The furnace fires occasion take
 At just such times to make a call;
So they go out, and I must make
 A trip downstairs and carry all
The ashes and the cinders out
And try to put the cold to rout.

I get a rap upon the shin
 That makes me lame for half a day.
A flying splinter cuts my chin.
 I'll not repeat the things I say.
When I get through and go upstairs
I find I'm needing some repairs.

I need a bandage on my voice;
 It's badly strained by things I've said.
A plaster on my shin, a choice
 And soothing lot of ointments spread
Upon my chin, and goodness knows
How many patches on my clothes.

And so old winter need not wait
 Upon my account to close his show;
With him I'll gladly make a date
 At any time to see him go,
And if the fare he cannot pay
I'll buy his ticket any day.

"Oh, yes," answered the salesman of whom she made the inquiry, looking retrospective. "Sometimes they die, sometimes they get fired"—

"Which do you suppose has happened to the one that went to get my change?" interrupted the lady.

But she was wrong. The clerk came up at that moment with the money.

CELESTIAL REFRESHMENTS

Funny Little Restaurants in the Chinese Empire.

Places of rest and refreshment are commonly to be found in China at the halting stations on the highways in the interior or at the villages on the banks of the great rivers of China. They frequently take the form of a small mud hut, having a dark interior filled with smoke, tea tables, forms and an oven, where a cook is kept busy baking tea bread and frying puddings for the entertainment of the customers, whose favorite beverage is tea, although when times are good and the weather cold they indulge in something stronger, which often inebriates and that at a very cheap rate. In the darkest corner there are a row of glazed earthenware jars containing a kind of Chinese whisky, of which a thirsty carter may have a skin full for something considerably under a penny, when he will go quietly to sleep on the shaft of his cart, and his pony or mule, being used to it, will take him home.

In addition to these conveniences there is an ingenious little furnace in front, having a long flue, through which the flame is driven by an air pump, and a row of hot water kettles, gradually increasing in size to suit the heat of the tongue of flame that passes up the flue beneath, so that they may all be kept boiling. The hot water is sold to passersby, who usually carry with them their teapot and tea, so that they may have a cup at every station. This custom of carrying one's own tea is so common that it is difficult to procure a cup of tea in any of the restaurants, as they do not keep it and do not care to go out of their way to buy it for you. Although the plant may be growing all round and at one's very feet, it is next to impossible to get a cup that a foreigner would consider worth drinking, and as to using milk and sugar, the Chinese look upon the practice as a barbarous device of the "foreign devil."—Golden Penny.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Order for Hearing of Petition for Discharge of Executor or Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF Red Lake, ss:

In Probate Court,

In the Matter of the Estate of Charles Adolfsen, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Charles Johnson, as administrator of said estate of Charles Adolfson, deceased, representing, among other things, that he has fully complied with all the terms and conditions of the final decree in said matter of said estate, and with the terms and conditions of all other decrees and orders of this Court in said matter, and has paid over to the distributees and persons named in said final decree all moneys, funds and property to them awarded in said final decree, and praying that he as such administrator of said estate, and the sureties on his bond, be discharged from all liability by reason of said trust and the administration of said estate.

Now, Therefore, it is ordered, that said petition be heard by this Court at the Probate Court Office at Red Lake Falls, on Saturday, the 16th day of April, 1904, in said County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and it is further ordered that notice of said hearing be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks immediately prior to said day of hearing in the RED LAKE COURIER, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls, in said County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

Office of COUNTY AUDITOR, Red Lake County, Minnesota.

To MAGGIE LOUGHRIDGE:

You are hereby notified that on the 5th day of May, 1899, in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to that certain real estate judgment, which was entered in and for the County of Red Lake, in the Fourteenth Judicial District, in the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March, 1899, the above described pieces or parcels of land situated in Red Lake County, State of Minnesota, were bid into the State to satisfy the amount for which they were adjudged liable in said judgment, interests and costs, for the above named sums; that the above described real estate has become and now is the Absolute Property of the State.

That on the above stated date the above described real estate was sold by the County Auditor of Red Lake County, as directed by the State Auditor, in accordance with Section 101 of Chapter 11 of General Statutes of 1878, and the several acts amendatory thereto, for the sums above stated; that the amount required to redeem said pieces or parcels of land from such sale at the date of this notice (exclusive of the costs to accrue on this notice) is the amount above stated, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum from said above date, until such redemption is made, and that the time for redemption of said pieces or parcels of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice, and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the County Auditor of this County.

Witness my hand and official seal this 10th day of March, A. D. 1904.

County Auditor Red Lake County, Minn.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Uncle James' Victory

By CLINTON DANGERFIELD

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Uncle James helped himself to another portion of the very appetizing roast chicken before him.

"It's a light meat and agrees with me when properly cooked like this," he observed, with the delightful confidence most people have that their individual tastes are unfailingly interesting to every one. "My present cook understands meats to perfection."

The Boy, generally referred to by the ladies of his acquaintance as "really a lovely fellow," made haste to agree with his uncle's estimate. In reality he could not have told you whether he was eating chicken or ham sandwich, his mind being absorbed by thoughts of momentous importance, all connected with one problem. This problem, no easy one to solve, was how to approach Uncle James in such a way as to incline his heart toward the lady of the Boy's choice.

For the Boy was nearly twenty-four, and in his mature judgment Helen Vanderveer was the perfection of feminine beauty. But Uncle James had a disagreeable way of harping on usefulness and ignoring beauty altogether. Helen belonged to what New York calls her "smart set," and the Boy had his doubts as to Uncle James' opinion of his choice.

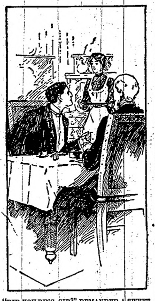
"You're not eating," growled his uncle. "You've got something on your mind, or what you call your mind," he added, with the charming frankness of near relatives.

"Helen Vanderveer," blurted the Boy, his nervousness in this crisis scattering his diplomacy to the winds.

Uncle James laid down his fork as hastily as though the tender pullet had been a sitting hen.

"Helen Vanderveer!" he shouted. "Are you going to marry into that set of tailored idiots after all I've said to you?"

"If I can get your approval," said the Boy meekly. Let no one think the worse of him for his humility. He was penniless, and Miss Vanderveer had been curtly notified by a very determined pair of parents that unless she secured a count at least she need expect no income. Vanderveer pere had waded through much discomfort to attain his present position, and he meant to show the world that he was as good socially as his check was financially.



"DID YOU RING, SIR?" DEMANDED A SWEET, FAMILIAR VOICE.

Thus the outlook for Helen and the Boy was depressing. Uncle James was as determined as the elder Vanderveer.

"My approval!" he cried furiously. "Why, you young jackass! That girl would ruin you in three months! No, sir, you shall be saved from yourself." He leaned back in his chair. "I've chosen a wife for you myself, a woman that will be the making of you, the kind of woman that will help to make my old age a pleasure to both of us."

"You!" gasped the Boy, turning pale. "You've chosen a wife for me! I shan't marry her!"

"Oh, yes, you will," returned Uncle James composedly. "When I adopted you, a helpless orphan, I said to myself, 'I'll see he gets the right wife.' And you shall have her, with my blessing."

The calm of desperation came to the Boy. Rather than give up Helen he would join the "white wings" and earn his bread and hers on the street. Then he shivered to think how Helen would figure in such a programme, his dainty Helen, whom he had always seen in trailing gowns except for a change to her spotless yachting suit.

"May I ask," he said, trying to suppress his rage, "whom you have selected for me?"

"My cook," said Uncle James coolly. "You needn't start up and snort like a wild horse. She is a lady born, but forced to earn her bread by reverses. Instead of pounding on some infernal piano or screeching on the stage or herding half a dozen spoiled youngsters as a governess she had the sense to take up a woman's highest profession, cooking."

"Cooking! You have a fine idea of a woman's ability!" muttered the Boy.

"Certainly I have. The good cook conserves man's intellectual powers, leaving him undistracted by dyspepsia or other nightmares. Since this girl has been with me my brain has been 50 per cent clearer. As to all this rot about woman's companionship, I tell you a well roasted piece of meat or a light loaf of bread is a better stimulant than all the companionship of the best petticoat going. Look at the table, beautifully set! Remember the promptness of our meals for the past fortnight. She's waiting on the table today because the maid is sick. She's never sick."

The Boy rose, choking with rage.

"Understand me, sir," he said as soon as he could speak clearly, "that from now on"—

"Did you ring, sir?" demanded a sweet, familiar voice.

The Boy whirled around to be confronted by a slim, demure vision in cap and apron. The vision ignored him completely, her eyes being fixed respectfully on Uncle James.

"Did you ring, sir?" she repeated. "I was sure I heard the bell."

"No, Mary, I didn't ring," said her employer complacently. "But since you are here you may fill my glass again with water."

Mary complied. The Boy, standing dumbly by his chair, watched her slender, steady fingers as she served his uncle.

When the girl disappeared Uncle James demanded triumphantly:

"Isn't she neat and pretty?"

The Boy attacked his dinner with an appetite which he had failed to show before.

"She's neat enough," he said coolly. "With your permission I'll help her clean up the dishes after dinner and see what I think of her."

A few minutes later Helen Vanderveer and the Boy faced each other in Uncle James' kitchen, with a sink full of dirty dishes between them.

The Boy, coat off and sleeves rolled up, was turning the hot water on with one hand and flourishing a dish mop in the other.

"What in the wide world ever made you think of such a gloriously foxy move as this?" he demanded.

"Why," confessed Miss Vanderveer, laughing and yet blushing a little, "I owe it all to a sharp tongued old woman on Hester street. Some of us were down there slumming, and I carried an armful of flowers. I offered her a rose, and what do you think she did with it?"

"Wore it next her heart forever more," said the Boy promptly.

"Not she. She threw it in the dirty grate and with arms akimbo delivered an address. 'I've hearn about you rich folks,' quoth she; 'how you come nosin' round poor folks' rooms, puffin' yourselves up that you are teachin' us somethin'. Teach, indeed! When you know enough to fill a workman's pail with a decent dinner, then I'll hear to your flower missions an' your religions.'

"We got out of there promptly. The others said they were simply paralyzed by her impudence, but her words stuck in my head. I determined to show that old woman something, and I did. Afterward, when I found from you that your uncle was an economical gourmet, I saw reason to bless my secret lessons at the cooking school. I am supposed," she added, laughing, "to be with the De Peysters in Philadelphia."

The Boy dropped the dish mop and folded her in an ecstatic embrace, from which they were finally aroused by a sharp voice at the pantry door:

"Turn off that water, will you?"

The Boy leaped to the faucet, for the forgotten dishwater in the sink was pouring over the edge, sputtering greasily everywhere. But the gourmet apparently did not mind.

"You seem to have come to a good understanding," he said dryly.

How He Got the Vote.

A story is related of an ambitious gentleman who, rather unwisely, stood as a candidate for some office and who at the close of the poll was found to have received only one vote. The candidate was excessively mortified, and, to increase his chagrin, his neighbors talked as if it were a matter of course that he had given that one vote himself. This annoyed him so much that he offered a two and a half guinea suit of clothes to his only supporter if the individual would come forward and declare himself.

An Irishman responded to his appeal, proved his claim and called for the reward.

"How did it happen," inquired the candidate, taken quite by surprise—"how did it happen that you voted for me?"

The Hibernian hesitated, but on being pressed he answered:

"If Oi tell yez, ye won't go back on the suit o' clothes?"

"Oh, no. I promise that you shall have the suit anyhow."

"Faix, then, yer 'anner," replied Pat, "shure Oi made a mistake in the ballot paper."

Robbers Among the Bees.

To the person who knows nothing about bees they represent the supreme type of industry. But even the bee communities are disturbed by those of their own kind who break through and steal. Robber bees are always a source of anxiety to beekeepers, and during fall and winter the marauders seem particularly active. Having gathered no honey, or, at any rate, an insufficient supply for themselves, they will descend upon a hive, kill its industrious occupants and carry off the golden treasure in an astonishingly short space of time. We know of a recent instance in which the attack was developed and the home bees killed in a couple of hours. Sometimes hive will attack neighboring hive. In such cases the old straw "skip" was better than the modern arrangement, for a knife thrust through the top would break the comb and set the honey free, at which the thieves would instantly return to seal up their own store. It is not primarily in their industry that bees are human.—London Chronicle.

PIKE COUNTY DOINGS

Colonel Harper Hears of a Good Thing From Abe Shorter

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

COLONEL HARPER had been down to the railroad depot to see about shipping some mules to St. Louis and was on his way back to the postoffice when Abe Shorter suddenly appeared before him and said:

"Upon my word, Colonel Harper, but I'm glad to see yo' this mawnin'—powerful glad. Just thinking about yo' two minutes ago."

"Howdy, Abe?" replied the colonel as he extended his hand.

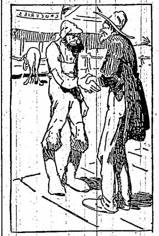
"I'm still alive, thank you. How's mewls, colonel?"

"'Bout so so, Abe. No great flutter in the market."

"And co'n, colonel?"

"Co'n's a leetle stiffer, jest a leetle."

"I reckoned mewls and co'n was all right, but I didn't know. Colonel Harper, I've known yo' a good many years."



"YERE'S MY HAND, COLONEL HARPER. PUT IT THAR!"

"Yes, Abe."

"And in all those years I have never asked yo' to loan me any money."

"No."

"If I had yo'd have accommodated me, knowing that I'd have kept my word about paying it back. Now, then, colonel"—

"Scuse me, Abe," interrupted the colonel, "but I'm powerful short this mawnin'—powerful short. Reckon I won't have a cent to carry home with me."

"But yo'—yo'."—

"Couldn't do it, Abe—couldn't possibly do it."

"Colonel Harper," said Abe as he drew himself up with great dignity, "yo' would take my word as a gentleman, I reckon?"

"Yes; reckon I would."

"Then that's all right. That's what I was getting at. If I wanted to borrow any money of yo', which I don't, yo'd take my word, wouldn't yo'?"

"Oh, for shore—for shore," replied the colonel, evidently much relieved in mind. "Yes, if yo' wanted to borrow any money and I had any to lend I should have confidence in yo'. Yo' hain't looking any too peart this mawnin', Abe. Pike county hain't been throwing yo' down ag'in, I hope?"

"Didn't yo' hear what happened last Tuesday night, colonel?"

"No, not a word. Was it mo' scandalizing?"

"Wuss than that, Colonel Harper. Pike county rose up ag'in me en masse and tried assassination for a change."

"Shoo, shoo! Did I ever! Somebody shot at yo', eh?"

"They attempted to assassinate my reputation, suh, which was wuss than shooting at my body from behind a stone wall. Yes, suh, tried to do me up for good and all, and they can't see how I possibly stayed on top of the ground. Yo' know about the Pike County Literary club, of co'se."

"Yes; I reckon I've heard of it, though as yo' know I run mostly to co'n and mewls."

"Well, I sent in my name to be balloted on for membership, and they throwed me down—throwed me with a crash. Out of fo'ty members present thirty-nine blackballed me. How was that for giving a young man a show, colonel?"

"Shoo. I do declare."

"That was spite work and jealousy, colonel—just spite work and jealousy—but right on top of that Majah Rogers read a paper to the meeting, a paper which he reckoned would bury my dead body ten feet below the soil. I wasn't there, of co'se, but I heard all about it."

"Pitched right into yo', did he?" asked the colonel.

"Couldn't be wuss. Colonel Harper, yo' run to co'n and mewls and have a box at the postoffice, but have yo' ever heard of Plotinus?"

"Seems like I had. Reckon I heard of him in Arkansas a few years ago. Used to raise a power of hawgs, didn't he?"

"Skassly, colonel—skassly. Plotinus was bo'n in Egypt in the year 205 and died in the year 270. That was about 1,200 years befo' Columbus discovered America. He didn't run to hawgs, but to philosophy and was a mighty smart chap. Colonel Harper, was I bo'n in the year 205?"

"Reckon not, Abe."

"Was I bo'n in Egypt?"

"Couldn't be."

"Have I got any show over a man who was bo'n 1,200 years befo' I was?"

"Not much, Abe."

"But yo' foller me, Colonel Har

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

SSS

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.

If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

A WISCONSIN paper thinks the Mormon church should present its president, Joe Smith, with a counting machine.

RICHMOND P. HOBSON, known as a naval hero, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from Alabama. His opponent is Congressman Bankhead.

IT is understood that the Collins price to country newspapers was recently boosted to $300, but to the credit of the Minnesota press be it said that only two or three yielded to the temptation.

JOHN MORGAN, of Thief River Falls, is securing many unsolicited endorsements as delegate to the national Democratic convention. He is a tireless worker for the party, and deserves the recognition his friends ask.

THE Commoner states the situation exactly: The farmers who hauled 50-cent wheat to town in a tariff-taxed wagon and sold it to an elevator combine managed by a railroad trust, is now expected to rejoice and be glad because that same wheat is being sold by the holders at a dollar a bushel."

THE Great Northern is inaugurating a system of eating houses over its entire line. The intention is to have one at all their terminal points. Arrangements have already been made for one at St. Cloud and one at Willmar. These eating houses will be under the jurisdiction of the superintendent of the dining and sleeping car department.

THE Thief River News thinks THE COURIER editor has his hands full in dictating Democratic politics without "butting in" on the Republican game. For the benefit of the News we desire to state that this paper has no intention of doing either. However, we are not to blame if any person or any party gets in the way of THE COURIER's opinions.

THE public printer is at last going to equip the government printing office with type setting machines, says the Benson Monitor. They will be the means of saving Uncle Sam a good many thousand dollars every year. The politicians will be the only losers by this change. They will not have so many government positions at their disposal for their constituents.

A PAPER in northern Minnesota, evidently in favor of Canadian reciprocity, pays this tribute to Congressman Volstead, of the seventh district: "To make his position more hideous, it is a known fact that Volstead's only reason for opposing the bill was that John Lind favored it. Were John Lind a hundred times more a Democrat, a million times more a fool, he would be a shining light compared with a Minnesota congressman who would slap his own state in the face."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT recently issued an order to civil and military officers of the United States that they are not only to refrain from criticising the beligerent Japs and Russians but that they are to refrain from expressing a preference. This applies to the land office officials, postmasters and clerks. Hereafter anyone hearing a United States civil officer expressing a preference or sympathizing with either of the beligerents will consider it their duty to report to Theodore Roosevelt.

THE Collins papers are industriously circulating the report that the delegates to the late state convention were largely for Collins, and claim that this is an evidence that their man is a winner. It now appears that the Collins managers deliberately planned to have all their shouters at Minneapolis at the convention, and the Dunn forces helped along their scheme by sending men to this convention who by no possibility can be delegates to the nominating convention. It's a trite old saying that "he laughs best who laughs last," and the last laugh hasn't come yet.

THE Hearst boom is being carefully nourished in Minnesota, and there is danger that the delegation from this state will be favorable to the New York editor's candidacy. While THE COURIER does not believe Mr. Hearst has horns, or that he is as bad a man as he has been painted by jealous rivals, it does believe the Democrats could go further and fare better. Hearst is hardly of presidential size, and if the party expects to make a showing this year the candidate must possess the highest qualities of statesmanship and personal popularity—and there are plenty of such men.

REPUBLICAN conventions are reviving the old chestnut about the tariff needing revision, but that the work must be done by its "friends." If the voter will stop to think for a moment he will find that the "friends" of the tariff are the very fellows that are satisfied with existing schedules. The tariff should be revised without regard to partisan or local phases and in the interest of the whole American people. The tariff should never have been made a party issue. It is purely a business proposition and ought to be treated as such. The special interests and privileged classes have too long made the tariff question the foot-ball of their own schemes and ambitions.

PHILIPPINE independence is again demanded, this time in the form of an appeal to the national conventions of both parties to include in their platforms this year a plank favoring the "ultimate independence" of the Philippines on the same terms that were offered to Cuba. The appeal is signed by nine college presidents, three eminent churchmen, journalists, philanthropists, publicists, and men of business—forty-two in all. It has not been discussed to any extent in the newspapers, but where it is mentioned the opinion most often expressed is that it would do no harm to make such a vague promise as the petitioners suggest, on the theory, perhaps, that platform promises are not expected to be fulfilled.

OUR TAMS ASSAILED.

Charles J. Bonaparte and Clinton R. Woodruff, who were appointed to investigate charges made against the Dawes commission on the ground of alleged mismanagement in Indian Territory affairs, have submitted a report in which they condemn the conduct of President Bixby and Commissioners Wright and Needles of that body. Referring to this report, the Brooklyn Eagle says: The report does not, so far as we know, accuse these officials of dishonesty, but it states that their connection with land companies is calculated to bring them under suspicion. That these members of the commission are still interested in land deals has not been denied. The report of the investigating committee recommends that no man concerned in the administration of Indian affairs shall be permitted to retain his association with any corporation doing business in Indian territory. This is a sensible suggestion and it is to be hoped that the indorsement given to it by Secretary Hitchcock will be properly effective. As to the difference of opinion between Mr. Hitchcock and Messrs. Bonaparte and Woodruff regarding the abolition of the Dawes commission we are inclined to think that the commission could well be dispensed with.

COLLIDED WITH ITSELF.

On the governorship proposition our contemporary, the Gazette, seems to have met itself coming back and a head-end collision resulted. Having been ardent in support of the candidacy of Robert C. Dunn for nearly two years, that paper is just now no less ardent in the championship of Judge Collins. The Gazette thus occupies the somewhat anamolous position of having supported and opposed both Mr. Dunn and Mr. Collins. The back numbers of the Gazette will prove that Mr. Dunn is eminently qualified for governor, while Mr. Collins is the pliant tool of the Van Sant machine and the Soo railway. The forth coming numbers are expected to show that the Gazette deliberately misrepresented the situation, and that Collins, not Dunn, is the man the Republicans should nominate; that Collins is the only lily-white candidate running for governor of Minnesota.

Now, the question arises, is the Gazette more truthful now than it was a month ago? Dunn is just as good a man this week as last, and he was just as bad two weeks ago as today. Same wav with Collins. Now if the benighted reader takes the Red Lake Falls Gazette as an infallible authority on this momentous question how is he going to reconcile himself with the paper, or how in tarnation is he going to reconcile the Gazette with itself? It's worse than the "How old is Ann?" puzzle.

The situation certainly does not afford a satisfactory contemplation. The Gazette must accept either the imputation that it was mistaken in believing that Dunn was worthv of support, or that improper motives have induced a change of belief. A newspaper editor is supposed to have at least a superficial knowledge of the character and qualifications of candidates for the highest office in the gift of the people of the state, and in admitting that he supported an aspirant for the governorship without knowing something about the man, the reader is sure to be impressed with the idea that the editor is lax in his duty as a moulder of public sentiment.

And the other horn of the dilemma—but why discuss it? By whatever avenue the Gazette reached the conclusion to go back on its record and eat its own words, there is the inevitable verdict of inconsistency.

A man or a newspaper has a right to change his or its views, but in either case a satisfactory explanation is expected. Will this be forthcoming? In this case how can there be a satisfactory explanation?

TWO PICTURES.

GAZE ON THIS—

Crookston Journal, March 20: Sam S. Haislet, editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, passed through the city yesterday enroute home from several days spent in the twin cities. He made the Journal a very pleasant call and stated that it was a winner as a morning sheet. He discussed state politics freely and said that the state convention, to which he was a delegate, was largely Collins men. He believes that the St. Cloud jurist will be elected and he is convinced that Collins is the right man for gubernatorial honors and announced that the Gazette would come out for him next week.

AND THEN ON THIS—

Red Lake Falls Gazette, Dec. 31: And now watch the Collins boom take a fresh spurt in Red Lake county. John Eastman, of the Thief River News, is just returned from a trip to the place where they make Collins managers, and it's a ten-to-one shot there will be something doing when he gets his guns trained—and his bank book home.

We are having better weather now, and there are some indications of the approach of springtime.

In a case brought from Chisago county the supreme court has rendered an interesting decision. In effect it decides that a man has no right to use a public highway from which to shoot wild game when hunting is prohibited on the land on either side of the highway. In other words, the highway actually belongs with the lands on either side of it, and the public has no right therein except the right to travel and the consequent right to repair and maintain the highway in suitable condition for travel. The public has no right to use a highway for hunting purposes or for any other purpose than passing to and fro in public travel.

According to the Crookston Times an immigrant reached Euclid Saturday with a carload of stock and farm machinery. His name could not be learned, but when the car reached there three of his horses were dead and he was in a serious condition and has to be helped from the car. The horses were all his own, and in some manner one had fallen and was being trampled by the others. The man interfered, and in attempted to get the animal up on his feet a general mix-up had ensued and all three of the horses had managed to to get mixed up so that they strangled or were kicked to death. The man is resting at the hotel at Euclid until he recovers so that it will be possible for him to take his stuff to the farm he has bought three miles north of that village.

WILL AFFECT MINNESOTA.

Change in the Method of Selling Timber Lands.

A Washington dispatch says that will be affected by the Hansbrough bill providing for the repeal of the timber and stone act so far as the bill relates to the sale of timber on public lands.

The Hansbrough bill repeals the the act of 1876, which provided for the sale of timber lands in California, Oregon, Washington and Nevada, and other states, including Minnesota and for the issuance of patents under the commutation provisions of the homestead lows. Instead of making entries and accepting proof from entryman, the Hansbrough bill provides that the secretary of the interior may sell timber lands to the highest bidder either at open sale or under sealed bids.

Proceeds from timber sales in the states of Oregon, California, Arizona, Colorado, North and South Dakota, New Mexico, Utah, Washington and Wyoming are to be placed in the irrigation fund for reclamation of arid lands.

Congressman Steenerson is pushing the Red Lake sale, which is authorized under his bill. He thinks now that Secretary Hitchcock will fevor the open sale to the highest bidder. Mr. Steenerson is also pressing his billl for allowing the White Earth Indians a full allotment of 160 acres instead of 80, as has been the rule heretofore.

A BIT OF JUDICIAL HISTORY.

The Judges Who Have Presided in This District.

Crookston Journal: Judge Watts is not ordinarily inclined to reminisences, especially when a representative of the press is about. However, he grew communicative yesterday and told something of the history of the judicary in Polk county.

"Who are those gentlemen?" asked the Journal man, indicating two portraits of venerable looking gentlemen.

"They," responded the Judge, "are the first two judges to hold court in Polk county. They are both dead. All the other judges who have served here are living.

Judge O. P. Stearns was the first man to hold court in Polk county. He lived at Duluth and we were then in the Eleventh district with Duluth. He was a judge for 20 years but had been on the bench a number of years before he visited Crookston in 1874 for the purpose of holding court. The country was wild then and the judge must have experienced considerable difficulty in reaching the hamlet where Crookston now stands and holding court. He had been on the bench eight years when he first came here and was our judge for 12 years.

The district became so large that in 1885 Judge Reuben Reynolds of this city was appointed to assist him. Judge Reynolds was 65 years of age when appointed and lived but two years. He suffered a paralytic stroke which incapacitated him for actual service on the bench.

In 1886 the legislature passed an act setting aside a large block of territory in the northwestern part of the state to be known as the 14th district. Ira B. Mills of Moorhead was elected the first judge of the new district. He took his seat on January 1, 1887, and served for a term of six years. He is at the present time a member of the railroad and warehouse commission of Minnesota and is actively engaged in politics.

In 1893 Frank Ives of this district was elected to succeed Judge Mills. He served one term of six years, and is now editing the Cass Lake Times at Cass Lake, Minnesota.

He was succeeded in 1899 by William Watts of tnis city. The judge will not complete his term until Jan. I 1904. He has proved to be one of the most popular judges that ever served on the bench in this district and will without doubt succeed himself. He is the candidate of all men regardless of party.

Last winter the legislature granted a second judge to this district and Gov. Van Sant appointed Andrew Grindeland of Warren, who is serving with Judge Watts.

New Duties for Town Supervisors.

Town supervisors are ex-officio fire wardens and are charged with the duty of preventing forest and prairie fires in their towns; and the new law, giving them longer tenure and experience, will no doubt lead to an improvement in that branch of their service. These officers acting as fire wardens, must post warning notices, and in dry season patrol their districts or employ patrols. They must warn against the careless use of fire by any person they think likely to be negligent therein. They have authority to summon assistance to extinguish or control fires. The state now pays two-thirds of all the expense, and the counties one-third.

WARE MAKES NEW PENSION RULING

DECISION OF COMMISSIONER OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO OLD SOLDIERS.

Claimants Beyond Above Age Will Not Be Required to Undergo Examination—Great Saving Expected Under the Order.

Washington, March 17.—Commissioner of Pensions Ware, with the approval of Secretary Hitchcock, on Wednesday promulgated the most important pension ruling that has been issued in a long time. It directs that beginning April 13 next, if there is no contrary evidence and all other legal requirements have been met, claimants for pension under the general act of June 27, 1890, who are over 62 years old, shall be considered as disabled one-half in ability to perform manual labor and shall be entitled to $6 a month, over 65 years, to $8; over 68 years, to $10, and over 70, $12, the usual allowances at higher rates continuing for disabilities other than age.

The Commissioner's Views.

Commission Ware, just before leaving for a trip south for his health, spoke as follows regarding the order, which he said would save both the old soldiers and the government a great deal of money and time: "There has long been in the bureau a rule fixing a maximum age limit at $12 for 75 years. This was made during Mr. Cleveland's administration by Commissioner Lochren, now federal judge in Minnesota. The 65-year minimum limit has been a long while in force in the bureau, but I am not advised by whom it was established nor is it particularly material since it met with general acquiesence. The act of congress, which was passed in the latter part of January, 1887, and approved by President Cleveland, put all the Mexican war veterans on the pension roll 39 years exactly after the end of the Mexican war.

Entitled to Like Treatment.

"It would seem that if 39 years after the expiration of service a Mexican war soldier was entitled to a pension at 62 years, and no other requisite for drawing a pension should exist except age, that to soldiers of the civil war who fought vastly more and longer, at least as good a rule ought to apply. The Mexican war limit of 62 years was probably brought about by the well-known army limit of 62 years at which officers are retired. There seems to be a general consensus of opinion that at 62 years the disabilities of old age have set in. The order could not have been issued earlier, because it is only now that the 39 years fixed by the congressional limit has been reached. The civil war ended April 13, 1865, and in enlistments in the loyal states those who enlisted after that time are held to have no pensionable service during the war of the rebellion. Hence the 39 years would expire on the 13th of next month, and it is very proper that the order should be issued fixing the sixty-second year as the minimum age limit and the Biblical three score and ten as the maximum.

Will Save Money and Time.

"There is an advantage and saving to the government in the use of this order, because every old soldier who has reached the age of 62 years is able to prove almost without possibility of doubt that he is one-half disabled from earning his support by manual labor. This being so, it seems unwise to put a soldier to the expense of time and transporttation to go to a place where a medical board can examine him to find that fact out, and on the other hand it seems unnecessary for the government to keep boards established, and then pay six dollars for the examination of a soldier when the result of the examination can be so accurately foretold. I am of the opinion that this order will save the government a good deal of money. Of the 200,000 examinations in the last year, if one-fourth of them were saved it would make $300,000, and perhaps an equal amount in time and transportation to the old soldiers, who would have to go and be examined."

FIVE TRAMPS KILLED.

Broken Rail Causes a Fatal Disaster on Colorado & Southern Road.

Trinidad, Col., March 19.—Five unknown tramps, who were stealing a ride, were killed in a freight wreck on the Colorado & Southern railroad at Mayne, a small station 40 miles north of here Friday night. The engine and five cars of the train are piled in a ditch, and the bodies of the victims of the wreck have not been recovered. The accident was caused by a broken rail. The crew escaped.

Dewey Not Guilty.

Norton, Kan., March 21.—After deliberating for 28 hours, the jury brought in a verdict acquitting Chauncey Dewey, the millionaire, and his two cowboys, Clyde Wilson and William J. McBride, of the murder of Burchard Berry. This ends one of the most famous trials in the criminal annals of Kansas.

Twenty-Two Drowned.

Dublin, March 21.—The German bark Mona collided with the English ship Lady Cairns off Dublin bay, and her crew of 22 were drowned. The Mona, which was much damaged, was assisted into Dublin harbor.

Ex-Senator Moody Dies.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Gideon C. Moody, who was the first United States senator from South Dakota, died at his home in this city yesterday, aged [illegible] years.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Washington, March 15.—The fortification bill was before the senate all day yesterday, the provision for the purchase of a submarine boat of a designated type taking up the entire session. Legislation for the District of Columbia and the post office appropriation bill occupied the attention of the house. The rural free delivery service received most attention. Both sides declared their friendship for it.

Washington, March 16.—The senate passed the fortification appropriation bill yesterday with an amendment authorizing the purchase of sites of defense works in the Hawaiian islands. In the house the post office appropriation bill was further discussed.

Washington, March 17.—Another day of the senate was devoted to consideration, in executive session, of the nomination of Gen. Leonard Wood to be major general. In the house, during the discussion of the post office appropriation bill, Mr. Spight (Miss.) discussed the negro question, and declared unjust the attacks on the people of the south who had been charged with brutality and barbarism toward the colored race.

Washington, March 18.—The time in the senate yesterday was again occupied in discussing the nomination of Gen. Wood. In the house the post office appropriation bill was further considered.

Washington, March 19.—In the senate yesterday the appointment of Leonard Wood to be major general was confirmed. In the house the post office appropriation bill was further discussed and a resolution providing for an investigation of the trust question by a committee of five members of the house was introduced.

COTTON KING DETHRONED.

Daniel J. Sully, Famous Operator, Forced to Suspend and His Losses Are Heavy.

New York, March 19.—Daniel J. Sully, the cotton king of the world, failed to meet his margins on the Cotton Exchange yesterday and his firm announced a suspension of business. It is estimated Sully had lost $5,000,000 in the last ten days on declines in the prices of cotton in a speculative market where he traded as a persistent bull. Despite his herculean efforts, prices dropped still further yesterday morning and in the afternoon he was overwhelmed with cotton offered for sale. Then his firm announced its inability to trade further.

For 15 months Sully had been the biggest figure in the cotton markets of the world. He had "bulled" cotton from seven cents a pound to over 17. Soon after he announced his inability to make good his engagements cotton fell nearly $12 a bale from the highest figures of the day.

New York, March 21.—According to the calculations of cotton market experts, Daniel J. Sully has lost about one-million seven hundred thousand by his failure on Friday. The opinion is general in leading circles that Sully will pay up in full, and do all he can to reach settlements promptly.

CUBA IS PROSPEROUS.

Admiral Dewey Says the People of the Island Attribute Success to American Government.

Washington, March 21.—Admiral Dewey, who has returned from the naval maneuvers in southern waters, called on President Roosevelt to present to him a personal message of good will from President Palma, of Cuba. The admiral told the president that the people of the new republic were notably prosperous, and that both President Palma and the Cuban people attributed their prosperity to the government of the United States. Admiral Dewey said the sugar crop this year will aggregate 1,000,000 tons, and that the tobacco output was greater than ever before.

Work to Begin Soon.

Washington, March 21.—In concluding his hearing before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, Admiral Walker, president of the Panama canal commission, stated that actual work on the canal would be begun after the commission had made a stay of a few weeks on the isthmus, for which it would sail March 29. The arrangements for this work will be completed in Washington, where the commission is to have one of its headquarters.

Press Congress.

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—The programme for the national and international press congress at the world's fair, beginning May 16, has just been completed. It is expected that 4,000 newspaper men will be in attendance, and of these more than 100 will be editors of leading foreign papers. The others will be members of 30 or more press associations.

Two Negroes Lynched.

Cleveland, Miss., March 21.—A mob of masked men stormed the jail here and secured possession of Fayette Sawyer and Burke Harris, negroes, charged with the murder of Sid Killum, a negro train porter. The prisoners were taken to the scene of the murder and hanged from the railroad bridge.

Policemen Indicted.

St. Louis, March 19.—Eight members of the police force have been indicted on charges of aiding and abetting in the intimidation of voters and ordered by the chief of police to appear in court today.

Renominated.

Meadville, Pa., March 19.—Arthur L. Bates was renominated for congress by the republicans in the Twenty-fifth district Friday without opposition.

NO STRIKE AMONG THE COAL MINERS

REPORTS SHOW BIG MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF ACCEPTANCE OF WAGE CUT.

The Ballots Show That 98,514 Employes Favor Operators' Proposition and 67,373 Voted Against Accepting Two Years' Contract.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 19.—Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson, of the United Mine Workers, announced yesterday that the tellers had finished the count of the referendum vote of the miners on the operators' compromise proposition, which provides for a reduction of 5.55 per cent. from the present scale, which resulted in a majority of 31,141 in favor of accepting the two-years' contract with the reduction. The total vote cast by the miners' local unions in Indiana, Ohio, western Pennsylvania, Michigan, Kentucky, West Virginia and Iowa was 165,887, of which 98,514 voted in favor of accepting the reduction, while 67,373 voted in favor of a strike. No official call will be made for the meeting of the joint sub-committee, which will be held at the national headquarters of the miners' organization Monday, for the purpose of signing the new wage scale, which becomes operative April 1, continuing for two years. The work of counting the vote continued from ten o'clock a. m. until ten o'clock Thursday night, beginning again at eight o'clock Friday morning and lasting until 12:40 Friday afternoon.

Officers Pleased.

The national officers of the organization, who advised the acceptance of the proposition at the recent convention, feel that the organization has won a signal victory, and that the miners are assured of peace under an advantageous contract for the space of two years at least, the acceptance of the reduction carrying with it a contract for that length of time.

For National Highway.

Erie, Pa., March 18.—Going on record as not being opposed to the improvement of any roads the first annual meeting of the New York and Chicago Road association closed Thursday with the adoption of a resolution favoring the building of a national highway between the two cities named above through the southern tier of counties of New York and westwardly along the lake shore through Cleveland and Toledo to Chicago.

Revenue Collections.

Washington, March 21.—The monthly statement of collections of internal revenue shows that for the month of February, 1904, the total collections amounted to $17,403,363, an increase over February, 1903, of $1,152,969. For the eight months of the present fiscal year the total receipts were $157,347,294, an increase over the corresponding period in 1903 of $2,648,289.

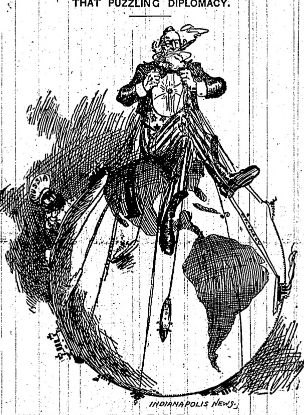
Bank Cashier Indicted.

Chicago, March 21.—The March federal grand jury indicted Francis B. Wright, cashier of the First national bank of Dundee. He was charged with embezzling and misapplying the moneys, funds and credits of the bank, which recently underwent financial distress. The amount Wright is alleged to have misappropriated is $54,200.

Election Laws Changed.

Columbus, O., March 18.—There will be no municipal elections in Ohio this spring. Gov. Herrick has signed the Chapman bill abolishing spring elections, and it is now a law. The terms of all elective municipal officers, which would have expired in April, have been extended until after the elections next November.

THAT PUZZLING DIPLOMACY.



RUSSIA—I Wondersky Whatsky He Is Thinking Aboutovitch?

CONDITIONS FAVORABLE.

Dun and Bradstreet Find Much Encouragement in Business Situation of the Country.

New York, March 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Improvement in trade and industry continues, favorable reports largely outnumbering adverse influences. The most important event of the week was the two-thirds vote by bituminous coal miners to accept the proposed reduction in wages. This will probably prevent a serious struggle that would paralyze manufacturing just when it is beginning to revive. Complications have arisen in the local building trades that retard structural work, but a settlement is anticipated and the open weather is stimulating outdoor work at other points. Retail distribution of Easter goods steadily expands and dealers' stocks are being depleted because of conservatism in initial purchases. This promises large supplementary jobbing and wholesale orders as the season advances.

"Failures this week numbered 229 in the United States, compared with 220 last year, and 21 in Canada, against 22 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "The backwardness of spring trade, generally attributed to almost interruptedly bad weather, tinges most reports from distributive centers, but several developments of the week have been notably favorable.

NEW ENGLAND SHAKEN.

Maine, New Hampshire and Other Sections Rocked by the Quivering of the Earth.

Boston, March 21.—Three distinct shocks of earthquake were felt throughout New England at 1:05 o'clock this morning, smashing lamp chimneys and other glassware in some places. Beginning at St. John, N. B., the seismic vibrations traversed the state of Maine, causing some slight damage to buildings in Augusta, Bangor and Portland. The shock was felt plainly as far south as Taunton in this state.

Reports from Manchester, N. H., and Springfield, Mass., state that the vibrations were felt distinctly in those two cities. At Augusta, Me., lamp chimneys were broken and crockery was smashed. In Boston and within a radius of 50 miles the shocks were especially noticeable.

Mail Clerk Arrested.

La Crosse, Wis., March 21.—Post office Inspector F. P. Mahor, of Chicago, arrived here, having in custody a former mail clerk who is charged with having stolen the registered mail sack which mysteriously disappeared from the Milwaukee train at New Lisbon. The prisoner admitted the theft. The post office authorities refused to give out his name.

Killed in Race War.

Birmingham, Ala., March 21.—Mrs. Edward Willingham and Seph Crook (white) and Jake Dyer (colored) are dead, Newt Clements fatally wounded and Percy Benton seriously wounded as the result of two running fights near Bessemer with deputy constables on one side, and Dyer and West Streit (colored) on the other.

Signed the Bill.

Baltimore, Md., March 19.—Gov. Warfield has approved the so-called "Jim Crow" bill relating to railroad and steamboat travel in the state, and the act will go into effect. The bill requires companies to provide separate coaches for colored passengers except on express trains and trains with Pullman coaches attached.

Cleveland Celebrates Birthday.

Princeton, N. J., March 19.—Former President Cleveland quietly observed his sixty-seventh birthday at his home here Friday. There was no celebration, except that he received some of his most intimate Princeton friends, who called to offer their congratulations. He also received a number of congratulatory telegrams.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

WARSHIPS BOUND FOR NEW CHWANG

CHINESE FLEET ON THE WAY TO PROBABLE SCENE OF NAVAL CONFLICT.

JAPS LAND TROOPS NEAR THE MANCHURIAN PORT

Mobilization of Russian Army to Be Completed by May 25 When Czar Will Have Force of 540,000 Men in the Field.

Chefoo, March 22.—The Chinese Pea Yang squadron, consisting of the cruisers Hai-Chi, Hi-Ying, Hi-Tien and Hai-Shew, under command of Admiral Tsah, has arrived here. It is understood that it will proceed to New-Chwang as soon as the ice is cleared from that port.

Japs Land Troops.

London, March 22.—Japan has landed or attempted to land troops at Helena bay, half way between Port Arthur and Newchwang, and only six miles from the railroad. This news comes from St. Petersburg. It is admitted that the Russian war department was startled by the intelligence. Russian troops are now being hurried to Fuchow, 22 miles south of Helena bay, to resist the expected landing. Newchwang is being hurriedly placed in a position of defense, as a Japanese force is expected to land on the coast west of that city.

Enormous Russian Army.

St. Petersburg, March 22. — It is officially announced that the mobilization of Russia's army in Manchuria will be complete by May 25, and that on that date Gen. Kouropatkin will have a field force of 540,000 infantry, cavalry and artillery at his disposal. It is stated further, and by official sanction, that Russia will not begin the serious land campaign until June, and that a decisive battle need not be expected before August.

Not since the Turko-Russian war of 1878-'9 has any European power sent so large an army into the field. France fought Prussia in 1871 with 300,000 men. Russia sent scarcely 600,000 against Turkey in 1878. England fought the recent Boer war with 200,000. No power in Europe ever transported an army of 540,000 men so great a distance as Russia is doing in the present conflict with Japan. The transportation obstacles are enormous.

Cause of Order.

Paris, March 22.—The Russian order stopping entry into New-Chwang without a permit is understood in official quarters here to be a military precaution due to the uncertainty as to which of five places the Japanese will choose for their first extensive land operations. The five points are the Yalu river, New-Chwang, Port Arthur, Vladivostok and Pigeon Bay. The Russians, being unable to determine where Japan will make her main attack, are making preparations and taking precautions at all five points.

To Bottle Up Port Arthur.

London, March 22.—Japan, it is reported, is about to make a sensational attempt to bottle up Port Arthur. Fifteen large steamships are being prepared at Sasebo for this new effort. They are loaded with stone and will be linked together with chains and wire cables. They will steam toward Port Arthur in a line, and if not sunk by Russian guns they will be blown up by their crews. In either event they will block the entrance to the harbor completely.

Russians Deny Reported Victory.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—The reported Russian victory on the Yalu river, in which it was claimed 1,800 Japanese had been captured, frankly is declared to have been impossible. At military headquarters it is pointed out that to inflict such a crushing defeat on the Japanese the Russians would have had to have been numerically enormously superior to the enemy, which the Russians in Korea are not.

May Effect Juncture.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—The whereabouts of the Vladivostok squadron is a profound official secret, but there are those here who believe that the Japanese may wake up some morning to find that the two divisions of Russia's Pacific squadron have effected a juncture. It is betraying no confidence to state that both the admiralty and Vice Admiral Makaroff, before he left for the far east, regarded the fact that the divisions were separated as most unfortunate for Russia's chances of success at sea. Realizing that offensive naval operations are impossible under present conditions, it is believed that no opportunity will be neglected to repair this initial misfortune, even should it involve considerable risk.

Japan's Ambition.

St. Petersburg, March 22.—Vladivostok papers, which have just arrived here, say that a member of the Japanese consulate declared on the eve of his departure that it was Japan's ambition to drive the Russians across the Amur, restore Manchuria to China and annex Korea.

Steamers in Collision.

Holyhead, Wales, March 22.—The British steamers Merion and Clan Grant put into the harbor Monday after having been in collision off this place during a dense fog. Both ships were injured. The Clan Grant was struck amidships and her forepart is full of water. She has a large hole in her starboard side and was obliged to go on the beach to prevent sinking. The damage to the Merion is evidently slight, as she subsequently proceeded to Liverpool.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Farmers' Exchange.

Twenty-five farmers interested in the Minnesota Farmers' Exchange met at the state capitol and adopted a constitution and by-laws, and articles of incorporation, which will soon be filed with the secretary of state.

The capital stock of the exchange will be $500,000, divided into $25,000 shares, $20 a share. The limit of indebtedness is fixed at 50 per cent of the stock issued.

The sessions were occupied by discussions of the constitution, by-laws and articles of incorporation. The purpose of the exchange is to act as the farmers' commission man and broker, thus avoiding the payment of commissions to regular merchants. It is authorized to deal in all kinds of farm and dairy products, own real estate, operate elevators and flour mills, buy and sell agricultural implements and such other merchandise as the farmers sell or consume.

The exchange will operate through a central office at St. Paul and will be composed of numerous county organizations, which will subscribe for stock. The exchange will as soon as practicable build large terminal elevators in Minneapolis and Duluth.

Cannibalism.

A party who has been cruising between Tower and Koochiching confirms the report of the alleged cannibalism on the Lett Lake reservation.

Brandon was near Pelican lake at the time the Indian was claimed to have killed and eaten his wife and child, and the second day after met a small party of Boise Fort Indians, who were on their way to the west end of Vermillion lake. From these Indians Brandon learned of the killing, and he says his information is unquestionably authentic. He was told that the Indian who is claimed to have committed the horrible deed was a shiftless sort of a fellow, and during a drunken spree killed both his wife and child, and later devoured parts of their bodies to avert starvation.

This Indian lived in a distant part of the reservation, and the first news of the deed was brought by a guide.

Is No Day.

In the eyes of the Minnesota state tax law a legal holiday is no day at all, according to a ruling made by Judge Cray.

The court in its decision holds that the time for redemption cannot expire on a legal holiday, and that a property owner who offers to redeem on the sixty-first day of the redemption period, when the sixtieth day falls on a legal holiday, is entitled to a settlement and can become the legal owner of the property.

The decision was rendered in the case of C. W. Case against Marcus P. Hobart and others, and the point taken is that the law provides for Sundays but not for holidays. In the case in question notice of redemption was served by the plaintiff and the sixtieth day fell upon Sept. 7, Labor day. The Ramsey county auditor held that the plaintiff had a right to redeem on the following day and acted accordingly and was upheld by the court.

Desperate Burglars.

After beating and choking her almost into a state of insensibility, two masked burglars, who ransacked the house and piled up valuables in little heaps all over the first floor rooms, ready to carry away, attempted a dastardly outrage on Mrs. W. H. Hensel, 609 Jackson street, St. Paul, early one evening, and but for an accident would have accomplished their purpose.

Mrs. Hensel is the wife of a vice-president of the Junior Pioneers, and proprietor of a transfer company. She was ill and in a highly nervous state at the time, and is in a serious condition. Great red welts on each side of the throat, braised places on the skin of the throat and shoulders, and several scalp wounds where her hair was torn out by the roots in her struggle, tell of the desperate struggle.

Shot His Father.

G. A. Klien, one of the leading jewelers of Duluth, was shot by his son early in the morning and dangerously wounded. According to the story told by the family, Klien was awakened by a revolver shot, and investigating found his son, who is twenty-one years of age, wildly waving a revolver and shouting that there were burglars in the house. As soon as he saw his father he turned the revolver on him and shot him twice, one bullet going thru the body and the other thru the arm.

The family says the boy was subject to nightmare and was in that condition when the shooting occurred.

G. A. R. Officers.

Colonel Harrison White, of Luverne, was elected department commander of the G. A. R. department of Minnesota.

The other successful candidates for office were:

L. O. Merriam, of Minneapolis, senior vice commander.

George A. Whitney, of Wadena, junior vice commander.

Dr. Chester G. Higbee, of St. Paul, medical director.

Rev. Daniel A. Tawney, of St. Paul, department chaplain.

News Notes.

Gunder Watson was killed by a falling tree near Bemidji.

The architects say that this season will be a busy one for builders and contractors in St. Paul.

Fountain celebrated over a victory gained on the question of waterworks. The streets were ablaze with fireworks.

Made desperate by the fact that his wife and children were at home without money or food, James Wwyar, who is serving a short sentence at the work house in Minneapolis, for drunkenness, attempted to escape from there.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own packet?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buvers.

G. G. Gerrietts, of Manito, Ill., was here last week to look after his farm in Terrebonne township. Mr. Gerrietts will hereafter keep posted on Red Lake county doings by reading the Courier.

Misses Julia Hathaway, of Hawley, Minn., and Bessie Strahorn, of Robertson, Iowa, are visiting at the home of Dr. J. C. Wilkinson. The young ladies expect to secure schools during the summer.

C. E. Boughton was at Thief River Falls this week on legal business. We understand the famous Connery will case is to be settled out of court, but the details of the settlement have not been given out as yet.

J. C. Glynn, an old time friend of the editor, was a pleasant caller yesterday while in the city on business. Mr. Glynn is traveling for a Chicago house, and in that capacity makes all the leading cities of the west.

Herbert Linnertz, who recently sold his farm north of town, left Tuesday for Maryland, where he will look over the farming country with a view to locating. Mr. Lennertz is an old resident of Red Lake county and we are sorry to lose him.

County Attorney Grady went to St. Paul last evening to look up authorities on some of the cases to be tried at the district court next week. He will stop over at Crookston for a day on his return to straighten out some probate matters.

Attorney Grady was at Bemidji Saturday to try the case brought by Exerie Chatel against a firm of lumber contractors for the use of several teams in the woods during the winter. We understand the case was settled out of court.

Drs. F. F. Fletcher and J. E. Argue were at Crookston over Monday evening to attend the organization of the Northwestern Dental association. Dr. Argue was honored by being made vice-president of the association. The next meeting will be held at Grand Forks.

Grant Van Sant was in the city Wednesday looking after his land interests. We asked Grant what was new in the political line, but he disavowed any knowledge of the trend of events except what he saw in the papers. He says he is kept busy selling land, and is taking no part in the political scramble this year.

Rev. Andrew Walker returned to Red Lake Falls Monday to pack his personal effects, preparatory to moving to Grand Rapids, Minn., where he has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church at that place. Rev. Walker says he likes Grand Rapids, and that his church is in a flourishing condition, all of which the Red Lake Falls people will be glad to hear.

SHOULD GO SLOW.

Farmers in This Section Should Be Wary of Macaroni Wheat.

Farmers in this section who have thoughts of planting macaroni wheat this spring will do well to thoroughly investigate before so doing. While this variety has proven a success in the arid regions west of the Missouri there are many objections to introducing it in this section.

The department of agriculture at Washington has sent out a timely bulletin on the subject. Among other things it says:

"It is important, however, again to emphasize the necessity of growing the wheat strictly within the semiarid districts. It is a necessity both for the producer and the consumer. It will only yield heavily, compared with other grains, in such districts, and therefore be of greater financial profit to the farmer. And it is only the grain produced in these districts that is of the high quality characteristic of this wheat.

In a former publication of this department (Bulletin No. 3, Macaroni Wheats), a map is given of the area east of which none of this class of wheat should be sown. It is probable now that this belt should be extended much farther westward, almost to the Rocky Mountains. We are finding constantly that the grain will grow with even less rainfall than we have granted to it. On the other hand, the acreage in the east portion of this belt, particularly along the Red river of the north, and east of the middle of the States from Nebraska to Texas, should be kept down to as low a figure as possible.

The wheat seems well adapted to those areas devoted to "dry farming" in Washington, Idaho, Utah, Oregon, and other Mountain and Pacific State so long as the soil is not too greatly lacking in humus."

It should be remembered that the slightest mixture of macaroni wheat and spring wheat, according to Minnesota grain inspection rules causes the whole lot to grade rejected and such stuff will sell accordingly. It therefore seems poor policy to introduce macaroni in a country where it will produce no better than Fife or Blue-stem wheats, and when any mixture will lower the standard of grade and reduce prices.

Miss Bertha Tysseling and Olive Romsos of Wylie visited with Mrs. O. P. Johnson Sunday.

Charles Ackerlund of Crookston came up for a brief visit with his cousins. He went back Tuesday.

N. K. Anderson of the town of Sanders transacted business at the office of the town clerk Tuesday.

The two sons of Mr. Darden arrived from Iowa Saturday. They will settle on the P. A. Erickson farm which Mr. Darden has purchased.

Oscar Erickson and Mr. Darden and sons drove to St. Hilaire Monday and hauled home a carload of Mr. Darden's goods, which came Saturday.

C. F. Anderson says he will build a new house this summer. The neighbors are expecting to see a handsome building that will stand a strong southeast wind.

O. Lorentzon, one of our Polk Center neighbors, was attacked by an ugly bull last Wednesday, and was rather severely treated. In revenge they killed the animal the next day.

When coming home from Wylie Tuesday Peter Lindbloom got stuck in the deep snow, one of his horses refused to stand up and if it hadn't been for Thomas Larson coming home the same way, Mr. Lindbloom and the horse might be there yet.

The grange meeting was held Saturday evening, and there was a large attendance.

The town supervisors will meet on March 26 to assess road labor and make out road warrants.

Straw and hay are getting very scarce, and the farmers are hoping that spring will come around soon.

J. F. Mathews has been buying quite a lot of cordwood lately. It is hard to get it out of the woods this weather.

Emil Dalbeck has recently returned from a trip to the Pacific coast. He thinks Red Lake county is all right and intends to remain here.

Friday was the day for the newly-elected town officers to qualify. All of them qualified except one justice of the peace and the road overseer for district No. 2.

Remember the band concert tomorrow (Friday) evening. The program is printed elsewhere.

The Duluth News-Tribune observes:

> A Portland girl demands $2,500 for a kiss forcibly and feloniously stolen from her. At this rate, what wouldn't a kiss from a Minnesota girl be worth?

Give it up, but suppose it depends somewhat on the girl. By the way, Mary, can't you suggest a standard of value?

The Ellsworth News thinks the numerous spring tonics would have a smaller sale it people didn't imagine a lot of ills that have no real foundation:

> Many men unconsciously get into the "not feeling well habit." They magnify their little ailments and troubles instead of brushing them away. The mind controls the body to a very large extent and should be exercised to preserve health. Half of the "not feeling well" grunters are simply lazy and seeking an excuse to get out of working. It is the gritty, determined man from whom the fewest complaints eminate. There's no tonic like work to get your mind off from bodily ailments. If you are "not feeling well," just rustle a little harder and forget it.

Here is St. Peter Johnson's definition:

The physlography class have been illustrating in their work on land formations.

The examination of the half-year studies will be held Thursday and Friday of this week.

Etta Garceau, Lulu Fletcher and Anna Sutter of the alumni attended the debate last Friday.

Joseph Toupin is suffering from the effects of a blackeye caused by a well-directed snowball.

The Seniors held several meetings this week and made arrangements for the class-day exercises.

The Athenians won the debate last Friday by a margin of three points. The debate was one of the best of the series.

"A growler of beer," was Johnny's prompt reply when asked by the teacher to give another wording of the phrase "can appear."

The seniors will have several dress rehearsals next week on their class play 'The Deacon," which will be given April 4. The play is of the Alvin Joslyn type, abounds in humerous incidents and ledicrous situations and has a great deal of taking farcical "business." All of the characters are life-like and striking, and there are five fustrate comedy parts. Particular will be given next week.

RED LAKE COURIER.

CONTINUING THE RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER.

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 26. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 31, 1904. WHOLE NUMBER 286.

COURT CALENDAR IS SHORT

Little Business to Be Done By the Mill of Justice at the March Term.

The term of the district court held this week is the lightest in recent years. The calendar was cleaned up last fall, and the residents of the county have been so peaceable and law-abiding since then that there is little litigation to be disposed of.

The case of the Deering Harvester company vs. P. O. Hagglund was settled.

The case of S. N. Sorenson et. al. vs. A. M. Hanson will be tried in chambers at Crookston on a date to be agreed upon by the parties to the action.

In the action of Kate Harris asking judgment against Charles Hallas, the attorneys agreed to try the case before Judge Watts at Crookston upon ten days' notice by either party.

Telesphore Ducharme was given a verdict of $136.80 against the Great Northern railway for forty tous of hay destroyed by sparks from a railroad engine two years ago. The case will doubtless be appealed. W. A. McIntyre and Chas. E. Boughton appeared for the plaintiff and A. C. Wilkinson for the railroad company.

Andrew P. Erickson was given a verdict in his case against Ole O. Hannem. Mr. Erickson sold a farm to the defendant, and sued for the payment of several installment notes given on the purchase price. The defendant claimed the notes had been paid, but the jury took a different view of the matter.

A verdict for defendant was rendered in the case of Daniel Gerlach vs. John Alstadt.

NEXT SUNDAY IS EASTER.

How This Movable Feast Day is Designated.

Easter comes next Sunday, and is earlier this year than usual. Easter Day is a movable festival, because it falls on different dates in different years. It is kept on the Sunday next after the fourteenth day of the Paschal moon; the Paschal moon being that moon of which the fourteenth day (approximately the full moon) occurs on or next after the 21st of March. Hence Easter cannot occur earlier than March 22 (when the fourteenth day of the Paschal moon is Saturday, March 21,) nor later than April 25 (when the fourteenth day of the Paschal moon is Sunday, April 18). In 1902 Easter occured on the 30th of March and last year on the 12th of April. Next year it will fall on the 23d of April, the following year will fall back to the 15th and in 1907 it will occur on the last day of March, and in 1913 Easter Sunday will fall on the 23d of that month, which will be the earliest it will occur during the next quarter of a century.

CLAIMS DEED WAS FORGED

Case Involving Title to Valuable Land Remanded to District Court.

Lack of jurisdiction by the probate court in the Marchildon vs. Jolly case, involving the ownership of a valuable tract of land near Red Lake Falls, will ultimately result in the trial of the proceedings before the district court of Polk county. The case is the one in which Mrs. Henrietta Marchildon of Red Lake Falls seeks to obtain the possession of a piece of land which was, as far as the records in the probate office go, properly deeded by her to Anton Jolly of Red Lake Falls, after the death of her husband. Mrs. Marchildon alleges in her petition that the proceedings in probate court relating to the sale were forged by Oscar Lindquist, who acted as clerk in Judge Benson's court at the time.

At the hearing of the case before Judge Thorson at Crookston Friday Attorney, Grady representing Mr. Jolly the defendant, moved for a dismissal of the case upon the ground of lack of jurisdiction. Attorney Hagen of this city, who represented Mrs. Marchildon, demurred to the dismissal and asserted that he would take the case to the district court. He desired the case continued indefinitely as he might not have to reopen all of the probate proceedings in connection with the case should the higher court give the probate judge jurisdiction in the matter. Judge Thorson was agreeable to the postponement and until the action in the district court, which will probably be brought up at the June term no further developments in the case will be brought out. Mrs. Marchildon and her daughter and son-in-law of Red Lake Falls were in attendance at the hearing, but were not communicative on the details of the case.

The land involved was originally state school land.

ED. HEALY RE-OPENS OFFICE

Ready for Business at the Old Stand After Tomorrow—Good Prospects for Spring.

Ed. L. Healy announces that tomorrow, April 1, he will re-open his real estate office at the old stand under the name of Ed. L. Healy Land company. Mr. Healy has a large list of farm lands in Red Lake and Polk counties, and already has prospects for a good business from the southern part of the state.

Mr. Healy's many friends are glad to learn that he is to get back into the land business. He has been a hustler for business, and it is through his efforts that a large number of good farmers have been induced to settle in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls during the past few years.

Mr. Healy desires to list all the farms in Red Lake county that are for sale, and the farmers who are thinking of selling out should call and see him.

AND STILL THEY COME.

Forty-two New Subscribers to the Courier This Week.

The proselyting campaign being carried forth by George L. Austin in behalf of the COURIER continues to show splendid results. This week Mr. Austin reports an addition of forty-two new names, and if this thing keeps up much longer there will be but few families in Red Lake county that do not have the COURIER as a regular visitor. Not only in the matter of legitimate circulation, but in the amount of news matter and general reading the COURIER is easily in the lead of any other Red Lake county newspaper.

Red Lake Falls—Romeo Ducharme, Olaf Ilberg, Otto Kolbe, M. McKenzie, Swan Akenson, B. F. Conger, G. J. Weller, F. X. Caillier, Theo. Majers, Harry Fritz.

St. Hilaire—P. W. Peterson, Axel Anderson, Peter Lundberg, T. Thompson, A. S. Anderson, Iver Rolstad, Edward Peterson, John Maakrud, Albert Kaiges, Mrs. J. L. Johnson, M. R. Hage.

Thief River Falls—John Sjulsrvold, Ole Holmstad, J. J. Hall, C. A. Parnell, Otto Granstrand, Richard Kittleman, O. Jacobsen.

Wyandotte—Mike Madden, Cole Rice.

Hillsboro, N. D.—J. C. Glynn.

Loveid, Minn.—G. A. Blewett.

Thorwick—Prof. L. Blais.

Lambert—Joseph Marsonette, William Schanno.

Garnes—Jacob Hannem, N. A. Nelson.

Wylie—Fred Lehrer.

Lost—Nels E. Steen.

Maple Bay—Arthur Horton.

Plummer—Nels Berquist.

Dorothy—J. R. Schultz.

LAW IS OBSCURE.

Question as to Whether Township Chairmen Hold Over.

Wadena Tribune: The law changing the plan of electing members of the town boards is found to be obscure in at least one particular, and since the elections last week, the question has been raised as to whether a member of the town board elected for two or three years, and also elected as chairman, holds as chairman for more than one year. For instance, in this township Mr. Peter Brate was elected chairman of the board, and also a member for three years. The question is, does Mr. Brate hold over as chairman until the expiration of his term as a member of the board, or will a new chairman have to be elected next year?

Some feel that the chairman holds as such until his term of office as a member of the board expires. Others say that in any event the chairman holds as such only for one year and that a new chairman must be chosen every year. One member of the board is chosen every year, and thus there is a new board every year, making the selection of a chairman annually a necessity. Then again it is contended that the one year member might be elected chairman, as has been done in many instances. In this case both a new member and a new chairman would have to be elected.

The matter is one of little consequence, but this phase of the new law is being quite generally discussed. An opinion of the attorney general will probably be asked for before another election is held.

Ten Tips For Long Life.

First—Rise early, retire early and fill your day with work.

Second—Water and bread maintain life; pure air and sunshine are indispensable to health; and do not worry.

Third—Frugality and sobriety form the best elixir of longevity.

Fourth—Cleanliness prevents rust; The best-cared-for machines last the longest.

Fifth—Enough sleep repairs waste and strenthens; too much sleep softens and enfeebles.

Sixth—To be sensibly dressed is to give freedom to one's movements and enough warmth to be protected from sudden changes of temperature.

Seventh—A clean and cheerful house makes a happy home.

Eighth—The mind is refreshed and invigorated by distractions and amusements, but abuse of them leads to dissipation and dissipation to vice.

Ninth—Cheefulness makes love of life, and love of life is half of health. On the contrary, sadness and discouragement hasten old age.

Tenth—Do you gain your living by your intellect? Do not forget to cultivate your mind and to enlarge your thought. Do you earn your bread by your pickaxe? Then do not allow your arms and limbs to grow stiff.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

HIGH CLASS COMEDY DRAMA

"The Deacon" to be Presented by Senior Class of Red Lake Falls High School.

The senior class of the Red Lake Falls high school will present a five-act comedy drama at the Metropolitan opera house next Monday evening, April 4. The title of the play is "The Deacon," and those who like an opportunity for a good long laugh, and at the same time wish to assist the young people in meeting the expenses of graduation, should come out and hear it. The class are rehearsing faithfully, and will present the play in a commendable manner. In fact some of them are taking up their parts as if they were born into them. Reserved seats are now on sale at Anderson & Healy's furniture store. The cast of characters for the play will be as follows:

The Deacon (fond of lemonade and Miss Amelia)	Will Ittner.
George Darrah (alias Matt Wheeler)	Ole Gjerberg.
George Graef (poor but honest)	Will Hunt.
Pete (a "black rascal," bent on "keepin' up the 'spectability ob de fam'ly	Dan Johnson.
Billy (the Deacon's unsophisticated boy)	Verne Healy.
Policeman	Joe Toupin.
Pedro	Walter Johnson.
Parson Brownlow	Joe Bourdon.
Mrs. Thornton (aunt of George Graef, robbed of her diamonds	Maude Findeisen.
Helen (her daughter)	Rosa Cyr.
Miss Amelia (sister to Mrs. Thornton, who never saw "the man I can't manage")	Clare Allison.
Mrs. Darrah (the Deacon's daughter, disowned for marrying against his will)	Orilla Hennemuth.
Nellie (her child)	Emma Cyr.
Daisy (Mrs. Thornton's servant—"ain't she a daisy?"	Doretta Matthies.
Fido (Miss Amelia's dear little doggy woggy)	Dewey Findeisen.

Here's a Suggestion

When you want a first-class daily newspaper—

One that excels in Northwest news;

One that spares no paints to get the news of the world, and prints it first;

One whose commercial and financial news and market reports are admitted to be the best;

One that is fearless and fair in its editorial discussion of live topics—republican but independent;

One that contains Bart's cartoons, the Journal Junior—a weekly paper for children without extra cost—Jermane's daily Washington correspondence, a notable daily series of articles and notes on current themes by the most eminent men and women and other features peculiar to that paper,

There is only one thing for you to do and that is to subscribe for

He Dropped the Subject, Not Knowing

"Ten thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe any one ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned without stopping her needlework even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes. There's an article on valuable dogs, and it speaks of one that was sold for $10,000. I don't believe it!"

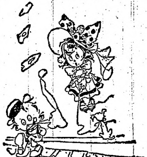
"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of these blooded animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria, but just think of it! Just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak, feminine mind! You don't seem to realize it. Ten thousand dollars for a dog! Why, hang it, Maria, that's more than I am worth!"

"I know it, Joseph, but some are worth more than others."

She went on calmly with her sewing, while he fumed and sputtered for a moment and then dropped the subject, especially the weak, feminine mind part of it.—Chicago Post.

Thoroughly Seasoned.



"Were you ever in love, James?"

"Huh! I've had dat fool disease so often dat I'm immune now."—San Francisco Examiner.

Willing to Call It Square.

"Call me a liar, do you?" exclaimed the little man with the red head. "You'll apologize for that or take a licking!"

The other man repeated the offense.

Then there was a fight.

It was a fierce battle, but the other man whipped.

"I didn't want to do it," he said, "but nothing else would satisfy you."

The little man picked himself up, brushed the dust off his clothes, removed the evidences of the conflict from his nose and turned to his antagonist.

"I accept your apology," he said stiffly.—Chicago Tribune.

His Bluff Was Called.

The crowd was talking about poker, and one man asked, "Did you ever know a man—that is, a man who knew how to play poker—to open a jack pot when he didn't have openers?"

"Yes, once in Arizona," said Fred Stone, the Scarecrow of "The Wizard of Oz." "A chap opened a jack pot in which a cattleman, a miner, a bartender and myself had undivided interest. He had only a pair of deuces and tried to win with a big bluff."

"Did anybody call him?"

"Yep; his Creator."—New York Press.

Art.

"I was so glad to see you at the concert last night," said Mrs. Oldcastle. "Don't you think Mme. Waldenstein was in splendid voice? I like her performances so much. She always seems to do her part con amore, don't you think?"

"Yes, I was talkin' to Josiah about it, but he says he thinks she does it on an empty stomach."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not Out of the Ordinary.

Cadley—I must confess I was pretty cranky yesterday. Did the girls say anything about it?

Kandor—Oh, no!

Cadley—Strange they didn't notice my behavior.

Kandor—I guess they didn't see anything unusual about it.—Philadelphia Press.

Feminine Finance.

"I made $50 this morning."

"How did you make it?"

"I saw something I wanted that cost that much, and I didn't buy it."

"Why didn't you buy it?"

"I didn't have the money, so I'm that much ahead."—Chicago Post.

Deliberate.

"He seems to be rather slow in his movements."

"Yes. He is so deliberate that he never has a smooth face. The beard grows on one side while he is shaving the other."

Sufficient Reason.

Mr. Borem—I can't imagine why she was out when I called.

Miss Pert—Why, didn't you just tell me she knew you were coming?—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Yearning.

When you're back from your vacation and your summer recreation and assume your humble station with the myrmidons of toil,
When you swelter and perspire as the sun keeps going higher and the grim celestial fire sets your system all abroil,
Then it is you sit and ponder on the good times over yonder, and your mind goes on a wander down the country as you wish
You might just keep on forever, to the other end of never, sitting by the rolling river with your tackle and the fish!

Business.

"I see you have chicken for dinner."

"Yessuh," said Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"I hope you bought the chicken."

"Well, no; but de transaction were strictly regular. Dat chicken has been roostin' on my fence foh months wifout payin' nuffin,' an' I reckoned it were 'bout time to foh close."—Washington Star.

Anxious to Assist.

Doctor—It may be, madam, that there is something wrong with your vocal cords. I will—

Husband of Mrs. Vick-Senn (hastily interrupting)—You will find nothing the matter there, doctor. I am almost sure the trouble is with her liver.—Chicago Tribune.

Serious, Indeed.

"Miss Summergal must be quite seriously ill. She hasn't any appetite at all."

"Oh, a girl isn't always ill when she has no appetite!"

"But she has no appetite even for ice cream and candy."—Philadelphia Press.

More Harrowing.

"I noticed you yawning, colonel, while I was telling about my experiences in that flood. Did you ever have any adventures in a flooded country?"

"Well, suh, I onct had to spend the whole of a day and a night in a temperance hotel."—New York Times.

A Japanese Wedding.

A Japanese wedding is a quaintly pretty ceremony. The bride, dressed in a white silk kimono and white veil, sits on the floor facing her affianced husband. Near them are two tables, upon one of which are two cups, a bottle of sake and a kettle with two spouts. On the other are a miniature plum tree, typifying the beauty of the bride; a miniature fir tree, representing the strength of the bridegroom, and a stork stands on a tortoise, signifying long life and felicity. The bride and bridegroom drink alternately from the two-spouted kettle in token that they will henceforth share each other's joys and sorrows. After the wedding the bride's veil is laid away to be used as her shroud when she dies.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Brain Leaks.

As long as we cling to sin we cannot get close to God.

A big man can sometimes creep through a very small hole.

If our plans all went right we would soon be too lazy to work at all.

March is the month when townmen do most of their gardening.

Parents who allow their children to grow wild must expect to reap bitter fruit.

Some philanthropy is very much like giving collars to men who have no shirts.

The greatest "rounders" are very apt to talk loudest about being "square" men.

The man who says the world is growing worse should do something to clear his eyesight.

If we do not share our blessings with God, how can we expect Him to share our sorrows?

God's hand reaches down only just far enough for us to reach it by standing on tip-toes.

When a man begins to sacrifice his moral interests for his business interests he should be watched.

The man who tries to "taper off" a bad habit would make better progress by trying to wash charcoal white.

The charity that covers a mulitude of sin is not the charity which is exercised for that specific purpose.

Religion is something more than sitting in a cushioned pew and looking solemn while the minister talks.

There are times in a man's life when he would pay handsomely for the pleasure of being annoyed by the baby.

Just because you cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear is no reason why you should not endeavor to make something.

Some men have managed to secure the reputation of being big men simply by carefully imitating some big man's ways.

When a christian begins asking himself, "Is it wrong?" it is a sure sign that he is seeking diligently for an excuse to do it.

When a woman burns her hand on the oven door she greases the burn and waits for her husband to come home to show it to him. When a man burns his hand his wife knows it long before he can show her the blister.

There are some philanthropists who imagine that feeding the minds of their fellows will make amends for starving for starving their bodies.

We know a man with five children and nine horses, and although he does not know the birthday of a single child, he can tell the exact date of birth of each of his nine horses.

"I'm always glad when we have company, because then my wife always has something good to eat?" Did you ever hear a man spring that? When we get to making laws for this country the punishment for springing that chestnut will be twenty-seven years at hard labor.

Offic of COUNTY AUDITOR, Red Lake County, Minnesota.

To MAGGIE LOUGHRIDGE:

You are hereby notified that on the 5th day of May, 1899, in proceedings to enforce the payment of delinquent taxes pursuant to that certain real estate judgment, which was entered in and for the County of Red Lake, in the Fourteenth Judicial District, in the State of Minnesota, on the 21st day of March, 1899, the above described pieces or parcels of land situated in Red Lake County, State of Minnesota, were bid into the State to satisfy the amount for which they were adjudged liable in said judgment, interests and costs, for the above named sums; that the above described real estate has become and now is the Absolute Property of the State.

That on the above stated date the above described real estate was sold by the County Auditor of Red Lake County, as directed by the State Auditor, in accordance with Section 101 of Chapter II of General Statutes of 1878, and the several acts amendatory thereto, for the sums above stated; that the amount required to redeem said pieces or parcels of land from such sale at the date of this notice (exclusive of the costs to accrue on this notice) is the amount above stated, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum from said above date, until such redemption is made, and that the time for redemption of said pieces or parcels of land from such sale will expire sixty days after the service of this notice, and proof thereof has been filed in the office of the County Auditor of this County.

Witness my hand and official seal this 10th day of March, A. D. 1904.

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunker

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

WINE OF CARDUI

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. THE GOOD OLD STOVE.

In summer time to idly stroll
Beneath the moon's pale glare
And hold commune as soul with soul
With some young lady fair
Is all right for that time of year,
But it does not inspire
Like sitting close to ducky dear
Beside the parlor fire.

There's comfort in its cheerful glow,
Its changing mystic scroll,
And this is always doubly so
As pa puts up for coal.
In dreamland sweet you loll about
And watch his money burn;
The girl must almost push you out
To get you to adjourn.

In summer time beneath the trees
On some bright cloudless night
You stroll about quite ill at ease
If the mosquitoes bite,
But on a good old winter night,
Although Jack Frost may pinch
And all the ground outside is white,
The parlor stove's a cinch.

Felt His Royal Blood.

"I feel like a member of the royal family," sobbed the small boy who had just received a thrashing.

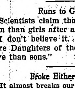
"Does it hurt that much?" asked his sympathetic chum.

"Yes," replied the sufferer, drawing his hand across the sore place. "Them marks are the prints of whales."

A Star Attraction.

He was an honest alderman,
But still he was not poor;
A showman figured out a plan
His fortune to insure,
And many curious people came
For miles and miles to see;
They added to his wealth and fame
And jammed the dime musee.

Had Use For Them.



"Always pick up a pin when you see one."

"I do," said the small boy softly. "I might have a chanct to put it in the teacher's seat."

Shy on Poetry.

Though wife and life so nicely rhyme,
Yet wedlock, don't suppose,
Runs as a poem all the time;
It may drop into prose,
And sometimes it is even worse—
Perhaps a season of blank verse.

Had a Cutting Edge.

"Smuggle me in some laundry from the place where we used to get our work done," whispered the jailbird to his confederate.

"Want to put on style in prison?"

"Naw; I want to saw my way out with one of the collars."

Too Large a Subject.

The flat in which young Robert lived
Was neither long nor wide;
To think about an elephant
He had to go outside.

Runs to Girls.

"Scientists claim that more boys are born than girls after a war."

"I don't believe it. See how many more Daughters of the Revolution we have than sons."

Broke Either Way.

It almost breaks our heart to part
With her we love, although
It breaks our pocketbook to stay
And be her solid beau.

A Sure Test.

"I wish I knew whether she really loved me."

"Tell her you have lost your money and you will find out."

MEETING AN AUTHOR.

Robert Barr's Visit to His Friend Captain Mayne Reid.

Robert Barr, the author, told with glee how Captain Mayne Reid, who was a friend of his, came to London and sent his address to Barr. The latter started to call on Reid. He did not know the street and, asking a bus man if his vehicle passed such and such a street, was assured that it did. In due course he came upon the street. In his letter Mayne Reid said he had taken a corner house in this street and added that he had a delightful garden and a high wall. "When I got down from the bus," says Mr. Barr, "I found that the corner house had a high wall and doubtless behind it a delightful garden, which answered perfectly the description which Captain Mayne Reid had given me.

"I said to a policemen, because I wanted to be sure, 'Could you tell me where Mr. Reid lives?' And he answered, 'Do you mean Mr. Reid, the author?' And I replied, 'Yes.' So the policeman pointed to the premises I had already selected as the residence of my friend. Therefore I went through the gate without fear and rang the bell at the residence, which stood some distance back in the garden. I was admitted and asked if Mr. Reid was at home. I was told that he was and was shown into a room on the left hand side of the passage. Waiting there some time, an old, slippered man came in, whom I did not recognize.

"'Do you wish to see me?' he asked. I rose from my chair and replied, 'I have called to see Captain Mayne Reid.' 'I beg your pardon,' he said very frigidly. 'I am Charles Reade,' with which he turned his back upon me and left me there alone. That was the only time I had the pleasure of meeting one of England's greatest authors. Captain Mayne Reid had taken a corner house in a street of the same name in Maida Vale, some miles from where Mr. Charles Reade resided during his last days."

THE MODEL GUEST.

He Knows Just When, What and How to Do or Not to Do.

A really fine specimen of the guest who does his best has a spirit which cannot be broken by weather or weariness. He can manage to talk to any one, even if he should discover with a shock that he is sitting next to his worst enemy. He knows how to come into any discussion and how to keep out of it. He does not seek his own amusement, yet he never fails to show that he is amused. He is tolerant of every opinion, and though he may have many convictions of his own and may state them so as to do them justice he never tries to proselytize.

His visit is not a mission, and he never for a moment fancies himself on the hustings, in a debating society, a pulpit or a court of justice. Above all, he has a good opinion of himself. Good wine needs no bush. He has no desire to boast, but he is certain that he will not be slighted. If his hostess assigns to him a dull job he is sure it is because she thought he could do it well, and if he feels it to be really below his powers he takes her mistake into account not while he is under her roof, but when he next receives her kind invitation. He is not plagued by that craving of the oversensitive to be like their company nor does he belong to that race of born dissenters who would always rather be different.

But, alas, conscience and talent do not always go together. There are some high principled guests who are terrible bores. In their solicitude to be agreeable they never stop talking, but pursue their garrulous ideal like a dog following a carriage. To every interruption they give immediate but momentary attention and run breathless on.—London Outlook.

Evolution of the Folding Bed.

Mrs. De Flat—Have you anything new in folding beds?

Dealer—Only this, madam, and it really is quite a success. On arising in the morning you touch a spring and it turns into a washstand and bathtub. After your bath, you touch another spring, and it becomes a dressing case, with a French plate mirror. If you breakfast in your room, a slight pressure will transform it into an extension table. After breakfast, you press these three buttons at once and you have an upright piano. That's all it will do, except that when you die it can be changed into a rosewood coffin.—New York Weekly.

She Won.

He was a philosopher and a talker. She was a woman of action. They stood together on the bridge and watched a tug that was hauling a long line of barges up the river.

"Look there, my dear," said he. "Such is life. The tug is like the man, working and toiling, while the barges, like the women, are"—

His wife gave him no time to finish the sentence. "I know," she said. "The tug does all the blowing and the barges bear all the burden."

The Official Time.

Jerrold—As I was saying, I had $50 on Topnotch at 100 to 1. The race was six furlongs and Topnotch won.

Harold—What was the time?

Jerrold—Why—er—I heard the clock strike 2 just as I woke up!—Puck.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

An Early Breakfast.

After a strenuous journey through Hart county, during which he rode many miles in a buggy, Special Pension Examiner E. S. McIntyre has returned with a story illustrating the courtesy of Kentucky farmers.

After dark one night Colonel McIntyre drove up to a farmhouse and after pounding on the door with his buggy whip, finally aroused the farmer, who had been sleeping.

"Can I get a bed and an early breakfast?" he asked.

"Yes, we can give you a bed and I reckon an early breakfast too."

All hands went to sleep but Colonel McIntyre.

He had some papers to look over and at midnight turned in. In what seemed to him ten minutes after he had gone to sleep he was awakened by a knocking on the door. He reached for his trusty weapon, at the same time wondering what burglars were doing abroad among the farms of Hart county.

"Git up in there!" a voice shouted. "It's gittin' up time. Your breakfast is ready."

Colonel McIntyre arose in the dark, slowly dressed and came into the breakfast room.

"What time is it?" he asked.

"It's about 2 o'clock, I reckon."

"Well, what the thunder do you mean by waking me at 2 o'clock?"

"Didn't you say you wanted an early breakfast?" said the farmer, with deep concern.

Colonel McIntyre ate his breakfast in silence.—Louisville Herald.

Positive Order.

"I'll bet," said Cadley scornfully, "that you didn't do the proposing. Dollars to doughnuts your wife asked you to marry her."

"Oh, no; you're wrong!" replied Henpeck.

"Oh, come off!"

"No. She didn't ask me to marry her. She told me to."—Philadelphia Press.

Drawing the Line.

Mistress—You say there's a man at the door wishes to see me. Does he look like a gentleman?

Norah—Well, not exactly like a gentleman; just something like the master.

A Remedy Suggested.

"It seems to me," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that the proletariat is becoming more and more difficult to manage."

"Yes," replied her hostess; "Josiah thinks so, too, but his idea is that if people wouldn't eat hearty just before goin' to bed very few of them would ever have it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Stupid.

Perdita—It doesn't matter if this is the third installment of the story. The synopsis is printed, telling how the first chapters went; so you can start reading it from here.

Penelope—Yes, but how stupid of them not to have the synopsis tell how it ends!—Judge.

Obvious Use.

Teacher—The reindeer, you know, is a domestic animal that inhabits the polar regions, where there is much snow. Can any one in the class tell me what the reindeer is used for?

Tommy Tucker (raising his hand)—Yes'm; for pullin' snowplows.—Chicago Tribune.

Ready to Relieve Him.

"It is a generous and helpful world," said the multimillionaire.

"Indeed?"

"Yes. When it was announced that I desired to die a comparatively poor man there was a general movement to assist me in the enterprise."—Washington Star.

Familiar Story.

Gunner—I wonder what that pretty society leader has been talking about for the last hour?

"She has been telling the society reporters she had 'nothing to say.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Poor Consolation.

"Gracious!" sighed Mr. De Spepsey. "I wish I could acquire an appetite."

"Foor goodness' sake," exclaimed his wife, "what do you want with an appetite? It would only give you more dyspepsia."—Philadelphia Press.

A Seeming Impossibility.

Jean—Maud says she believes in being young while she can.

Ethelle—Oh, she's done better than that for at least five years. She's been young while she couldn't.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Missed.

Visitor—Won't you be glad to see your little sister again?

Bobbie—Yes; I haven't anybody to take cake away from.—Chicago Post.

MALARIA

Germ Infected Air.

Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, Liver and Kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recuperates and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease.

A PERSON incapable of managing his own tongue is never called upon to manage anybody else.

THE Martin County Independent is not favorable to either Collins or Dunn for governor, but says, "Between Collins and Dunn, Dunn is preferable as no political ring has a mortgage on him."

IT requires half a column for our esteemed and touchy contemparary to tell "where we stand," only to admit at the close that it doesn't "stand" for a minute, but "lays down" as gracefully as the circumstances permit.

THE Japanese have again landed in the rear of Port Arthur. The correspondents seem to be very successful in reporting the landings, but we never hear of the embarkations that must have taken place between times if all Japan has not been poured out upon the Asiatic mainland.

IN accordance with the prophecy made by the COURIER, the Republican newspaper of this city admits that it is no longer supporting Bob Dunn for governor, but gets exceedingly wroth over the insinuation that it has gone over to the Collins camp. The inference is that none of the Republican candidates for governor are pure enough to merit endorsement at the hands of the Gazette.

THE activity of State Librarian Nelson in the gubernatorial fight is creating no little comment all over the state, says the Ada Index. The gentleman is said to be on "politics bent" two-thirds of the time which he is supposed to devote to his duties as librarian. Some of the papers are calling for his resignation.

MINNESOTA has taken a leading position among the states of the Union in the enactment and enforcement of child labor laws, according to a special report being prepared by Julius Moersch of the state labor bureau. Minnesota is one of the twelve states that have specific laws prohibiting the employment of children under fourteen years in factories, stores, workshops and similar places and of the twenty states prohibiting the employment of children under fourtion years in mines.

THE opinion prevails in some quarters that this unusually cold winter will mean an unusually heavy wheat crop next summer, says the Fergus Falls Joureal. This opinion is not based on any superstition, but those who hold it argue that much of the wheat's growth is due to the frost coming out of the ground and keeping the roots moist. As a long, cold winter sends the frost deep into the earth it will naturally require longer to work out and the roots of the grain will be kept moist for a greater length of time. Other things being equal, there would seem to be better prospects for a crop after a cold winter than a mild one.

WHERE HE DOESN'T STAND.

The first appearance in the political arena by the editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette cannot be called a thrilling success, for he retires hors de combat under rather disappointing and embarrassing circumstances. He is not inspiring an increased reputation for acumen or wisdom, either, by putting his foot in his mouth so early in the game. "Honest confession" is not only "good for the soul," but it shows a disposition to get out of a disagreeable situation with a show of dignity and honor. The Gazette's explanation of its "flop" on the governorship proposition is neither candid, nor honest, nor consistent.

The main facts of the case are admittedly in accord with the statement made by this paper two weeks ago. The Gazette has been for two years a Dunn newspaper. It has emitted weekly (we resist the opportunity for a pun) broadsides in extollation of Bob's ability and qualifications. In the twinkling of an eye a change has come about. Dunn is no longer in favor; there are no further extollations; the editor makes no attempt to hide his personal support of Collins; he has had himself interviewed by the Crookston Journal to the effect that his paper will support Collins.

The editorial columns of the Gazette confirm all this, and yet in last week's issue that paper has the effrontery to say there is no truth in the assertion that it has "flopped," and that the idea orginated solely by reason of "underhanded misrepresentation" by the COURIER! The Gazette's opinion of the reader's reasoning capacity must indeed be sadly distorted.

The truth of the matter is the Gazette editor is in a decidedly unhappy predicament. In an unguarded moment he promised the Collins emissaries to change his allegiance, without realizing the consequences. He was caught red-handed in the attempt to "flop," and is afraid either to go ahead or to return to his former moorings.

The first grandstand political play on the part of the new editor of the Gazette has not furnished evidence of unusual sagacity.

The Little Merger Fighter.

Kansas City Star: Governor S. R. Van Sant, of Minnesota, tells a story of his experience with a tall, lank resident of Otter Tail county, who walked into his office recently. Governor Van Sant is somewhat less than average height, stockily built and rotund.

"You the governor?" the visitor asked.

"Yes," Governor Van Sant responded.

"You fit the merger?" the man asked doubtfully.

"Our state was concerned in the fight," the governor replied.

"Wall," the stranger retorted, "I walked in nienty-one miles to git a look at you. I jes' want to say, though, that if that merger ever got a look at you they wouldn't ever been any victory. They'd jes' stompled 'long about their business. You ain't big enough to buck even a woodsaw."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a young woman begins to lengthen her dress at the bottom she begins to shorten it at the top.

Generally when a woman says her heart is breaking she means she is mad enough to tear somebody's eyes out.

When a man has a woman for partner in whist and can praise her playing to her he has mastered the great secret of absolute self-control.

A Syd Bagley Story.

Thief River Press: A North Dakota paper says that two dashing Valley City damsels anxious to make a hit at an advertising party (one of those functions where each person attending is expected to wear a costume representing some familiar and well-known advertisement) appealed to Old Man Bassett of the Alliance for a suggestion as to some appropriate advertisement to represent in which both ladies could appear. The old man ran his fingers through his curly locks, blushed, bit the end off an indelible pencil, shifted his chair and thought hard. Presently he lit up with a smile,—he had an idea, it would throw any other advertising costume into the remote distance. "Ahem, well, ladies, why not represent Wool soap?" The ladies fled, and whether they adopted the suggestion deponent sayeth not.

SELL LAND TO SETTLERS.

New Policy to Be Pursued by the State Auditor.

The state auditor plans to hold a series of land sales in several counties in the northern part of the state this spring. The dates of the sales, the counties and the amount of land to be put on the market have not yet been decided, but it is probable the sales will be held in a month or two and that several thousand acres will be disposed of.

Land will be sold in those counties where there is the largest local demand from bonafide settlers. Large blocks of land in unsettled tracts will not be put on the market. The experience of the state auditor, who is ex-officio land commissioner, is that the state gets a higher price when the land is sold to individuals who want it for their own use then when it is sold to land companies who want it for speculation.

"The state can better afford to keep the land than to sell it for ridiculously low prices to land speculators," said the state auditor. "The state does not have to pay taxes and the land is the permanent property of the school fund.

"My experience is that it is wiser to sell lands in localities where there is a strong demand on the part of the people than to dispose of large tracts in undeveloped sections. Those large tracts will never be purchased except by speculators who naturally want to buy it at a low figure so that they can sell it to individual farmers at a profit. If the state sells directly to the farmers, it saves this profit and the permanent school fund reaps the benefit."

The land will be sold at auction at the county seats. Of the purchase price 15 per cent must be paid in cash and forty year contracts will be made to cover the remainder.

One of the large plate glass windows in J. M. Bray's saloon was broken Monday moring by a 44 bullet, evidently fired from the hills east of the river. Several boys were out hunting that morning, but as yet the party who fired the shot has not been apprehended. The glass is one of the most expensive in town, and it will cost at least $100 to replace it.

With the addition of neariy two hundred new subscribers during the past month, the COURIER has a larger claim than ever to being the leading paper of Red Lake county. The enterprise of this paper in getting such a handsome increase to its subscription list will be of great value to the local merchants who use its advertising columns, as it gives them twenty per cent. more publicity in the territory adjacent to Red Lake Falls.

Easter services will be held at the Presbyterian church Sunday. Appropriate music will be rendered by the choirs, and it is expected that two Easter anthems will be rendered at each service. Miss Finseth will give a vocal solo at the evening service. Rev. Knox will preach an Easter sermon in the morning, and in the evening Rev. C. Nauman will occupy the pulpit. An invitation is extended to all.

THE COURIER is anxious to secure a larger list of correspondents in the villages and settlements in Red Lake county, and would like to communicate with some young man or young lady at each of the following places relative to taking up the work, viz: Terrebonne, Lambert, Garnes, St. Hilaire, Plummer, Wylie, Badger, Brooks, Wyandotte and Equality. We will gladly furnish the COURIER free, and paper, stamps and envelopes to anyone willing to take up the work.

The Crookston Journal announces that on April 12 Miss Jane Martin, sister of Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere, will be married to Henry Theilan of Minneapolis. The bride-to-be is one of Crookston's best-known young ladies, and the groom is in the employ of one of the prominent limber firms of Minneapolis. The honeymoon will be spent in Iowa, at the home of the groom's parents, and they will reside in Minneapolis. The best wisher of everybody in Red Lake Falls will go with them

Miss Bella Marchildom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marchildon underwent a delicate surgical opeaation Tuesday. Dr. Gendron removed a bunch of dilated and broken viens, extending along the ring finger of the life hand. When very young she had her finger caught under a horse's hoof and as the years went by the finger enlarged until it produced a real deformity. Adhesions to the neighboring tissues were very firm and required careful dissection, but the whole bunch was removed nicely.

The band concert last Friday evening was one of the best ever given by the band boys, but owing to the extremely unpleasant weather the crowd was smaller than usual. All of the numbers were well rendered, and the program was given a little variety by an exquisite vocal solo by Miss Finseth and a clarinet solo by Prof. Onstad. Clem Brunelle's alto solo is also highly praised. The band will probably give one more indoor concert before the weather gets warm enough for open-air performances.

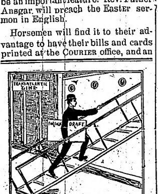
Thief River Press: Odin Clay, right-of-way agent for the Great Northern, was in the city the first of the week completing some details of his work of securing the route of the Jim Hill extension north into Marshall county. Barring a few minor details the work was all completed several months ago, and according to all reports the work of construction on the new line will be started as early in the spring as conditions will allow. It at least appears to be Mr. Hill's intention to complete the extension in time to bring down this season crops.

A paper in a neighboring town says: We cannot let a day go by without suggesting that the only way to build up a city is to keep money at home. The parable of the prodigal son is a case in point. He took his boodle and went off into another country and spent it. And what became of him? Well, he was glad to feed with the swine before he could get back to the old place where they patronize home industries. There is only one way and that is to keep your dollars at home working for you and not sending them out to feed the stranger in a strange town.

Swan Akenson, of Red Wing, Minn., who recently bought the Gervais farm one mile south of town, has moved his family to Red Lake Falls, and will occupy the Wolf house on Third street until a new set of buildings is completed on his farm. Mr. Akenson brought up several hundred bushels of good seed corn which he intends to dispose of to Red Lake county farmers.

NEW "PLANK" CIGAR.

The "Plank" cigar has been greatly improved, and the first boxes are on sale this week. It is a new shape and new box, and the tobacco is entirely different. This is one of the best nickel cigars on the market. By smoking it you will get a good article and at the same time have the satisfaction of patronizing a home industry.



WHEN YOU TRAVEL

there is no more convenient way of carrying money than a draft. If you go aboard the draft is paid in the currency of the country you are in. If you lose the draft payment can be stopped and another issued to you.

TORNADO CAUSES RUIN AND DEATH

TERRIFIC STORM STRIKES THE SUBURBS OF CHICAGO AND ELSEWHERE.

Many Buildings Are Wrecked and Several Lives Are Lost—Michigan and Wisconsin Also Swept by the Gales and Floods.

Chicago, March 25.—A cyclone that missed Chicago by the narrowest of margins caused death and destruction in the suburbs last evening, while throughout the middle west there raged a wind and electrical storm that played havoc with property.

In Indiana Harbor three deaths are reported, many were injured and a dozen or more persons are missing. Other settlements in the neighborhood of Chicago which felt the fury of the storm are Hammond, East Chicago, West Pullman, South Chicago, Burnside, Thornton, Dauphin Park, Washington Heights, Morgan Park, Blue Island and Harvey.

Buildings Wrecked.

At East Chicago a large section of the south wall of the Republic steel and iron mill was blown in and several dwellings were also destroyed.

At Hammond the damage was considerable. Four dwelling houses were destroyed, three barns demolished and the palatial residence of W. H. Hammond has one entire wall blown in.

At Other Suburbs.

The German Lutheran church at Thornton was wrecked by the wind. At Washington Heights several persons were injured, houses were blown down or unroofed, and it is feared that more serious results will develop. In Morgan Park and Fernwood, as well, the storm reached the proportions of a tornado. Five houses were unroofed. Almost every house in Burnside was damaged in the storm.

In Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., March 26.—Conservative estimates of the damage of flooded rivers and creeks of lower Michigan place the property loss at more than $1,000,000. At Lansing alone the figures are placed at $200,000. Two lives have been lost, those of an unknown Armenian, who was standing on a bridge at Lansing when it collapsed and was washed away, and a boy who was drowned in a flooded street at Owosso.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 28.—Conditions in this city and nearby towns along the Grand river are very grave, as a result of the unprecedented flood that has swollen the stream far out of its banks for the past three days. The inhabitants of flooded houses are suffering greatly from cold and lack of food. There has been no loss of life thus far, but there is great suffering and a vast amount of sickness. It is conservatively estimated that the loss to property and business will exceed $2,000,000.

In Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 26.—Belated reports of Thursday night's severe rain and windstorm in southeastern Wisconsin are coming in, and indicate a great deal of damage was wrought. In Racine county the damage is estimated at $15,000. Appleton reports that Peter Verbost, living near Wittle Chute, was killed by lightning while crossing a field near his home.

In Indiana.

Indianapolis, March 28.—The city street railway and interurban system are without power, because of the flooding of the power houses near White river. Communication with North and West Indianapolis is cut off by the flood, which has swept away bridges. Many houses have been carried down White river, and shattered against the stone bridges.

At Portland John Lally and Otis Downing, both prominent, were drowned in an effort to rescue David Knoll, an aged farmer, who had driven off the levee. Knoll was rescued later.

Southwestern Indiana is a sea of water, 20,000 acres being under water. Farmers have moved out to high land with their stock.

One hundred and eighty feet of the levee along the Wabash river near Oaktown broke Sunday, and the water rushed through, covering thousands of acres and driving the people from their homes.

New Reply Postal Card.

Washington, March 25.—The post office department has given notices that a new domestic reply postal card of the one-cent denomination will be issued when the supply of reply cards of the old design at the various postal distributing stations is exhausted. The new card will bear the portrait of Gen. William T. Sherman on the message side and a portrait of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan on the reply side.

On a Tour of Inquiry.

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—A party of wealthy Japanese has arrived to visit the principal centers of the United States, inspect rolling mills and factories of all kinds, look into the condition of the poor, examine the practical working of the laws, and ascertain, if possible, whether religion enters to any appreciable extent into the actual daily life of the people.

Post Office Robbed.

Bloomington, Ill., March 25.—Safe blowers dynamited the safe in the post office at Piper City, 30 miles northeast of here, Wednesday night and secured the contents, amounting to $700 in money and stamps. The explosion was heard by citizens, but no one investigated. There is no clew to the direction taken by the robbers.

FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Summary of Work Done in Senate and House by the Lawmakers of the Nation.

Washington, March 23.—The senate spent the greater part of the time yesterday on the Indian appropriation bill. The house outside of a few routine matters devoted the entire day to further discussion of the post office appropriation bill.

Washington, March 24.—The senate spent most of the time yesterday considering the Indian appropriation bill. Charles Dick, successor to the late Senator Hanna, of Ohio, took the oath of office. In the house the time was occupied in further discussion of the post office appropriation bill

Washington, March 25.—The senate passed the Indian appropriation bill yesterday. In the house eight pages of the post office appropriation bill were disposed of and the question of an investigation of the post office department was defeated.

Washington, March 26.—In the senate yesterday a resolution was adopted to consider whether it was desirable to amend the rules relating to impeachments. In the house the post office appropriation bill occupied the time.

Washington, March 28.—In the senate Saturday Senator Foraker gave notice that the services in memory of the late Senator Hanna would be held April 7 instead of March 31.—Several pension bills were passed. In the house consideration of the sundry and appropriation bill was begun.

TRADE REVIEW.

Conditions as They Appear from Reports to Leading Commercial Agencies.

New York, March 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Little net change in trade conditions is noted for the past week. Storms and floods did much damage to property and threatened agricultural prospects at the start, but subsequently the weather improved and the outlook brightened. Spring trade is expanding, although still backward to some extent, and new labor controversies have added to the number of unemployed, despite an amicable arrangement of the sheet and tin plate scale. Building operations would be vigorous if employers and wage earners could adjust differences.

"Failures this week numbered 226 in the United States, against 214 last year, and 12 in Canada, compared with 26 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "Better weather has helped the retail trade, thereby strengthening the tone of wholesale and jobbing business, hitherto rather pessimistic because of backward spring demand. Distribution as a whole, however, is not up to a year ago. The averting of the strike in the bituminous coal industry is a strengthening feature to general business throughout the west, but prices, which had advanced on the fear of a conflict, still show considerable steadiness."

BIG FIRE IN NEW YORK.

Blaze on Broadway Causes Loss Estimated at $400,000—No Lives Lost.

New York, March 28.—All Wall street and the down-town section of New York were thrown into unusual excitement Saturday by a fire which started in the buiilding at 61 Broadway, occupied by the Morris European and American Express company. The flames spread to the adjoining building, occupied by the Adams Express company, but the fire was brought under control shortly after one o'clock, nearly two hours after its start, and at that time the loss was estimated by an underwriter at $400,000, but nothing could be learned regarding the insurance.

So far as known only one person, a fireman, was injured during the progress of the fires, and his hurts were not of a very serious nature.

Jap Advance Suspended.

Liao-Yang, Manchuria, March 28.—Gen. Mishtchenko has been informed that the Japanese have suspended their advance on the Ping-Yang-Anju line. Three thousand Japanese troops are stationed at Anju, and 1,000 at Pak-Chieng, while 40 Japanese warships and transports are anchored at Chinnampo. According to Russian advices, the object of the Japanese is to turn the Russian flank, for which they are awaiting the concentration of their army.

Two Killed in Wreck.

Niles, Mich., March 26.—An extra west-bound Michigan Central freight train was wrecked four miles west of here by a washout. Engineer Edward French and Brakeman Frank E. Young, of Jackson, were scalded to death in the engine by escaping steam. Fireman Ross Moses, of Jackson, was terribly scalded and may die. Ten freight cars were demolished.

Burned to Death.

Detroit, March 28.—Miss Bertha Vanderkamp Green, daughter of a former prominent attorney of Syracuse, N. Y., and a very well known young woman in the cities of central New York, was burned to death in her home on Woodward terrace here Sunday.

Sets Date for Execution.

Chicago, March 28.—Judge Kersten Saturday overruled the appeal of the car barn bandits, Neidermier, Van Dyne and Marx, for a new trial, and set the date of their execution for April 22.

Ex-Congressman Dead.

Philadelphia, March 23.—Chapman Freeman, who represented the First district of this city in congress from 1874 to 1878, is dead at his home in Strafford, near here, aged 74 years.

REIGN OF MARTIAL LAW IN COLORADO

TWO COUNTIES UNDER JURISDICTION OF THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.

Purpose of Order in San Miguel County Is to Prevent Return of Union Miners—Son of the Sheriff Says the Strikers Are Armed.

Denver, Col., March 25.—Martial law is in operation in two Colorado counties—San Miguel and Las Animas. Reports from both districts are to the effect that conditions at present are peaceful. At Telluride, San Miguel county, press censorship is exercised and no news is sent out except such as approved by the military authorities. No press censorship has yet been established at Trinidad or other towns in the coal field. At the capitol no secret is made of the fact that the purpose in declaring martial law in San Miguel county is to prevent the return to Telluride of the union men who were expelled from the camp by an organization of armed business men, who have announced their intention to go back, under protection of an injunction granted by District Judge Theron Stevens.

Says Strikers Are Armed.

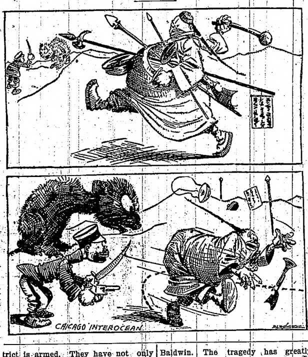
Pueblo, Col., March 26.—John Clark, Jr., son of the sheriff of Las Animas county, where martial law is in effect, returned here yesterday from Trinidad, and said:

"Almost every striker in that district is armed. They have not only purchased practically all the revolvers and ammunition in Trinidad, but they have been shipping arms for several weeks past."

Ouray, Col., March 26.—President Charles H. Moyer and Secretary W. D. Haywood, of the Western Federation of Miners, after consulting with the union men deported from Telluride by a citizens' mob and the militia, have decided that they should make no attempt to return to Telluride while martial law is in force. Preparations have been made to provide board and lodging for the exiles here.

Trinidad, Col., March 28.—A squad of soldiers seized "Mother" Jones and Joseph Peginf while the two were at supper at the Coronado hotel and deported them. The troops now are looking for T. R. Fairley and William Wardjon, members of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America. It is expected they also will be banished as soon as they are found.

HOW CHINA WILL GO TO WAR.



CHICAGO INTEROCEAN.

Death of a Veteran.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 24.—Gen. Thomas Armstrong Morris, of this city, is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. M. Chambers, at San Diego, Cal., where he was staying for the benefit of his health. Gen. Morris was the oldest living graduate of West Point, having received his diploma from the national military school in 1834. He was 91 years old.

Fatal Explosion.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 24.—Sharps' hotel, Lewis' restaurant and several small buildings were destroyed Wednesday by an explosion of natural gas. The body of William Lawton, a pipe line man, has been recovered from the debris, and it is feared that other guests of the hotel have been killed.

Big Failure in Boston.

Boston, March 28.—The newspaper advertising agency of Pettingill & Co. Saturday announced that it had placed its affairs in the hands of its creditors. Counsel representing Pettingill & Co. stated that the liabilities may reach $1,000,000, with assets possibly one-quarter that amount.

Two Women Perish.

Quincy, Ill., March 28.—In a fire which destroyed the annex of the Newcomb hotel early Sunday morning, Rose O'Donnell, of Chicago, and Nettie Bronski, housemaids, were killed. The former was suffocated in her room and the latter died after leaping from a third-story window.

DEATH OF EDWIN ARNOLD.

The Famous English Poet and Author Passes Away Peacefully at His Home in London.

London, March 25.—Sir Edwin Arnold, the author, died in London yesterday. He was born June 10, 1832. Although Sir Edwin suffered of late years from partial paralysis, he was not taken seriously ill until last week. Early yesterday morning he had a relapse from which he did not rally and died peacefully at 10:30. Sir Edwin continued his literary work until quite recently, his last writing being in connection with the Russo-Japanese war, in which he was greatly interested.

The career of Sir Edwin Arnold has been one of peculiar interest. He attained high rank in both his chosen professions, literature and journalism. The most successful of his writings have been "The Light of Asia," an epic poem upon the life and teaching of the great Indian prophet Buddha; "The Light of the World" and "With Sadi in the Garden."

A RACE WAR.

Fight Between Whites and Negroes in Arkansas—Thirteen of the Latter Killed.

Dewitt, Ark., March 24.—Thirteen negroes were killed in a battle between blacks and whites Wednesday at St. Charles, this county. A posse of deputy sheriffs was engaged in a search for two negroes who had seriously wounded two white men in a fist fight at St. Charles, and while passing through a section of woodland they were fired at from a thicket by a party of negroes. The whites returned the fire and instantly killed Garrett Flood, Will Madison and Will Baldwin. The tragedy has greatly aroused the community and further trouble is feared. A posse left here for St. Charles.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

While Walking on Tracks at Suter Station, Pa., Three Persons Are Killed.

Connellsville, Pa., March 28.—Three people were run down and killed Friday night at Suter station, four miles west of West Newton, by the Duquesne limited on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The dead are: John McCormick, aged 24 years, of Braddock avenue and Fifth street, Braddock; Miss Donahoe, aged 20 years, of Gratztown; Miss Cooper, aged 18, of Gratztown. The accident occurred about 7:15 o'clock, and the three victims were walking the tracks, and stepped from one track to escape a train immediately in front of the limited. All the bodies were horribly mangled.

Flour Mills Shut Down.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 25.—Eighteen Minneapolis flour mills shut down Thursday morning indefinitely. A thousand people are out of work. The shut down is far more sweeping than had been looked for. The two big companies had previously announced that not more than one or two of the mills of each company were likely to be closed.

Canal to Be Opened.

Keokuk, Ia., March 24.—Orders have been issued to open the United States-Des Moines Rapids canal for navigation on April 1. Steamboat men are anticipating a heavy traffic this year because of the fair at St. Louis.

For Good Roads.

Springfield, Ill., March 24.—A call has been issued by Gov. Yates, Secretary of State Rose, and heads of other state departments, for a state good roads convention to be held in Representative hall in this city May 3 and 4.

Passed Away.

Scranton, Pa., March 24.—A. J. Colborn, Jr., former state and national president of the Patriotic Order of Sons of America, died at his home here aged 42 years. He was a political campaign orator of considerable ability.

Charged with Murder.

Helena, Mont., March 26.—Mrs. W. W. Works was arrested here Friday by the chief of police on orders from Bloomington, Ill. Mrs. Works is charged with murdering her husband, Michael Colton.

FAIL TO BOTTLE RUSSIAN SHIPS

SECOND ATTEMPT OF JAPANESE TO SEAL UP PORT ARTHUR IS UNSUCCESSFUL.

ADMIRAL MAKAROFF'S REPORT OF BATTLE

St. Petersburg Enthusiastic Over Repulse — Tokio Dispatch Declares Steamers Are Sunk as Planned—Martial Law at New-Chwang.

St. Petersburg, March 28.—Under cover of darkness Sunday morning Vice Admiral Togo made another desperate attempt to bottle up the Russian fleet in Port Arthur, but he failed again, and when, after daylight, Vice Admiral Makaroff steamed out to give battle the Japanese commander refused the challenge and sailed away. The Japanese practically repeated the tactics of February 24 by sending in four fireships, preceded by a torpedo boat flotilla, with the exception that the fireships this time were armed with Hotchkiss guns for the purpose of keeping off the Russian torpedo boat destroyers. The enemy's attempt was discovered by means of the shore searchlights, and a heavy fire was opened from the batteries and from two gunboats which were guarding the entrance to the harbor.

A Brave Commander.

The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Silni was outside on scouting duty, and to the dash and nerve of her commander, Lieut. Krinizki, is chiefly due the complete defeat of the plans of the Japanese. He at once made straight for the oncoming ships, under a hail of fire from the Hotchkiss guns, and torpedoed the leading ship, which sheered off, followed by the others, three of them being piled up on the shore under Golden Hill and one under the lighthouse.

The Losses.

The Silni then engaged the entire six torpedo boats of the enemy, coming out from a terrific fight with seven killed and her commander and 12 of her complement wounded, but on the Japanese side only one boat's crew was saved. In addition, according to unofficial reports, it is believed that the Japanese lost two torpedo boats.

Makaroff's Report.

Vice Admiral Makaroff, commanding the Russian naval forces at Port Arthur, has sent the following telegram to the emperor: "I beg most humbly to report that at two o'clock this morning the enemy made a second attempt to block the entrance to the inner roadstead. For this purpose they dispatched four large merchant steamers, convoyed by six torpedo boats, to the entrance. The enemy's ships were promptly discovered by the searchlights and were bombarded by the batteries and by the guardships, Bohr and Otvajny.

"Fearing the enemy's ships might break through, Lieut. Krinizki, commanding the guard torpedo boat Silni, attacked the enemy and destroyed the bow of the foremost Japanese steamer with a torpedo. This steamer turned to the right and was followed by two others, with the result that the three were stranded to the right of the entrance. A fourth steamer went to the right of the enemy's ships and likewise sank to the side of the fairway. The Silni then battled with the enemy's six torpedo boats. Engineer Artificer Swyereff and six seamen were killed and the commander and 12 seamen were wounded. At daybreak the enemy's battleship and cruiser squadrons appeared, and I proceeded with the fleet under my charge to meet the enemy. The second attempt of the Japanese to block the entrance to Port Arthur has failed, thanks to the energetic defense by the sea and land forces, who acted as they did during the first attempt. The harbor remains perfectly clear."

Additional Information.

A further telegram to the emperor from Vice Admiral Marakoff says: "I respectfully report that the enemy, having withdrawn, I returned to the harbor with the fleet. The torpedo boat destroyer Silni, which stranded on a reef in consequence of damage caused to her engines by one of the enemy's shells, was floated during the course of the night and entered the harbor, thanks to the energy of her crew. Her commander, Lieut. Krinizki, who was slightly wounded in the arm, did not quit his post. On the fire-ships were infernal machines, the wires connected with which were cut by Lieut. Kedroff and Ensign Pilsoudsky, of the irregulars, whom I dispatched on this task. They boarded one of the steamers as soon as it stopped, cut the electric wire and extinguished the fire, which would have lit up the entrance of the harbor to the enemy in the roadsted. In the morning a floating mine was found bearing an infernal machine, but the latter was successfully removed. The inspection made showed that the steamers utilized as fire-ships were not old. They were each of about 2,000 tons and they were armed with light caliber guns."

Praise for Makaroff.

Large crowds gathered before the bulletin boards Monday to read the official accounts of the second unsuccessful attempt of the Japanese to bottle up the Russian fleet at Port Arthur. Lieut. Krinizki's heroic attack on the enemy's fireships and torpedo boats and the action of the three Russian officers in boarding the burning steamers, extinguishing the flames and cutting the wires connecting with the infernal machines evoked enthusiasm.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Star Island.

News comes from Washington to the effect that Congressman Buckman has suggested to the secretary of of the interior and the commissioner of Indian affairs that the government appoint a fire warden, to have control of Star Island in Cass Lake. Mr. Buckman also sounded the commissioner as to the proposal that the state of Minnesota purchase the island from the government or the Indians, and keep it forever in its native state, with the pine timber intact and its great natural beauty unmarred. This latter proposal is meeting with enthusiastic favor in Cass Lake, and the papers throughout the northern half of the state are indorsing it.

When the members of the Northwestern Minnesota Editorial association visited Cass Lake last summer they were served with a dinner under the tall pine trees which cover every foot of the island, and were shown over it and taken on the small lake in the center—Lake Helen. It was suggested then that the state acquire the island, and the scheme was heartily indorsed by all who were there, each promising his support.

No Place for the Flag.

Consternation reigns among the civil war veterans who were in attendance at the annual state encampment in Minneapolis. During the last session of the convention, the fact was brought before the body, that no room had been provided at the new capitol for the old war flags, the relics, dear to the hearts of veterans in the state, which now repose in a glass case in the rotunda of the old capitol building.

A petition was presented to Gov. Van Sant, signed by many of the most prominent veterans in the state, asking that when the flags were removed to the new building, it might be with all possible pomp and ceremony.

It was decided to make a direct appeal to the state capitol commission for space for the flags in the new building. The council of administration of the state department of the Grand Army was instructed to take up the matter with the commission at once.

Wants St. Paul to Pay.

If Minneapolis may lose its court house and city hall, St. Paul may be stuck for $27,000 worth of interest on a $2,000 debt, running since the year of 1858.

G. T. Smith of Montreal, Canada, claims that he holds six unpaid street commissioner's certificates against the city of St. Paul which were issued in 1858 and bear interest at the rate of 30 per cent per annum.

The total face value of the certificates is $1,937.76. They have been running forty-six years and the accumulated interest amounts to nearly $27,000. Mr. Smith wants his principal and interest and has placed the matter in the hands of a Cornwell (Ont.) law firm.

State Buys Wolves.

Applications for wolf bounties are being received by the state auditor at the rate of $6,000 a month, and if they continue at this rate the fiscal year of 1904 will be a record-breaker. The state has paid during the last few months $16,548.50, almost as much as was paid in 1902 and 1903.

Under the law passed by the state legislature there is no limit to the amount of wolf bounties which the state may pay a year, and consequently applications are being received in great numbers. In previous years there was a regular appropriation, usually $6,000 a year, and deficiency appropriations were made from time to time.

Rural Routes.

There are eight hundred rural mail delivery routes in operation throughout Minnesota at present which is exactly two hundred more than there were a year ago. All the payments to the carriers are made from the St. Paul postoffice, and the monthly pay-roll now amounts to more than $40,000, as compared with $30,000 March, 1903.

The average length of a route is twenty-five miles, and multiply that figure by eight hundred routes now in operation, the distance covered by the rural carriers in this state approximates 20,000 miles each day.

Satisfactory.

A report of the Febuary logging operations on the Chippewa reservation, under the provisions of the Morris law, has been made by Supt. O'Neil. There was collected for the benefit of the Indians from the logging operations of the month the sum of $102,124.32.

Logging is progressing in a satisfactory manner. The tops are being taken care of, and the other rules are being enforced unsparingly.

News Notes.

The settlement in Minnesota this year will be heavy.

Safes and bank vaults may be manufactured in Minneapolis. The factory will be the only one west of Cincinnati.

E. D. Williams, Little Falls, was found guilty of forgery in the second degree. He passed the troublesome checks last May. Under the name of F. Henry. He has served several terms in the Nebraska penitentiary.

The prohibitionists of the Eighth legislative district held their convention at Owatonna. They will seek to go on the primary ballot by petition.

Following the lead of the St. Paul grocers, the Minneapolis grocerymen have decided to do all in their power to abolish the trading stamp evil.

W. H. Gemmell will succeed H. A. Fabian as secretary to President Elliott of the Northern Pacific.

The Great Northern railroad paid into the state treasury $50,000 on its gross earnings tax account. This makes $500,000 that the road has paid on the 1903 taxes.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS.

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

John Morgan and K. M. Hanson, of Thief River Falls, were pleasant callers at The Courier office yesterday. Mr. Morgan is an aspirant for delegate to the Democratic national convention, and has secured offers of support from many counties of the district. John's many friends hope he will land the coveted honor.

John B. Hebert is in from Poplar River this week serving on the petit jury. Mr Hebert says the cheese factory will start up May 1, and the prospects are good for a better business that ever, as many of the farmers have bought more cows during the winter. The managers of the factory have several applications from experienced cheese-makers, and expect to make a selection within the next week or two.

Railroad Casualties.

American and English figures for railroad casualties for 1903 furnish some interesting facts. On the face of it America has much the worst of the argument, but when reduced to a common basis it is found that with an equal mileage, it is 20 per cent more dangerous to travel by rail in England. It is easy to pass a superficial judgment in these days of hurry and strife, but any careful thinker will concede to golden grain belt beer a regular place at his table. It is a most important factor in promoting the welfare of a home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Mystery at Mentor.

Mentor Herald: Yesterday morning G. H. Tripp, who lives near the railroad track west of here, come to the city and reported that some human being had either met with an accident or has been criminally assaulted on the railroad track opposite his residence on the night previous. It appears that a fierce struggle had taken place on the south side of the track when the snow was much trampled and sprinkled with blood and that the body had either been dragged or else crawled across to the other side where from all appearances it had laid a long time as the snow was saturated with blood at that point. A pair of leather and a pair of yarn mittens were found just west of where the happening occurred, one of them being smashed on the rail by a passing train, which goes to show that it must have been a human being. Nothing can be learned as to who the victim is or how it occurred.

COUNTY BOARD MEETING.

Red Lake Falls, Minn.,
March 11, 1904.

Pursuant to call, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County met in special session at the Court House at 1 o'clock P. M.

All members present.

In the matter of the petition of the Town of Numedal to have the Board determine the legal residence of Ragnald Ronning, a pauper in said town, the following order was made;

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake, } ss.

Before the Board of County Commissioners of said County.

In the matter of the question of the residence of Ragnald Ronning a pauper, wherein the Township of Numedal in said County is plaintiff and the Township of Norden in said County is defendant.

The said Township of Numedal, having petitioned the Board of County Commissioners of said County and State to determine the legal residence of the said Ragnald Ronning, pursuant to Chapter 201 of the laws of 1897, said petition bearing date the first day of February, A. D. 1904, the said Board having acted upon said petition at its meeting held at the Court House in City of Red Lake Falls in said County and State the 23rd day of February A. D. 1904, and it was ordered by said Commissioners at said time, that the said Board of County Commissioners would meet as a committee of the whole in the City Hall in the city of Thief River Falls in said County and State on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1904, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, to hear and receive all evidence of the respective Towns and all persons intersted as to the legal residence of the said Ragnald Ronning; that pursuant to said order, the said Board of County Commissioners acting as a committee of the whole, did meet in the City Hall in the said City of Thief River Falls in said County on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1904, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and did hear and receive all evidence offered as to the legal residence of the said Ragnald Ronning, and having been fully advised in the premises, find the following facts:

That the said Ragnald Ronning did become a public charge and receive public money from the Treasury of said County on the 14th day of October, A. D. 1901; that she has continued to be a public charge ever since that time; that the said Ragnald Ronning was a resident and had lived in the State of Minnesota more than one year next prior to the first day of October, 1901; that the said Ragnald Ronning did not reside nor live in the Town of Norden the greater part of the time of the year next preceeding the time she became a public charge and received money from the public Treasury of said Red Lake County; that at the time the said Ragnald Ronning became a public charge, the County system of caring for the poor was in force and effect and that said system of caring for the poor was changed from the County system to the Town system in said County to the General Election held in said County in November, 1902 and went into effect the first day of January, 1903; the town Board of the Town of Norden, removed and caused to be removed the said Ragnald Ronning from the Town of Norden into the Town of Numedal in February, 1903.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW.

That the said Ragnald Ronning is not a legal charge against, or a resident of the Township of Norden, in said County and State and was not, at the time she became a public charge upon the County of Red Lake October, 1901; that the expenses, so far as the Board has been able to ascertain, is Fifty-nine and 80-100 Dollars, the same being for per diem and mileage for Commissioners in the above entitled matter.

To all of which, we, the Board of County Commissioners, hereto certify and cause the same to be attested by the Auditor of said County and seal of said County to be affixed.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, this 11th day of March, A. D. 1904.

Wm. C. L. Demann,
O. J. Johnson,

Attest:
James E. Ford,
County Auditor.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Carriere and others for a County Road, on motion duly carried the following order was made:

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake } ss.

WHEREAS, On the 12th day of March, 1904, a a petition signed by twenty-four freeholders of said County was presented to us praying for the laying out of a highway running into more than one town of said County, and not within the limits of any incorporated city, and described as follows:

Beginning at the South-east corner of Section 36 in Township 151, Range 42 and the South-west corner of Section 31 in Twp. 151, Range 41 and running thence north on the range line between the ranges 41 and 42 to the North-east corner of Section 25 in Twp. 151, Range 42 and to connect the County with Road running east and west between Sections 24 and 25 in Twp. 151, Range 42, and terminating at the said North-east corner of Section 25 Twp. 151, Range 42.

And the Board of County Commissioners of said County having determined that in the judgment of a majority of its members said petition is reasonable on its face:

It is hereby ordered that a hearing be had on said petition at the office of the County Auditor in the city of Red Lake Falls in said County on Friday the 20th day of May, 1904, at 1 o'clock P. M., at which time and place said Board will hear all that may be said in favor of, or against, the granting of said petition.

It is further ordered that O. J. Johnson, James Sutor and Wm. C. L. Demann, members of this Board be, and they hereby are, appointed a committee to said proposed route of said road, and that said committee meet upon the route of said road at the North-east corner of Section 25 in Twp. 151, Range 42 in said County, on Thursday the 19th day of May, A. D. 1904 at 1 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of examination of said proposed route of road, and make a report thereof at said meeting of said Board hereinbefore specified, and that notices hereof be given and posted as provided by law.

Easter is here. Where is the ball going to be?

Miss Clara Cyr closed her school last Friday for Easter vacation.

John Marcoe, who is working at the home of Mr. Paul Cyr, met with a serious accident last Tuesday. While doing the evening chores he was kicked by a mule.

Miss Agnes Cyr and Wm. Kruse are reported to be on the sick list.

Messrs. Chas. Elvidge and George Lange had a bee last Tuesday hauling hay from north of town.

Miss Ella Cyr spent the forepart of the week visiting friends and relatives in our vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lange drove to Crookston Monday.

Miss Annie Rondnell has returned from her visit at Wylie and is staying at the home of Chas. Elvridge.

M. Peloquin lost a valuable horse this week.

The roads are in almost an impassable condition.

L. Ducharme is hauling hay to town this week.

Johnie and Miss Bridgetta Connaughty spent last Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geoge Lange.

Several of our worthy Woodmen are planning on taking in the ball to be given at the Woodman hall in Red Lake Falls next Tuesday night.

Gather the roses of health for your cheeks,
While the parks are shining with dew.
Get out in the morning early and bright,
By taking Rocky Mountain Tea at night.

The choir for St. Joseph's church has been practicing diligently on the special Easter music for Sunday. At the morning service will be rendered "Vidi Aquam," royal mass, and an offertory by the quartette, entitled "Regina Coeli." At the evening service will be given "Veni Creator;" a duet, "O Salutaris;" quartette, "Tantum Ergo," by Lambilotte, and "Laudate," by the choir. The morning quartette, "Regina Coeli," will be repeated in the evening.

SCHOOL MA'AMS RE-ELECTED

Superintendent to Be Chosen at the Meeting Next Monday Evening—Five Vacancies to Fill.

At the meeting of the board of education Tuesday evening eight of the thirteen teachers for the next year were engaged, most of them at slightly advanced salaries, in accordance with the policy of the board in giving old teachers an increase every year until the maximum is reached. The teachers engaged are as follows:

Miss Grace Iddings, assistant principal. (It is probable, however, that at the next meeting Miss Iddings will be offered the position of principal, as it is understood that the present principal, Miss Winnifred Steele, will not be a candidate for re-election.)

Leland Healy, principal of the Washington school.

Miss Delia Widing, Mrs. J. J. Doe, Miss Daisy Viets, Miss Rose Frankoviz and Miss Ellen Brady, grade teachers at the Lafayette school.

Miss Bertha Norby, grade teacher at the Washington school.

Prof. E. W. Chamberlain, of Pine City, Minn., and Prof. C. W. Williams, of Breckenridge, are candidates for the position of superintendent, and it is probable that one of them will be selected at the meeting next Monday evening.

A HITCH IN THE PROGRAM

Indians Not Quite Ready To "Sign Up," But Agent Downs is Not Discouraged.

Special Indian Agent Thomas Downs has not been successful in securing the signatures of the Indians on the west end of Red Lake reservation to an agreement to vacate these lands earlier than the time set by congressional legislation. This does not, however, mean a failure of his mission, but only a short delay, made necessary by the tribal customs of the Chippewas. These Indians always act as a unit upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of the tribe and only after a council with their head men will they make any binding agreement.

When the council assembled at the city hall Thief River Falls last Saturday it was found that several families have already removed to the vicinity of the agency, in expectation of the coming sale of the land, and among these are the chiefs and all of the head men of the west end Indians. The braves assembled at the council listened attentively to what Colonel Downs had to offer and, after a consultation among themselves, Na-ga-na-qua-ung, an old man, speaking for the band, assured the special agent that his request to vacate the land before June 20 was well taken and and met with the entire approval of the Indians, but that, in the absence of their tribal leaders, they must refuse to sign an agreement.

Colonel Downs at once requested that a representative Indian be sent to the agency with him, to be present and report the attitude of the chiefs at a council he will hold there on Wednesday. Ga-ge-gay-be-nais was chosen to represent the band and left with the special agent and interpreter for Red Lake.

No difficulty is expected in securing the assent of the chiefs to an early removal, as the Indians desire to have this matter closed at the earliest possible moment. After the council at Red Lake agency, the special agent expects to return to Thief River and proceed with an appraisement of the buildings and other permanent improvements on the land to be sold. Every effort is being made by the department to begin the sale not later than July 1.

It is expected it will take two months to dispose of all the land and land office officials desire to have the sale completed by Sept. 1. The Indians were offered the contract for removing their dead to the diminished reservation, but stated that they preferred to have this work done by the whites.

GREAT NORTHERN EXTENSION.

Corporations Formed to Build Additional Lines.

Articles of incorporation were filed last week with the secretary of state for the Minnesota & Great Northern, recently organized to build extensions of the Great Northern from Thief River Falls north and from Pelican Rapids north. One line will run from Thief River Falls through Red Lake, Marshall and Roseau counties to a point at or near tne international boundary in Roseau county and the Pelican Rapids extension will run north through Otter Tail, Becker, Norman, Pope. Red Lake, Marshall and Roseau counties to another point at the international boundary in Roseau county.

APRIL WEATHER.

Prof. Earl Hicks' Prognostications for the Coming Month.

Prof. Hicks says: The second storm period begins on the 8th and runs to the 13th. At this period the well-known tendency to "April showers and sunshine" will be apparent. The struggle between the vernal and the boreal forces will cause a segregation of cloud formations, making cloud areas to move in clumps, with clear spaces between them. By the 10th there will be a change to warmer, and advancing low barmeter will be well under way from the west. Heavy local clouds with dashes of rain and hail —look for hail in many places—will march eastward across the country on and touching the 11th, 12th and 13th.

The third storm period is central on the 15th, 16th and 17th, and whether or not, storms lap over from the second period, on and about the 15th there will be a marked increase in the intensity of disturbances. The temperature will rise high, with a corresponding fall of barometer, all attended with thunder storms, and heavy downpour of rain and hail. Violent gusts of wind will be natural, especially in regions south of the center of the low barometer area.

Look for change to much cooler, progressively, from about the 16 to the 19. Frosts will be probable to the northward.

Dead Sea Fruit.

Ada Index: Several of the Collins people in this part of the state have been congratulating themselves over the supposed addition of the Red Lake Falls Gazette to their ranks. How a paper that has openly and strongly endorsed Mr. Dunn for governor can be of any great service to the other side is a point the Collins people have failed to explain—and won't try to.

BRIDGE IS UP IN THE AIR

Attorney General Will Rule That County Commissioners Exceeded Their Authority.

There is considerable doubt whether or not the new steel bridge ordered by the county commissioners to be built over the Red Lake river in the city of Red Lake Falls can be constructed without a special relief measure by the legislature.

There is only about $2,000 in the road and bridge fund, and as the appropriation for the bridge called for $6,500, payable in installments extending over a period of years, the question of the legality of the board's action has been raised. The money was to be advanced by the First State Bank, of this city, provided the act of the commissioners was lawful. It was the opinion of County Attorney Grady and other competent authorities that the board had the right to make the appropriation. The question was referred to Attorney General Donahower, and the COURIER has it that he will decide that a board cannot make bridge appropriations unless the cash to pay for the same is in the treasury, and that it is contrary to law to anticipate tax collections. This looks as though the bridge would not be built this year.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

New York Press: It's very easy for a girl to marry a man if she doesn't want to.

A woman makes an agreement so as to be able to break it if it does not suit her.

It's curious, but a girl is sent to school to be educated to be supported as a wife and a boy to college to be educated to support her.

Maybe the woman who brags to others about her husband thinks if she could make them believe it she could make herself believe it.

IT PAYS TO BUY THE BEST

You don't want to buy Talk! Smooth talk may sell sell the article, but it will not make it any better nor last any longer. This is especially true of Farming Implements, and it is amusing to notice how some people will tell you they have the best of everything when they actually know better. We will not attempt to give you Talk, but will submit a partial list of the goods we handle and leave it with the reputation of these goods whether or not they are considered the BEST.

"DOWAGIAC" and "KENTUCKY" DRILLS are and always have been the leaders. We have them in single disc, double disc or shoe style, and do claim that we have the only up-to-date Disc Drill in the city. "DE LAVAL" CREAM SEPARATORS! No others are to be compared with them. They are in a class by themselves, and we would advise intending buyers to try one with any other make in their own home and keep the one they like best. This certainly is fair, and has been done in a number of instances. The result has been that the other people had to pull their machines out, while we haye never yet had a "Laval" Separator returned. We do not peddle these Separators around the country, but will be glad to bring one to anybody on ten days' trial.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR, WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON, Reporters

Lillian Nauman was absent Monday and Tuesday.

The Athenian prsgram will be given tomorrow afternoon.

Prof. Whiteley was on the sick list the fore part of this week.

Fred Richards of '03 visited the high school Tuesday afternoon.

The Seniors will hold an important business meeting in the near future.

The breaking of the ice in the river crused a large absence among the boys Tuesday.

The drying of the school ground brings on the small boys favorite game of "mibbs."

The social events of this week have made a sleepy lot of book worms at the high school.

The literary work is drawing to a close. The remaining debates and programs will be interesting.

The Seniors are now devoting their spare time on the works for the class and commencement exercises.

The neighboring high schools seem to be apposed to the field meet proposition. They must be afraid of us.

The Seniors were absent Monday afternoon preparing for their class play which was given in the evening.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Grades.)

The school house floors are very dirty on account of muddy weather.

The regularly monthly examination for March occured this week.

Too many were absent Tuesday to give us much show in getting a half holiday.

Four pupils came tardy Tuesday morning, the morning the ice broke up.

Miss Josephine Kaus of the Moorhead Normal school visited our school Monday.

Mary Kotschevar was absent all of the week before vacation on account of sickness.

The children have started in for hard work for the remaining eight weeks of school.

Since the beginning of the new term the primary department is flooded with little folks.

Monday morning Miss Lulu Fletcher taught Room Three in the temporary absence of Miss Norby.

During vacation Thomas Majeres was bitten by a cat and blood poison set in He will not be able to come to school for some time.

Onr school children from "Klondyke" were obliged to cross the river on the railroad bridge as a result of the washout of the road bridge.

The Minerva Literary Society will give a program on April 15th instead of April 8 as announced in our last notes. Remember you are all invited.

EMARDVILLE.

Mr. W. Rose was a pleasant caller at the home of Nels Steen Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hagen visited at the home of Nels Steen last Sunday.

Mrs. Paul Benjaminson has been confined to her bed for nearly three weeks, and has been quite seriously ill. We trust she will soon be entirely recovered.

Christ Christianson is here from Duluth for a visit with friends and relatives. Mr. Christianson came from the old country two years ago. He thinks Emardville is all right.

Some of the farmers are talking cooperation, and we hope they will be able to get all the people to join with them. It is high time the farmers were waking up and doing something for their own interests.

LATE LOCALS.

An Easter ball was held at the Woodmen hall Tuesday evening.

Miss Annesy Crompe commenced a term of school in Louisville township Monday.

Dr. W. O. Tessier's sale at Terrebonne Monday was well attended and everything was sold at a fair price.

Ed. Healy's land office is now open at the old stand. Mr. Healy has considerable business in prospect this spring.

Ed. Healy received the pleasing intelligence yesterday that his brother, Fred, had been elected mayor of Marshall Tuesday.

We had a generous fall of snow last nigt—about four inches. This is spreading the "beautiful" pretty thick for this season of the year.

No inducements from coffee salesmen (and we get them every week) tempt us to change a single number in our "Famous King" line of coffees. No better coffees can be had at the price: 15c, 20c, 25c, 30c, 35c, and 40c. —Bangs & Co.

The F. W. society of the Presbyterian Sunday school gave a supper at the church parlors last evening, and about $20 was realized. It is the purpose of the society to devote this money toward the purchase of books for a Sunday school library.

The J. B. Cigar company is now located is the south part of the room formerly occupied by the Racket store. The boys have a very neat display window, and everything looks bright and clean about the place. Brunelle's harness shop occupies the north side of the building.

SSS FOR THE BLOOD

The best known and most popular blood purifier and tonic on the market to-day is S. S. S.

There is hardly a man, woman or child in America who has not heard of "S. S. S. for the blood." It is a standard remedy, a specific for all blood troubles and unequalled as a general tonic and appetizer. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable, the herbs and roots of which it is composed are selected for their alterative and tonic properties, making it the ideal remedy for all blood and skin diseases, as it not only purifies, enriches and invigorates the blood, but at the same time tones up the tired nerves and gives strength and vigor to the entire system.

FROM CONGRESSMAN LIVINGSTON, OF GEORGIA.
I know of the successful use of S. S. S. in many cases. It is the best blood remedy on the market.

FROM EX-GOV. ALLEN D. CANDLER.
S. S. S. is unquestionably a good blood purifier, and the best tonic I ever used.

For Chronic Sores and Ulcers, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Blood Poison, Malaria, Anæmia, Scrofula, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Acne and such other diseases as are due to a polluted or impoverished condition of the blood, nothing acts so promptly and effectually as S. S. S. It counteracts and eradicates the germs and poisons; cleanses the system of all unhealthy accumulations and soon restores the patient to health. Write us and our physicians will give your case prompt attention without charge.

SENATOR BURTON "needed the money," but it seems now that he will be obliged to get along without even a salary.

IT is reported that Judge Grindeland is becoming rather offensively partisan in the championship of Collins. The Judge ought to be given a quiet tip that there will be a judicial election, too, this fall.

BEMIDJI, the great chief of the Cass Lake Chippewas, is very low with pneumonia at his home about fourteen miles north of Cass Lake and his death is momentarily expected. He was a great friend of the whites and did much towards keeping his people quiet during the uprisings.

A MCINTOSH man who indulged a little too freely in the cup that cheers was found sleeping with a couple of hogs one morning last week. It is now in order for Bro. Lanman of the McIntosh Times to remark that the fellow is excusable, for it keeps a sober man busy to steer clear of Crookston hogs.

FULLY a dozen settlers on state lands in Red Lake county who saved their farms by reason of Bob Dunn's big-heartedness will easily believe that Bob is entitled to Red Lake county's vote in the state convention. In this connection it is not of place to remark that the state of Minnesota never lost a cent of principal or interest by reason of Bob Dunn's sympathetic interest in the unfortunate settlers.

THE Gazette is mistaken in asserting that the COURIER accused that paper of being bribed to support Collins. We have no knowledge as to the reason for the Gazette's "flop," and have not attempted to assign a reason. However, as it is not a secret that money is being used among the country newspapers by the Collins managers we cannot be responsible for individual guesses, and the Gazette has certainly given ground for suspicion.

IT IS estimated that the service pension order issued recently by Pension Commissioner Ware will add to the list entitled to pensions at least 321,000 veterans. The Washington correspondent for the New York Herald says that under the terms of this order, those who profit by it must be more than sixty-two years of age; that by the lowest scale provided for by the order—$6 per month—this would amount to $23,112,000 to be added to the annual list of pension appropriations. The Herald correspondent adds: "This, according to the estimates, is the lowest figure, for the order provides that after the veterans become sixty-five years old they shall receive $8 a month, after sixty-eight $10 and after seventy $12. Thus this sum must be increased by millions before it can be told accurately just how much the latest order will cost the nation. It is easy to see that a 'service pension by a stroke of the pen' means a great deal more expense to the government than has yet been estimated by any member of the administration who has been making excuses for the order."

JUDGE ALTON B. PARKER.

As the time for the Democratic state convention approaches it is evident that Minnesota sentiment largely favors the nomination of Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York. As a jurist, Mr. Parker has an enviable reputation, and he is a man of culture and ability, loved and honored by the people of his own state.

It has been said of Judge Parker that he has not given adequate expression to his views on public questions, but the Judge has the judicial dignity and respect for the bench to avoid discussing political issues while a judge of the supreme court. A well-known candidate for governor of Minnesota could have patterned after Judge Parker with advantage. At the proper time Judge Parker will resign his position, and state fully and fairly his political views, and there is ample ground for the belief that they will be in accord with prevailing Democratic sentiment.

The Democratic party needs a candidate of Judge Parker's calibre, and it augurs well that the states expected to furnish the electoral votes necessary to the election of a Democratic president seem to be favorable to him.

The Hearst candidacy has never been taken seriously. It has had its brief period of studied advertising and glorification by systematic bureau campaign work, but Hearst is generally recognized as being an impossible candidate.

The nomination is conceded to the East. The Western Democrats have twice been recognized by the nomination of Bryan, and in the interest of party expediency cannot ask for a candidate this year. The most important state in the East is the pivotal commonwealth of New York. The candidates from New York are Judge Alton B. Parker and William R. Hearst. The former will have the seventy odd delegates from his own state, as well as a practically solid South. Minnesota cannot do better than get into line for Parker.

STATE HAS REMEDY.

The editor of the Review of Reviews thinks the people of the Northwest will be injured by the Northern Securities decision. The April number of that magazine says: The gentlemen who own the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railroad systems, and who wish to operate them in a harmonious and secientific way for the more prosperous development of the Northwest, csnnot well be prevented from pursuing this useful general policy. If, on the other hand, they should design, through unlawful combination or otherwise, to oppress the public or injure any interests whatsoever, the people of the Northwest would have abundant remedies readily at hand; and the most far-fetched and least useful of all possible remedies would lie in such an action as this which has just been taken under the Sherman law. Thus, while President Roosevelt is to be congratulated for enforcing laws, good, bad, and indifferent, as they stand on the statute books, he is certainly not to be congratulated for having broken up an oppressive trust or having delivered the people of the Northwest from a dangerous conspiracy in restraint of trade. The people of the Northwest who patronize the Northern Pacific and Great Northern lines will not be able to detect the faintest shadow of a difference in the way in which these common carriers will serve them."

Kansas Leads.

If the present program is carried out Kansas is to stand at the head of all states this year in railroad construction. Already 1,400 miles are projected with much more in sight. Kansas has long since passed out of the list of doubtful states and railroad companies and other interests treat her just as they do Illinois and Iowa. The resources of this state seem only to need cultivation, as the energies of a tired or worried man need freshening by means of golden grain belt beer. It is pure, delicious and invigorating, good for sick and good for well folks—good for young and old. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

PA AND THE KID.

"Pa, who's the guy with the Vanderbilt walk just ahead?"

"H-i-s-h!" That's the political writer on our leading newspaper, the Gazette."

"Does he write the Dunn editorials, pa?"

"Not now, my boy. He is busy counteracting the underhanded misrepresentation of jealous rivals. This requires all of his attention."

"But isn't a newspaper supposed to have opinions on important state questions?"

"Not necessarily; it takes all of the editor's time to pull for Red Lake county. He has to stay up nights to keep the other newspapers from hauling it over into Canada."

"But the Gazette man used to find lots of time to brag up Bob Dunn and tell what a mean man Collins was, didn't he?"

"Yes, my son, but that was before the campaign got warm. It has developed into a nasty fight, and a self-respecting and thoroughly righteous editor cannot afford to take sides."

"When did the Gazette man find this out, pa?"

"Immediately after a trip to St. Paul a few weeks ago. Jim Martin told him that Bob Dunn wasn't a good Republican. He was caught shaking hands with farmers, and it is reported that he even speaks to Democrats."

"Isn't it a great thing to be an editor, pa."

"Certainly, it is. Why, since the Gazette came out with that famous editorial in which he told the people how to stand lying down, no one dares to mention state politics except in a whisper behind closed doors."

"But, pa, why did this paper say the Collins boom would take on impetus when John Eastman got his bank book home?"

"Pshaw, boy, now run along and play. Don't ask so many foolish questions."

As to Advertising.

Adrian Democrat: The merchant who says advertising does not pay is always ready to pound the mail order houses that get all their business through advertising. A business man whose business "won't stand advertising" makes a very sorry figure in any community. A business that won't stand advertising is a mighty good business to avoid—and it is avoided pretty generally by the people who buy. But it is true that some advertising does not pay. The ad that sounds as if it was written just to help the editor, the ad that does not tell the truth, the ad that gives no description of goods, no reasons, no price, no inducuments does not pay. The up-to-date merchant, who does not adverties to help the editor, but to help himself; who spends time and takes care in preparing his ads has no trouble to make advertising pay. He wastes no breath "cussing" the mail order houses, but fights them with their own weapons and wins.

Hearst or Parker?

Fairmont, Minn., Sentinel: The Sentinel takes the liberty of publishing the following extract from a personal letter from one of the most prominent and influential Democrats in the west. It no doubt reflects the sentiment of a very respectable element of the Democratic party:

"I regard Hearst's nomination as utterly impossible. It would mean ruin to the party North and South. The best people in the South would not repudiate their well-rooted moral convictions for the sake of party. At least that is what they say. As at present advised, I am for Parker. If a better and stronger man is suggested, who is reasonably available, I am for him. I have taken pains to go through his record. I believe him a great and good man. In a day or two I will send you a print of some of his decisions on labor. Read them, and if you think a man of his convictions and his firmness and stamina (read his dissenting opinions) is the tool of corporate interests, then I am no judge of human nature. The only thing I have ever heard urged against him is that Hill is his friend. Well, if I were in politics in New York I should prefer to have Hill my friend. But enough for the present. I am for Parker and I am so openly and avowedly from this time on. He may be more conservative than you or I possibly, but with him we have some show of success. In fact, we might hope to win, and a victory with him and the reforms that would imply would be worth centuries of mere froth.

"I know he is right on imperialism.

"I know he is right on increased armaments.

"I know he is right on the question of economy in expenditures.

"I know that he would clean out the reeking corruption that prevades every department of the government.

"I do not know that he would favor 16 to 1 now and I do not care, but I know that he would not stand pat for the continuance of the robber schedules for the protection of the trusts."

Resignations Requested.

Acting under a recent ruling of the general land office Federal Judge Morris has requested the resignation of all the United States commissioners in this section of the state of few exceptions Hereafter final proofs and entries will have to be made before clerks of courts and at the land office. The action was taken on account of the unsatisfactory manner in which the commissioners have handled land office matters that have come before them. In many cases men have been appointed to these responsible positions who were totally unfit, and many costly errors have been made as a consequence Under the new ruling unless proofs are made before the officers of the land office, examination must be directed by special agents of the department before patent is issued.

Typifying Qualities of People.

You no doubt have noticed that certain of the lower animals seem to typify the qualities of certain people you know. For instance, there is the wolf, suggesting the cowardly, grasping, wolfish tendencies of some people; the skunk, representing the little sneaking, thieving people; the jackal and the hyena, typifying the cowardly class of people who sink their fangs into the memory of the dead and gone; the snapping cur, typifying the little fellow who snarls and barks at his betters, the fox, standing for treachery and cunning; the rattlesnake, typifying the person who is full of venom and always in an attitude to strike at others. On the other hand, there is the Newfoundland dog, representing the brave, frank, honest kind of people; the draft horse, representing the people who uncomplainingly bear the heavy burdens of life; the race horse, representing the strenuous, go ahead successful kind of people; the lion, representing courage and valor. The list of similarities seems almost unlimited. Nearly every animal has its counterpart in the qualities possessed by the many kinds of people of which the world is made.—Exchange.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

Peter Lundquist and wife have gone to housekeeping in Red Lake Falls. Mrs. Lundquist has been teaching in the St. Hilaire schools during the past winter.

F. C. Burgdorf is the first to report a cherry tree in bloom. However the tree is comfortably housed in the electric light station, which accounts for the early blossoms.

Mrs. N. W. Tarrant was quite seriously ill from Friday until Monday with stomach trouble. She is now greatly improved, we are glad to learn, and will soon be entirely recovered.

The Republican ticket was successful in the election at Crookston Tuesday. However, J. E. O'Brien, brother of our townsman, W. P., won out in a close fight for alderman in the fourth ward.

The regular monthly meeting of the fire company was held Saturbay evening. Mayor Duffy presented the boys with a check for $25 in recognition of their valiant services at the fire three weeks ago.

Horsemen will find it to their advantage to have their bills and cards printed at the COURIER office, and an "ad" in the paper will help a good deal, too. We have a complete assortment of the best cuts.

The eighty-fifth anniversary of the installation of the first Odd Fellows lodge in the United States occurs on April 26th, and the local lodge is arranging to celebrate the event with a party at the hall.

Notices are being sent out to the assessors of Red Lake county to meet at the auditor's office on April 28 to receive their books and supplies, and also to fix a basis on which to make their assessments this year.

Lewis Fernholz, who bought a farm east of town last fall, is making arrangements to move up from Lamberton in the near future. Mr. Fernholz will erect a set of new buildings on the place this spring.

A number of large transfers of Red Lake county realty are reported this week by the records of the register's office. One tract of 1,200 acres, formerly owned by J. N. Miller, of St. James, has been sold to St. Paul parties for nearly $21,000.

We bought one hundred pieces of India linen before the rise in cottons. We will save you 25 per cent. on these goods. We should sell every yard of India linen sold in this town. We will, if you look our prices over before you buy.—Theo LaBissoniere.

The Woodmen will be glad to learn that there will be no assessment for April. This is the second assessment for 1904 that has been passed, and officials of the order say that the cost of insurance this year promises to be lower than for several years past.

Do not order your calendars for next year of any traveling salesman when you can buy them at home for less money. THE COURIER has a magnificent line and would appreciate the home trade. Come and see our samples at least before sending away.

Walter Buse was seventeen years old Tuesday, and a very pleasant surprise party was arranged by his friends that evening at the home of his sister, Mrs. S. L. Lewis. A large crowd of young people was in attendance, and everybody had a good time.

The supreme court has denied the motion of Attorney H. W. Lee to affirm the judgment and dismiss the appeal in the Kratka-Richardson mayoralty contest case. The case will be argued on its merits before the supreme court about the 25th of this month.

Marriage licenses were issued this week to the following persons: Ole Leverson of Waseca and Miss Jennie Olson of Thief River Falls; Ole P. Saxberg and Miss Alma Johnson, both of Thief River Falls; Eugene Davis of Lambert and Miss Nora Skibicki of Red Lake Falls.

Joseph Helm has the Empire cream separators in all sizes, and guarantees them to be superior to all others. Over one hundred separators have been sold by Mr. Helm during the past two years, and not one of them has failed to give satisfaction. They are low in price, fully guaranteed and are sold on easy terms.

A meeting of the Firemen's Relief association will be held at the city hall this evening, and all firemen desirous of joining the association will be given the opportunity. This organization has for its object the mutual protection of the members. A small monthly assessment is levied and in case of sickness or accident a weekly benefit is paid.

It is to your advantage to look over our shoes before you buy. We are not experimenting with shoes. We sell only what years of experience have shown us which are the best lines to sell. You get more quality and style combined with our Utz & Dunn fine shoes than you would out of any other line on the market. Every pair guaranteed.—Theo. La Bissoniere.

The enterprising firm of Berthon & Armstrong has in THE COURIER this week one of the finest specimens of advertising we have ever seen in a country newspaper. The large cut representing the H., S. & M. brand of clothing assists materially in beautifying the announcement, while Paul's graphic descriptive ability and THE COURIER's advertising type does the rest.

William Lauritzon finished his work as manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery last Saturday and will take a week's rest before starting up the Emardville creamery, where he has been engaged as manager for the coming year. Mr. Lauritzon is one of the most successful creamery managers in the state, and we are glad to know that he is to remain in Red Lake county.

Hon. W. I. Nolan, the well-known impersonator and entertainer of Minneapolis, has been engaged by the Knights of Pythias to give one of his characteristic entertainments at the K. of P. hall on Saturday evening, April 16. Mr. Nolan has appeared in Red Lake Falls before and needs no commendation to those who have heard him. Reserved seats are now on sale at Anderson's jewelry store.

The Maccabee lodge, which went out of business here a couple of years ago, is to be resusticated, and the institution ceremonies will be held next week. D. D. Harger, of Crookston, a deputy state organizer, was here last week and succeeded in getting a large number of the old members to restore their membership. Quite a number of new members will be initated at the reorganization meeting.

The ice broke in the Clearwater river Monday night, and at present the ice jam extends from the mouth of the river to a point several miles east of town. One of the supports at the Klondike bridge gave way, and a section of the bridge had to be taken away to prevent further damage. The residents of Klondike are just at present obliged to take "the longest way around," when they want to come to town.

George L. Austin, who has been employed as solicitor for THE COURIER during the past month, has been hired as manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery, and commenced work Tuesday. Mr. Austin has had considerable experience in this line of work, and we hope he will be successful in maintaining the splendid standard of the local creamery. Mr. Austin expects his wife up from Fergus Falls in a few weeks.

There is little danger of high water at Red Lake Falls this spring. The snow has disappeared gradually, and when the Red Lake river breaks up, which will be in four or five days, it is thought all of the surplus water will be carried off without overflowing the banks. However in Crookston there is considerable apprehension regarding the lower parts of the city, and yesterday's Journal reports that a number of bridges are in danger.

L. C. Conner, who has been living on the Columbus farm, in Lake Pleasant township, was arrested last Friday charged with assault on Anthony Quesnelle. There had been a previous quarrel between the two, and Conner was under bond in the sum of $100 to keep the peace. Before the trial, Conner boarded the Northern Pacific train, and it is supposed he has left the country. The bond will undoubtedly be declared forfeited.

It is generally understood that Prof. F. A. Whiteley, who has been superintendent of the Red Lake Falls schools for the past four years, will not be candidate for re-election. Mr. Whiteley ownes three valuable timber claims in Itasca county, and expects to move up there this summer and have the lumber marketed. He has an enviable reputation as an educator, and the people of this city will be sorry to learn that he will not remain.

The St. Peter Herald finds by investigation that the man who patronizes the home merchant has the best end of the deal. Montgomery Ward sells a buggy at $44.50 which can be purchased at home for $40, a cultivator at $20.55 which you can get without sending away for $19.25 and save the freight besides. Furthermore when you send the money away it is gone from the community for good and does not help to build churches or help public enterprises as in the case where the money is expended with your home merchant.

Judge Watts has decided upon the three men who will act as viewers of judicial ditch No. 4, which is known as the Lost River ditch, which is partly in Red Lake county and partly in Polk county. Official notification will be served on them at once. The board is composed of Olaf Tande and Joseph Pigeon of Red Lake county and Ed. L. Stowe of McIntosh, who will begin the work of assessing the damages and benefits to the various lands that are affected one way or the other, as soon as the snow is off the ground making the work possible.

The home talent drama, "The Deacon," presented by the senior class of Red Lake Falls high school at the opera house Monday evening attracted the largest crowd of the season. The play was admirably rendered and the members of the class are entitled to great credit for the labor and enthusiasm they have devoted to the work. Dan Johnson as "Pete" carried the part of a mischeivous darky to perfection and injected plenty of plantation humor and philosophy into the plot of the drama. Will Ittner was the "Deacon," the leading character, and carried his part splendidly, as did Miss Clare Allison as "Aunt Amelia," the leading lady. In fact all of them did so well that perhaps individual mention is out of place. The class netted about $50, which will be used in defraying the graduating expenses of the class.

TWO MENACES TO SOCIETY

By Rev. ROBERT A. COLLYER of New York

I WORKED nine years at the anvil in Pennsylvania. We made hammers, hatchets and axes by the dozen. When my employer, Mr. Hammond, found he must cut down wages a little he always called us into counsel, explained the necessities of the situation and asked us if we were willing to have the schedule reduced. We INVARIABLY AGREED together upon what could be done, and THERE WAS NO STRIKE. When the times were better and Mr. Hammond could afford to pay us more, he called us together again. Of course we always agreed to the increase a little more readily than to the decrease. But the point is this—THERE WAS NO TROUBLE in that shop during the nine years I was there.

* * *

When the labor unions and employers of labor come together, as they surely must and will, and settle their differences of opinion by arbitration instead of attempting to force each other into line by strikes, which cost the workingman so much money, a great step in advance will have been taken. This is the most wonderful work of ACCOMPLISHMENT we have to look forward to in 1904, and the time will surely come.

Divorce, the other great threat against society, perpetually UNDERMINES THE SANCTITY OF THE HOME, and we shall have to find our way to some solution of the problem. A man came to me not long ago and wanted me to marry him. I began to ask questions and found he had obtained a divorce from his wife the day before. I said, "I will not marry you," and I did not.

* * *

In many cases divorce is simply a countenanced evil of the most DEBASING kind, and we shall have to meet the situation and handle it without gloves. How we are to do this I do not know. One thing I do know—THE MINISTERS MUST BE MORE CAREFUL. That is what I am trying to be. I do not refuse to marry all people who have been divorced. I do, however, look very carefully over their papers and find out all I can. If the explanations given to me seem good I marry the couple. If not I refuse. I hold the option. I think I have that right.

JAPAN'S AIM IS TO UPLIFT THE EAST

By KOGORO TAKAHIRA, Japanese Minister to the United States

WE Japanese are sometimes called the Yankees of the east. The name was given by an American, partly in jest, it may be. I am not quite sure that the designation is ENTIRELY appropriate.

I would be happy indeed if I were certain that the consensus of the world's sober judgment ascribed to us the qualities linked with the name "Yankee"—energy, preseverance, ingenuity, strength of purpose, love of liberty—which have done so much to raise your honored country to its present high place among the nations.

ONE OF THE MOST EARNEST DESIRES WE CHERISH IS THAT NEIGHBORING PEOPLES, PEOPLES IN SOME SENSE KINDRED TO US, SHALL ENJOY THE SAME ADVANTAGES WE ENJOY AND SHALL ADOPT IN THE SAME MANNER THOSE ELEMENTS OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION WHICH STAND FOR THE PRESERVATION OF NATIONAL ENTITY AND THE PROMOTION OF NATIONAL HAPPINESS.

This is a spirit in a way like the American spirit, and it is the spirit which actuates my countrymen and our government in those momentous affairs that are now holding the stage in the far east; not a spirit of self aggrandizement or of self exploitation, but an assured and SINCERE CONVICTION that as we have found peace, plenty and security from adapting to our use the civilization of the west so our neighbors will find the strongest safeguard against aggression, lawlessness and retrogression and the amplest guarantee of happiness, comfort and progress BY FOLLOWING OUR EXAMPLE, which is, I venture to say, in accord with the principles of the whole United States of America.

The White Man's Responsibility to the Negro

By Governor AYCOCK of North Carolina

WE owe an obligation "to the man in black." We brought him here. He served us well. He is patient and teachable. We owe him GRATITUDE. Above all, we owe him JUSTICE. We cannot forget his fidelity, and we ought not to magnify his faults. We cannot change his color; neither can we ignore his service. No individual ever "rose on stepping stones of dead" "to higher things," and no people can.

We must rise by ourselves; we must execute judgment by righteousness; we must educate not only ourselves, but see to it that the negro has an OPPORTUNITY for education.

* * *

As a white man I am afraid of but one thing for my race, and that is that we shall become afraid to give the negro a fair chance. The first duty of every man is to develop himself to the uttermost, and the only limitation upon this duty is that he shall take pains to see that in his own development he does no injustice to those BENEATH him. This is true of races as well as of individuals. Considered properly, it is not a limitation, but a condition of development.

THE WHITE MAN IN THE SOUTH CAN NEVER ATTAIN TO HIS FULLEST GROWTH UNTIL HE DOES ABSOLUTE JUSTICE TO THE NEGRO RACE. IF HE IS DOING THAT NOW IT IS WELL FOR HIM. IF HE IS NOT DOING IT HE MUST SEEK TO KNOW THE WAYS OF TRUTH AND PURSUE THEM.

MAY TRANSFER CANAL CONCESSION

REPUBLIC OF COLOMBIA DEFEATED IN CASE AGAINST PANAMA COMPANY.

Last Obstacle to Transfer of Property to United States Removed—President and Attorney General Discuss the Matter Carefully.

Paris, April 1.—The first civil tribunal of the Seine has decided the case of the republic of Colombia against the Panama Canal company in favor of the defendants. The decision holds that the complaint of Colombia is not receivable and condemns the plaintiffs to pay the costs of the action. This decision has the effect of removing the legal obstacles in the way of the transfer of the canal concession from the company to the United States.

No More Cause for Delay.

Washington, April 1.—President Roosevelt and Attorney General Knox had a conference subsequent to the receipt of the information that the government of Colombia had lost its suit in the French courts against the new Panama Canal company, and that there was no longer any reason for delay in the transfer of the company's concessions and property to the United States. They discussed carefully the facts of the situation. At the conclusion of the interview, Attorney General Knox announced that there was now no more reason for delay than might be occasioned by the transfer of a title of a 20-foot lot in Washington.

All Obstacles Removed.

The attorney general said that the government had been proceeding on the assumption that the French court would take precisely the action it had taken and that at no time had very serious consideration been given to the proceeding instituted by Colombia. He added that the action of the French court had disposed of the last legal obstacle in the way of the transfer of the canal company's property.

Matter of Courtesy.

As a matter of courtesy to the French court, the canal company had refrained from calling a special meeting of the stockholders until the case pending had been determined. The attorney general thought it likely that a call for such a meeting would be issued soon by the company. How long it might be before the meeting could be held under that call, he could not say, but the meeting would ratify the transfer of the property and concessions when it was held.

Transfer of Stock.

W. A. Davis and Charles W. Russell, the assistant attorneys general who have gone to Paris to assist in the transfer of the property will remain there until the transfer shall have been completed. They will supervise, for the department of justice, the holding of the stockholders, and the transfer of the stock. They likewise will obtain a complete inventory of the property of the company which is to pass to the United States.

Payments at Same Time.

The dissolution of the Panama Canal company, so far as the transfer of the property to this country is concerned, probably will take place in the latter part of April. The payment of $40,000,000 to the company will be made about that time. It is not likely that the payment of the $10,000,000 to the Republic of Panama will be made prior to that to the canal company. It is the view of the president and the attorney general that the two payments should be practically concurrent. This is their interpretation of the legislation bearing upon the matter and of that ratified with the government of Panama.

Bandits Resentenced.

Chicago, April 2.—Judge Kersten yesterday resentenced the car-barn bandits—Peter Niedermeyer, Harvey Van Dine and Gustav Marx—to be hanged at the county jail April 22, the date originally fixed and then questioned as to its legality. By this proceeding he clarified the previous sentence of technical errors and made impossible, the state's attorneys think, any chance for respite or escape from the gallows.

Died of Strange Disease.

St. Louis, April 2.—William Combs, aged 34, died at the City hospital from an infirmity that had turned his blood white. His ailment was diagnosed as "splenic leukemia." Combs was as yellow as a Mongolian and frequently had been mistaken for one. The disease was painless and first attacked him 25 years ago. The case had attracted much attention from the local medical fraternity.

Charged with Murder.

Hazleton, Pa., April 4.—George Wresak, of Upper Lehigh, was arrested Sunday, charged with the murder of his wife, whom he is alleged to have struck on the head with a flatiron during a family quarrel a week ago. The woman died Saturday night. Wresak admits the charge, but claims he committed the fatal assault while in a state of intoxication.

All Previous Records Broken.

New York, April 4.—All previous high records for loans and deposits were swept aside by the week's statement of the associated banks of this city. Loans now aggregate $1,022,707,100, and deposits $1,069,369,400. The deposit increase for the week of almost $21,000,000 is doubtless due to preparations for the payment of the $50,000,000 of Panama canal moneys.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Cows and Milk.

Only four states have more creameries than Minnesota. Iowa leads with 820; Wisconsin is next with 759; New York is third with 659; Pennsylvania follows with 611, and Minnesota is fifth with 542. These figures are based on the returns of 1900. Since then Minnesota creameries have increased in number to approximately 731.

The twelve states producing the largest number of gallons of milk per head are: Minnesota, 403; Maine, 574; Massachusetts, 573; Rhode Island, 546; Connecticut, 545; New Hampshire, 528; Vermont, 526; Pennsylvania, 516; New York, 515, Ohio, 520; Wisconsin, 473; Illinois, 454.

Minnesota creameries make 63,000,000 pounds of butter a year, receiving for it, in round numbers, $14,000,000. Minnesota has 753,386 cows.

Farmers' Elevators.

Fully one hundred farmers' elevators will be built in Minnesota within the the next year, making a total of 240 in the state, according to the statements of C. E. Jackson of Buckman, president of the Minnesota Farmers' exchange. The latter organization is a new one, and has already sold $400,000 of the $500,000 stock issue. It is the intention to build elevators and terminals and begin, in a short time, to handle grain and produce.

Elevators will be built in parts of the state not now supplied. The small receiving elevators will co-operate with the terminal elevators, and in this way the farmers will act in a way as their own commission agents.

Damaged by Wind.

The hotel which is being built by a stock company on the north shore of Detriot Lake was badly damaged by a severe wind. The gale swept across the lake with such violence that the building buckled, the two lower stories being thrown about five feet out of plumb. It is expected that the entire structure will have to be taken down and rebuilt, which will involve an expenditure of about $2,000. The hotel was 40x130 feet with three stories and and attic and had just been enclosed and shingled.

A Close Call.

A fire in the fifth floor of the Gilfillan building, Jackson and Fourth streets, St. Paul, filled the floor with dense black smoke and forced Inga Cedarburg, a stenographer, to seek refuge at a window. She was carried down to the street on a 100-foot ladder by Lieut. Edward Low of truck company No. 2. The feat was particularly hazardous, for the ladder did not quite reach to the window. The girl had to climb along a narrow ledge and decend by a long pole to reach the steps of the ladder.

The loss is estimated at about $1,000.

Sugar Beets.

Prospects are good for an increased acreage of sugar beets in Minnesota this year. The Minnesota Sugar company is just winding up the business of 1903-4, and those interested declare the year a successful one. In 1903 the company contracted with 1,500 farmers for 3,700 of acres. On account of the excessive rainfall and floods the acreage was reduced to less than 3,000 acres. The total yield amounted to 31,000 tons, from which the sugar company produced, in 105 working days, 7,000,000 pounds of granulated sugar.

Had a Fat Purse.

Ivan Vukerlic is an Austrian who, in role of begger, claims to have a crippled hand. He acquired the bad habit of entering people's homes without the formality of knocking or ringing the bell, and they had him arrested. When arraigned he pleaded guilty, and was fined $30 by Judge Gearheart at Duluth. The prisoner produced a large roll of bills and paid the fine with as little concern as if if he were buying a postage stamp. He has been instructed to move on.

Dropped Dead.

Herbert Wink, a 9-year-old boy who resided with his parents at 1201 Fifth street north, Minneapolis, dropped dead while playing in the yard with some of his young friends.

Herbert had just recovered from a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia, and the coroner, while not holding an autopsy, believes that the boy died of a heart affection caused by his recent illness.

No More Free Lunch.

Every saloonkeeper in Minneapolis was notified by the police officers to give no more free lunches, which are now under the ban of the city ordinances. A delegation from the Retail Liquor Dealers' association waited upon Police Supt. Conroy and told him that the ordinence would meet with no opposition. One dealer says that he pays $14,000 per year for free lunches and is not sorry to do away with them.

News Notes.

Andrew Larson, proprietor of the Broadway hotel, at Grand Marias, fell from a ladder, breaking both arms near the wrist.

Edwin D. Solenberger of Chicago will succeed James F. Jackson, May 1, as secretary of the Associated Charities of Minneapolis.

A new hotel, to be operated on the European plan is being talked of for St. Cloud.

Angus McIver, a St. Cloud boy, accidentally shot himself in the leg while hunting.

Charlie Ross of Bridgewater was brought to Kenyon on a charge of illegitimate parentage and bound over.

Gustave Anderson, 21, of Fenton, was accidentally shot and killed by his brother. They were cleaning a gun they thought was not loaded.

For Pain

Take a Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, and the Pain will disappear Like Magic.

Not by paralyzing the nerves and glands, like opium, morphine, cocaine, and other dangerous drugs, but by increasing the natural secretions.

This action is obtained as a result of modern discoveries in medicine, making it possible to relieve pain without bad after-effects.

You can safely depend upon Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills to relieve and cure such pains as Neuralgia, Headache, Stomachache, Menstrual Pains, Rheumatism, Backache, Toothache, etc.

They will also, by their calming action on the nerves, almost instantly relieve such distressing feelings as Dizziness, Car-Sickness, Indigestion, Irritability, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, etc.

Not merely do they relieve, but they also absolutely cure, because by persevering in their use, you do away with the cause.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are guaranteed that first package will benefit, or your money back. Never sold in bulk.

"I am thankful for the good Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have and are doing me. Ever since the war I have had spells of severe throbbing headache, caused by catarrh, until six years ago, I began taking Anti-Pain Pills, the only remedy that ever gave me relief. Since then I have not had one hard attack, because I take a Pill and it overcomes the difficulty."—GEO. SAUNDERS, Greensburg, Ind.

GETTING TO THE FRONT.

Minnesota Dairying Interests Make Fine Showing.

Minnesota is one of the ten leading dairy states of the Union, according to a compilation of the United States census bureau just received by the state dairy and food commission. It ranks fourth for the richness of its milk and cream, fifth for the number of its creameries and ninth for the number of cows on farms. Minnesota is one of the ten states producing the largest quantities of butter and cheese and ranks twelfth among the states producing the largest number of gallons of milk per head.

Two counties in Minnesota are among the nineteen counties in the United States in which the number of dairy cows exceeded the population. These nineteen counties are in the following states: Wisconsin, 6; New York, 3; Vermont, 3; Iowa, 3; Minnesota, 2; Ohio, 1 and Illinois 1.

In Minnesota every twenty-two pounds of milk makes one pound of butter. There are only three states in the Union that have a better showing than this. New York has the richest milk, its creameries make one pound of butter for every twenty-one pounds of milk. New Hamshire stands second with a ratio of 21¼ to 1, and California third with a ratio of 21½ to 1. Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin each produce one pound of butter for every twenty-two pounds of milk. The reason for Minnesota's showing is attributed to the large number of "special purpose" cows which give large quantities of rich milk. In Iowa and some other states the "general or dual purpose" cow is popular, giving less milk and poorer in butter quality.

Only four states have more creameries than Minnesota. Iowa leads with 820; Wisconsin is next with 759; New York is third with 659; Pennsylvania follows with 611 and Minnesota is fifth with 542. These figures are based on the returns in 1900. Since then Minnesota creameries have increased in number to approximately 715.

There are 4,514,210 cows on farms in the United States, and of this number Minnesota contributes 753,386. The nine states which excel Minnesota in this respect are: New York, 1,501,608; Iowa, 1,423,648; Illinois, 1,007,664; Wisconsin, 998,397; Pennsylvania, 943,773; Texas, 861,023; Ohio, 811,239; Missouri, 765,386. Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas, Indiana and New York each have from 34,000 to 40,000 cows in cities and villages. St. Paul and Minneapolis are two of the seven cities that have the largest number of cows in their limits. St. Paul has 4,000 as compared with 11,577 in New York.

The twelve states producing the largest number of gallons of milk per head are: Minnesota, 403; Maine, 574; Massachusette, 572; Rhode Island, 546; Connecticut, 545; New Hampshire, 528; Vermont, 526; Ohio, 520; Pennsylvania, 516; New York, 515; Wisconsin, 473; Illinois, 454.

Minnesota creameries make 63,000,000 pounds of butter a years, receiving for it, in round numbers, $14,000,000.

BUSINESS MEN'S CORNER.

A good name, well advertised, is worth gold; but it is the advertising which is the essential point.

Cheltenham Press: Advertising is not a short cut to success, but it is one of the most direct roads.

Printers' Ink: The best way to boost your competitor is to run him down whenever a customer refers to him. Every time you "knock" your rival you weaken public confidence in your own business.

Minneapolis Telegrams: Here is a little nut to crack for the man who believes in advertising "once in a while." How long would a commercial traveler last if he called on his possible customers every tenth season? And yet some people think that once or twice a year is often enough to seek trade by advertising.

A writer in the Review of Reviews sums up the attributes of weeklies as follows: "Each copy is read not only by the five people usually credited to the ordinary paper, but by twice or thrice that number in many instances, for many subscribers pass their papers on and on to intimates of less fortunate homes. These publications are pre-eminently the home paper of newspaperdom. They are not superficially scanned while men travel to business and then left for the brakemen to gather up. They go directly to homes and the reading of them is a duty as well as a pleasure. Hence their peculiar value as moulders of public opinion." Hence, also, their peculiar value as advertising mediums.

RED RIVER VALLEY FARM LANDS

Are now more sought by the Investor and Homeseeker than ever before......

BECAUSE IT IS GETTING TO BE UNIVERSALLY KNOWN:

That the RED RIVER VALLEY is one of the GREATEST WHEAT-PRODUCING SECTIONS of the earth, and has NEVER KNOWN A CROP FAILURE, but always produces LARGE CROPS of the NO 1 HARD, thus justly entitling it to be called "THE BREAD BASKET OF THE WORLD."

That CORN AND CLOVER as well as nearly all other kinds of GRAINS AND GRASSES raised in the southern part of the state can be SUCCESSFULLY RAISED HERE, making it not only suitable to WHEAT RAISING but well adapted to STOCK AND HOG RAISING also.

And lastly because they know that taking into consideration all the ADVANTAGES THE RED RIVER VALLEY POSSESSES over other parts of the United States—having HEALTHFUL CLIMATE, GOOD CLEAR WATER, PLENTY OF FUEL, EXCELLENT SOIL and SPLENDID RAILROAD AND MARKET FACILITIES—Red River Valley farm lands are a cheaper and more profitable investment than land anywhere else on the face of the globe. Red River Valley farm lands at present prices will more than double in value within the next five years.

We have thousands of acres for sale in Red Lake and Polk Counties, two of the best Counties in the Valley, and justly named the Garden Spot of the Valley, which we are offering low prices and on terms to suit each buyer.

Most of our lands were bought years ago when lands were cheap and we are offering to sell them again at only a small margin of profit. We handle our own lands and will make terms to suit the buyer. CROP PAYMENT, INSTALLMENT PLAN or other terms. By dealing with us you save agent's commission. Why not just as well have that in your own pocket?

We have also land for sale in other counties in the Valley. Have at all times some great snaps to offer and will at this time call your attention to the following:

3000 acres in quarter and half section tracts, all more or less improved with buildings, fences and other improvements, and located in a thrifty, well-settled community, where churches and schools are built and roads graded. These will be sold in "bunch" at a price that will surprise you. Only $5,000 cash will handle this bunch. Balance can be paid on time to suit at 6 per cent. A live investor can make a few thousand on this bunch in a short time. If interested, write for descriptions and full particulars.

We furnish abstracts showing good title to every piece of land we sell.

We furnish railroad fare at landseekers' rates, and fare refunded to buyers.

JAPS SWEEPING NORTHERN KOREA

HEAVY LOSSES INFLICTED ON RUSSIANS AT KASAN AND CHENGJU.

BALTIC FLEET TO SAIL FOR EAST IN JULY

Big Army of Japan Reported in Motion—Rumored Plan of Campaign —Damage of Bombardment at Port Arthur Said to Be Slight.

Tokio, April 5.—Russia's losses in the skirmish at Kasan, March 26, and in that at Chengju, March 28, reach 1,300, over 900 of these being killed or wounded. The Japanese losses are reported as insignificant.

The advance guard of the Japanese army in northwestern Korea occupied the town of Sengcheng Saturday afternoon without opposition. Sengcheng is on the Peking road, 18 miles west of Chengju, and about 40 miles south of Wiju.

Baltic Fleet to Go East.

St. Petersburg, April 5.—The czar has decided that the Baltic sea fleet will sail for the far east on July 15, at the latest. It is stated that Great Britain has sent assurances that the fleet will be allowed to pass through the Suez canal. The ice on Lake Baikal has begun to break up. Gaps of 40 yards are appearing in many places.

Jap Plan of Campaign.

Shanghai, April 5.—A letter received here from Kobe, Japan, says the Japanese government has 260,000 troops in motion, and fully 60,000 more under arms and in garrisons and at the depots. These numbers are exclusive of the third reserves, numbering 120,000, which have not been called to the colors. The exact number of troops which have left Japan for their various destinations is not known, but the entire first army has been landed and has established itself in northwestern Korea, with its main base at Chinamphp. The Japanese general staff still carefully guards the plan of campaign, but it is generally believed that it will operate three armies, each nominally numbering 100,000 men, the second army landing west of the Yalu river and the third army east of Newchwang. The landing of the latter two armies will be easily accomplished, for the light cruiser squadrons can protect both movements. It is thought that the landing of a heavy Japanese force west of the mouth of the Yalu will force the Russians to abandon the fortifications which they have been erecting north of the Yalu for the purpose of opposing the crossing of the first army of Japan from Korea. It is also anticipated that the three great Japanese forces will operate in conjunction, the third army swinging eastward, to Newchwang, seizing or cutting the railroad, and then engaging in a turning movement against the main Russian position.

The Japanese are confident that the Russians will be unable to transport supplies sufficient to maintain in Manchuria a force larger than 300,000 men. The heavy detachments necessary to guard the railroad and supply bases will, it is claimed, reduce the Russian fighting force to about 200,000 men. The Japanese are requisitioning thousands of horses, and it is probable that a considerable detachment of cavalry will accompany each army. It seems certain that Vice Admiral Togo's failure to effectually dispose of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur has delayed the Japanese land operations. A general thaw is now proceeding in Korea and Manchuria, rendering the country roads impassable and making it impossible to conduct general military operations until the ground hardens.

Says Little Damage Was Done.

Tientsin, April 5.—It is stated that Viceroy Alexieff, who for the past four days has been at Port Arthur on a visit of inspection, has found everything highly satisfactory. The damage done by the bombardments of the Japanese fleet is said to have been insignificant. It is generally believed that the Japanese will not attack Newchwang. It is thought that their opportunity has passed. The Russian forces are ready and prepared to defend the place. The task of the Japanese, if they should be eventually successful, is becoming daily more difficult.

Japs Occupy Sengcheng.

Tokio, April 5.—The advance guard of the Japanese army in northwestern Korea occupied the town of Sengcheng Saturday afternoon without opposition. Sengcheng is on the Peking road, 18 miles west of Chongju and about forty miles south of Wiju. When the Japanese drove the Russians out of Chongju last Monday the Russians withdrew in two columns, one going over the Koaksan road and the other over the Peking road. The Japanese advance from Chongju was made very rapidly. It was anticipated that the Russians would resist this advance, but they failed to do so, and now it is not probable that there will be any further opposition south of the Yalu river.

Strike Is Averted.

Springfield, Ill., April 5.—The Illinois miners and operators have signed the state agreement, effective for two years. When the joint convention met Sunday there was not one dissenting vote against the agreement reached by the joint scale committee. Three cents a ton for mining coal is the reduction made. The contract prohibits boycott of railroads.

INQUIRY IS BEING MADE.

Government Agents Investigating Operations of Alleged "Beef Trust" at St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 4.—A corps of agents of the United States department of commerce was in St. Louis Saturday inquiring into the operations of the alleged and so-called "beef trust." Their names and their movements are kept secret.

According to information they have been sent here by Secretary Cortelyou, in accordance with a resolution by congress instructing him to investigate "the causes of the alleged low prices of beef cattle in the United States in July and the unusually large margin between the prices of beef cattle and the selling prices of fresh beef."

The resolution directs Secretary Cortelyou to ascertain and report whether the prices have been manipulated by any corporate combination, and, if so, what the capitalization, management and profits of such combinations are.

From St. Louis, the inspectors will visit Chicago, Kansas City and St. Joseph, and will also probably go to Omaha.

VICTIMS OF EXPLOSION.

Six Young Girls Known to have Been Killed, and Death List May Be Increased.

Scranton, Pa., April 1.—A number of girls employed in the Dickson Squib Manufacturing company's works at Priceburg, near here, were killed from an explosion yesterday. The number killed is estimated from 6 to 13. Eighteen or twenty girls were employed in the building at the time of the explosion.

The cause of the accident is a mystery. One story is to the effect that, previous to the explosion, one of the girls threw a squib into a stove and the explosion that followed was of sufficient force to wreck the building and set the structure on fire.

A FRIGHTFUL LEAP.

Man Jumps from Top Floor of Twenty-One Story Building in New York.

New York, April 2.—Sidney Johnston Hayden, of the Hotel Holley, yesterday jumped to the street from the top floor of the 21-story skyscraper at Broadway and New street. Nearly every bone in his body was broken. Hayden went into one of the unoccupied offices on the top floor of the New street side, raised a window, laid an umbrella he carried on the ledge and at once crawled out and jumped. His body made one full turn backward and struck the pavement with fearful force. Most of the persons, who were passing in the street ran away in horror.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Three Men Killed and Several Injured at Albia, Ia.—Cause Unknown.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 4.—An explosion in the Citizens' national bank building at Albia yesterday morning resulted in three being killed and several injured. The dead are: R. Ramsey, Edward Dougherty, Richard Grimes. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but it is supposed it originated in the heating plant. Besides the bank building, a clothing store and two grocery stores were destroyed by fire. The loss is $75,000.

Naval Officer Kills Himself.

Pensacola, Fla., April 2.—Lieut. Commander Edgar Townsend Warburton, chief engineer of the battleship Maine, now in this harbor, committed suicide in his cabin on board the vessel Friday. No cause is known for the act. He appeared to be in the best of health and spirits and within a few weeks would have been assigned to shore duty. Many of the officers expressed the belief that death was the result of an accident and that the commander had not committed suicide.

Bandits Resentenced.

Chicago, April 2.—Judge Kersten Friday resentenced the car-barn bandits—Peter Niedermeyer, Harvey Van Dine and Gustav Marx—to be hanged at the county jail April 22, the date originally fixed and then questioned as to its legality. By this proceeding he clarified the previous sentence of technical errors and made impossible, the state's attorneys think, any chance for respite or escape from the gallows.

Stabbed to Death.

Cairo, Ill., April 4.—Martin Farrell, an engineer, who has lately been employed on the towboat Mary Michael, was stabbed to death Sunday by James Cofty, a cigar maker, who came to this city from Poplar Bluff, Mo. Farrell came from Memphis to Cairo and claimed Philadelphia as his home. Both men were under the influence of liquor.

Train Held Up.

San Francisco, Cal., April 1.—The north-bound Oregon express was held up by three masked men at Capley, near Keswick, Shasta county. The bandits blew up the express car and looted it. Messenger O'Neill was killed while trying to defend his car. The amount secured is not known.

Walks Into the Rapids.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 2.—Otis White, of Ransomville, an old man, committed suicide at Prospect Point Friday by deliberately walking into the rapids where he sat down and was carried over the American falls.

The Public Debt.

Washington, April 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business March 31 last, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $915,422,101, a decrease for the month of $2,612,533.

STRIKE CLOSES EVERY IOWA MINE

OPERATORS AND MEN UNABLE TO AGREE AND 13,500 OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

Failure to Arrive at Agreement Regarding Wages of Unskilled Labor Causes Strike—the Illinois Miners Come to An Agreement.

Des Moines, Ia., April 1.—Unable to agree to the arbitration of their difficulties, the Iowa miners and operators split in joint conference yesterday, with the result that every mine in the state will be shut down, throwing 13,500 miners out of employment. The conference adjourned a session covering a period of six weeks, the latter part of which was devoted to an attempt on the part of both to arrive at some amicable conclusion.

The split resulted from a refusal on the part of the operators to raise the wages of the unskilled and to lower the price of blasting powder demanded by the men.

Nothing to Do But Fight.

President White, of the Iowa miners, said Thursday. "The miners have made every attempt to arbitrate, and were unable to reach an agreement. There is nothing else to do now but to fight it out to the end. I shall never sanction an agreement under the present conditions."

Leading operators say the position of the miners is untenable, and that they cannot reach them so long as they cling to their present position. It is believed the lockout may be the beginning of a long and hard struggle.

To Keep Mines Dry.

Des Moines, Ia., April 2.—A truce for 15 days has been declared between the coal operators and the striking miners, and the latter are furnishing enough men to keep the engines and pumps going at each mine in the state, so that they may be kept dry.

Illinois Miners Yield.

Springfield, Ill., April 4.—The Illinois miners and operators have signed the state agreement, effective for two years. When the joint convention met Sunday there was not one dissenting vote against the agreement reached by the joint scale committee. Three cents a ton for mining coal is the reduction made. The contract prohibits boycott of railroads.

Reward for Train Robbers.

San Francisco, April 4.—As a reward for the capture of the Redding train hold ups the Southern Pacific offers $250, Wells Fargo $300 and the state $300. The railway and the express companies are expected to increase the amounts offered by them. The officers believe the robbers live near the scene of the hold-up, and have a clew with which they are satisfied, but which they will not make public.

Left a Confession.

Muscatine, Ia., April 1.—The mystery surrounding Patrick McGath, who was found dead in a church near Kansas City Monday, with a written confession in his pocket that he killed Policeman Neibert of this city in 1896, is gradually clearing. McGath was unmistakably identified. He was accused of robbing a post office in this vicinity and disappeared soon after.

Will Not Decline.

Washington, April 4.—The Indiana delegation will not present Fairbanks' name for the vice presidential nomination, but if the rest of the country insists the senator will not refuse.

Overstreet Renominated.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 4.—Congressman Jesse Overstreet was renominated Saturday afternoon by the republicans of the Seventh district, by acclamation.

THE NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Summary of Work Done in Senate and House by the Lawmakers at the Fifty-Eighth Session.

Washington, April 1.—The attention of the senate yesterday was divided between the bill for the repeal of the desert land, the timber and stone and the homestead commutation laws and the post office appropriation bill. In the house consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill was concluded and the conferees on the agricultural appropriation bill was agreed to.

Washington, April 2.—Yesterday was devoted by the senate to almost continuous discussion of political questions. The latter half of the day was devoted to the post office appropriation bill, but no appreciable progress was made. The house passed the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Washington, April 4.—Discussion of the old-age pension order occupied the time of the senate Saturday. In the house 319 pension bills were passed.

THE FLOOD SITUATION.

The Conditions Are Improving in Michigan, But in Indiana the Outlook Is Serious.

Detroit, Mich., April 1.—Flood conditions all over Michigan are steadily improving, and it is thought that all danger from high water is over in the state. Rain fell in the Saginaw valley, but it has not had any effect on the fall of the rivers in the valley. At Grand Rapids the river continued to fall during the night, and conditions showed very material improvement. Five lives have been lost and probably upwards of five million dollars' worth of damage to property has been done by the flood in the state.

Crestline, O., April 2.—All the lower districts in Crestline and vicinity are under water, and for the second time within a month in nearly half a century the town has suffered great damage. Portions of 100 houses are under water.

Evansville, Ind., April 4.—All the rivers in southern Indiana are falling slowly. It is estimated that there are 10,000 homeless people along White and Wabash rivers.

Small lakes in northern Indiana are bank full and flooding the lowlands. At Alexandria two bridges went out and Scott Town, a suburb, is entirely cut off. State Mine Inspector Epperson says there is general damage to coal mines all over the state, especially in Greene, Clay and Parke counties.

Big Landslide in New York.

Rochester, N. Y., April 4.—Inhabitants in the vicinity of Devil's Hole, near Dansville, Livingston county, have been terrified over a big landslide occasioned by some subterranean phenomena as yet unexplained. The slide was accompanied by the sound of a muffled explosion which appeared to come from the earth. No material damage is reported.

Troops Go Home.

Denver, Col., April 4.—According to special dispatches from Telluride, all of the troops sent there when martial law was reestablished ten days ago, with the exception of the Meeker cavalry and the home troop, left the camp Sunday under orders to proceed to their home stations. This leaves less than 100 militiamen at Camp Telluride.

Murderous Attack of Son.

Eau Claire, Wis., April 4.—Mrs. Burns, a widow 70 years old, was attacked by her son with a hatchet Saturday morning as she lay in bed, sustaining a fractured skull, and will die. Jan Burns, her son, a middle-aged bachelor, is in jail. He is thought to be insane.

Five at One Birth.

Denison, Tex., April 4.—Mrs. May Bradley, wife of a ranchman living near Kiowa, I. T., has given birth to five children, each weighing seven pounds. All the children are apparently healthy and strong.

The Cow and the Bank.

Princeton Union: President Keller of the First National Bank of Albert Lea stated at a southern Minnesota bankers' meeting the other day that the cow and the bank had made his county to bloom as the rose, as they had worked together for the prosperity of the community. Freeborn county has seventeen creameries whose monthly output amounts to $62,000, and this sum goes principally to the farmers. Mr. Keller remarked that not a failure was ever known among the creameries, and the banks never lost a cent loaned them.

THE LUMBER MILL TANGLE

City Brings Suit to Hold Property for Company's Forfeiture of Contract.

The properties and effects of the Red Lake Falls Lumber company, which have been in dispute for so long a time and were recently sold under judgment to H. W. Stecher, of Cleveland, O., are again the subject of court proceedings. Last evening before Judge Watts at his chambers in Crookston arguments were made by the city of Red Lake Falls in which the disposition of the property and the removal of the machinery and buildings is asked to be stopped. The city claims the property on which the mill stands because of the forfeiture of the milling company's contract with the city.

In the beginning of the mill companp's existence the city of Red Lake Falls gave the promoters of the mill a $10,000 bonus and agreed to furnish a warranty deed of the property needed for the plant. The mill company on their side of the bargain agreed among other things to run the plant at least seven years. The promoters, when they discovered that the plant was not a money making proposition, stopped operation after running five years and for the last two seasons not a wheel in the plant has moved.

The city, however, thought otherwise, and after examining the matter instituted proceeding to stop the transfer of the property. The defense in their arguments contended that the municipality of Red Lake Falls under the charter which the city possesses is not empowered to donate bonuses to any private enterprise and that even if the city were empowered the provisions of the city's contracts were violated by the refusal of the saw mill committee appointed to issue to the mill a warranty deed. The city was represented by City Attorney Chas. E. Boughton and the defence, H. W. Stecher, of Cleveland, Ohio, by Attorney F. A. Grady, and the arguments were quite technical.

At the hearing of the case last evening in the chambers the attorneys for both sides, after arguing the matter for some time, requested that the hearing be postponed until April 29th when final arguments will be made.

TWO SENT TO FERGUS FALLS

Henry W. Peterson and Mrs. Emma Wik Declared Insane by the Probate Court.

Two examinations for insanity took place at the office of the judge of probate last week, both cases coming from St. Hilaire.

The first was that of Henry W. Peterson, formerly a promising young merchant of that place. For sometime he has been a victim of the drink habit, and after a little while business reverses came to augment his troubles. About the first of February Mr. Peterson was taken to a Minneapolis hospital for treatment, but it seemed to do no good, and during the past few weeks his malady has assumed alarming proportions. He had to be watched constantly night and day, and it was almost impossible to get him to go to bed. The physicians agreed that he was insane, and the court directed that he be taken to the asylum. Sheriff Linnihan and Edward Peterson went to Fergus Falls with him Thursday night.

The other examination was held Friday, and was a peculiarly sad case. The unfortunate person was Mrs. Emma Wik, of St. Hilaire, and the condition of her mind is undoubtedly due to poverty. Mrs. Wik's husband was a farmer in Garnes township. He died about a year ago, leaving scarcely anything in the way of worldly goods, and what little personal effects he owned were heavily mortgaged. She was left with ten children, the youngest of whom is now less than ten years of age. Continued struggle and worry unbalanced her mind, and for some months past indications of insanity were noticeable. She was taken to Fergus Falls that evening by L. T. Bergh and Mrs. Charles Fellman.

GOOD PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

Reports From Gentilly, Crookston and Winnipeg Say That Rivers Are Raising.

The prospects for high water at Crookston are pretty good just at present. Just below the Louisville ferry the biggest ice jam in the Red Lake river known for years is reported. At Gentilly fears for the safety of the new steel pridge are entertained, and at Crookston the lower parts of the city are almost sure to be flooded as soon as the ice goes down the river.

At Winnipeg the Red River has already reached a high stage and considerable damage has been done to property. The river is almost certain to raise several feet during the next week. A special to the St. Paul Dispatch says: "At midnight the flood water from the Red River [illegible]bbing down main street and the barns of the Winnipeg Electric Street Railway company are being washed by a strong current, and it is expected, will be swept away unless something can be done immediately to prevent it. The water is rising rapidly and it is endangering the bridges. Since yesterday the Red River has risen 19 feet and the people along its banks are fleeing to places of safety. The police and citizens are rendering all the assistance they can, and up to the present there has been no authentic reports of loss of life. The Assiniboine river is also rising rapidly and from all parts of the province come reports of thrilling escapes.

Secured a Divorce.

"Hank" Murray, the old time conductor who is well known here, recently secured a divorce from his wife. The Crookston Times says: "A decree of divorce was granted [illegible] T. Murray by Judge Watts on [illegible]day. No defence was made on the part of the defendant. Mr. Murray was given the guardianship of the little girl, and leaves tonight for Visitation Convent where she will be educated. The residence on Houston avenue has been sold to Martin O'Brien who will occupy it.

RED LAKE INDIANS AGREE

Early Evacuation of the Eleven Towns to Be opened Sanctioned by the Reds.

The chiefs and head men on the Red Lake Indian reservation have signed an agreement to remove from the eleven townships in the west end before June 30. The local Indians are adding their signatures to the list as fast as they can arrive and the matter will be finally settled in a general council which is called for tomorrow.

Colonel Downs, through whose efforts the agreement was secured has returned to Thief River Falls and will preceed at once with the appraisement of the Indian improvements on the lands to be sold. The sale will probably begin on July 1 and continue through July and August.

Sugar Trust Opposes Dunn.

Mapleton Enterprise: According to government reports the beet sugar industry is past the experimental stage in this country and sugar producing is an assured fact. This condition was recognized by R. C. Dunn, several years ago, when he refused to pay a bounty to the Minneapolis factory, and as a consequence one of the strongest corporations to oppose his candidacy is this self same sugar manufactory. Although producing sugar at a profit they desire the state bounty as additional profits, not being satisfied with their legitimate earnings.

It Makes a Difference.

Mapleton Enterprise: Attorney General Knox announces that there will be no criminal proceedings in the merger case. This would indicate that all the talk about prosecuting the trusts was a play to the galleries and for political effect. If the merger is against the interests of the people, why not prosecute the same as would be the case where a poor man steals a few dollars worth of coal to keep his famfly from freezing or bread to keep them from starving. Wealth should be no cloak of protection from the laws of the country.

IMPRESSIVE CHURCH AFFAIR

Adams Presbytery Will Install Rev. H. W. Knox on Next Thursday Evening.

The Adams presbytery of the Presbyterian church will meet at Thief River Falls next Wednesday afternoon to elect a moderator and other officials for the ensuing semi-annual term. Each church in the presbyterv is entitled to two delegates, one of whom is the pastor in charge. The meeting will act upon the call of Rev. Mr. Nichol to the Thief River church.

It is expected the presbytery will adjourn on Thursday to Red Lake Falls, and in the evening of that day Rev. H. W. Knox will be formally installed as pastor of the church at this place. The installation sermon will be delivered by Rev. McLeod, of Bemidji. Rev. R. N. Adams, pastor at large, will deliver the charge to the people, and Rev. McKenzie, of Crookston, the charge to the pastor. The ceremony will be very interesting, and as the speakers are among the ablest ministers in the northern part of the state, doubtless large audience will be present.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen

You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. Annual Population Estimate.

The census bureau has decided to make the annual estimates of population based upon what is known as the arithmetical method. This rests upon the assumption that the annual increase for each year since the last census will be one-tenth of the decennial increase between the last two censuses. The estimate of the population of the United State for 1903 exclusive of Alaska and the insular possessions of the United State is 79,900,389. This is an increase of 3,905,814 since the census of 1900. The following are estimates of the population in 1903 of all cities giving 25,000 and upward in Minnesota: Duluth 57,395; Minneapolis, 214,112; St. Paul, 172,038.

Red River Valley Sentiment.

There isn't a county in the Red River Valley but what from one to a dozen farmers can testify that while state auditor Bob Dunn never sold a farmer's land away from him because he was behind in his payments and unable to meet them—and he could have done so had he desired. He isn't built that way. Mr. Dunn is making his own campaign for governor. He has not been "selected" by any set or clique of men to make the race—but he will be selected by the Republican party as its candidate at the coming state convention because the people want him—and the politicians don't.—Norman County Index.

They're Solid For Dunn.

Warren Register: While in Crookston this week ye editor bumped up against nobody but Dunn men. On inquiring as to the gubernatorial situation there, we were informed that Polk county was practically unanimous for the Princeton man. We were asured, furthermore, that Dunn would carry, not only Polk but Red Lake, Norman, Beltrami, and Clearwater counties. This was not said as a bluff, but intended for straight goods. In all the counties above mentioned Collins is regarded as a very poor second in the race, while Eddy is not in the running at all.

A Sad Predicament.

Roseau Region: The editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette finds himself standing like the man with the rope around his neck after the sheriff had sprung the trap. Heretofore an ardent supporter of Bob Dunn, the paper last week suddenly discovered the error of its ways. The flop gave the other newspaper men down in that end an opportunity for saying a lot of mean things—even insinuating that the Gazette man had been tampered with.

Now is the time to take a spring tonic to purify the blood, cleanse the liver and kidneys of all impurities. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do the business. 35 cents. Tea or tablets. A. L. Reichert.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

By the "News Tattler."

Mr. O. Moreau of Red Lake Falls was here on business Tuesday morning.

Rev. Mr. Fournier left Monday for a visit at Argyle. He will return Friday.

George Dupont, of the firm of Dupont & Sons, made a hurried trip to the upper town Monday evening.

Mrs. Rose Cutler from Montana is visiting with her father, Mr. Ambrose Godbout, and other relatives.

The Easter vacation has been extended one week. The roads are in such a condition that it is possible for but few of the children to reach the school house.

Dr. Tessier, Rock Lefevre and several others are leaving in the near future for Saskatoon in the Canadian N. W. The good wishes of the many friends of Dr. Tessier, who are sorry to see him leave, will accompany him to his new field of labor. The departure of Dr. Tessier will leave a good open field, which we hope will soon be filled by another good and competent M. D.

Our pastor of a few months, Rev. Mr. Fournier, we are sorry to say, is about to leave us. The parish has enjoyed an unprecedented term of peace and good will during the time of Father Fournier's stay here, his kindly bearing and disposition making friends of all those who know him. Father Fournier would undoubtedly remain with us but his health is in such a poor state that he can no longer continue at parish work. The best wishes of the parish will accompany him whithersoever he may go.

WYLIE.

Miss Nora Dargan visited over Sunday at Red Lake Falls.

John Fangstrom returned from the woods last Monday.

M. E. Todd was a visitor to Red Lake Falls Tuesday. He says the roads are not first-class as yet.

Axel Sandberg was over from Crookston Sunday to visit the folks at home. Mr. Sandberg is employed at the Crookston Milling company.

Andy Letvig has moved his family to St. Hilaire. We will all miss Andy, and trust his removal from Wylie is only a temporary arrangement.

The Wylie cheese factory has no manager at present, but it is expected that an experienced man will be secured before the factory starts up on May 1.

Hans Wilson and family have moved into the Letvig house, and Hokan Johnson has moved his family down from St. Hilaire into the Wilson property.

Winfred Johnson left Monday evening on a prospecting trip to Washington and Oregon. It he likes the country Mr. Johnson may conclude to move there.

M. E. Todd went to Crookston last evening for a surgical operation on the lid of his right eye. An unusual growth developed there about a year ago, and seems to be getting worse. We hope Mr. Todd will secure relief.

Festy Ridge returned last week from an extended visit to Ireland, and while there married the "sweetheart he left behind" several years ago. The couple were given a serenade Monday evening. The many friends of Mr. Ridge will extend congratulations and wish for him and his bride a long and happy married life.

Louie Noel finished moving his household goods to Red Lake Falls Saturday, and has rented his farm to M. Connaughty for the coming year.

Mr. Otis, the mailman from Crookston to Red Lake Falls, was not able to make his regular trip Sunday on account of the bad condition of the roads.

EMARDVILLE.

Andrew Ellingson went down to Terrebonne on business Monday.

Mr. Engelbretson has a tougn job carrying his mail nowadays.

Martin Reines, a friend of George Walla, is on the sick list.

Mr. Gilberson had quite a job to open up the state ditch Monday. The snow dammed the water so that it made the outlet on his farm, which didn't make it very pleasant, especially as he expected to get at his spring work in a day or two.

Nels Steen was looking around Monday to see how the country looked after the snow was off the ground. He thinks the country is all right, and wishes some good farmers would come up and buy the wild land in his neighborhood. If our country was only better settled the price of land would double in a few years.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of Twenty-one ($21.00) Dollars interest, which became due November 6th, 1903, and which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Bernth Olson and Esther Olson, his wife, Mortgagors, to De Nederlandsch-Amerikaansche Hypotheekbank (The Netherlands-American Mortgage Bank), Mortgagee, bearing date the 6th day of November, 1899, and with a power of sale contained therein, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 15th day of November, 1899, at 4:45 o'clock p. m., in Book 28 of Mortgages, on page 600 thereof.

And, whereas, it is provided in and by the said mortgage that should default be made in the payment of any of the sums secured by the said mortgage when and as the same becomes due, the owner or holder of the said mortgage might declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage at once due and payable.

And, whereas, the said De Nederlandsch-Amerikaansche Hypotheekbank (The Netherlands-American Mortgage Bank), the Mortgagee and holder of said mortgagee, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of the said mortgage and of the power of sale therein contained.

And, whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable at the date of this notice, the sum of Three Hundred Thirty and 65-100 ($330.65) Dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of seven per cent. per annum since the 11th day of April, 1904.

And, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage.

Now, Therefore, Notice is Hereby Given, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by the said mortgage, the said premises being described as follows, viz:

The West Half of the South-East Quarter of Section Twenty-Six (26) in Township One Hundred Fifty-One (151), Range Forty-One (41), in the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of the said Red Lake County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Red Lake Falls, in the said County and State, on Thursday, the 2d day of June, 1904, at two o'clock p. m. of that day at public vendue, or auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt of Three Hundred Thirty and 65-100 ($330.65) Dollars, and interest, and the taxes, if any, paid on the said premises, and the sum of Twenty-Five ($25.00) Dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by the said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, April 11, 1904.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very mush discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

THE Sauk Center Avalanche notes that the supreme court of the state of Minnesota is now out of politics.

IF John Lind was not ineligible it would not be surprising if Minnesota had a Democratic nominee for the vice-presidency this year.

THE Atlanta Journal notes that President Roosevelt is still carrying out the policies of the late President McKinley and burying them.

THE local Republican organ is greatly excited with regard to Democratic presidential possibilities, but still maintains an eloquent silence on the Republican gubernatorial tangle.

A LITTLE boy was once caught by his mother with his hand in the strawberry jam. The boy had nothing to say. This is the unhappy predicament of the local Republican organ on the governorship proposition.

UP to date the enterprising war correspondents have driven seventeen million Russians across the Yala river. Pretty soon they will all be over and we shall expect to hear of some fighting on the other side.

POOR Senator Burton is receiving the castigation of everybody nowadays. And Burton's worst crime was in being found out. If all the boodlers and bribe-takers in congress were punished the federal prisons would enjoy a lively business.

AFTER the national conventions it is expected that county politics will take the front of the stage. Up to date there has been but little talk with regard to local affairs. It is expected that most of the present incumbents will be candidates for re-election, though none of them have made authorative declaration as yet.

THERE is an old story about a porcupine trying to go through a hole in the fence. After he got his head through the animal discovered the hole was too small, and in attempting to back out the bristles got in the way. Perhaps the political editor of our local contemporary can understand the significance of this fable.

RULES and regulations governing the sale of the lands within the Red Lake reservation in Minnesota, in accordance with the Steenerson act, are nearing completion at the interior department. It is the intention of Secretary Hitchcock to have the sales made about July 1 if the Indians can be removed from the reservation by that time.

"OLD GORGON GRAHAM" is made to say in the Saturday Evening Post that "as long as fond fathers slave and ambitious mothers sacrifice so that foolish daughters can hide the petticoat of proverty under a silk dress and crowd the space in their heads, which ought to be filled with plain, useful knowledge, with the doings of cheap society, a lot of girls are going to grow up with the idea that getting married means getting rid of care and responsibility instead of assuming it."

HON. L. C. SIMONS is accredited by the Gazette as an aspirant for re-election as representative from this legislative district. Mr. Simons has made a good record, and as the district is hopelessly Republican a nomination is almost equivalent to an election. Since the election of a Republican to this office is inevitable, the people of Red Lake Falls, irrespective of political affiliations, will be pleased to have Mr. Simons win out at the primaries. So far there have been no other candidates mentioned for the nomination.

THE reservation number of the Thief River Falls Review, issued last Saturday, is a creditable edition, containing much interesting historical matter and numerous special articles regarding the growth, development and prospects of its town. The paper does not contain the advertising patronage such an enterprise deserves, as scarcely a dozen business houses are represented. This is to be regretted, as it detracts materially from the value of the paper. People from a distance usually judge a town by the advertising columns of the local newspapers.

THERE is still talk of congressional action making attempted assassination of the president and other high government officials punishable by the death penalty. Such a law would not be a deterrent. With men capable of conceiving and carrying out the design of assassinating a president of the United States the certainty of a death sentence as the penalty for such an act will have little if any deterrent effect. For cranks, madmen, and fanatics of that type the prospect of the scaffold has, as a rule, no adequate terrors. As a protective measure the bill does not touch the real source of danger, and it is extremely doubtful if any legislation, federal or state, can go to the root of it.

SENATOR BURTON'S conviction under the statute which makes it a misdemeanor for any member of congress to accept retainers from persons in litigation with the government is bad enough in itself. He is said to be the first United States senator ever convicted of such an offense while occupying a seat in the senate. But worse than this is the feeling that constantly manifests itself in connection with the case, that the only difference between the Kansas senator and a great many of his associates is that he has been found out. In other words, it appears to be generally believed that "practice before the departments" either for direct or indirect gain is so common that it is almost an injustice to single out Senator Burton for punishment, or at least for disgrace.

AT a memorial meeting in honor of Peter Cooper, founder of the Cooper Union in New York city, Andrew Carnegie delivered an address in which he said: "It is not to the millions, or by the millions, that the greatest advances are won. It is to the individual that we owe the divine impulse. The distribution of wealth is the greatest problem of the age. No revolution ever did much or any good in this world; no true evolution ever failed to do anything but good. I would not wish to be understood as putting down life as a mere pursuit of money. I think that a man who has entered any kind of profession is working for the advancement of the race. The successful captain of industry is not of that low type who seeks the hoarding of dollars as his life work. The money which reaches beyond his wants he seeks to find use for in the bettering of others."

THE Collins literary bureau has not made many heavy claims for the Ninth district, and the only counties where they have the slightest show are Kittson and Marshall, and in the latter the chances are about equal. Red Lake, Roseau, Polk, Norman, Clearwater, and Beltrami are admittedly overwhelming for Dunn, and from reliable reports the southern part of the district is almost certain for Dunn. The Eddy strength is nil. Nobody takes the ex-congressman's candidacy seriously. It is doubtful if he has a vote in the convention outside of his own county. The Collins prospects are even less promising than they were a month ago, and the Judge's last stand will be made in Hennepin county. Collins must have Minneapolis, or give up. If Dunn gets it the fight is all over but the shouting. Dunn already has Ramsey and St. Louis, and more than three-fourths of Northern Minnesota. If he gets Hennepin the nomination will go to him well-nigh unanimously, but he can easily win without Hennepin.

WITHIN a year there have been the postal scandals; the conviction of one member of congress on charges of defrauding the government; the narrow escape of another member and a senator on a similar charge; the statute of limitations has been the only barrier to the prosecution of one of the highest department officials; impeachment proceedings have been begun against a federal judge; charges of corruption and maladministration have been brought against the land office and the Indian bureau, and we have been told how several hundred senators and members of congress were in the habit of improperly influencing the administration of the post-office department in the political or pecuniary interests of themselves or their friends. So many different scandals have never before been crowded into one year of our life. And yet we are told how benificent and economical the Republican administration has been. Really, if a private business concern had servants of this kind, wouldn't the manager be asked to to make a general housecleaning or resign?

LOOKS LIKE PARKER.

The Democratic presidential situation is just at present attracting a larger attention than the Republican, caused, doubtless, by the fact that the latter party has made up its mind to re-nominate President Roosevelt, thus eliminating the element of uncertainty as to the nominee. On the other hand, the Democrats have quite a field of eligibles to choose from, and during the past ten days there has been considerable discussion of the merits and qualifications of the various candidates. The Hearst boom had an early start, and a lot of systematic campaign work was done in his interest under direction of James R. Bennett, Jr., of St. Cloud, the accredited Hearst manager for Minnesota. The attempt to stampede the Minnesota Democracy for Hearst, though, has been a signal failure, since but few of the party leaders and newspapers took kindly to the ambitions of the New York editor. There are many reasons why he is not the most available candidate—so many in fact that the conservative and sober element of the party has not treated his party with seriousness. In the Ninth district the Hon. Nathaniel Campbell, of Crookston, is Hearst's chief lieutenant, and on that issue is making his campaign for delegate to the national convention. It is a difficult mental task to take the Hon. Nat seriously, so that his prospects are apt to go down with the waning star of his presidential favorite.

Of late Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, has received the endorsement of Hon. John Lind, Hon. L. A. Rosing, Hon. T. D. O'Brien, and a host of other party leaders in Minnesota. Nearly all of the leading Democratic newspapers have declared for Judge Parker, and if the convention was held tomorrow the twenty-two delegates from this state would be instructed for him. It is unlikely that a change of sentiment will occur before the convention meets at Duluth on June 22. Most of the leading Democrats in Red Lake county have expressed themselves favorable to Parker, and the Red Lake candidate for district delegate, Mr. John Morgan, of Thief River, is a pronounced Parker enthusiast.

The situation in Minnesota is not unlike like that in the other Mississippi Valley states, and in the East and South the Parker sentiment is exceptionally strong. While many unexpected developments occur in politics, the situation at the present moment indicates the nomination of the New York jurist on the first ballot.

THE TRUST BUSTERS.

President Roosevelt as a "trust-buster" has not been a conspicuous success. Up to date but two successful prosecutions have been made under the Sherman anti-trust law. One of these was against the Northern Securities company; the other against the merger of the Pennsylvania coal-carrying roads.

In the first instance the supreme court upheld the contention of the government that the organization of the Securities company was in effect an indirect method of destroying competition between the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads. But beyond the fact that a precedent was established which might have weight in future prosecutions the decision is barren of results. The regulation of railway rates and the control and supervision of railroads is a prerogative of the state, and the dissolution of the "merger" will not reduce by a single penny the freight rates of the roads involved so long as there is community of ownership and mutual "understandings."

The action against the coal-carrying roads was brought by William R. Hearst, the newspaper man and congressman from New York, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. President Roosevelt and his attorney-general declined to have anything to do with the suit, so that the decision can not be credited as a victory for the administration.

In the meantime the Standard oil trust, the sugar trust, the meat trust, the machinery trust, and hundreds of other unlawful combinations in restraint of trade, calculated to pick the pockets of the people, are allowed to continue without apparent attempt by the national administration to check or thwart them. These latter combinations are a real menace. They are not, like railroads, natural monopolies, nor are their charges subject to state or national regulations. These trusts monopolize the output of their lines by controlling the supply of raw materials or by preventing competition, or both. Against these gigantic trusts the Sherman law was aimed, and yet there has not been a single prosecution. As "trust-busters" the president and his attorney general are entitled to the booby prize.

The Black river was very high last week, and reports from Bray and Polk Center townships state that the banks were overflowed and many fields flooded. The river has not been so high in many years.

The My "Uncle From New York" company gave their entertainment at the Metropolitan opera house Saturday evening. A fair-sized house was out to hear them, and the play is reported to be very good.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the postoffice: Mrs. E. Boeman, Mrs. Alec Benoit, John Bowers, Will Farley, John Osmudsen, George Provost, Martin H. Mella, Joe Lamanto, E. N. Wright, Sakarias Shoren.

Ovide Moreau has purchased Dr. W. O. Tessier's store and residence property at Terrebonne, and it is said he intends going into business there. Mr. Moreau intends moving his family to Terrebonne as soon as the roads are passable.

Mrs. John Sutter has purchased Dr. J. Gendron's cottage in the south part of town, and is moving in this week. We hear that Mrs. Gendron expects to leave soon for an extended visit, and upon her return the family expects to board.

Paul's Hotel will hereafter run a bus to the trains, and is making arrangements to give the traveling men special accommedations by securing a larger sample room and other conveniences. Notice Mr. Paul's new advertisement elsewhere.

The Klondike bridge appears to be a goner. Since last week all of the supports have given way, and the bridge carried down the river a considerable distance. There is no way of saving the timbers, and when the Red Lake River breaks up it will be entirely destroyed.

The quarterly meeting of the Red River Valley Medical society will be held at Crookston on Tuesday evening, April 28. Dr. Tupper, of Thief River, is on the program for a paper on "Therapeutics of Light." Dr. Lemieux, of this city, is a number of the board of censors.

Miss Ina Lizotte, of Louisville and Amie Brosseau, of Crookston, were married Monday morning at the Catholic church in Louisville township, Rev. Father Theilen officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Brosseau will live at Crookston, where the groom is engaged in business.

The treasurer's trial balance for April 1 shows a cash balance of $41,269.42. Of this amount the more important funds have credits as follows: Taxes and penalties, $5,762.43; county revenue, $3,125.35; general ditch, $1,595.30; school districts $1,332.66; town, city and village, $5,861.77; county bond and interest, $6,243.83.

A new correspondent from Terrebonne is represented in THE COURIER this week. Now won't some good friend at Lambert, Garnes, Brooks and Equality offer to send in items? We desire very much to make the county news service of the paper as complete as possible.

Miss Ida Lizotte, of Louisville township, was married Tuesday at Bemidji to Cash Brunelle, of Blackduck, formerly a resident of this city. Both of the contracting parties are known to all the Red Lake Falls people, and they will join in the COURIER in extending congratulations.

A petition is being circulated by Mayor Thorkelson at St. Hilaire for a Sunday train on this branch of the Great Northern. Mr. Thorkelson expects to visit Red Lake Falls and Thief River for the purpose of securing signatures to the petition, and it is not unlikely that the road will grant the request.

The hearing of the Rapp will contest case was called at the office of the judge of probate this afternoon, and on motion of the attorney of the alleged widow, Miss Bertha Pederson, the hearing was postponed until May 27. The plaintiffs desire more time to secure depositions from California parties.

John Bowers' residence in the east part of town was destroyed by fire Monday forenoon. The blaze is supposed to have been started by a defective chimney, as Mr. Bowers had started a fire in the kitchen about an hour before the fire was discovered. The loss is estimated at $1,000, with an insurance of $800.

The last indoor band concert of the season will be held at the opera house on Friday evening, April 29. A dance will be given after the concert. The management is preparing to make this last concert one of the most attractive of the year. Prof. Oustad is drilling the boys on several high-class selections, and they are equal to the best.

Peter Rocheford, a young man at Thief River Falls, was arrested Friday on the charge of breaking the seal of a Great Northern freight car and taking therefrom property valued at about $5. An examination was held before Judge Bishop Saturday and the young man bound over to await the action of the grand jury. County Attorney Grady prosecuted the case.

Miss Janet Martin was married Tuesday morning at her home in Crookston to Mr. Henry Thielen, of Minneapolis. The couple left the the same evening for Riceville, Iowa, where they will visit at the home of the groom's parents and upon their return will go to housekeeping at Minneapolis. Miss Martin is a sister of Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere, of this city, and is well known to a great many of our people as a charming young lady.

The Knights of Pythias expect to have considerable degree work during the spring. At the last meeting an applicatian was received, and several more are in prospect. The members of the lodge will be glad to learn that another enjoyable "smoker" will be given Saturday evening in honor of Hon. W. I. Nolan. Mr. Nolan is a prince of entertainers at functions of this kind, and the participants may be be assured of a good time.

D. D. Harger, the organizer for the Maccabees, is over from Crookston again this week, and informs THE COURIER that the lodge at this place will be reorganized about the middle of next week. About ten old members and fifteen new ones will take up the work.

Hon. W. I. Nolan, the well-known impersonator and entertainer of Minneapolis, has been engaged by the Knights of Pythias to give one of his characteristic entertainments at the opera house on Saturday evening, April 16. Mr. Nolan has appeared in Red Lake Falls before and needs no commendation to those who have heard him. Reserved seats are now on sale at Anderson's jewelry store.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Prichard of Thief River Falls, returned last Saturday from an eight weeks' trip extending to New Orleans in the South and Los Angeles and Porland in the West. They covered more that 8,000 miles, and saw a good share of the United States. Mr. Prichard says that few sections of the county have advantages equal to to the Red River valley, and like many other travelers is satisfied with the prospects in Red Lake county.

There was a time when the readers of a newspaper read the the advertisements only when there was nothing else in the paper to read. But nowadays it is a patent fact that the average reader is educated to ad-reading habit. Tasty, well displayed announcements of trading places appeal to the eye, and are sure to be scanned with bargain hunting avidity. And on the other hand more advertisers are begining to realize the fact that advertising really pays.

The Duffy building, partially destroyed in the Palace fire last month, is being repaired. The city council decided that the building was not damaged fifty per cent., and that under the fire limit ordinance it could be repaired. Some of the other property owners in the block are opposed to the plan, and on the application of Mrs. Augusta Krueger Judge Watts will be asked to grant an injunction. In the meantime, however, work on the building is going forward.

While attempting to cut a hole in the ice on the Clearwater river yesterday Nels Nelson was unfortunate enough to lose a big toe. He was chopping with an axe, and a large chunk of ice come along and penned his foot against another piece of ice, with the result mentioned. Dr. Watson was called, and it was found necessary to amputate the toe. The accident is bad enough, but it might easily have been more serious.

One of the famous "Tabard Inn" libraries is to be established at A. L. Reichert's drug store, if the people of the city offer sufficient encouragement. The plan of this library is entirely new, and there is no risk or obligation in becoming a member. All that is necessary is to buy a book at $1.50. This book is the absolute property of the purchaser, and by the payment of five cents can be exchanged at any time at any "Tabard Inn" library in the world. The company will put in a library of 125 volumes, and these will be changed every sixty days. In order to secure this library it will be necessary to have 125 members.

The alumni of the Red Lake Falls high school met at the home of Leland Healy Saturday evening to perfect an organization and arrange for entertaining the graduating class this year. The alumni has twenty-nine members, of whom twelve were present at the meeting. Officers were elected as follows: President, Miss Delia Toupin; vice-president, Miss Etta Garceau; executive committee, Misses Lulu Fletcher and Katie Berthiaume and Messrs. Leland Healy and Abner Fletcher. The nature of the entertainment to be given the seniors has not been announced as yet. Refreshments were served, and a general good time enjoyed.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

GEORGIANA CYR, WM. ITTNER, W. JOHNSON,
Reporters

The next debate will be given Apr. 29.

Monday's fire caused a large absence at the schools.

The remaining two months will be brim full of hard work and study.

The fourth-yeer English class has been working on sermons this week.

A certain unworked puzzle has kept the students "up in the air" this week.

Clara Marchand returned to school Friday after an absence of about a week.

The Ancient History class is studying the beginnings of the modern nations of Europe.

Crabb's books on synonys are not used much because there is a danger of being pinched.

The Ancient History class put some excellent maps of Europe on the board this week. (Nit.)

The storm windows have been taken off and the "gentle" breeze of spring flows in upon us.

Some of the high school girls have an "ad" in a late number of the St. Paul Dispatch. Look it up.

The second-year English class began work on Selections from Tennyson's Idylls of the King this week.

There is still one debate and a Spartan program on the literary schedule. The banner prospect is bright for the Spartans.

The Athenians were rather unfortunate with there program last Friday and made only 19 points, which is the lowest on record.

The Juniors held a meeting Tuesday after school and made arrangements to raise more money for their banquet expenses.

Miss Iddings had the misfortune to bruise her hand while preparing the apparatus for the physics class Tuesday morning.

The Seniors held a business meeting Monday after school. The expences of the class play were allowed and the profit was stored away.

The physics class has completed the work on electricity and is now on the last chapter, sound and light. Next month will be spent in reviewing.

Dora Marchand, a former student and active literary worker, visited us and attended the program Friday afternoon.

A new reporting committee takes charge of the Spartan high school notes next week. We have done our duty and hope the new committee will do likewise.

A group of girls at the windows were expressing deep sorrow. "Oh, the mean things; that's cruelty to animals." On looking out we noticed a two mule tread mill in operation.

The tardy list has decreased during the last few weeks. Probably the approach of warm weather and the open rivers makes the boys realize that "its the early boy that gets the best angle worms for fishing."

The history classes have discontinued the study of the Russia-Jap war because of the unreliable newspaper reports. The work will be taken up again when the truth is firmly established.

A number of the graduates assembled at the residence of E. L. Healy Saturday evening and organized an alumini association. Delia Toupin was elected president and Etta Garceau vice president; an executive committee was appointed.

On of those never ceasing catches was played upon a physic student this week. He was called upon to tell the number of notes in a diatonic scale, his beethoren friend at his elbow whispered "twelve," "Twelve," promptly replied the speaker on the floor.

Prof. Whiteley has announced the final marks of the members of the class of '04 and gave the titles of the essays and orations for the coming graduation exercises. The main topic or subject of discussion is Minnesota. Dan C. Johnson is the salutatorian and Wm. F. Itner, valedictorian. The complete program will be given later.

PLEASURE PARTY MEETS SAD FATE

CRAFT UPSET WHILE SAILING NEAR TAMPA, FLA., AND FIVE PERISH.

All the Victims Were Connected with a College at Sutherland—Three Children Break Through Ice in Michigan and Are Drowned.

Tampa, Fla., April 6.—Five persons, all members of a pleasure party from the Florida Methodist college at Sutherland, were drowned near Anclote lighthouse Monday night. The dead are: Mrs. Walker, wife of the president of the college; Miss O'Conner, of Atlanta; Miss Slaughter, of Sutherland; Miss McCray, of Sutherland; Mr. Boutland, of Sutherland. President Walker and Miss Newton reached the beach alive. The bodies of Mrs. Walker and Miss O'Connor have not yet been recovered. The bodies of the other three who lost their lives were washed ashore and recovered. President Walker had taken the party out for a cruise to the lighthouse, but met with rough water and the boat was overturned in the gulf. The Florida Methodist college is located at Sutherland, on the west coast of the gulf, about thirty miles from Tampa.

Through the Ice.

Tustin, Mich., April 6.—The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holmes, Laura, aged 13; Hazel, aged 11, and Wendell, aged nine years, residing three miles southwest of Tustin, were drowned in a large pond less than forty rods back of their home yesterday. The pond was covered with a thin coat of ice, on which the children ventured. The ice was not strong enough to support them and they sank together in 13 feet of water. When the bodies were recovered two hours later the children's hands were still tightly clasped.

BURTON IS SENTENCED.

Kansas Senator Must Spend Six Months in Jail and Pay Fine of $2,500.

St. Louis, April 9.—United States Senator J. R. Burton, of Kansas, was Wednesday sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the Iron county jail and fined $2,500 for having been convicted of using his influence before the post office department in behalf of the Rialto Grain & Securities company, of St. Louis, and having received payment from the company for his services. Judge Adams overruled the motions for a new trial and for arrest of judgment. The case will now be appealed to the United States district court of appeals, the highest tribunal in the matter.

The Iron county jail, to which Senator Burton was sentenced for six months, is located in the county seat of Ironton, Mo., a village of 1,400 population, 88 miles southeast of St. Louis, on the Iron Mountain railroad. According to the rule of the jail, which shortens each year's sentence by three months for good behavior, Senator Burton's period of incarceration there may be reduced to 4½ months.

INDIANA PROHIBITIONISTS.

Fail to Suggest Nominee for President—The Ticket Named and Platform Adopted.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 7.—The prohibitionists of Indiana in convention on Wednesday nominated Felix T. McWhirter, of this city, for governor, and elected delegates and alternates to the national convention. The convention took no action regarding a nominee for president. Following are the delegates at large to the national convention: Charles E. Newlin, Indianapolis; Homer L. Hall, Franklin; L. C. Masters, Muncie; Rev. A. L. Crim, La doga.

The platform declares that all laws permitting the sale of intoxicating liquors are "contrary to the voice of the supreme court of the United States," and "the prohibitionists of Indiana ask for a repeal of all such laws which now make our state a party to the crime of liquor selling." The request is made for a legislative enactment prohibiting the "manufacture, sale, importation, exportation and transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes within the state, nation or foreign possessions." Legislation which "shall place capital and labor on an equal footing before the law" is approved.

DEATH IN DENSE FOG.

Trains Collide Near Chicago—Three Indians Killed and Many Injured.

Chicago, April 8.—Three Indians were killed and 23 injured in a rear-end collision on the Northwestern railroad near Melrose Park shortly after 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Three of the injured Indians are probably fatally hurt. The wreck is thought to have been caused by the thick fog which obstructed the view of the engineer of the train which caused the collision. The Indians were members of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, on a trip to Washington to see President Roosevelt before sailing for England. The Indians seemed crazed with fear. More than a score who managed to escape from the telescoped car jumped to the ground and ran across the prairies. Those killed were: Kill Head, in rear of coach, head crushed; Philip Irontail, crushed between timbers, died before aid could reach him; Thomas Comelast, found dead beneath pile of seats. According to the members of the train crew, the engineer of the fast mail was at fault.

Will Lay Corner Stone.

Washington, April 11.—The Daughters of the American Revolution will hold their thirteenth continental congress in the week beginning April 18. The congress will be interesting mainly because the corner stone of the Memorial Continental hall will be placed in position.

Famous Boers in St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 9.—Gen. Cronje and Commandant Van Dam, of Boer war fame, accompanied by 450 Boer soldiers, arrived here Friday to participate in the world's fair. After the fair is over they will go to Mexico to live.

May Soon Adjourn.

Washington, April 11.—April 28 has been discussed in committee rooms and among senators and representatives as not at all an improbable date for the termination of the present session of congress.

A DEFECTIVE BRAKE.

Causes Street Car Wreck in Santa Barbara, Cal.—Five Persons Lose Their Lives.

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 11.—One of the Edison company's street cars ran off the track in this city Sunday and was turned over. The accident was due primarily to a defective brake. Three people were killed instantly, and two were so badly injured that they died soon after the accident. Eighteen were more or less injured, sustaining bruises and broken bones. All are believed to be Santa Barbara people. The dead are: Francisco Dominguez, James Smith, Ramon Reyes, Leon Calderon and Earl Goland. The first three named were killed outright and their bodies terribly crushed.

Mrs. Botkin Convicted.

San Francisco, April 8.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Cordelia Botkin, charged with having poisoned Mrs. John P. Dunning and Mrs. Deane, both of Dover, Del., five years ago, by sending them a box of poisoned candy, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and fixed the penalty at imprisonment for life. The alleged cause of Mrs. Botkin's crime was her love for Mr. Dunning.

Brings Many Seals.

St. Johns, N. F., April 11.—The steamer Panther, with 10,000 seals, arrived Sunday from the ice fields and reported that the remainder of the fleet has somewhat larger catches than announced in previous reports. The master of the Panther says that the steamer Bloodhound is following with a similar catch.

ABANDON PLAN FOR AN ATTACK

MIKADO'S FLEET AGAIN APPEARS IN FORCE BEFORE PORT ARTHUR.

Vigilance of Makaroff's Squadron Frustrates Evident Intention of Bombardment of the City—No Russians Now Remain in Korea.

St. Petersburg, April 11.—The generally anticipated attack on Port Arthur did not occur Saturday night, although a telegram received from Grand Duke Cyril reports that the enemy's ships were sighted on the horizon. It is presumed that the Japanese were warned of the extra precautions which had been taken to guard against a surprise. Vice Admiral Makaroff's torpedo flotilla patrolled the open sea, while the warships with full steam up remained outside Port Arthur.

Japanese Ships Retire.

London, April 11.—The Japanese war ships off Port Arthur retired without making a shot late Friday night when, by means of the Russian searchlights, their presence had been discovered. The Japanese fleet had been hovering off the horizon nearly 24 hours and another attack had been expected momentarily, consequently the garrison and fleet had made full preparations to meet the enemy. After nightfall it was reported to Admiral Makaroff that the Japanese were approaching the entrance of the harbor. The admiral immediately commanded his fleet to move which order was obeyed without delay, full steam having been up for several hours. The admiral, in personal command of the fleet, sailed from the harbor, and the Japanese, seeing they were discovered, turned about and disappeared. The Russians did not give chase, but, being satisfied the enemy had retired, returned to harbor.

Secret Records Captured.

Seoul, April 11.—The secret records of the Russian army in Manchuria have been captured by the Japanese and brought to Pingyang.

Russian Troops to Front.

Paris, April 11.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Echo de Paris telegraphs that a competent staff officer there says Russia is not weakening her European frontier garrisons owing to the war in the far east, and that 500,000 Russian troops will be in Manchuria by the end of May.

No Russians in Korea.

Seoul, April 11.—The Japanese minister, M. Hayashi, officially communicated to the Korean foreign office the fact of the retirement of the Russian troops across the Yalu river and the Japanese occupation of the frontier which resulted in an exchange of mutual congratulations.

EX-QUEEN IS DEAD.

Isabella, of Spain, Grandmother of Present King, Passes Away in Paris.

Paris, April 11.—Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain, grandmother of King Alfonso, died here at 9:45 o'clock Saturday morning of influenza with complications. The American embassy, which is opposite the Palatte Castile, on the Avenue Kleber, the late queen's residence, was early informed of the queen's death and Ambassador Porter was among the first to call and sign the palace register. The Infantas Isabella, Eulalie and Marie, daughters of the late queen, were at the bedside when she died.

Isabella II. was born at Madrid, October 30, 1830. At the death of her father, Ferdinand VII., September 29, 1833, she was proclaimed queen under the regency of her mother, Maria Christina. This was a signal for warfare which lasted seven years. In 1840 the queen regent retired to France. October 15, 1843, Isabella II. attained her majority and took her place among the reigning sovereigns of Europe. Her marriage to her cousin, Don Francisco de Paria, took place October 10, 1846. A great revolution broke out in Spain September 16, 1868, and a republican provisional government was formed, the queen fleeing to France. On June 25, 1870, she renounced her claim to the Spanish throne in favor of her eldest son, the prince of the Asturias, who became king as Alfonso XII. After eight years of exile she returned to Spain June 29, 1876. The deceased queen had been one of the conspicuous figures of Paris since she left Spain. After her abdication, in 1870, she continued to live with queenly magnificence here, giving largely to charitable and religious works.

Convention Cities Selected.

Milwaukee, April 8.—The democratic state central committee in session Thursday night selected Milwaukee as the convention city and May 17 as the date to select delegates at large to the national convention. Oshkosh was decided upon as the place for the convention for choosing a state ticket. The date for the Oshkosh convention was left open and will be announced later.

Headquarters Established.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—Permanent headquarters for the national democratic convention, to be held here July 6, have been established at the Hotel Jefferson, which have been formally opened to the public.

Waited Long for Revenge.

Hazard, Ky., April 9.—John J. Combs shot and instantly killed "Greasy" Combs. In 1876 John J. Combs was cut by "Greasy" Combs in a fight, crippling him and causing partial paralysis.

POPULATION OF COUNTRY.

Latest Estimate of Census Bureau Places It at 80,000,000 Exclusive of Insular Possessions.

Washington, April 8.—The census bureau Thursday issued a bulletin which gives the estimated population of the United States for 1903, exclusive of Alaska and the insular possessions of the United States, at 79,900,389. This is an increase of 3,905,814 since the census of 1900. The population is estimated for 438 cities having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1900. According to these estimates New York is now a city of 3,716,139 inhabitants; Chicago is rapidly approaching the two-million mark, having 1,873,880 inhabitants; Philadelphia has 1,367,716; St. Louis has just passed and Boston has almost reached the 600,000 mark; Baltimore has 531,313; Cleveland is now a considerable distance ahead of Cincinnati, which cities have 414,950 and 332,934 respectively. Buffalo also has considerably increased its population, being credited with 381,403 inhabitants. San Francisco and Pittsburg are close competitors, the former having 355,919 and the latter 345,043. Detroit, Milwaukee and New Orleans have just passed 300,000, and Washington is close to that figure.

In the number of towns and cities having over 10,000 inhabitants Massachusetts is in the lead with 47, containing a total of 2,197,706 inhabitants, but this total of urban population, of course, is not as large as that of New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois. Considered by states, New York leads in population with more than seven and a half million; Pennsylvania exceeds six and a half million and Illinois has passed five million. Texas has over three million, having passed Missouri. But 22 states now have less than a million inhabitants and 14 exceed two million.

Preferred Death to Capture.

Abbeville, Ala., April 11.—Capt. W. W. Milliken, who was placed in jail here on the charge of assaulting Miss Snyder, of Dothan, broke jail Sunday afternoon. He was closely pursued and fired several shots at the persons who were trying to overtake him. Finding he could not escape, he shot himself through the heart, dying immediately. Capt. Milliken was postmaster here and stood high in republican politics.

Duck Hunters Drowned.

Council Bluffs, Ia., April 9.—Jack Tennell, Charles Haskins and Smiley Baxter, three saloonkeepers, were drowned in Lake Manawa Friday while hunting ducks. The three men were crossing the lake in a small boat, when it got into a trough of the high waves and sunk.

Iowa Banks Fail.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 7.—The Exchange bank of Dow City and the Bank of Buck Grove, Crawford county, have failed with reported total liabilities of $500,000 and assets of only $150,000. Speculation in western cattle is the cause of the failure.

Juvenile Courts for Iowa.

Des Moines, Ia., April 7.—Juvenile courts will be established in Iowa by virtue of a bill which passed the house Wednesday by a unanimous vote. The measure had previously passed the senate, and was recommended by the governor.

MUST BE IN STYLE.

A woman lives across the street
Who sews both night and day;
Her children are precise and neat,
Almost too nice to play.
For she's a machine,
As she stitches there,
A sewing machine,
With a bundle of care,
A human sewing machine.

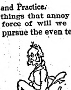
She gets no time to read or play,
Her sewing's never done;
She puzzles over fashions gay
From morn to set of sun,
For she's a machine
As she works all day,
A sewing machine
As she stitches away,
A human sewing machine.

Her husband's sure to step on frills
If he approaches near;
He flinches when he pays the bills,
For fripperies are dear,
And his wife's a machine,
With a constant tread,
A sewing machine
Made of needles and thread,
A human sewing machine.

Unless her shroud is made with care
And in the latest style,
When dead she'll not rest anywhere;
She'll worry all the while,
For she's a machine,
Though she'll die some day,
A sewing machine
That runs alway,
A human sewing machine.

Theory and Practice.

"It is the little things that annoy us, things which by force of will we can brush aside as we pursue the even tenor of our way," said the new thought professor who was delivering a lecture to the Don't Worry club.



Just then the professor sat down on the smallest sized tack made, and his theories took flight in an instant.

He Is Your Enemy.

When gentle, health restoring sleep
Your tired form is wooing,
The fish man then with accents deep,
His chosen task pursuing,
Comes round the atmosphere to jar
And spoil your dreams narcotic,
You wish to goodness you were czar
Possessed of powers despotic.

No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice.

Of course that's easy.

But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you.

We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house.

Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick.

Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money.

You are the doctor.

"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school. CASE REMANDED TO STATE COURTS

SUPREME COURT HANDS DOWN DECISION INVOLVING VALIDITY OF RAILWAY MERGER.

HOLDS GOVERNMENT HAS NO JUIRISDICTION

Justice Harlan Delivers Unanimous Opinion in Case of Minnesota Vs. Northern Securities Company—Regard It as Victory for State.

Washington, April 12.—The United States supreme court Monday decided the case of the state of Minnesota vs. the Northern Securities company and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies, involving the validity of the merger of the two railroad companies, holding that it was without jurisdiction and reversing the opinion of the court below. Justice Harlan, who delivered the opinion, said that the circuit court should not have entertained jurisdiction in the case, the effect being to remand the case to the state courts.

Synopsis of Opinion.

In delivering the opinion of the court Justice Harlan cited the facts bearing on the origin and history of the case, saying that originally the suit was instituted by the state in its own court, but that before an opinion could be reached there it was, on petition of the Securities company, transferred to the circuit court for the district of Minnesota by which court it was dismissed. Much controversy arose over the right to remove to the federal court, and after hearing the case argued once the supreme court ordered a second hearing on that point.

Justice Harlan called attention to the fact that the proceeding was for the purpose of enforcing both the state laws and federal anti-trust act, saying that the circuit court could not have taken jurisdiction if only the state statutes had been involved.

The court also refused to hold that Minnesota's dignity or rights as a state would be affected under article IV. of the federal constitution by permitting the stock of corporations of that state to be held by an outside corporation like the Securities company. Justice Harlan said the court did not think that the article of the constitution had any bearing whatever on the question.

The opinion of the court was unanimous.

Victory for Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., April 12.—The supreme court decision in the case of Minnesota against the merger is considered by the state's legal officers a virtual victory for the state, although it puts the litigation back exactly where it was when the suit was first begun. This was the original suit against the merger, begun before the federal government began its action. It was transferred from the state to the federal court. Judge Lochran, in the federal district court, took jurisdiction without much question, and decided the case on its merits against the state. The United States supreme court now says virtually that Judge Lochran should not even have assumed jurisdiction, much less decided that the merger was a legal corporation that could not be reached by the laws of Minnesota. The suit now goes back to the state courts. The attorney general's office, in view of the dissolution of the merger ordered by the supreme court, may decide to drop the litigation. But it is considered probable that it will be pushed, in order to secure a test of the constitutionality of the state law forbidding the consolidation of parallel and competing lines of railroads. The state and the merger attorneys both joined in urging upon the United States supreme court that the federal courts had jurisdiction, and the state filed a supplementary brief supporting that view.

Flood Situation at Montreal.

Montreal, Can., April 12.—The flood situation in this city and vicinity remains unchanged. There is no danger at present for the city proper, the water being lower than Sunday, and six feet below the top of the permanent dike. Across the River St. Lawrence, at La Prairie, St. Lambert and Longeuil, which were flooded Sunday, the water was entirely receded, but Verdun, the municipality west of Montreal, and on the same side of the river, is still flooded. The only thing now to be feared is a heavy warm rain. Trains from out of town points are all delayed by the floods in the surrounding country. No lives have been lost.

Clothiers in Convention.

Philadelphia, April 12.—The eighth annual convention of the National Association of Clothiers began here Monday. About 100 delegates are in attendance from Baltimore, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Syracuse, Cleveland and Boston. The unsettled condition of the clothing trade here since the garment-cutters were locked out several weeks ago will be one of the principal questions to be considered.

Decides Against Beavers.

Washington, April 12.—The United States supreme court Monday decided the New York case against George W. Beavers, late chief of the salary and allowance division of the post office department. It was an appeal from a decision by the circuit court for the Southern district of New York refusing to grant a writ of habeas corpus.

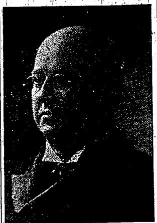
MINNESOTA NEWS.

COLONEL C. J. MONFORT.

Colonel C. J. Monfort, who had been hovering between life and death for ten days died April 9 at the Windsor hotel, St. Paul. For many years he had operated the hotel, and he was widely known through the northwest, both politically and socially.

Col. Charles J. Monfort has been one of the best known men in St. Paul for more than forty years. He assumed charge of the Windsor hotel twenty-four years ago and since that time his acquaintance widened throughout the state and the Northwest.

Col. Monfort was born in Colchester, Delaware county, N. Y., March 18, 1841. He moved to St. Paul when a young man and was connected with the People's bank, of which his brother, D. A. Montfort, was cashier. During the war he was in the office of Maj. Phinney, paymaster for the department of Dakota. He assisted in preparing Fort Ripley for defense against an attack from Hole-in-the-Day during the Sioux outbreak in 1862.



After the war he was associated with his brother in the grocery business, the firm being known as Monfort Bros. Their first store was at Seventh and Jackson streets, and they afterward moved to 5 East Third street. While the firm continued in the business it was known as the leading fancy retail grocery firm of the city.

Col. Monfort quit the grocery business in 1880 and became connected with the Windsor hotel, buying out the interest of Mr. Ball in the firm of Summers & Ball which then operated the hotel. The new management was known as Summers and Monfort. The Windsor Hotel company was formed in February, 1891, after the withdrawal of Summers from the old firm, and Monfort was made president and manager, a position which he continued to occupy.

He was appointed on the workhouse board. He was also made a colonel on the governor's staff, being the first appointed by Gov. Clough and later by Gov. Van Sant. Other than these he has held no public office.

Col. Monfort is a widower and has one daughter, Mrs. J. G. W. Dunn, and two sisters, Mrs. John Summers of St. Paul and Mrs. J. H. Keyes of Oneonta, N. Y.

Attempted Suicide.

Excitement was created at Brainerd when the city was aroused by the ringing of bells and firing of guns. When a large crowd gathered at central hose house it was learned that Mrs. John Brackner had left her home at six o'clock, leaving word that she was going to drown herself.

Posses were formed and men went out to the river banks with lanterns. One party of men had not been gone long before they spied the form of a woman on a floating cake of ice in the middle of the river. They secured a boat and rowed out just in time to rescue the woman who had evidently decided not to jump into the water but was hanging on to the ice.

Mrs. Brackner is the wife of a local blacksmith. She was recently returned to Brainerd from the Fergus Falls insane asylum.

Poisoned.

Over sixty members of the choir took part in the processional but the recessional was sung by a forlorn hope.

Thirty of the members were poisoned at a breakfast served by the church after the early morning service.

For a time it was feared some fatalities would result, but now it it is believed all those taken are out of danger.

It has been the custom of the church to provide a breakfast for the members of the choir who appear to sing at the 6:30 a. m. service on Easter, and the usual meal was prepared.

News Notes.

The employing printers and the typographical union at Duluth are at loggerheads and a strike may occur.

Fire at 2 o'clock in the morning completely destroyed the interior of the German Methodist church at Winona.

There is $1,301,014.61 in the state treasury, according the monthly report of State Treasurer Julius H. Block.

In a fit of despondency John Noel, a saloonkeeper at 1400 Fourth street NE, Minneapolis, shot and killed himself with a revolver.

The promoters of the macaroni factory at Virginia will at its completion, May 28, have a barbecue and dinner of macaroni. The visitors will be taken through the plant.

Charles Anderson, aged 85, of Hillsboro, N. D., was found in a hotel bedroom at Warroad, with his throat cut from ear to ear.

THE NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Summary of Work Done in Senate and House by the Lawmakers at the Fifty-Eighth Session.

Washington, April 6.—The senate yesterday listened to a two hours' speech on the Panama canal question and then again took up the post office appropriation bill, but adjourning without completing its consideration. In the house the military academy bill was passed without amendment.

Washington, April 7.—Senator Hepburn addressed the senate yesterday on the subject of pure food, advocating support of a measure in its interests. The committee amendment to the post office appropriation bill bearing on the salaries of carriers and regulating their service for private individuals was accepted. In the house 17 bills relating to the District of Columbia were passed.

Washington, April 8.—In accordance with the previous agreement, the senate devoted practically its entire time yesterday to eulogies upon the character of the late Senator Hanna. Resolutions of sorrow at his death were adopted, and as a further mark of respect the senate adjourned. In the house a resolution was adopted postponing the consideration of the impeachment proceedings against Judge Charles Swayne, of the Northern district of Florida, until December 13, 1904.

Washington, April 9.—The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was submitted in the senate yesterday. The bill as reported from the conference carries $9,247,930. The house passed a large number of bills, including the Philippine shipping bill and the bill appropriating $475,000 in aid of the Lewis and Clark centennial exposition, to be held in Portland, Ore., in 1905.

Washington, April 11.—In the senate on Saturday Senator Spooner replied to the strictures on the conduct of the post office department. He defended the course of the postmaster general. He also defended the president against attacks. The bill for the aid of the Portland, Ore., exposition was passed, as was the Philippine shipping bill. In the house Mr. Cockran spoke on his resolution directing an inquiry by the judiciary committee as to whether there was authority in the law for the recent executive order relating to pensions for age disability. The committee on rules had reported an order directing the resolution to lie on the table. The resolution was laid on the table, 103 to 100.

Prof. Godfred D. Englund, of Alexandria, arrived in the city yesterday, and will probably spend a couple of days here. Prof. Englund is an applicant for the position of superintendent of the Red Lake Falls schools, and a meeting will soon be held by the board of education to make a selection. He is a graduate of St. Olaf's college, and for several years was principal of the Alexandria schools. At present he is county superintendent of Douglass county.

Mrs. F. A. Whiteley and children expect to leave Monday for Big Lake, Minn., where they will visit with Mrs. Whiteley's parents until school closes. In June Mr. Whitelay expects to locate on his timber estate in Itasca county, and will spend the next several years in getting the lumber cut and hauled. He expects to realize a comfortable fortune from the timber on his three claims. Mr. Whiteley's health has been so poorly of late that he will probably give up school work entirely.

The Fountain of Youth.

Like pretty much everything else, this matter of having children has two sides to it. As a great many children are failures and as children are the joint product of heredity and environment, both elements preponderantly under parental control, it would seem more sensible to say that there were too many people undertaking parental responsibility instead of too few. And, further, parenthood has many cares and sorrows and exasperations. Still, when all is said, how many persons who have found themselves childless at forty-five have been able honestly to congratulate themselves?

Children have a use as an assurance against destitution and loneliness in old age. They are satisfactory to the vanity for family immortality. But more than these and all other advantages is the advantage of prolonging one's life. Growing children will keep any proper man or woman young in spirit and in mind, will retard the development of that sour yet complacent cynicism which curses old age both for oneself and for those about one.

The man or the woman—again, the right sort of man or woman—who has children drinks every day a deep draft at the fountain of eternal youth.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Dammaras of Africa.

In Galton's "Tropical South Africa" it is stated that the Dammaras use no term beyond three and that when they wish to express four they take to their fingers. Beyond five they cannot count at all. It is seldom, however, that they lose in a bargain through their inability to count. When bartering, each sheep or ox or whatever they may be selling must be paid for separately. If this rate of exchange were at the rate of two sticks of tobacco for one sheep it would greatly puzzle a Dammara to accept four sticks for two sheep. Galton says that he several times paid them in that way and that the Dammara forthwith set aside two sticks for one of the sheep, and even when he found that he had two sticks left for the other sheep he still had his doubts as to the genuineness of the transaction and was not satisfied until two sticks were put into his hand and one sheep driven away and then another two sticks given to him for the other sheep.

THE MODEL AT VIVON'S

By ISOLA L. FORRESTER

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The model at Vivon's had fainted.

It was in the middle of the morning sitting, the very apex of intensity in the lesson. Little Vivon moved lightly and restlessly here and there from one easel to another, his small, black eyes mere high lights of sparkling eagerness under their heavy brows. He smoked his short, thick pipe and glanced from the charcoal studies to the slim white figure on the platform.

The sunlight poured full into the long, bare atelier. Suddenly the model swayed ever so slightly and sank to the floor.

Some of the girls gave quick, frightened cries, and Jean Laurier glanced up with a smothered exclamation of angry dismay over his unfinished sketch. From the first easel to the right of the platform the American student, Hal Crane, sprang to the platform and raised her head on his arm. It was such a young head. The loose, warm tinted hair lay softly against his shoulder, and he noticed for the first time how thin the small, piquant face was.

Vivon hopped excitedly the length of the room and waved his small plump hands for order.

"It is nothing," he said. "She is fatigued, it is so warm. Can you carry her, M. Crane?"

Could he carry her? Crane smiled grimly as he raised the slender figure in his arms. Why, his little sister Bess, back in Crawfordsville, Mo., was heavier than this. He followed Vivon from the atelier away from the battery of amused, curious eyes to the artist's private den.

"Ma foi," laughed petite Yvette, her eyes narrowing critically, "that was not bad, that last. I think I shall faint, too, and let le gros Crane waltz me off in his arms."

Laurier leaned lazily over her shoulder and scrawled a rough caricature on the corner of her paper.

"Like that?"

She boxed his ears soundly and reached a greedy little hand after the box of bonbons Elsie Ticot was passing. The model was forgotten.

"Lay her there." Vivon nodded to a corner divan in the inner studio heaped high with pillows, sketches and costumes. Crane ruthlessly pushed the latter off with his foot to make room for his burden. He laid her down gently and held to her lips the glass of water Vivon brought.

"It is just faintness, yes?" asked Vivon anxiously.

Crane stared thoughtfully at the white face among the pillows. He had been hungry once back in the first days of the battle. The little home in Crawfordsville had sent him out to the great city of his dreams, and only long afterward had the fight been his own. He thought he recognized the look that comes to those who are tracked by the wolf.

"I think that she's just about starved," he said bluntly. "Get some wine or brandy or something."

Vivon obeyed. The Americans had a way that made men obey.

"Who is she?" asked Crane when he had managed to get a few drops of brandy between the pale lips.

"One of Ribaut's models," Vivon answered nervously. The sounds from the atelier were not conducive to peace of mind. Yes, she was a new one. Ribaut had sent her to him yesterday, and he had engaged her for the poise, the grace, the turn of the head, that line from the tip of the ear to the slope of the shoulder. She did not pose for the life classes, merely for drapery and the poise effective. And the name—it was in his notebook.

He took it out and read from the latest entries:

"Virginia Wade."

"American?" asked Crane, using more brandy as he saw a flutter of the eyelids.

"But, yes." Vivon shrugged his shoulders. "When they come over and are poor they must do something. Some are so proud they hide away and starve, and some put up the grand fight."

"Where does she live?"

Crane glanced up. The little artist had gone back to the atelier as a fresh crash sounded, with Yvette's peal of laughter ringing above it.

When the girl's eyelids opened he smiled down at her in a friendly fashion.

"Feel better?"

"I guess so." She hesitated and added, with a scared look in her dark blue eyes, "Did I faint in there?"

"Oh, yes; that was nothing. Lots do." Laurier had said the American had reduced cheerful lying to an art. "It's so hot there in the mornings, you know."

There was a quiver of hopeless disappointment around the curves of her mouth, and he knew what troubled her. There was a five franc piece in his pocket. He laid it unblushingly on the tabouret beside her.

"Vivon said that was yours. He couldn't wait, but he said to come tomorrow, and this is for the two sittings."

Her eyes brightened with surprise, and he knew his surmise had been right.

"I must go home," she said, trying to rise from the cushions.

"Wait while I get a carriage." Crane started for the door decidedly. "I'll send one of the girls to help you."

She thanked him with a smile that made him whistle as he went down two flights three steps at a time. When he returned he carried her down to the carriage with a masterfulness that asked no permission, and she did not demur when he took the seat beside her.

It was not hard to find her "sky parlor," as Crane called it mentally, off the Rue des Sœurs Claires. He called there the next evening, and she met him at the head of the dusty landing with a shy dignity and led the way into her attic apartment as if it had been a Louis Quinze reception room in pink and gold. A young girl, younger even than herself, sat in an easy chair by the window and smiled up at him.

"This is Lucille, my sister," Virginia said simply. Crane's quick eyes noticed the slim pair of crutches leaning beside the chair. He knew why she had posed at Ribaut's and Vivon's, why she had not hidden her poverty and starved in silent pride.

The next time he came he brought flowers for Lucille, and a new grateful friendliness flashed in the other's blue eyes.

It became a regular thing, that walk home from Vivon's to the Rue des Sœurs Claires. She showed him some of her sketches, and Crane promptly took a bunch under his arm and hawked them around the art stores with a devout persistency his own had never known. Before a month had passed she had picked up odd work coloring pen and ink proofs for one of the weeklies, and at last there came a day when she left Vivon's for good, and the future was full of hope.

"And we shall see, la-la-la; we shall see now," laughed Yvette. "He is in earnest, le gros Crane. The wedding bells will go ding-a-ling, and the little white faced Virginia will have roses in her cheeks."

"It's all your doing," Virginia told him that night when they parted at her door. "I was worn out and heart sick that day when I fainted, and you cheered me, and—and"— She faltered and held out her hand to him. There was a five franc piece in it. "Please take it back," she said. "Vivon told me, and I think it was just splendid of you."

Crane flushed hotly, but he took it. He knew her pride and that to her it was a debt of honor.

"And after today, what?" he asked. "I shall miss the walk home, and you will forget Vivon's and me."

She bent her head low over the bunch of pink roses he had given her for Lucille, and something in her silence gave him courage.

"Virginia, if you would only give me the right to sweep you and Lucille away from this, the sky parlor and the struggle that never ends! I'm strong and have gained a footing, and you could study then"— he rambled on with boyish helplessness. "I've loved you ever since that day at Vivon's when your head lay on my shoulder, and I wanted to lift you up and carry you away from it all—Laurier and Yvette and old Vivon and all of them. You seemed so different and little and alone."

She was silent still, and he waited. Out over the city some bells were ringing slow, sweet chimes, and the sparrows were fluttering sleepily around the eaves of the sky parlor over their heads.

One of the roses fell at her feet, and he raised it tenderly.

"Do you think I had better go?" The dark blue eyes looked up at him at last, and he bent toward her eagerly. "Virginia, sweetheart?"

She held the roses close to her lips and smiled at him over them.

"Won't you come up and tell Lucille?" she said softly, and he followed her up the long, dusty stairs to the sky parlor.

PRAYER TO THE JANITOR.

[illegible]

Give ear, I pray thee, to my [illegible]
That's interrupted by a cough.
There's [illegible] on my [illegible]
There's chilblains on my aching feet;
O janitor, please, janitor,
Give us a tiny bit of heat!

We've lost the iceman's friendship, for
We have no use for him or his.
The ice he furnishes ain't half
As cold as all my family is.
My wife and little ones weep hail
That sounds like buckshot on the floor;
Please give us heat or, janitor,
We never will be warm some more!

Last night I lay awake and wept
To think that when the morning came
I'd have to get me up and dressed
And start once more the freezing game.
Each child is shaking like a leaf
Of poplar in a summer storm,
And now and then I see them crawl
Into the ice chest to get warm.

O janitor, hear now the curse
That shall be thine if thou dost not Give ear unto our freezing plaint
And make this flat all nice and hot:
May you through all eternity
Sit on an iceberg stark and bare
The while a million palm leaf fans
Keep stirring up the icy air!

RED LAKE COURIER.

CONTINUING THE RED LAKE COUNTY COURIER.

VOLUME VI.—NUMBER 29. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 21, 1904. WHOLE NUMBER 289.

PETITION FOR SUNDAY TRAIN

Branch Towns Hope to Secure a Seven Day Service on Great Northern.

A petition for a Sunday train on this branch of the Great Northern is being circulated and quite generally signed at Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. The movement was originated by Mayor Thorkelson of St. Hilaire, and it is hoped that it will be successful. While a Sunday train would be very desirable for Red Lake Falls the matter is not so important here as at the other towns, as we have a star route mail service on Sundays, while the other towns have no Sunday mail at all. Mayor Thorkelson says that if they cannot secure the train they will petition the postoffice department for an overland mail.

The prospects for securing the train are not very encouraging, judging from an interview which the editor of the Thief River Review had last week with General Passenger Agent Whitney.

Mr. Whitney stated that a Sunday train would be impossible, that he was opposed to it from a moral standpoint, that the train men worked hard six days in the week and should have a Sunday's rest the same as other people and further, that it was the policy of the road to run Sunday trains only in case of absolute necessity in handling overland traffic.

No Sunday trains are run on any branches and to put one on here would compel them to add them on other branches and the company is opposed to it, first, last and all the time.

Mr. Whitney stated that ample week day train service would be given to handle the Reservation crowds, coaches would be added to the present train and if necessary other trains would be run.

HENRY CUNO INSANE.

River Falls Farmer Taken to Fergus Falls Monday Evening.

Henry Cuno, an aged farmer of River Falls township, was declared insane by Judge Tarrant Monday, and was taken to Fergus Falls that evening by Sheriff Linnihan and Ed Enright. Symptoms of insanity have been apparent for some months. He was insanely jealous of his wife and imagined all sorts of things that had no basis save in his disordered mind. He attempted to break up the furniture and destroy all of the property about the farm. Mr. Cuno was very badly frozen in a blizzard north of Thief River Falls early in in the winter.

Proclamation by Governor Urges Planting of Fruit Trees.

Governor Van Sant has issued his Arbor Day proclamation Friday, fixing Friday, April 29, as the day. In his proclamation the governor urges that the schools observe the day with appropriate exercises and tree planting. He recommends the planting of apple and other fruit trees,

Goodhue Euterprise: Early in the compaign the editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette was a strong Dunn advocate, but for "some reason" he changed his mind very quckly, and now John E. Well, there are a few "explainers" in Goodhue country, too.

PROF. CHAMBERLAIN CHOSEN

School Board Selects Pine City Educator as Superintendent of Our Schools.

At the school meeting Saturday evening Prof. E. W. Chamberlain, of Pine City, was elected superintendent of the Red Lake Falls schools for the coming year at a salary of $1,050. Prof. Chamberlain has signified his acceptance, and will be here April 30 to confer with the board and talk over matters relating to school work.

Prof. Chamberlain has been superintendent of the Pine City schools for the past three years, and has been engaged in teaching for fourteen years. He is a graduate of Carleton college, and has excellent recommendations from the faculty of that institution and other prominent educators. He is thirty-nine years of age and married.

Letters from prominent business men of Pine City to members of the school board show that the new superintendent is highly esteemed in his home town, and they regret very much to hear of him leaving. The schools have prospered during Prof. Whiteley's regime, and there is good reason to believe that Prof. Chamberlain will make a worthy successor.

DEATH OF MRS. TROMBLEY.

Old Resident of Lambert Passes to the Other Side.

Mrs. Ernest Trombley, who died two weeks ago at her home in Lambert township, was 69 years of age. She was born in Canada, and removed to Chippewa Falls, Wis., in 1868. The family came to Red Lake county twenty years ago, and have always lived on the farm in Lambert.

Mrs. Trombley leaves a husband and five children, in order of seniority as follows: Mrs. George S. Bell, Luverne, Minn.; George Trombley, Blueberry, Wis.; Edward Trombley, Red Lake Falls.; Mrs. G. Mullen, Chicago; Mrs. Emma Lackey, Chicago. The funeral was held on Friday, April 8, at the Lambert church, Rev. Father Roy officiating. Only one of the children, Edward, was present at the funeral. Had Mrs. Trombley lived two years she could have celebrated her golden wedding anniversary. She was a noble woman, loved by her friends and neighbors and esteemed by all with whom she came in contact.

TWO NEW WHEAT VARIETIES.

May Add 10 to 20 Per Cent to Crops of Farmers.

Prof. W. M. Hayes of the Minnesota experiment station has issued a bulletin on two new wheat varieties developed at the station, Minnesota No. 163 and Minnesota No. 169, which shows the practical work the station has done for the farmers of the state. The bulletin says:

"When it was found that the seed wheat markets of the world did not afford a better variety of bread spring wheat for our soils and climate than those which were producing an average yeild of only thirteen to fifteen bushels per acre for state averages of ten years, wheat breeding was resorted to, that the best available wheats might be originated. Thousands of new varities have been produced, two of which have been widely distributed and are being grown on hundreds of thousands of acres, adding 10 to 20 per cent to the value of the farmers' crops over what the parent varieties produced. Numerous other new, selected and hybrid varieties promise to make still larger gains in value per acre.

"This work of breeding has proved so profitable to the state, and promises so much, that its scope is extended. The plans in operation and the results secured have so met the approval of the United States department of agriculture and the state experiment stations ot the four states adjoining Minnesota, viz: North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin, that the five stations in these states and the bureau of plant industry in Washington have entered into extensive co-operation in the breeding of wheat and other field crops.

"To permanently hold its place in this section of the great world's farm, our hard spring wheats should yield an average of more than twenty bushels per acre (over one third more than now), worth, as money standards now are, $15 per acre. The Minnesota experiment station has [illegible] shown that this can be done. Two of our best new spring wheats have averaged at university farm for the past eight years 27.4 bushels and 28.4 bushels per acre. These are averages from twenty-acre plots under ordinary soil conditions, equivalent to twenty-five bushels in large fields. This is ten bushels more than is secured by the average farmer of the state."

Died in the West.

Mrs. Maurice Dargan, mother of Mrs. Malone of Thief River Falls, and of M. P. Dargan, of Wylie, died at the home of her son-in-law, John M. Boyle, at Tacoma, Wash., on Sunday. Mrs. Dargan was one of the pioneer residents of this section, having resided in the town of Black River and removed to Tacoma two years ago with her son, Thomas Dargan.

IN HONOR OF MRS. WHITELEY.

On Thursday evening the Knights of Pythias gave a very enjoyable card party in honor of Mrs. F. A. Whiteley. Progressive cinch was played, and the head prize was awarded to Miss Lillian Buse. Refreshments were served and remarks made by several members of the lodge. Prof. Whiteley responded on behalf of Mrs. Whiteley very gracefully.

A cinch party was given by the Rebeckahs on Friday evening in honer of Mrs. Whiteley. The winners of the head prizes were F. C. Burgdorf and Mrs. Willian Schwalen. The losers were John E. King and Mrs. H. C. Hansen. After luncheon was served, Miss Ludia Fletcher, noble grand, and Mrs Findeisen, past grand, paid graceful tributes to Mrs. Whiteley as a lodge worker and to her worth to the social life of the city.

ASSESSORS' INSTRUCTIONS

Issued in Circular Form—All Property Must Be Rated.

State Auditor Iverson issued the annual circular of instructions to county auditors and township assessors. The circular calls attention to the rule adopted by the state board of equalization last fall, requiring all property to be assessed at 50 per cent of its real value. Under this rule personal property is to be assessed at the following rates:

Horses, 1 year old, $10 and upwards; horses, 2 years old, $17 to $20; horses, 3 years old and over, $30 and upwards; cattle, 1 year old, $5 to $6; cattle, 2 years old, $9 and upwards; cows, $12 and upwards; all other cattle, $15 and upwards; sheep, $1.50 and upwards; hogs, $2.50 and upwards; wagons, carriages, bicycles, etc., $12 and upwards; sewing machines, etc., $5 and upwards; watches and clocks, $40 and upwards; melodeons organs, $15 and upwards; pianos, $80 and upwards; dogs, $5 and upwards.

The assessors must place a valuation this year on real estate which is only assessed every two years. The total valuation in 1902 was approximately $650,000,000.

The assessors are to meet next Thursday with their county auditors to receive their assessment books and get instructions, and on May 1 they will start making assessments. They are especially urged this year not to list property in the wrong column, which causes great confusion, and to pay no attention to the $100 exemption. The exemption should not be deduced by county auditors till the work of equalization is finished.

MONEY FOR SCHOOLS.

Polk County Coughs Up $2,000 in Back Taxes.

Crookston Journal: By the issuing of checks and warrants yesterday to the various town clerks and school treasurers of Red Lake county the books of Polk county were squared up and the portion of the county separated in 1896 now has no further claims against the parent county.

When the county was divided in 1896 quite a large amount of taxes which had been levied upon the Red Lake portion had not been paid into the county treasury and as a result since that time when sales of property have been made and deeds recorded the taxes have been paid into Polk county. The people of the new county either did not realize or did not care about the matter and have made no application for the money. Auditor Hoffard, when checking over his books preparatory to closing them found that the total amount paid and to which Red Lake county was entitled amounted to nearly $2,000. He procured a sworn list of the school district and town treasurers in Red Lake county and yesterday mailed them the amounts to which they were entitled.

This leaves the books of Polk county in reference to the county division practically squared up and no outstanding accounts to amount to anything are held by Red Lake.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

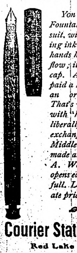
The Middle Joint "Modern" Fountain Pen



You don't like that old Fountain Pen; it never did suit, with its old finger-soiling ink joint just where the hands hold it; its doubtful flow; its loose or over tight cap. And yet you probably paid a high price for it in an ordinary size even. That's frequently the way with "has been's". We allow liberally for an old pen in exchange for the up-to-date Middle-joint "Modern" Pen, made and guaranteed by A. A. Waterman & Co. It opens easily and can be filled full. TERREBONNE.

By the "News Tattler."

Rev. Fournier leaves this week. It has not been learned who will be his successor.

Teddy Granger of Turtle River visited with relatives here during the week. He returned home Sunday.

Napoleon and Ector Martineau, Mat Holzmer and Arthur Prenevost, four of the most popular boys of Terrebonne left Sunday for Solway where they intend to get on the drive.

Mr. Ovide Moreau, Sr. has bought Dr. Tessier's residence. Mr. Moreau is going on an extended trip along the Pacific coast, and we understand that he is going to remove his family to remain here during his absence.

Mrs. Pierre Derosier, who has been sick for several months, quietly passed away Saturday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Father Fournier at the Terrebonne church Monday morning. The bereaved husband and children have the sympathy of the entire community.

Dr. Patterson of Lambert is to fill the medical vacancy caused by the departure of Dr. Tessier. We are glad to hear ot his coming. Dr. Patterson has a very good reputation as a competent and reliable physician; he comes well recommended from the various places which he has occupied. Here is success and welcome to him in Terrebonne.

Friday afternoon a sudden rise of water in the river broke the ice which was yet in a good state of preservation. It came down in very large pieces and struck with such force against the piers of the bridge that the safety of the entire bridge and mill-dam was in great doubts for a long time. The ice had about all gone by and the fears of the crowd had about subsided but just then a large piece was spied coming down, and as misfortune would have it it struck the second pier from the south end of the bridge with a terrific force, tipped the pier and dropped the second span to the water's edge. Then all was bustle and excitement, those on the bridge scrambling with all their might to reach "Terra Firma," thinking the entire mill site was afloat. A bolt which projected through the old timbers caught on the pier and kept it from sliding entirely off. The least jar would remove it. The bridge remains in the same condition at the present time. The Lambert stage had just gotten across when the accident happened, but the Lost P. M. was not so fortunate, he arrived at the bridge just about ten minutes too late and had to go home by way of Red Lake Falls. It is to be sincerely hoped that the county commissioners will act at once and repair the bridge. This is a great hinderance to the traffic of the community, especially so for the farmers of the North side, who have hauling to do from the mill.

ST. HILAIRE.

Antoine Payment has gone to Red Lake Falls and will work on a farm near that city this summer.

P. O. Hagglund has sold his milk cows to Mr. Shannon. Mr. Hagglund will work for Mr. Pleth surveying the reservation.

John Hendrickson took his household goods to Thief River Falls last week. Hendrickson & Wilson are going to conduct a butcher shop at that place.

Mr. Kellogg arrived from Marshall, Lyon County, last Saturday with a carload of household goods, stock and machinery and will move on to his farm recently purchased six miles south of town. He bought 10 good milk cows and intends to increase his herd to 20 cows as soon as possible and will be one of the leading patrons of the St. Hilaire Creamery. Mrs. Kellogg and daughter arrived here Tuesday of this week.

On Tuesday night about 10 o'clock William Olson had a narrow escape from being burned out. The prompt response of the fire department saved his house. Only a few minutes more the fire would have been beyond control. Mr. Olson had already retired when he was awakened by a peculiar noise and upon investigation found that the house was on fire. The fire had started in the kitchen and had got so far that if it had been left a few minutes longer it would have all bursted into flames. Only the kitchen was burned so as to completly destroy the inside, but the rest of the houuse was more or less damaged by smoke. The origin of the fire is a mystery. It seems that it might have started from rats getting at some matches on a shelf. There was no insurance on the property and his loss in clothing and other things are considerable.

"DE LAVAL" CREAM SEPARATORS! No others are to be compared with them. They are in a class by themselves, and we would advise intending buyers to try one with any other make in their own home and keep the one they like best. This certainly is fair, and has been done in a number of instances. The result has been that the other people had to pull their machines out, while we have never yet had a "Laval" Separator returned. We do not peddle these Separators around the country, but will be glad to bring one to anybody on ten days' trial.

All of our Goods are "ANTI-TRUST;" that is, we buy them for cash, and can therefore sell them at ROCK-BOTTOM PRICES, and on the most favorable terms.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Patronize Your Home Creamery.

I wish something could be done or said to induce more of the farmers in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls to patronize our co-operative creamery. Why it is that farmers within a radius of eight or ten miles of a good creamery will put upon the housewife the extra work of caring for the milk and cream and making the butter is more than I can understand.

A farmer having a cream separator, by taking proper care of the cream will not have to make the trip to the creamery more than twice a week in winter, and four times a week in summer. Quite often four or more farmers in the same neighborhood can club together in hauling in the milk, in which case each farmer would not have to make the trip more than once a week. The excuse quite often given by farmers for hot patronizing the creamery is lack of time to make the trip every day with milk. But you can readily see that the hand separator and neighborhood co-operation in hauling will eliminate this difficulty.

The hand separator is certainly a necessary machine on every dairy farm, and a machine that is going to be a factor in revolutionizing the dairy and creamery industry in this great northwestern country. The hand cream separator is the machine for the farmer, inasmuch as it saves a large amount of time and labor in hauling the milk and gives the farmer a much betrer quanity of skimmed milk for feeding to young calves and pigs.

I understand a large number of farmers here have separators, aud no doubt the time is not far distant when every farmer in the vicinity of Red Lake Falls will be using one and patronizing our creamery.

As buttermaker in the creamery here I am not only interested in the quality of of our product, but the quantity as well, for we can make twice as much butter at comparatively little more general running expense.

Now is the time to take a spring tonic to purify the blood, cleanse the liver and kidneys of all impurities. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do the business, 35 cents. Tea or tablets. A. L. Reichert.

HER ANNIVERSARY

By LAWRENCE PERRY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Never had there been such a winter in South Dusenbury. What with musicales, lectures, socials and the like the little village usually managed to fill in the dark, cheerless gap between harvest and sowing nicely. But this winter the felicities of village life had been augmented by an amazing and unparalleled number of wedding anniversaries. Wooden weddings, tin weddings, crystal weddings, had followed one another in rapid succession until those who were blessed in the giving were hardly less numerous than those blessed in the receiving.

Now, South Dusenbury contained its share of spinsters, village parlance which, being interpreted, signified that the woman to whom the term was applied had lived twenty-eight years or more—generally more—and was still unmarried. To their eternal credit be it said that they rejoiced open heartedly in the marital anniversaries of their fellow citizens and had contributed not a little to the general atmosphere of happiness which attended these functions.

No, not quite all. One exception—one distinguished exception—must be noted, Keziah Bottleby. Miss Bottleby was a strong minded, tall, angular woman, an ardent church worker and ready to turn her helpful hand to anything when the needs of the neighborhood required. But these wedding anniversaries began to pall upon her, and by the time Deacon Thompson and Mrs. Thompson had celebrated their silver wedding she was thoroughly disgusted. She lost no opportunity in letting that fact be known. Hers was a trenchant tongue. Some were amused; more were made uncomfortable. But there was no other result. The anniversaries continued just the same. Of course this fact did not silence Miss Bottleby.

"I tell ye," she said one afternoon at a meeting of the King's Daughters, "it's perfectly scandalous. Sech graspin' tendencies as has been exhibited in this village this winter is downright heathenish. Why, look at old John Newell and Sophy Newell. They ain't done nothin' but spat these mortal twenty-five years, accordin' to all accounts, and, laws me, there they stood up together at their silver weddin', she in a new gingham dress and all perked up and simperin' about with one eye and countin' the presents with the other. It made me sick. And I guess I showed jest how I felt too!"

As usual, Miss Bottleby was listened to in the most respectful silence, and when she ceased speaking no one ventured a remark. Miss Bottleby gave a contemptuous sniff and applied herself to her needle. While she sewed on, the glimmer of an idea shot through her mind, and as she pondered and enlarged upon it the stern lines of her face relaxed into a broad smile. Yes, she would do it. There was no reason why she should not and many reasons why she should. If so many persons congratulated themselves and asked others to join them simply because they had been married a score or so of years why should she not be congratulated in remaining single a similar period? Surely it was more difficult to remain unmarried than to find a husband. Yes, she would do it.

In a day or two the villagers received the following invitation:

"Miss Keziah Bottleby, having existed in single blessedness for forty-five years, requests your presence at her home on Thursday, May 12, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the occasion being an old maid's variety. Tea and doughnuts will be served, and presents may be stored in the parlor."

They were the talk of the village, these invitations, and every one said how like Miss Bottleby it was. They all meant to go, too, for they felt that she did deserve something for her long years of abnegation. The general tendency was to defeat her purpose by ignoring the obvious sarcasm and pretending that they took her seriously.

Hiram Spinks had received an invitation, and it had struck a responsive chord in his heart, for he, too, had enjoyed a life of celibacy.

He met Miss Bottleby several days before the "variety" party, and she smiled so warmly that Hiram lifted his hat clear from his head instead of giving the customary little flip of his hand.

"How be ye, Hiram?" said Miss Bottleby. "Fine warm day?"

"Why, how de do-o-o, Keziah?" said Hiram. "Yes, um; yes, it's tolerable warm."

That was all. Keziah swept by, but Hiram suddenly gave a start and turned to look at her retreating figure.

"A fine, smart woman," he muttered; "a real woman." He was thinking. He thought all the way to his lonely home and finally slapped his hand on his thigh.

"By gum!" he ejaculated. "I'll do it as sure as shootin'!"

The next few days were spent in painting, and his married sister came over and helped him put the house in unwonted order. But she felt that he had suddenly lost his mind. She was confident of this fact when a day or so later Hiram came home with a new suit of clothing and a new hat. But all that he would vouchsafe was that he had bought them for the party. Hiram was ready, and the more he mused on his new resolution the more absent minded he became.

The day of the "variety" came, and the villagers outdid themselves in their generosity. They [illegible] to silence Miss Bottleby's tongue on the subject of wedding anniversaries forever. The little parlor was piled with presents of all kinds, and all, including Miss Bottleby, were radiant. Every one had a regular good time, and when the guests began to leave they assured her they were ready for the next "variety" any time she chose to give it. Finally the door closed on the last guest, and Miss Bottleby returned to the parlor. She did not look at her presents. She was thinking of how kind they all had been and was making all sorts of resolutions concerning her future relations with her neighbors. Then she looked out of the window.

"I wonder whatever became of Hiram Spinks," she said.

As in answer the bell rang and upon opening the door there stood Hiram, shaven, beard and hair trimmed and new clothing. Keziah gasped.

"Why, Hiram, ye air late, ain't ye? Come in."

"Yes, yes," murmured Hiram. "I'm a-comin'," following Miss Keziah into the parlor. "But I can't stop long. I jest came in to bring ye my present."

Miss Bottleby looked surprised, for Hiram was quite empty handed.

"So ye've brung me a present, eh? Well, ye needn't hev done that, Hiram. What is it? Let me see it."

Hiram stepped closer.

"The present," he said slowly. "Why, Keziah, ye can see the present. It's right before ye. I've come and brung myself fur a present. Do ye want me, Keziah?"

"Why, Hiram!"

Hiram moved closer, and then suddenly Miss Keziah—but let us draw the curtain over what followed, those precious moments of first love in South Dusenbury.

The Flight of the Locust.

Writing in the Empire Review on the locust in South Africa, S. B. Kitchen says: Locusts are very tiny creatures, at most two or three inches long, yet giant jawed and shelled in a grim brown mail so hard that as they strike it causes a sharp smart. They travel in such numbers that it takes them four or five days to pass over. The scouts alone, hovering in patches like red dust clouds, are numerous enough to destroy the vegetation of a district, while the main body, high up in the air, a host of little black specks, stretches out into an interminable screen between heaven and earth. The fanning of their wings brings a fresh coolness over the hot earth even in the depth of summer. There seems to be a fresh breath of ozone as of the sea.

The Laughing Hyena.

Although the hysterical laughter of the laughing hyena is not, as was once supposed, the outcome of a deliberate attempt to decoy unwary travelers to their doom, this strange animal is, nevertheless, one of the most cunning of dumb animals. He is so suspicious of everything he does not understand that the sight of even a bit of string at once puts him on his guard. Trappers are aware of this fact and generally use the stems of creeping plants instead of string of any kind in setting their spring traps.

Preserving the Traditions.

"Yes, I have launched my new yacht," said Muchpop.

"What do you call her?" asked the friend.

"Named her for my native city—Brooklyn."

"And did you smash a bottle of wine across her bow when she was christened?"

"No, indeed! We broke a nursing bottle full of milk."—Judge.

Father (rushing about)—I can't find mine either. I don't see what your mother does with things. She's gone out, and there's nothing for us to do but hunt till we find 'em or else stay in.

Imposing.

She (at the review grounds)—What an imposing figure Captain Borrows has!

He—Yes; naturally so.

She—And why naturally, pray?

He—Oh, he's always imposing on his friends.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Called Him Brother.

Harlow—I noticed you called Fred "brother." Does he belong to some secret society that you do?

Shallop—I don't belong to any secret society. I call him brother because my wife once promised to be a sister to him.—Boston Transcript.

Customer (angrily)—You said that hair restorer you sold me a couple of weeks ago would work like a charm, and it didn't do any good at all.

Druggist—But, my dear sir, no one in this enlightened age believes in the efficacy of charms.

A Domestic Incongruity.

"Yes, he thinks he knows the ropes."

"I guess that's why it's so easy for them to get him on a string."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Magistrate (sternly)—Didn't I tell you the last time you were here I never wanted you to come before me again?

Prisoner—Yes, sir, but I couldn't make the policeman believe [illegible]

OUR FIRST HUNT CLUB.

It Was Organized In Pennsylvania Away Back In 1766.

The year 1766 is far back, but it is interesting to think that the mutterings of the coming war storm were not yet so engrossing even then but that the sportsmen of Pennsylvania could turn their attention to a more systematic organization of their fox hunting forces and then established the first hunt club in the country, the Gloucester Hounds. Not that this was the beginning of the sport in Pennsylvania, that eminently horse loving country, for fox hunting had held a high place in the pastimes of the people many a year before. It was rather the evidence that the sport had become so important that it needed systematizing, so that districts might be thoroughly hunted in turn and contentions, rivalry and clashing dates be avoided.

All the early fox hunting clubs had their origin in the pre-existing ownership of a greater or less number of hounds by private owners. Every considerable landowner in the south kept them, and good dogs they were, not always orthodox, according to the standard of the Belvoir and the Quorn of today, but nevertheless hounds derived from the best English and European stock and continued by judicious selection of those who showed the instincts by conformation suitable to the country in which they were called upon to work. Washington may be quoted as one of the southerners who kept hounds and hunted them too. Lafayette, moreover, sent him from France a splendid pack of French foxhounds, with qualities which still further helped to complete the most perfect animal for American fox hunting, the American hound.

From the formation of the Gloucester Fox Hound club in 1766 until today clubs have played the most important part in preserving the sport and regulating its practice. Not all clubs of equal importance, it is true, but all of the same spirit.—Illustrated Sporting News.

NEW YORK TIME.

It Is the Standard Used In All Our Weather Bureau Stations.

When we read a report from any of the 160 regular weather bureau stations throughout our land bringing the information that a rainstorm, a tornado or some other meteorological phenomenon began at a certain hour we need not suppose that the hour mentioned refers to the time at the place where the observation was made. The hour given is the exact New York time, for every clock at the regular weather bureau stations all over the land is set to the seventy-fifth meridian, or eastern standard time, which is exactly five hours behind Greenwich time.

Only this standard of time is used in the text of the Monthly Weather Review, and all weather bureau observers are required to record observations by it. The reason for this is that the best scientific deductions from the weather reports must be based upon the conditions of the atmosphere existing simultaneously in different parts of the country.

It would be very ludicrous if all the hundreds of reports sent daily had to be changed at the central office in Washington from local to eastern time, and so all the regular observers are required to use the New York, or eastern time, in making their reports.

There are many volunteer observers and newspaper correspondents who in reporting weather phenomena use other standards of time. If the weather bureau has occasion to use their reports the time is often corrected to agree with the eastern standard or the local standard is mentioned.—Detroit Free Press.

Women Who Dress Like Men.

Tourists in the Austrian Tyrol and the remoter regions of the Swiss Alps often come across strange peculiarities of dress, especially among the females in those out of the way places. In the little village of Champery, which nestles almost under the frowning Dent du Midi, the women dress like men and may often be seen in the fields. Naturally they are objects of much interest to tourists, but the women do not seem to be at all uncomfortably conscious of the peculiarity of their garb. The peasants of Champery are a simple, kindly folk, and doubtless find this novel dress more accommodating to the hard work they have to do.

Poor Conditions.

"Ask papa tonight," suggests the gentle girl to her adorer. "He is in such a good humor because he got the better of some man in a business transaction today."

The adorer shakes his head doubtfully.

"I believe I'd better not," he sighs. "I am the man he got the better of, and he would be sure to say that he couldn't let his daughter marry a man so unsuccessful."—Judge.

Tells How.

"And aren't you married yet?"

"No."

"Well, well! I thought you were engaged to a certain young lady in Germantown?"

"No; I was engaged to an uncertain young lady, and that's why I'm not married."—Exchange.

Annoying.

Layzee—My wife isn't exactly an anarchist, but she annoyed me this morning with one of her incendiary speeches.

Jenks—You don't say so?

Layzee—Yes, she said, "Henry, get up this minute and make the fire."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

CARNEGIE will found a school for neglected and impecunious heroes. Doesn't this make room for L. P Hunt?

GOOD citizens everywhere will be glad to see Joseph W. Folk win out in his fight for the Democratic governorship nomination in Missouri.

A CONTEMPORARY remarks: General Miles can point with pride to the fact that beer was used as a fire extinguisher at Nome, Alaska, last week. But it was only because the water was frozen.

THE receiver of one of the many entangled Montana mining companies who served ten days wants $400,000 for his services. The unlucky owners are negotiating with him for a trade for the fee by giving him the mine.

WE have never been superstitious or taken much stock in the supernatural, but the fact that Albert Berg is a candidate for the legislature makes us believe that ghosts are roaming at large up in Roseau county. Albert has been dead for some years, and he ought to be ossified by this time.

THE Democrats of New York state elected delegates to the national convention on Monday, and the entire delegation is instructed for Judge Alton B. Parker for president. This practically settles the matter, and Judge Parker is assured of the nomination. The East and South is almost unanimous for him, and most of the states in the middle West will probably follow the Parker band wagon.

FRANK NYE has pulled out of the congressional race in Minneapolis, and it looks as though the fight would again be between John Lind and Loren Fletcher. The outcome can easily be foretold. The people of Minneapolis have confidence in John Lind. He has done more for his district and state during the past year than Loren Fletcher accomplished in the decade of his incumbency.

THE editor of this paper acknowledges an invitation to attend the meeting of the Southwest Minnesota Editorial association at Heron Lake, Minn., on Friday, April 29, and also to read a paper before the assembled pencil pushers. Heron Lake is one of the most hospitable little cities in the state, and the fact that the editorial meeting is being promoted by that prince of good fellows, Carl S. Eastwood, assures a large attendance and a pleasant and profitable session.

THOSE who are predicting the reelection of President Roosevelt are liable to get a severe jolt. Of course such a contingency is possible, if not probable—and again it isn't. In 1884 the unknown Cleveland defeated the famous Blaine; in 1888 the unknown Harrison defeated the famous Cleveland. In 1884 it was freely predicted that not a state north of Mason & Dixon's line would go for Cleveland, and yet the election results told quite another story. The American voter looks more to the issue than the man. He reasons for himself, and decides which party promises to best carry out the principles for which he contends. It is a fair field, and anybody's battle.

IT might not be a bad idea for Congressman Steenerson to elucidate his views on the tariff and reciprocity questions. In the campaign two years he expressed himself as strongly opposed to the prevailing Republican sentiment on these questions, and told his prospective constituents that he would work for reciprocity with Canada and a reduction of the tariff on all articles controlled by the trusts. Did Congressman Steenerson mean what he said, or were his speeches mere campaign platitudes? Now would be a seasonable time to reiterate his views on these vital questions. The farmers of the Ninth district have a right to know what their representative at Washington intends to do for them.

SIN rebuked by satan, is the way one paper descibes the proceeding of the Mormon church officials at Salt Lake City last week. President Smith, who lately boasted the possession of five wives and half a hundred children, solemnly announced that plural marriages were henceforth forbidden. Apostle Lyman, the possessor of three wives and twenty children, made the same announcement. But not a word was said about the prohibition of polygamous cohabitation, which is only a degree less repugnant to the Edmunds law that polygamous marriage. If the Mormon church thinks that it can delude the country so soon after last month's disclosures at Washington by so transparent a proceeding as that at Salt Lake City last week it is wholly mistaken The country now knows the apostles of the Mormon church for habitual and persistent lawbreakers and demands that they be dealt with accordingly.

IN the business world two important events are the beginning of litigation over the manner in which the Northern securities company shall be broken up and the decision of the supreme court in the coal railroads case. A discussion of the latter subject last week brings out the fact that the court's decision means a great extension of the powers of the interstate commerce commission in the supervision and and investigation of monopolies, and this is hailed with general satisfaction. In the suit instituted by the Harriman interests against the plan to break up the merger the issue is a very simple one. The Hill-Morgan interest says that it would be impossible to return the Northern Pacific and Great Northern stock to its original holders. The Harriman interest claims that the plan of settlement adopted would amount practically to the retention of the control of the properties in the hands of the Northern securities company under another name, hence the suit to restrain the carrying out of this plan.

JUDGE H. L. BUCK, of Winona, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, has issued the call for the state convention at Duluth, June 22, to elect delegates to the national convention at St. Louis. The county conventions will be held on June 11. The state convention will have 989 delegates, the representation being one delegate for every 150 votes cast for W. J. Bryan in 1900. Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties get five delegates at large, and all the other counties three delegates at large. The districts will have representation as follows: First district, 110; Second, 107; Third, 115; Fourth, 96; Fifth, 102; Sixth, 137; Seventh, 116; Eighth, 92; Ninth, 114. Red Lake county is entitled to eleven delegates.

Nothing Small About Beltrami.

Bemidji News: The Red Lake Falls Gazette states that Hon. Luman C. Simons, who represented this district in the legislature at the last session, will be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Simons will probably have some opposition, as it is generally understood that a well known Beltrami county Republican will enter the contest. Just how this departure might affect party arrangements is problematical.

They're Solid For Dunn.

Warren Register: While in Crookston this week ye editor bumped up against nobody but Dunn men. On inquiring as to the gubernatorial situation there, we were informed that Polk county was practically unanimous for the Princeton men. We were assured, furthermore, that Dunn would carry, not only Polk, but Red Lake, Norman, Beltrami, and Clearwater counties. This was not said as a bluff, but intended for straight goods. In all the counties above mentioned Collins is regarded as a very poor second in the race, while Eddy is not in the running at all.

The Value of Advertising.

We find in one of our British contemporaries, says the Boston Herald, comment on the steadily increasing popularity of Ceylon tea in comparison with that grown in China. The question was asked, why has the taste of the people changed to such a marked degree in regard to this beverage? The answer given by a firm prominent in the business is a good one. They argued that the change of taste was but a half true explanation, and that a change wrought by advertising would be more accurate. For a number of years the Ceylon planters have been liberal advertisers of their product, while Chinese tea has not been advertised. As a result the consumption of Ceylon tea has increased with great rapidity, and has in many cases forced the China tea almost completely out of the market. Our British contemporary says that what is true of tea also applies to Scotch whiskies. It claims the increased consumption, particularly in the United Kingdom, of this whisky, is directly attributable to the blenders' advertisements. The same is also true of soaps. In speaking of American brands that have obtained a large sale in Great Britain, our contemporary says: "Any success which they (the American soap manufacturers) have attained is due probably more to persistent advertising than to the quality of their wares." Unquestionably, Ceylon tea, Scotch whisky and many soap specialists owe to continuous advertising a very large share of the magnitude of the trade they now enjoy. No better proof could be afforded that such advertising is entirely justified than the result obtained.

LOUISVILLE.

How is this for spring?

A sociable dance was held at the home of Paul Cyr's last Friday evening and a good time was reported by all.

Louis Ducharme sold ten tons of hay in the stack for $9 per ton this week.

Joe Noel had a hay hauling bee last Saturday.

Owing to the bad conditions of the roads the attendance at school, in Dist. No. 12, is quite small, only about 20 pupils attending.

Fred Ducharme spent the fore part of the week in town.

Luck seems to be against some of our young men, for three brothers started to town to attend a dance and when they were about half way a young lady, who seemed to know of their coming, caused two of them to walk while she rode to the dance with the other one, and the boys claim that the roads were real muddy too.

The road bride across Rue's coolie is in a very unsafe condition owing to the washout under the piles, causing the bridge to sink about six inches in the middle. The town board is planning upon putting in a new steel bridge. A steel bridge in that place would be welcomed by the public.

WASHINGTON SCHOOL NOTES.

(Edited by Fifth and Sixth Grades.)

The storm windows and storm shed were taken off of the building last Saturday.

The program was held last Friday but very few people came. It was a good program.

Plank sidewalks have been built around the school house so there is no excuse for getting muddy feet now.

The first room has received some seats because they have so many pupils.

Graham and Austrid Kindseth were absent last week on account of sickness.

The Minerva Literary Society will give a good program on the 29th of April and a good number should attend.

Miss Lulu Fletcher visited the school last Thursday afternoon.

There has been some pupils changed from Miss Ramsdel's room to Miss Norby's room to give space for some of the new pupils.

There has been more absences this week, probably because of warm weather and spring work.

The fifth and sixth grades are to use the left side of the stairway now and the third and fourth the right hand side.

The fifth and sixth grades have begun the study of buds in connection with their drawing.

12.25 to Buffalo, N. Y., and return via Nickel Plate Road, May 10th, 11th and 12th, with return limit of May 23rd. Also lowest rates to Ft. Wayne, Cleveland, Erie and other Easter points. Three trains daily, with first-class Modern Equipments. Meals in Nickel Plate dining-cars, on American Club Meal plan ranging in price from 35 cents to $1.00; also service a la carte. No excess fare charged on any train on the Nickel Plate Road. When contemplating an eastern trip, write John Y. Calahan, General Agent, 113 Adams St., Room 208, Chicago, Ill. Iver Hedland moved up from Blue Earth, Minn., this week, and has settled on the Joseph Lachance farm in Poplar River township, which he has rented for the coming year. Mr. Hedland owns a farm adjoining, and expects to erect a set set of buildings on the place during the summer.

A Washington dispatch to the Minneapolis Journal states that the opening of the Red Lake reservation will probably be July 15. A meeting of Land Commissioner Richards, Congressman Steenerson and Senators Nelson and Clapp will be held in a few days at which time formal action will be taken.

A delegation of St. Hilaire citizens interviewed Thomas H. Shevlin at Crookston last week with regard to the St, Hilaire mill. Mr. Shevlin told them that the mill would not run this year owing to the scarcity of logs, but assured the delegation that in all likelihood the mill would be started up again in 1905.

A. R. Daggett, who travels for Strong & Warner, a Chicago millinery house, was in the city over Sunday, the guest of his boyhood friend, Frank E. Hunt. Mr. Daggett likes Red Lake Falls and her people and promises to visit us frequently during the summer.

The last echo of the famous St. Hilaire dumping ground case was heard at the court house yesterday when the final decree was entered. Mr. Dahl, who sued the city for damages, did not secure a verdict, but the village is restrained from using the premises as a dump ground in the future.

It seems that old stock is not allowed to accumulate at the Big Store. Their clean-up sale during the past week on last year's men's and boys' suits was a great success. The prices they are making are bound to loosen your purse strings. They still have a fair stock left, so you had better go and make your selections.

Thief River Press: Ed. Coenen will next week start a cigar factory, being established for the present in the Olson residence in the northwest part of town. Later he expects to get a better location in the business portion of the town. Ed's. cigars are well known here, he having formerly been engaged in business with Oliver Pederson.

Dr. J. Gendron has decided to move to Grand Rapids, Minn., where he will engage in the practice of his profession. The Doctor has a splendid reputation as a physician and surgeon, and no doubt he will find a splendid field there. The people of Red Lake Falls with be sorry to hear of the removal of the Doctor and his family.

Don't forget that the Courier stationery store has just received several hundred boxes of correspondence paper, in all the latest styles and shapes. Each box contains twenty-five sheets of paper and 25 envelopes, and the prices run all the way from 5c to $2.00 per box. A quarter gets a good quality of goods. Call and see them.

Our readers will notice a new feature in the Courier this week—a creamery and dairy department, conducted by George L. Austin, manager of the Red Lake Falls creamery. Mr. Austin expects to have something of interest to say each week to the creamery patrons of Red Lake county, and the department ought to prove instructive and helpful.
